WOULD REFER COMBINES ACT TO COMMITTEE

'Star Chamber' Probes Possible Under Bill, Cahan Tells Commons

Regret Says Bill Designed to Create Machinery For Full Probe

MEANING OF 'COMBINE'

Many Provisions in Criminal Code Parallel Clauses

Ottawa, April 1 (CP)—A plea to refer the Combines Investigation Act to a special parliamentary committee was made in the House of Commons on Wednesday by Hon. C. H. Cahan (Conn., St. Lawrence).

He suggested appointment of seven or nine members who would hear evidence and report to the House. The committee would clarify the provisions of the act and the conditions under which inquiries would be made. Any inquiry before it began to operate, Mr. Cahan said, investigations would be launched under the new bill, Mr. Cahan said, into legitimate corporations carrying on a lawful business.

Terms of Investigation.

Ulterior motives might prompt the Minister of Labor to investigate companies which he considered likely to operate in a criminal manner under the act, Mr. Cahan declared. Similarly, the State did not believe that it should hold the legislative power over a legitimate corporation.

Only one bill, said Labor Minister King, was designed simply to create machinery. Hon. Peter Heenan, K.C., (Lib., Northumberland) said that evidence might be taken in camera in proceedings against a company.

Minister to Make Explanation.

Hon. King said would make explanation of the Combines Investigation Act before the House dealt finally with it, and would create a full-time staff to carry out investigations.

"In addition, it would widen the definition of a combine and would exempt companies that might be investigated.

The minister said a committee would be pointless when the bill was ready for the decision of the public and the House could decide this point in prosecutions.

There were many provisions of the Criminal Code, Mr. Rogers said, which paralleled the clause in the bill concerning the establishment of investigation of combines which were likely to be destroyed by publicity before sensations in the future.

Why the Weather?

By Stanley A. H. Thiessen, Science Service Meteorologist

"If it freezes on All Fools' Day, it will freeze on All Fools' Day."

If brings good crops of corn and hay."

This is one of the true (or nearly true) proverbs. It generally is not true, but the spell is cast by a single fact which is believed by a cold April 1. The weather records of Washington, D.C., show that the crops are saved, and that the fools are fooled. There are many other proverbs which have no sense rating; that is, no real verity applies to them. Here is one:

"If it's cold April the barn will fill."

School Authorities are Urged To Make Exams Thinking Test

Dr. Wallace, Principal at Queens Objects to Quality of Exams

NATURE SETS QUALITY.

Toronto, April 1.—(CP)—Dr. R. G. Wallace, principal, of Queen's University, Kingston, urged upon school authorities to make scholastinations a test of thinking ability. He addressed the police and secondary department of the Ontario Educational Association annual convention.

He said he did not object to the use of examinations but to the quality of them.

"What examinations should test is knowledge used for judgment, appreciation, thinking," he declared.

The nature of examinations will set the quality of the teaching in the classroom. If the examinations are factual, the teaching will be factual, "if the examinations are provocative, the teaching will be".

"Examinations are helpful if they should be maintained in the classroom, according to Dr. R. G. Wallace, principal of Queen's University. He told the college and secondary department of the O.E.A. yesterday, that he could see no reason for abolishing the school certificate examinations.

Dr. Wallace, speaking before the Federation of Women's Teachers' Associations of Ontario said that the strictly program method in education could not meet the plans of direct teaching.

"The strictly methods make great and vivid parts of knowledge," he said. "Neither the activity nor the direct method are abandoned but there should be a compromise between the two.

Teachers must be willing to find the boy or girl differing from their instructor in thinking. A different emotional level was necessary on the teachers' part.

"There is only one reason that we can't have peace in the world and that is because we cannot get ourselves in the place of others," he said.

Coronation Day May 12 Public Holiday in Canada

Ottawa, April 1.—(CP)—Coronation Day has been made a public holiday by proclamation, Hon. Ernest Lapointe declared today in the House of Commons in answer to questions by T. L. Church (Conn. Toronto-Brockdale).

"Since the proclamation makes May 12 a public holiday within the meaning of the bills of Exchange Act and the Civil Service Act," Mr. Hindley said, "it will be a bank and civil service holiday and no doubt will be generally observed throughout Canada."

Religious services had been requested either on May 12 or the preceding Sunday to commemorate the occasion.

"The government notified the Provincial governments of the intention to proclaim May 12 a public holiday," said the Minister, "and suggested that the Provincial governments might advise the municipalities that the celebration in each community be organized as may be most appropriate to local conditions.

"This is in accordance with practice followed on the occasion of the coronations of King Edward VII, 1902, and King George V, 1911, and the silver jubilee of King George V, 1935.

"The defence forces have been requested to co-operate with local authorities in celebrations as far as may be practicable.

"Salutes will be fired on Coronation Day at the regular saluting stations and at all Provincial capitals. Arrangements will be made for appropriate decorations of public buildings," Mr. Hindley added.

Rising Curve of Prosperity Threatened by Price Rise

Opinion is Held Available Resources of Capital and Labor May Not Permit Expansion and Competition For Resources May Cause Pernicious Rise With Slump to Follow.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, April 1.—(CP)—A heavy upward swing in prices threatens the rising curve of world prosperity.

The economic bitmarst of five years ago was responsible for abysmal collapse in prices of raw materials, foreign and stocks and lowered demand, combined to spread depression to the ends of the world. Combined fearing collapse of their national economy, protected themselves behind barriers of high tariffs, quotas and exchange controls. They piled their currencies in terms of gold.

Trade Graph Climbing.

Now, the bitmarst has flown to the ceiling. Trade is booming. The international graph. Growing industrial activity controls. They are the race for huge armaments has brought a world shortage in scrap iron. Consumption which only a few years ago were loaded down with stocks of foodstuffs is unable to cope with the growing demand.

"The question," observes the Financial News, "is no longer whether the forces of recovery may soon exhaust themselves but how much longer it will continue before recovery is arrested by physical limitations to expansion."

Rise and Slump.

Indeed, the view is now widely held that the world is approaching of capacity and labor may not permit a further substantial measure of expansion and that competition for resources may cause a pernicious rise with slump to follow.

And later the financial news continues: "In the case of many primary products stocks have now been reduced to a normal level, and as consumption is now increasing fairly rapidly and as production is not, prices must be expanded rapidly at short notice, and the world is at present passing through a period of transition bearing a shortage of supplies, are not likely to be corrected overnight for longer periods ahead, thus assuming the pressure on supplies and on prices."

10 More Years' Life Expectancy If Medical Knowledge Used

Prevention For Cancer or Heart Trouble Would Add More

LIFE SPAN GROWS

Washington, Apr. 1 (CP) — The average length of human life could be stretched another ten years, Dr. Thomas Parran said today, if the advantage were taken of available medical knowledge.

Dr. Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, said that in the last 30 years the average length of life of men has increased from 48 to 61 years, and of women from 49 to 64 years.

"If the control knowledge ten years could be added to that life expectancy," he said, "entirely aside from the question of discovering more effective preventative for cancer or heart disease."

Diseases of the heart cause more deaths than any other affliction of mankind, he emphasized, and death rate being more than double that of cancer.

While no effective general treatment is available, he said, many cases are being saved by early diagnosis and the length of life prolonged.

REPORT REVOLTS AGAINST REGIME

New Sections of Insurgent Held Spain in Throes of Revolt

Paris, April 1 (AP)—Paris newspapers today reported revolts against the regime of General Franco in new sections of Insurgent-held Spain.

Demonstrations against the Insurgent Government were reported at Caceres of Valladolid and Algeciras and even in Salamanca, the seat of his government, were said to be widespread. Food has been in short supply for many years and wages have not been suppressed only after many persons were wounded by troops firing on rioting crowds.

In Spanish Morocco, where it was declared the movement is gravest, the situation was said to be so grave that the colonists were said to have caused by deep discontent with Franco's rule, that the country was being handed over to Italy and Germany.

Despite denials from the Insurgent Government, reports of disturbances in Spanish Morocco at Tetuan, reports from Tangier, Moroccan international city, and from the French Morocco, insisted Franco had ordered the withdrawal of all Italian troops in the main spare of the Insurgent army, Moroccan troops, reported by the newspaper Le Jour, to be loyal against Le Jour and Italian influence in the Insurgent command.

ARMAMENT COST CAUSES DEFICIT IN BRITISH BUDGET

In Reality Surplus Shown More Than Seven Million Pounds

DEBT REDUCED

Threepence on Income Tax to be Continued Says Chamberlain

(By George Hambleton)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 1 (CP Cable)—The British taxpayer is resigning himself to another threepence on the income tax, when Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, submits his sixth budget to the House of Commons on April 20. But drastic increases in taxation are improbable.

On the whole the nation's balance sheet for the financial year which closed yesterday was greeted with something like a sigh of relief. Increased expenditure on armaments brought a budget deficit for the first time in four years. But this deficit, £97,850,000, was more than twice offset by £13,127,000 taken from the redemption. On balance, therefore, there is a surplus of £7,530,000 (£37,650,000). Ordinary revenue and ordinary expenditure.

It is maintained, that to balance the public accounts for the coming year, Chamberlain will have to raise an additional £30,000,000 in revenue. This at the present rate of trade expansion will not be forthcoming from increasing taxation revenue. Mark these words: "Trade expansion" says economist, "is the strongest force that Chamberlain will not be willing to take the risk of attempting to balance his budget on the present basis of taxation."

Fine Achievement

The Times editorially describes the 1936-37 budget as a fine and efficient achievement in a year when revenue had to bear the full cost of the first full year of intensive rearmament and continued extensive social services and even the aid of borrowing."

"But it must not be thought that because the immediate prospect is reassuring," the Times adds, "that later any indefinite prospect of absorbing one quarter of the national

Rome Says Duce Confident Franco Will Be Conqueror

No Further Troops For Spain Says Roman Despatch

LOSSES IN SPAIN

Rome, Apr. 1 (AP)—Premier Mussolini is confident, informed sources reported today, that General Franco's insurgent forces will conquer the Spanish government.

Italian observers they said, spring from two premises:

1. A belief that Franco now has sufficient strength to overcome the opposition he faces at this moment.

2. An assumption that the International non-Intervention agreement will prevent the Valencia-Madrid government from receiving decisive reinforcements.

No Further Aid.

Accordingly, Italy does not plan to send Franco further assistance even though he may encounter some set-backs.

A formal statement by Dino Alfieri, Italian press minister, was expected on this point. It pointed out that Italy already has sent Franco totalled "several hundreds", but "since we are dealing with volunteers, the number is subject to fluctuations."

Alfieri denied any Italian army divisions were ready to go to Spain from Italian Libya, and gives assurance regarding the prohibition of the departure of volunteers for Spain have that has not always will be strictly observed in Italy."

However, if the Spanish government continues to receive foreign aid, Alfieri authoritatively, Italy "stands ready to examine full liberty of action."

ENTERED STORE BY A REAR WINDOW

Removing a pane of glass from a rear door window, robbers broke and entered the grocery store of Mrs. and Mr. McKechnie, at Frankford, some time last night and stole a quantity of staple groceries. Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien and Provincial Constable J. Bowerman investigated, but failed to throw any light on the robbery today they reported.

No tire marks, that might lead the officials to find the robbers transported the goods away by motor were found, although two 24 pound, sacks of fine sugar and other quantities of staple groceries were taken. The officers state, would amount to considerable poundage. Mr. Blake, one member of the firm stated today he doubted the possibility of the goods having been successfully carried away as less there were more than two persons implicated in the robbery.

No sounds or disturbances were heard by nearby neighbors during the night, the robbers quietly removing the entire pane of glass from the rear door thereby gaining entrance, later replacing the glass when they left the store. It was secure, when I opened up this morning" Mr. Clot stated, "but one less until later," added Mr. Blake.

CHILD BITTEN BY CANINE AT PLAY

James Gauthier Had Clothes Torn And Injured Hip

Little Jimmie Gauthier, 62 St. Charles St., received minor injuries when bitten by a companion's dog, while at play yesterday afternoon. The lad was bitten on the left thigh and his clothes torn. He was taken to the surgery of Dr. R. A. Flynn, where he received medical attention and his injuries dressed. Jimmie was playing with his buddy and pal Bertie McQuaide, 50 Geddes St., and with them was Bertie's pet and companion, his dog. In fun the McQuaide boy set the dog after Jimmie Gauthier, and entering into the fun, Bertie ran around a large tree, the dog catching up with him and jumping upon him to knock him down and bite him on the left hip. P. C. Taylor investigated the incident reported it had undoubtedly been an accident, as the dog always plays with the children of the neighborhood and is well known to attack a person with viciousness. Constable Taylor took the injured lad to Dr. Flynn's office and after the wounds had been dressed, escorted him home.

EXPECTS TO HAVE LICENCE SOON

Proprietor of Crystal Hotel Says He Acted Reply to Wrong Official

"Merely an error on my part in not answering a circular letter sent out by the Board Controller and dated recently to the proper authorities. I expect to have the matter cleared up and have the licence issued again established soon. It's all a mistake," stated James Cowan, proprietor of the Crystal Hotel today after it was learned his hotel had been included in the list of some 45 hotels throughout the province, whose beverage room licenses was not renewed today, the beginning of the fiscal year of the Ontario Liquor Board.

45 beer and wine licenses throughout Ontario, including hotels and clubs, were cancelled by L.C.B. today, included on the list was the Crystal Hotel, Belleville. It was pointed out that continued violations of rulings of the Liquor Control Board were responsible for most of the hotels failing to secure renewals.

"Some weeks ago I received a circular letter from the L.C.B. regarding the matter of wiring and the type of electrical equipment, that must be standardized in all beverage rooms. I made the necessary changes, but when I answered the letter, thinking I had complied with the new electrical regulations, I sent the reply to the wrong official," stated Mr. Cowan, Toronto, instead of Chief Commissioner Odette of the Liquor Control Board, I've already written Mr. Odette explaining the situation and expect to have my beverage room soon stated Mr. Cowan.

In his official statement to the press today Commissioner F. G. Odette indicated that providing certain "structural changes" were made in some of the hotels and clubs affected, licenses for the renewals would be given serious considerations. It is understood this heading Mr. Cowan expects to regain his beverage room license, he stated today.

Chatham, Ont., Apr. 1 (CP)—Mike Doroloraj, 24, Chatham Italian, arrested by city police yesterday on suspicion of being implicated in the stabbing of Norman Johnson, 34-year-old Chatham Indian during a fracas in an all-night revelling Sunday, has told police he wielded his knife in defence of a "tight spot", Chief of Police Findlay Low said today.

Doroloraj was formally charged with vagrancy before Magistrate Arnold yesterday and was remanded until Wednesday. It has not been decided whether charges will be preferred against him as a result of his important statement in the autopsy room.

Meanwhile, the authorities have in custody Bertha Robinson, 28, and Lavina Palmer, 36, who live in one of the apartments where the fracas occurred. They are being held on a vagrancy charge.

Four or five families live in the building, Chief Low said. In one of the apartments, a party was held Saturday night, at which there was singing and dancing with Johnson playing his guitar.

Big Tidy Story of Affair.

Doroloraj, according to his statement to police, had been accustomed to visit one of the families at the Duke street address, and on the three Saturday night, apparently went to the wrong door. It was this visited inside. He alleged he was invited into one of the rooms where Miss Palmer, and remained with her for some time. As he was about to leave, he claims he discovered a man named Johnson, whom he knew, lying on the floor with a knife in his back.

It was then, according to the statement, that Miss Palmer rushed out to Johnson who was in another room. He alleges that Johnson struck her and knocked him down. Believing that he was in a fight for his life, and that the only way he could defend himself was with a knife, he whipped out his jackknife and fought his way out.

After the stabbing, Doroloraj fled, leaving his overcoat, shoes, coat, and hat. The man's name was not known to any of the other persons at the party except as Mike. It is the man's real name, however, was a cleaner's name, and police traced his name through this.

LORD'S DAY ACT MAY BE REVISED

92-Year-Old Blue Law Entirely Out of Date House Informed

Ottawa, April 1. (CP)—Canada's 63-year-old blue law, the Lord's Day Act, may come before parliament next year for revision, Justice Minister Lapointe told the House of Commons today.

T. L. Church (Cons., Toronto-Broadview) asked the question: Would he say when he said the police in many Canadian cities recently have started prosecutions under the Act. The police drives were directed primarily against drug stores which were prohibited under the Act from selling anything except drugs, and other small articles on Sunday.

The Toronto member said the Act was hopelessly out of date. "In one thing, it prohibited swimming on Sunday, and I understand that to decisions of Toronto Magistrates

Numerous minor investigations kept the local police busy during the past 24 hours, but no serious crime was reported, however. Local

...told the men last night the company had accepted the union in principle and that it objected only to one thing, Mr. Taylor said.

"I suggested they go about without the 'if' and 'but' and proceed then to the conference with the Minister of Labor and the company.

"The Detroit agreement provides for a 40 hour week, establishment of a 48 hour week with time and one half for overtime, adoption of the picture agreement whereby men hold their jobs according to their length of service so that the last man laid off is the first man rehired, and establishment of a grievance committee."

Manager Highfield agreed the company had accepted the recognition of the Union, establishment of a shop steward system whereby groups of workers selected a steward to represent them in representations to the management.

The system is part of the "Detroit agreement," the Union has asked the company to accept.

"We will not continue the shop steward system," manager Highfield said. "It has led to abuses and intimidation."

Manager Adamant

Highfield repeated he was adamant in his refusal to consider organizer Thompson as a representative of General Motors workers although he said the company's representative would meet him at the conference requested by the Department of Labor.

"We will not deal with any person, not an employee, who pretends to put forward the claims of our employees", he said.

Asked regarding the "Detroit agreement" proposal of a 40 hour week with time and one half for overtime, work, manager Highfield said:

"As soon as the Ontario Department of Labor decided what shall constitute a full week, 40 hours or 50 hours, we will pay time and one half for all overtime above that. At present the department has no ruling. We have been working a 45 hour week on ordinary schedules and a 50 hour week at rush periods, with no overtime."

General Motors has always recognized the principle of seniority regarding employees, Highfield said. "The longer a man works for us the longer he will continue to work for as provided he can and is willing to work", he said, declaring the last man laid off is always the first rehired, when business improves.

Statement Contradicted

Highfield contradicted an assertion by organizer Thompson that men with 20 and more years service with General Motors here were without employment, while men with shorter terms of service were working.

"When a man gives the best years of his life to a company, that company owes him something", Thompson said. "We are not accepting into the Union" any strikebreaking workers now not working, but we have agreed to present the just claims of men with long service records, who have not had jobs with the company for 10 several years."

Thompson was asked whether the Union was trying to hurry the strike, while production was at its height and before its usual tapering off in April. He declared the union was in no hurry, and that the 4,000 locals in the three Ontario plants of General Motors—Oshawa, Windsor and St. Catharines.

ARMAMENT COST

income in taxation should be regarded with compassion.

"This country may have far less financial need than others to strain itself in putting an end to the devastating competition in armaments. Its resources and its credit have been drawn once again to be equal to all calls upon them in this regard without any abatement of simultaneous efforts to improve social conditions still further.

"Nevertheless, both morally and materially the British public would heave a sigh of relief if this madness could pass from the world, and though the national accounts reflect unequivocal determination to be strong in the cause of peace they also show the measure of relief which stable condition would bring."

INSURGENT DRIVE ON BILBAO FRONT

Several Hamlets Captured In Initial Thrust of Offensive

Vitoria, Spain, April 1—(AP)—The insurgent northern army smashed through government lines on the Bilbao front today, capturing several hamlets in the initial thrust of their long-awaited offensive.

The insurgent drive broke through entrenchments northeast of Villarreal, 10 miles north of Vitoria and only 21 miles south of Bilbao, seat of the Basque government on the Bay of Biscay.

The government first line of defence was taken by storm as the insurgent commanders reported, and the enemy troops were routed throughout the sector.

General Franco's troops occupied a small fortress in the centre of the salient and a white system of connecting trenches.

Using that as a base they spread their advance through several small villages nearby.

EDUCATION

Educational methods are passing through the furnace in these days of the frying pan and the fire. In the white heat which is trying every single institution of man these days, when there is so much unsettlement, it is not to be wondered at that education should come under attack.

During the present session of the Ontario Educational Association, much was said of the large class of boys and girls men and women, seeking in education something which will equip them to fill their place in the world of business and industry. Some of the time-honored institutions, like the old style matriculation, will be amended, announcement was made. According to the Deputy Minister, considerable flux is to be found in the system of the future which is to be tried out. That the influence of youth today is to be found in much of the discussion is clear enough.

It is of note that English and health education are to be stressed under the changed front of education. English is assuredly rightly placed, while one has only to realize what science has done for health to realize the all-importance of health education.

When one is speaking of health education one has but to look about to see the sturdy youth of today in the countryside, the villages, towns and cities of the land to see how some one's knowledge and public knowledge of health laws have brought into being a more virile race, tall, strong, as so many of the young are today. These healthy young have been brought up under modern ideals of plenty of fresh air, exercise and the healthy influences of life. No one can fail to notice this development and hence no one will oppose the stressing of health education, because there are so many scientific facts and laws which should be known to every human being.

No one system is probably ideal in all circumstances. The old humanities which have produced some of the greatest statesmen in the Old World, do not quite suit the present stage in Canada, it was said at the O.E.A. meeting. Some would abolish Latin which used to be an obligatory subject, and now it becomes optional. Yet not so many years ago it held no small place as a training medium for the student's mother tongue and for the sake of composition as well as for cultural value in knowledge of Latin and the value of the study of comparative philology, (the science of words) in one tongue and another.

Modern education and the education of the future are preparing the young for the days near and far ahead, days full of the utmost moment, and days the full content of which is not yet realized. The object is to forestall that time with an up-to-date system of education.

TEN TO BE BANNED

W. J. Funk of the Literary Digest hits at the overwhelming use of ten words, which annoy him very much. These words are okay, lousy, terrific, contact, definitely, gal, racket, swell, impact and homey.

Some of these are spineless words with no worthy background and are almost meaningless, like the word "swell" on every tongue tip to describe something when the talker is too lazy to hunt for a better word. That word "lousy" carries its flavor of vulgarity with it even on the tongue of wealth. Even the use of 'impact' and 'contact' played to death by unimaginative men should be banned though this would tongue-tie some conversations. 'Racket' is overdone by those who wish to use a word so many use. "Okay" is likely to pass away, one of the most ill-fitting words ever thrown together. Use of "honey" and "gal" as terms of endearment are worthy of attack as so weak. 'Terrific' is a strong word often used to describe the most insignificant of things.

Most of the ten words indicate a tendency today of mistaken stress or overstress like this word "terrific", something in the way in which the radio announcer who is full of sound and bluster tries to stress what he thinks ought to be stressed to catch the interest of the audience.

The word "definitely" is a good word, but so trampled upon that it comes to mean nothing.

The use of all ten is a sign of careless disregard of meaning of slovenly unimaginative use of words.

Some day some one will be coming out with attacks on the word "service" used at all times and places by good and careless speakers and writers.

A heap of ill-chosen erudition is but the luggage of antiquity.—Balzac.

THE COLORED RACE IN THE SOUTH

The remnant of an alien race
We see them everywhere,
But lo! the marks of bondage
They now no longer bear;
They live in this fair Southern land,
A people who are free
From the oppressor's heavy hand,
And years of slavery.

For long, long years they labored
Beneath the southern sun,
With neither recompense nor praise
When the day's work was done;
And in the public market place
Like cattle they were sold,
The mother from her children,
All for the sake of gold.

The cries of this down-trodden race
Were heard throughout the land,
Then freedom struck a mighty blow
At the oppressor's hand;
The colored race so long enslaved
Were set at liberty,
And racial lines no more divide
In this land of the free.

They writhe no more beneath the load,
They walk in Freedom's ways,
But oft in dreams may come to them
The horror of those days;
But a gladsome day is dawning,
The best since time began,
When the world will own God's Fatherhood
And the brotherhood of man!

BEATRICE LILLIE (LADY PEEL) IS A REAL TROUPER, she never neglects gathering gobs of publicity where it will do her the most good. Bea is appearing in New York City and adding to the gaiety of the great city in a musical offering which is said to be near "the tops" on Broadway. Easter Sunday Lady Peel joined the Easter parade on Fifth and Park Avenues with a coach and four, just to show that she knows her publicity and is always able to spring something new. Bea's coach and four was a distinct novelty and the scene was so much of a novelty to the four horses that they made a bolt for the door of the Plaza Hotel and were with difficulty persuaded to join the Easter parade in any sort of decorous fashion; Lady Peel being nearly jolted from her high seat beside the driver by the preliminary prancing of the horses. Lady Peel was supposed to describe the Easter costumes via radio but blown blue by the icy blasts roaring up from the Battery seawall through the canyons, she decided to retire into her voluminous and expensive furs from which she did not emerge until the Waldorf Astoria was reached where the coach was abandoned for more congenial surroundings within this great hostelry. It's quite a far cry from Beatrice Lillie, pupil at St. Agnes School, Belleville, to Lady Peel of London and New York.

DOING IT PROPERLY

The portrait painter was showing a sweet old lady around his studio—hopeful of a commission. "But, of course, that one's not finished yet," he said casually, pointing to the head and shoulders of a lad in the nude.

"So I see," was the reply.

Ensued a heavy silence; then she said: "Dear me! I never knew before that they painted them first without their clothes!"

A TIME CHARGE

Chiseler: "You oughtn't to charge me but half price for cutting my hair when I'm half bald."

Barber: "Sorry sir. We don't charge for cutting your hair—we charge for the time we spend hunting for it."

The prince aboard the Collingwood (RIGHT) and as a Naval Officer in 1917

Back from the Cumberland cruise Prince Albert was gazetted midshipman and in Sept. 1913, he joined H. M. S. Collingwood. By 1914 the war was then apparent, nor yet the following year when the great fleet exercises were held off Portsmouth.

But only a few weeks later the blow fell; Britain was at war. Midshipman Prince Albert was still a man of the ranks, known aboard as Mr. Johnson, still doing his job with his brother officers with no recognition of his royal lineage asked or given. His father, King George V, visited the Collingwood once, to greet his son only as a midshipman along with his fellow ratings. But appendicitis which had worried the prince for some time finally forced him ashore and to a hospital. It was Feb., 1915, before he rejoined his squadron, only to be again forced ashore by recurrent attacks of the illness that finally halted his naval career. But before his sailing days were over, his royal highness was to feel the baptism of fire that a ship of the line earned at the mighty battle of Jutland.

The Collingwood was not his during the most shrouded battle in 1916, but she was engaged with more than one German warship and for his calm and courage under fire, Prince Albert was mentioned in dispatches. He served in a fore gun-turret of the Collingwood during the entire engagement and his coolness was remarked upon by officers and men alike. But illness was again besetting him, diagnosed at last as a severe duodenal ulcer and an immediate operation was ordered.

Prince Albert ardently hoped to return to the navy after his convalescence but it was not to be. Weakened by the operation and the long fight against his illness, it was considered better for the prince to terminate his career afloat. Today's picture shows the prince retired he regretfully accepted that decision.

At Victoria University, Toronto the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon the Rev. J. R. Wilson of Peterboro, former pastor of Bridge Street Church here.

The following is taken from the Mail & Empire: "Toronto is losing one of its prominent curlers and bowlers in Robert J. Wray, who is leaving shortly for Belleville. 'Bob' has been closely identified for many years with the West-end sporting club and at a special meeting held on Saturday night of the Parkdale Lawn Bowling Club, King Street and Unwin Avenue, Mr. W. R. Jackson on behalf of the bowlers, presented Mr. Wray with a handsome club bag. Many kind words were spoken regarding Mr. Wray's connection with the lawn bowlers and good wishes were extended to him in his new field. Mr. Wray was Vice-President of both the Parkdale Bowling Club and the Parkdale Curling Club. As a bowler, he helped the club to win several O.B.A. and other tournament prizes. Last winter he skipped the Parkdale Tankard rink which was successful in winning the group from Granites, Toronto and Lakeview. His loss to Parkdale will be Belleville's gain."

Little Benny's Note Book

Today was Nora's day off so Ma had to get the supper, being liver and onions in pop's honor, pop having 2 helpings and then saying, Well, this hap been a fine meal, if I do say so myself.

I quite agreed it more myself if I didn't have all the trouble of having to look back on and all the bother of washing up to look forward to, ma said. Here's the Modern Way to Help
END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmest cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the inflamed air-passages of the nose, throat and chest. This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion.

During the night, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

A Quick Risk of Stomach Upsets
This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Now White—Smokeless
Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes to you in white stainless form. Only the color is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.

Modernizing Completely Transforms Living Room

Modernization of the living room of a home in a large city succeeded in not only making the room more attractive in appearance, but made it brighter and added to the impression of space.

Like many homes in the old residential sections of the city, the house was dark, massive and drab. Dark woodwork was found in great profusion and a dropped ceiling gave the appearance of making the room lower. An ornate mantel, complete with fluted columns and colored tile occupied one corner. The dark paper had a large rambling design. The owner decided there were real possibilities in his house. He started in.

The oak mantel, parking place for miscellaneous bric-a-brac, was the first thing removed. A modern fireplace in ivory and black marble took its place. All of the woodwork was painted ivory, and the walls were resurfaced, the owner insisting upon extending all of the way to the ceiling, giving the room an appearance of height.

A modern lighting fixture replaced the four glass shades which had hung on the end of long brass chains. Electric outlets provided for lamps and radio with a minimum of wires trailing the floor.

When the modernization work was completed the owner purchased new furniture with his own taste in keeping with the transformed room. Modern and Chinese Chippendale combined to give a feeling of comfort without heaviness. Venetian blinds were hung at the window and gay drapes added colour.

The furniture was arranged in conversational groups, with tables and lamps placed conveniently.

HALLOWAY Y.P.S.

Halloway P.W.S. held their meeting on Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clapp. The meeting opened in the usual way. The Scripture lesson was then read by Miss Mary Carter. The Literary meeting was in charge of Miss Marie Townsend. Mrs. Don Rose gave a reading after which Mr. Bill Pitt rendered a pleasing solo accompanied by Mrs. Don Rose. Two very interesting contests were put on by Mrs. John Townsend and Miss Marie Townsend. The meeting closed with the hymn and the Benediction. A lovely lunch was then served by the hostess and a social hour was spent.

REULAH W.M.S.

The March meeting of the Beulah W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. G. A. Mills. The call was responded to by thirteen members and seven visitors. The members went in the afternoon and quilted a quilt donated by Mrs. Barker. At 2.30 the meeting was called to order by the group leader No. 3, Mrs. Goldie McIlroy and a hymn was sung after which Mrs. B. Reid led in prayer. The scripture lesson was taken by the group. The business part of the meeting was conducted by the president. The members donated the money to pay for the lining and batting of the quilt. The delegates to the presbyterial in Trenton, expenses were paid. Hymn 349 was sung. The Watch Tower was given.

A short reading by Mrs. J. Benson was given followed by readings by Mrs. A. Wood, Mrs. O. Fleming and Mrs. Wm. Wickens. Miss Gladys Collins gave an Easter reading. Mrs. John Clement took the lesson in the study book. The delegates, Mrs. Reg Reid and Mrs. Goldie McIlroy gave a full report of the presbyterial in Trenton. They were extended a hearty vote of thanks.

The proceeds from the dinner amounted to $4.40. The collection was taken and amounted to $1.35. The members paid their dues also the associate members paid fees.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and her assistants. The meeting closed by singing a hymn which was followed by prayer.

SIMMONS—DONALDSON

The home at Mr. and Mrs. John Donaldson, R.R. 6 Belleville, was the scene of a quiet wedding Tuesday afternoon, when their only daughter, Mary Kathleen, was united in marriage to Mr. John R. Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wenner Simmons, of Cobourg.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. Keough, of Belleville, in the presence of about thirty guests.

Miss Edyth Donaldson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and brother of the groom, were the attendants. Mr. Willis Pitman of Cobourg, assisted in the reception held after the wedding ceremony.

After a dainty lunch served by Misses Margaret Leslie, Helen Hall and Mrs. Ward Donaldson, the couple left for Ottawa amidst showers of good wishes and showers of confetti. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Simmons will reside on the second concession of Thurlow.

Warble Fly and Cattle

A well-known citizen who for many has farmed in this district had his attention drawn to the article in Monday's issue on the warble fly by the warble fly and remedies offered. In a letter to the Ontario Intelligencer he says:

"Many years ago I discovered that by the use of the lotion that came into use after the advent of the horn fly, warble flies did not develop to harm the cattle that were sprayed regularly to keep the horn fly from annoying the cattle.

"The horn fly spread over Ontario about forty years ago. This fly became very numerous and the cattle suffered a great deal from the pests. The horn fly attacked the cattle in any place from which it could not be driven off by the action itself by switching of the tail or by stamping of the feet or by striking the head from side to side. It gathered in great numbers on the belly and under the flanks. It would bite the animal and suck the blood until some parts of the animal became very sore. This caused a loss by a falling-off in the flesh and was a great pest while milking dairy cattle.

WROTE OWN "30"

Mortally wounded in what authorities say was the climax of a newspaper feud at Alturas, Cal., David Barnhart, Gerald Loola, Charles Mayell, Irene Bardy, Helen Vivian, Roy Cook, Ruth Spencer, Evelyn Brant, Catherine Brant, Vern Smith, Muriel Hill (absent).

H. Louise Gilliam, teacher.

"Many remedies were tried out to combat the horn fly but the lotions that have been on the market for that purpose seem to be the most satisfactory. I used to spray several of the lotions which were available for many years on my dairy cattle and I do not remember having even one warble fly develop in the back of any of my milking cattle while I was spraying as mentioned above. My young cattle over one year old would have plenty of them but I did not treat these as I did the milking ones.

Spraying should be done before milking and before the milk pails are brought into the barn where the milking is done so that the odor of the spray will not affect the flavor of the milk.

"I am not in a position to say just what lotion to use to prevent these warble flies from developing on the cattle that were sprayed but my opinion is that the eggs were not laid as they would have been if the spraying had not been done. The fact remains however, that in preventing the loss and annoyance caused by the horn-fly, you are also destroying the chance of the warble-fly affecting your dairy cattle following winter and spring."

BELLEVILLE REDMEN WIN FIRST INTERMEDIATE O.H.A. TITLE

Speedy and Finished Attack Assists Belleville Redmen In Second Win Over Thorold

Intermediate "B" O. H. A. Title Goes With Winning of Contest

TAKE ROUGH RIDE

St. Louis, Whitton, Morgan And W. Jackson Are Scorers

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 1 — Flashing a speedy and finished attack and checking smartly, Belleville Redmen last night captured the O.H.A. intermediate 'B' championship by defeating Thorold 'Mountaineers' 6-2 before a crowd of more than 2,000 fans who filled Niagara Falls Arena. The Redmen had taken the opening game in Belleville last week by the same score.

The Red Sticks had the goods tonight and save for the opening minutes of first period, held a margin in the play. They checked with two goals in the late minutes of the first period added three more in the second and collected the final tally in the last. Thorold scored a goal in each of the last two thirds of periods. The veterans stepped with the kids last night in giving Belleville its first O.H.A. title. St. Louis gathered one goal and supplied the passes for three by Whitton, Morgan, Carl Morgan, Young Will Jackson got the other two, one a smart solo effort and the other on a pass from brother Clay.

Penalties were the Mountaineer cause, some of them useless, as they forced the Belleville attack time and time again into the ice. Seven of the eight penalties by Referee Chris Moore went to the Green Shirts. Murphy drawing the only Belleville penalty, when the Lou Jackson was under in the heavy going but none the less Bill Louis drew the penalty on a smart goal skated to centre and collapsed but returned later. Clay Jackson arrived in time to see the nose, that brought goal and Murphy had a date with the box for a final frame, when he took one on the leg. The Belleville squad showed no effects of the long grind and were fresher than the Mountaineers when the final gong sounded.

FIRST PERIOD

Thorold checked Belleville to death as the period opened and Watt saved twice in a row off Collins' shots. Belleville broke down the right in but Watt flopped to save. Thorold were checking like they had men right inside their own blue line but the Red Sticks were over-eering to pretty well. Thompson was beaten by Watt as he ripped one in the corner. The Belleville "kid" line came on and play began in short order. Clay and Will "Reds" laid their first shot on McGregor and Belleville moved up on a concerted attack. McGregor's poke ping to beat Bus Whitton. The score changed and play was over end to end. Will Jackson was left uncovered and McGregor had to slide out to Young. Belleville took command of the play and finally Bill Louis broke through on defence and the rebound of his shot was poked in by Buster Whitton. The time was 14.30. Belleville's lead was over the Greenshirts and at 16.40 the same line thought it had scored the Jackson boys taking the points. Will Jackson's shot was deflected and ripped in a short pass from brother Clayt. It was a neat play and the big crowd cheered the effort. The bouncing puck almost beat McGregor, but Thorold's first line was behind and against the "kid line". Thorold rallied and were burning around Watt's hut as the gong ended the period.

SECOND PERIOD

Both teams sent out their first lines, Thorold's defence pair including column after twenty four seconds when Collinsof backhanded Turner's shoulder. Belleville tried to drew the first penalty when he tripped Young Thorold's fleet forward, attack ripped in on Watt, who was brilliant. Murphy came on and Thorold got the penalty's first rest for dumping Tompkins with his knee. Thorold battled the short pest. Watt as play went on but Referee Moore had called play to penalize Thompson for what referee were hitting hard. Clayt Jackson was penalized on the same count and was skated while he mopped up sore. Thompson came on and Thorold's old wheel in Watt. Watt beat Weller, Fight in a moment later. Morgan and Young in Belleville's net at 7.10 as, on a beautiful play with St. Louis, he took it on the run from the defense and drew McGregor out. St. Louis was hurt and retired.

Watt's fine shot landed on top of the net behind Watt. Thorold was giving Belleville fine opposition a ride coming in and Payne and then Thompson drew consecutive penalties but the first man through the rushes didn't gain click. Payne came on and broke away, Watt beat him but the several feet out of his net and crashed with Payne. A forward pass

Clarence De Mar Says N. S. Runner Ran Fastest Marathon

Boston, Mass., April 1 (CP) — Johnny Miles ran the fastest marathon of all time" when the Sydney Minas, N.S., runner won the Boston grind in 1926, says Clarence De Mar, seven times winner of the classic, in his book "Marathon."

When the Boston Amateur Athletic Association came round in 1936," chronicles the 49-year-old athlete, "we were flooded to have Simmons, Olympic champion, as an entry. Some people thought he said I would have a close battle."

"Flower honors were to go to Simmons on that day. Johnny Miles with his heart set on a great victory, and pictures of Simmons and De Mar in his pocket, not pushed by any action or urging, but practised when he felt like it all winter, and came to run the fastest marathon of all time."

Johnny ran the course that year in 2.25.40. It was found to be 176 yards short.

"Any marathoner can do 176 in 25 or 40 seconds," argues De Mar, so Miles corrected time would not have been over two hours. 26 minutes. 20 seconds, a mark that has never been equalled in any marathon, anywhere.

Northern Ontario has Chance To Win both Memorial and Allan Cups to 'tie Record

Only Three Times Has Same Division Won Both Cups

AGES DISPUTED

Quebec Union to Search The Records of Copper Cliff Team

By The Canadian Press

Three brackets in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has produced teams which will battle for the running for the two Dominion titles today. Only three times have both championships come to the same division since the junior series was started and then between Northern Ontario and Ottawa districts are hoping hard for the coveted double honors.

There seems little chance in Ottawa district with the Allan and Memorial Cups, for Ottawa Rideaus face Port Arthur juniors tonight. But Saskatchewan banking on North Battleford senators and Saskatoon intermediates, and Northern Ontario on Sudbury seniors and Copper Cliff juniors.

Hull Volants, Ottawa district champions, can block North Battleford and Sudbury from either of the junior aspirants stand Winnipeg Monarchs in the way.

In 1919, first year the Memorial Cup was up, Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Aura Lee were the finalists the country's senior and junior awards for the Ontario Hockey Association. Toronto Varsity Grads and Owen Sound Greys acted as the O.H.A. in 1927 and Winnipeg and Winnipeg Elmwood Millionaires for the Manitoba association in 1931.

Rideau Walks

Northern Ontario's chances soared last night, when Copper Cliffs dynamic juniors whipped Port Arthur 12-3 to open eastern junior final series in the Ottawa district over that result was offset by Hull's 5-2 victory over Quebec Aces, similar victories in the two Dominion semi-finals with Sudbury Cubs, Copper Cliff can now boast a clean sweep with Rideaus at Toronto Saturday while Hull and Sudbury will star in a best-of-three series to decide who will be set.

Saskatchewan Wesleys and Winnipeg Monarchs will begin play on a best-of-three basis for the western junior title and the Abbott Cup tonight in Winnipeg, the winner meeting the winner of the Copper Cliff or Ottawa for the Memorial Cup. Saskatoon Beavers will go to Calgary for the intermediate Cup finalist, Hull or Sudbury.

While the north country cup is a jump ahead of the Ottawa district, outsiders look for Copper Cliffs fight to its greatest spur. The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association will seek examination of birth certificates of all the Redmen, officials say Allen has announced. Coach Dick Perry, John Frenett, Hamill and Jack Shewchok are questioned.

Silverman Not Worried

Coach Max Silverman of Redmen declared he was not worried by possibilities of investigation and that coach had birth certificates of all his players are in the hands of W. A. Hewitt, O.H.A. registrar. Copper Cliff eliminated Montreal Victorias, Quebec's representatives, before taking Ottawa.

The flying Red team's first forward line is one of the great scoring duplexs of the winter for Ottawa fans. Red Hamill got five of the Reds goals in their certificate win over Centre Pat McEleary tallied three times and Jack Sanatta and Alex Heximer accounted for two goals and two assists. Never in the run-in Allan Cup matches has a team a single tally in each period.

Hull's victory was another decision over Quebec on Montreal ice, after aces had campaigned hotly to have the game staged in Quebec. Pilot Richard scored Volants' first goal and his brother Gene got the second and third. Gene's last came less than five minutes to play on a pass from Fern Rochon, while Martin and Jack O'Connell tallied for the losers, tying the battle up at two stages.

Stage Demonstration

The 1,500 Hull fans who attended the game marched to the station after To them it was a joyous culmination of a bitter war. Originally scheduled for four games, aces found went to four when Volants successfully protested Aces' win in the second. Volants won the opening game 7-2; Quebec took the disputed game 3-2 and the third 1-0.

Jack Abbott, manager-coach of North Battleford's Western Senior champions, announced his squad will play no exhibition games while in the East. Eastern winners They'll merely drill at Calgary and Okotoks.

Frank Coulson, deposed as coach of Rideaus, is still in Calgary. He says he is remaining on indefinitely as a Rideau director. He was expected he would leave for home soon, however, on the basis of the decision last night Coulson was through for the season after dissension that ended with Abbott taking over the reins.

In 1922 and '23, when they produced the Canadian Finals, Winnipeg Monarchs stepped over Port Arthur and Saskatoon Wesleys on the way. Monarchs won the title again and can go halfway over Saskatoon Wesleys in the Memorial Cup in '38.

Teams eliminated by today's three Allan Cup survivors since the Canadian finals: Montreal Quebec Amateur Hockey Association; Smith Falls, Moncton Maroons, Quebec Aces; Sudbury—Kirkland Lake Lakeshores, Port Colborne Sailors, Toronto Dominion; North Battleford—Regina Aces, Edmonton Dominions; Port William.

NORMAN SMITH MAY PLAY GOAL FOR RED WINGS

No Confirmation of Report Around Corridors in Montreal

CANADIENS FAVORITES

Victory Would Climax Season For Courageous Canadiens

Montreal, April 1.—(CP)—There was talk in this town today of Norm Smith making a surprise appearance in the nets for Montreal Canadiens, but there was no confirmation.

Rumor of the return of Smith, injured in the third game of the Stanley Cup League titular series, bussed through hockey circles. But all attempts to reach manager Jack Adams for confirmation or denial failed.

"Mr. Adams has left word he must not be disturbed," hotel attendants said.

Otherwise there was nothing new on the Montreal hockey front as Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings prepared for the start of the fifth game with the issue of the two games apiece. The Frenchmen, who will make Stanley Cup history by winning a third straight game, are confidence-providing Smith did not play.

The big question is Normie Tropsky winner and goaler for The Canadian Press All-Star team, gets the call. In the regular season, Tropsky rated no worse than even-choice with Dave Kerr, Smith's left arm is put 100 per cent O.K.

Victory Would Climax Season

For the second straight night in hockey tonight would climax a season for the Canadiens. Never before has a team dropped the championship after losing two games of the league championship and then come back to take three straight.

Canadiens went through a brief skating practice yesterday but Jake Hebert, their ace defenceman, didn't get on the slabs. He was limping around on a cane because the pain in his left hip had not left him. There is another 50-minute session this afternoon while sounds. Otherwise there wasn't a hitch in the Frenchmen's camp.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

by Ken J. Colling

CONGRATULATIONS REDMEN.

History was made in the Niagara Falls Arena last night when the Belleville Redmen won the first Intermediate 'B' championship ever brought to this city. The beauty of the victory was the fact the Redmen went out and clean-cut heads-up hockey all evening and with one vision in mind—a championship. This is substantiated in the fact only one penalty was meted out to a Belleville player, and that being for a minor offence of high sticking. As was the case in Belleville, the Redmen were just too good, played a swell game and are a credit to the community at large.

In the coming last night "Speedy" St. Louis and Bill Jackson took the honors for really smart counters. The Redmen, who have looked better, they were a credit to Belleville last night when hard luck to win the first O.H.A. title ever to be attained by a Belleville team. The Redmen were the class of the ice in the Falls' arena gave the Red-and-White supporters in a close-cut victory in their efforts.

Ken Watt was the outstanding man on the ice. He stopped flying pucks time and again, when apparently well beaten. Thorold, particularly Russ Collucci, got a good shot from centre ice on a flip shot in the game in the second half but Watt flippers on several occasions. The first landed on top of the net while the second was right in and after that he played every one like a veteran. He showed no stick and cuddling them in close to him. He played a brilliant game.

For many years Eddie Thomas has strived to win an O.H.A. championship for Belleville and has always come up against the zenith of his hopes. The Redmen were the first to be finished around the nest and they made few mistakes. In the intermediate 'B' championship "Mermaid" ruffed many opportunities due to over-anxiousness.

Headed by Jimmy Barry former star of the Belleville Intermediate teams and boxer of note a goodly number of former Belleville fans were on hand to shout lustily for the Red and White and during the game the ice was literally cluttered with players fans and what nots, congratulating the new champions. The jammed Niagara Falls arena and all set, was a credit to Thorold victory but could plainly see that the better team won. Credit is also due indebted to Jimmy White, assistant sports editor of the St. Catharines Standard for a very unbiased account of the game and hope to meet Jimmy at the annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. and convey to him personally our congratulations.

Today ordinary citizens of a grand parade with the city band at all would be in order, but the Redmen are staying over and have their time to enjoy a real outing before they return. Which is as it should be.

Now to the rest of the O.H.A. championship. Belleville will be represented by a good brand of ball in both leagues for some years to come. could even afford to attempt to win the O.B.A.A. under the intermediate 'B' championship. The latest league officials would be welcome to attend the O.B.A.A. annual convention.

The lost has returned. After months of waiting the intermediate 'B' series has been brought to Belleville and is on display in the window of the Pecrid Store. Incidentally the softball moguls of Belleville have had the nerve rulings of the parent body, two teams signified their willingness to enter the Belleville intermediate league. Central champion Percival Guthrie, Trenton Ames, and the Adanac Club juniors are also entries. We understand a delegation from the O.A.S.A. muffed a splendid opportunity to assist softball locally, when at a meeting in connection with London and Guelph battled for a berth in the senior finals and received results for their efforts. Belleville, we understand, is classed in the intermediate 'A' group. Reasons as to how many clubs might undoubtedly be given by the newly appointed member of the O.A.S.A. executive while negotiations with the result a more compact local district league would result.

Efforts to revive the Bay of Quinte intermediate baseball league are being put forward by the Trenton and Stirling clubs.

OTTAWA COACH IN RETIREMENT

Ottawa, April 1.—(CP)—In future years football's Wilfrid "Wally" Hughes will—to use his own words "be sitting in the stands."

Belter known as 'Bill' to thousands who watched him play and played, the silver-haired coach announced his Rough Riders, whom he guided to the Grey Cup championship last season, announced his retirement from football at a luncheon here.

Former coach of Queen's University, Montreal and Hamilton teams, Hughes said he was giving it up for business reasons.

"I do not think I will ever coach a football team again," Hughes announced at a testimonial luncheon given by the citizens of Ottawa to Rough Riders following their season of final feat in reaching the big four throne.

Business Came

"I am sincerely sorry, when I tell you I cannot coach another football team because of business reasons," he said. "Football means a lot to me and I have had many offers but I have never allowed football to interfere with my business. This year will carry on. Bill Hughes will sit back and carry on.

"This game of coaching is a tough one. There is damned little satisfaction in it. I have had my share, more than my share, but I have gotten in it for a married man."

Hughes closed football "on the top" of the greatest games in the world" and he suggested: "Leave the press box and the field to the younger men. I have had my share and I have let the public get used to it. In that I have failed. I have been in it too closely. One of the weaknesses of the average coach is that they did not understand the game."

There was no announcement who will succeed Hughes, coach of the local Interprovincial Rugby Football team for the past two years.

ARTIFICIAL FEVER SHORT-CUT CURE

Will Aid Drugs In Ridding Country of Scourge of Syphilis

(By Howard W. Blakeslee Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, March 31. (AP)—A short-cut to ridding the country of syphilis, through the use of artificial fever treatments was viewed as the chief accomplishment of the first international conference on fever therapy.

The fever it was declared speeds the cure by drugs where drugs can be used. It has proved itself as the only known cure in some of the after-effects which destroy brain. It is not ready to be used immediately on the millions of victims.

Time For Cure Reduced

The future picture was drawn by Dr. Walter M. Simpson, of Dayton, who with his fellow-countryman, Dr. Charles F. Kettering, was given membership in the French Legion of Honor last night for discoveries in artificial fever.

In the "first stage" of syphilis, which has taken about two years to cure, Dr. Simpson said "there is every evidence that the time required for adequate treatment of these cases can be greatly reduced" by artificial fever.

Other physicians at the conference said the fever cuts the time to about six months.

"There no longer exists," Dr. Simpson said, "any valid reason to doubt the efficacy of artificial fever therapy in the treatment of neurosyphilis."

Neurosyphilis is the last stage, when brain and other parts of the central nervous system are attacked. Its results are insanity, locomotor ataxia, blindness and various forms of paralysis.

TRANSIENT LOOKS FOR COURTESY

Finds How Courtesy is Indicated in Unexpected Way

Politeness at times forced, has entered into the personalities of the knights of the broad highways. This morning a clean-cut youth stood in front of a local theatre admiring pictures shown there. Along the street, ragged, unshaved and unkempt strolled a road knight. His clothes were dirty and torn. As he passed, the youth, taking an involuntary step backward, flicked the hobo's leg with his foot. Turning, he smiled apologetically. But that apparently was not sufficient for the ragged one. He stopped, turned and addressed the youthful to where the youth stood. "Ain't ye gott to say you are sorry?" he said in a loud voice. Still the youth smiled that apologetic smile. "Well, can'tya speak?" the hobo insisted, clenching a fist. Patiently stopped to hear the apparent alienation. Then the youth raised a hand to his mouth and made a motion. The hobo's eyes widened, he grunted and turned away. The youth was a mute.

Most Brutal Case of Wife Beating in Experience Of Cadi States

Lindsay, Ont., March 31 (CP)—"About the most brutal case of wife beating that I have even run across," said Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson, K.C., when Fred Gavitt, of Fenelon Falls, appeared before Magistrate Gee on an assault charge. The Crown read a list of injuries which included cut under left jaw requiring stitches, an abrasion of the head, lacerations, both eyes blackened, shoulder, arm and chest abrasions. Gavitt, disclaiming any knowledge of the affair said he had been drinking "what was supposed to be gin." He was given two years suspended sentence.

Old Guard to Drink a Toast To Dead Heroes

Winnipeg, March 31.—(CP)—The Old Guard will drink a toast tonight to Mike Shea and Joe Dodds who died on a cold morning four years ago down in Kansas where an airplane crash didn't kill the spirit of Winnipeg Tollers, one of Canada's great basketball teams.

Mike and Joe died when the plane came down in a ploughed field near Neodesha, Kas. The machine was carrying the Tollers, Canadian champions, home from an International series in Tulsa, Okla. The others straggled home later, one by one as they were released from a hospital.

Tonight they will sit somewhat grimly around a dinner table and talk of Mike and Joe, first-string forwards, the team's best scorers in those days. Sunday they will attend a memorial service at first Presbyterian Church.

Tollers were broken in the crash but those who lived love the feel of a basketball as much as ever. They're still at it, these Tollers, though the Old Gaelg will never win the Canadian championship again. Joe Dodds' brother Bruin is the only crash survivor still playing with the Toller "A" team.

Some playing.

But Al Silvertharne, Ian Wolley and Lauder Phillips tap the ground for the "3" hook as years ago this morning there was little hope Silverthorne or Wolley would recover. Andy Brown coaches the "B" team now and Hugh Emerson is a member of the club.

The Old Guard will be together again tonight, at the same table with George Wilson, manager of the 1933 team and Allan Samson, President, also crash survivors. Wilson and Samson still hold positions—the Toller spirit lives.

Tollers remember, too, that this is the sixth anniversary of another plane crash—and they pray duck a second toast — to Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame Football coach.

Rockne and seven others were killed when their machine came down near Bazaar, Kas.

The Misses Hazel and Mona Wessels spent Sunday with Miss Vera Pound also Master Ross Pound spent Sunday at their home.

A very impressive Easter service was held at the Canniffton United Church Sunday evening by the Rev. Mr. Merrick, also special music by the choir. At the close of the service a cantata play entitled "At the feet of Jesus" was given by members of the "Others" Sunday School class.

MAY PURCHASE CASTLE

Toronto, March 31. (CP)—Purchase of Casa Loma, $1,000,000 mansion built by Sir Henry Pellatt, by Detroit interests was reported being considered here.

Mayor W. D. Robbins is understood to have received inquiries from a Detroit interest with the object of buying the huge building taken over by the city for back taxes.

In the face of the Detroit report, Controller Ralph Day last night said he would ask city council tomorrow to hand over the property to the Hospital for Sick Children.

PREMIER'S AUNT DIES

Stourport, Worcestershire, March 31 (AP)—Miss Edith MacDonald, 88, aunt of Prime Minister Baldwin, died here yesterday.

One of her sisters was the mother of Rudyard Kipling, another the mother of the Prime Minister, a third married the famous painter Sir Edward Burne-Jones, and the last married Sir Edward Poynter, one-time President of the Royal Academy.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, April 1.—(CP)—Industrial shares became sluggish in the early afternoon on Toronto stock market today, volume dropped and prices eased off narrowly. The action was concentrated in the gold group, with price changes showing a fraction or less. Weakness of the metals on the London market caused a barely firm tone in the base metal group. Nickel, Smelters and Falconbridge sold lower.

Fast-traders at higher prices in the gold group were Kirkland Lake, Preston, Pickle Crow, Macassa, Sladen and Paymaster and Darkwater and Stadacona weakened, quite sharply under substantial selling.

Senior oils held steady in strong and the western issues displayed firming tendencies following 10 days of hulling prices. Calgary & Edmonton, Home, Okalta, Calmont and Foothills were all a little higher.

WALL STREET

New York, April 1 (AP)— Stock prices declined today started the new month on a downward trend as fresh labor disputes in the United States helped to chill buying sentiment.

While there were resistant spots among oils and specialties declines ranged from a point or two more were in the majority near the fourth hour.

Chandler, Pacific, Distillers-Corp. Seagrams, International Harvester and Kelvinator were slightly depressed, while Dome Mines showed some improvement.

Canadian Government 4s were inactive, Dominion 5s declined 1-64 to 1-4 cent to 100.56 1-4 cents. On the Curb, Lake Shore Mines showed fractional gains.

Stocks on the offside the greater part of the session included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Anaconda, Rolling Mill and General Motors.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Market Comment

The paper stocks are absorbing the entire speculative interest at the present time, the demand for market yesterday was at a point or two between sales in some instances. There is no doubt that the power shortage for the newsprint industry has attracted the attention of the speculative investors but those in New York and London as well.

One of the outstanding facts about the newsprint stocks is that they are not moved, or are being let behind This is the way stocks generally act in a wide bull market.

The public today is in a buying mood and is looking for "tips." Unfortunately most of these tips do not work out satisfactorily and consequently the average trader or investor should do a little investigating before parting with his money in a security that he knows little about.

Noranda Mines Limited

The President of Noranda Mines Limited, James P. Murdoch, will undoubtedly give the shareholders some further interesting information pertaining to the company at the annual meeting today.

The financial statement of Noranda for 1936 revealed that a new high level was reached in total production, gold dollar value and tonnage of ore treated, in gold produced, in profits earned and in dividends distributed. At the same time costs per ton of ore; including depreciation, write-offs and taxes, were the lowest yet reported, at $4.67 against $4.99 the year before, $5.36 five years ago. All of which goes well for the outlook of the company and naturally the shareholders.

British American Oil

British American Oil Company earned all told, $1.27 a share on its common stock in 1936 according to a statement by A. L. Mitchell, President. U. S. Subsidiaries contributed $1,000,000 or 43 cts. per share towards the showing.

Goodyear Sales Increased

Two of Three Canadian Factories at Capacity, Reports A. G. Partridge, President

Toronto, April 1.—In a letter to shareholders of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited, accompanying dividend cheques for the first quarter of 1937, the President, A. G. Partridge, says:—

"General business continues to show a definitely upward trend and practically every line which we manufacture, your Company's sales are running at a full capacity and on an efficient basis.

"Two of the principal ingredients in the manufacture of rubber goods are rubber and cotton. The market prices on both commodities have increased during the past twelve months, and this rise in price has contributed to an increased cost of production. For a year ago we were selling at 16 1-8c per lb. and it is now currently quoted at 24½c per lb., an increase of 53.5%. Cotton prices have increased 22.6% in the same period. Fortunately, your Company has a forward position of its requirements of cotton and our prices well below the current market level."

SOFT COAL STRIKE IMPENDS OVER U.S.

400,000 Miners May Drop Tools if Deadlock Unbroken

New York, April 1 (AP)—An industrywide soft coal strike will start in the United States today unless a deadline is wipe negotiations between the operators and United Mine Workers is broken before tonight.

The strike would be the largest in this year, involving about 400,000 miners scattered from Central Pennsylvania to the West of Washington.

Progressive Miners

Miles would operate only in the Illinois territory controlled by the Progressive Miners of America and in the few other scattered fields the Progressives have been able to organized. Operators estimate the county has about 30 days' coal supply above ground.

U.T.W. miners took today off to celebrate John L. Lewis' Day, holiday commemorating the institution of the eight-hour day in 1898.

Less said they would stay away from their tomorrow, too, unless they were notified a new wage and hour contract had been signed.

Contract Expires

The old contract expired at midnight last night. It was signed in September, 1935, after President Roosevelt had stepped into the bituminous crisis to prevent a strike. He was not altogether successful. After the expiration of the AAA extension of the 1934 contract, the miners struck for six days. The strike was peaceful and orderly and negotiations continued throughout the walkout.

RISING CURVE

the cost of living is already showing the effect of rising world prices. In Finland, the index for food-stuffs rose from 293 in June 1936 to 316 in March, 1937. Rise in the cost of living has already led to a large extent offset workers' increases in pay.

Immediately after devaluation, the Swiss government issued a series of decrees to check a rise in the cost of living. The cost of living is the most accurate index of standing. At the same time, rise in the cost of living has been increasing effect on imported goods. The result is depression in the building industry, with left-wing demands for a government building program financed by devaluation profits of the National Bank.

U.K. Building Results Drawn.

Building permits in the United Kingdom show gradual decline in the construction of dwelling houses but a sharp increase in plans for factories, business premises and public buildings. The speculative building boom so far as London small houses are concerned is passed. Rising costs threaten to handicap both public and private builders of small dwellings and workers' flats.

Government, short of foreign exchange, have stimulated exports sometimes with embarrassing results. The Greek government needed foreign exchange. To secure foreign exchange it permitted the export of olive oil in large quantities. Greece now finds itself with most excess olive oil to go around. The government has had to authorize the importation of substitutes. And, in a land of olives, the angry Athenian housewife has to make shift with cotton-seed oil.

TRIPLE MURDER SUSPECT FOUND

Eccentric Father of Woman And Girl Killed, is Grilled

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Arrival of the eccentric, slightly built father of the Harrold, 20-year-old artists' model, Veronica Parker, marked the investigation of the triple murders on Beekman Hill centered today.

Picked up by police a second time yesterday for long hours of questioning even as the District Attorney announced, "we have a definite suspect," bespectacled Joseph Gedeon underwent a cross-fire of questions as he took his seat with three hours and 45 minutes of his time last Saturday night and Sunday morning.

In an all day and all night quizzing in the 17th St. police station detectives asked him why he spent Tuesday night bowling and drinking beer with the bodies of his daughter, frequenter of night clubs, and Miss Parker, found in an undertaking establishment.

Ready to Go Anywhere

He wet his lips, stared, kept silent. No hint was dropped as to the identity of the murderer mentioned by District Attorney William C. Dodge.

Police officially announced the charge of violating the Sullivan law —which prohibits possession of fire-arms without a permit—would be lodged against Gedeon. A gun was found in his upholstery shop.

Despite Dodge's optimistic interjection on an imminent solution of the Easter killings of the artists' model, her mother and a roomer, Frank Miles, Publisher Lawrence Lewis, J. Valentine and his aides were reluctant to predict a "break" soon.

Religious and Patriotic Celebration for Coronation

J. E. Shortt Named General Chairman of The Committee

PROGRESS MADE

If the Coronation celebration to be held here on May 12th does not go down in record as one of the most impressive of its kind ever held in this city, it will not be the fault of the service clubs, churches, municipal authorities, boy scouts, girl guides, women's and other organizations of the city.

For at the invitation of Mayor R. D. Arnott to co-operate with the City Council in a celebration fitting the coronation ceremony over thirty representatives of city organizations met in the Council Chambers last night and enthusiastically laid the primary foundation of a celebration in which every club organization and individual of this city should join on the memorable day.

Called primarily for the purpose of organization, formation of various committees and the laying of plans for a suitable celebration, the meeting lost little time in getting down to business. Nominations for a Chairman of a General Committee which will embrace representatives of every organization in the city resulted in his Worship the Mayor being the first nominee. Mayor Arnott reluctantly declined the honor, his professional and civic duties preventing him from placing the time at the disposal of the office, which called for strenuous work, he felt.

J. E. Shortt Chairman of Committee

Mr. Joseph Shortt's nomination for the chairmanship of this important committee met with the unanimous approval of those present Mr. Roy Mason was elected Secretary, with George Wardell as assistant.

Following the election of the General Committee, a lengthy discussion as to the nature of the celebration brought forth varied suggestions. It was felt by several of those present, that the celebration should take the nature of religion and patriotism. Dr. J. Semple thought religion is one of the essentials of the coronation and is fundamental to it.

Mayor Arnott voiced the general feeling of the meeting when he stated, that the foremost essential is the children. "I think the children should take part," he said, "and I suggest further, that a common meeting place be chosen where all could gather and take part in the general ceremonies.

The Rev. E. Beauchamp Payne suggested a program similar to that of the Silver Jubilee of the late King George V, and that it be held on the campus of the Bellerville Collegiate Institute.

Mr. J. O. Hartly echoed the sentiments of Dr. Semple when he stated that the celebration should have the nature of religion and patriotism.

Parade Suggested

Lieut. Fred Jobson, Bandmaster of the Belleville Municipal band suggested a parade consisting of decorative floats, school children and members of the various city organizations. A warning was issued at this point by Rev. Beauchamp Payne to the effect that parades of this nature never reached their destination on time, and suggested, that if such a parade be included in the celebration, that it be held following the ceremonies.

Russell Woodley, President of the local Retail Merchants' association made the emphatic suggestion, that everything of a commercial nature be eliminated from any proposed program, and the celebration in general be strictly dignified, that he would get in immediate touch with other cities with a view

BREAKS RACKET

The smashing of a $2,000,000 restaurant racket with the conviction of seven defendants, finds Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York pleased, but considering his work far from finished. The man who has put fear of the law into New York lawless is shown in his office having a breather before beginning his next offensive on racketeering. He has selected the trucking racket as his target. Two suspects already are held in $50,000 bail for trial in April.

TO BE EXTRADITED

Another chapter in the drama of the Nova Scotia schooner, Gypsum Queen, has been written, with the filing of the United States Supreme Court against Captain Freeman Hatfield in his two-year fight against extradition to Canada. The captain has been in jail at Manchester, N.H., since December, 1934. He will now be returned to Canada to face charges of fraud arising from sinking of Gypsum Queen during the world war, Captain Hatfield was paid $71,000 in reparations for loss of his ship allegedly by torpedoing. The government charges that the ship floundered during a storm.

to getting information as to the nature of their celebrations.

These suggestions were put on record and will be reviewed at the next meeting of the general committee, of which will take place in the immediate future.

Sub-Committees for decoration, parade, music, finance, personnel, grounds and safety will be formed and the personnel appointed at the next meeting of the general committee of three, who will make final decision on all plans made for the celebration. This committee consists of Chairman J. E. Shortt, J. O. Hartly and Rev. Dr. J. Semple.

General Committee

The General Committee as elected last night consists of Rev. W. J. Walker, Ministerial Association; J. G. Allin, Col. A. St. Cyr, Chas. Dolan, Board of Education; Alderman Barlow, City Council; Col. A. B. Cribble, Military; R. Hennessy, Jack Norris, N. C. Voicing his appreciation of the citizens' in co-operating with the Council in the matter of the celebration, Mayor Arnott said: "I think in view of existing world conditions, we should take a justifiable pride in celebrating the Coronation, and by so doing show our respect for the one stronghold of democracy." His Worship was appointed Hon. Chairman of the General Committee.

RELIEF COSTS TO BE LIGHTER

Practically All Municipalities Two Years Away From Depression Peak

(By The Canadian Press)

A new fiscal year opened today for Treasury Departments of Ontario Governments with rising hopes that the red-ink records of depression days—unemployment relief would cease admitting their accounts new annoyance than in many years. There were undeniable signs of improved times.

Most Ontario cities are two years or more away from the peak of the depression, figured on the twin bases of relief cost and the number on relief rolls, a Canadian Press survey shows. All down the line, the burden will be lighter in the new fiscal year.

Perhaps showing the way to every city in the run back to before-depression days, Sault Ste. Marie has 1,400 persons receiving relief, compared with 7,630 last May. Cost has dropped to $2,500 from $16,000. It was as high as $339,832 in 1933 when the average number on relief was 6,570.

Later than several other cities, the Sault will end subsidized single men on relief May 1. The same step is taken today by London, St. Catharines and Peterborough. Others will fall into line without delay, Belleville on April 10 and St. Thomas, Orillia, April 15.

Object of Wide Search After Relieving Man of $150

London, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Two armed bandits who robbed W. W. Wallis, storekeeper of Wilton Grove, keeper, of $150 were the object of a wide search by police today. All highways and sideroads were under police surveillance.

The double robbery last night as Wallis prepared to close his shop on the Hamilton road. The men, described as foreigners, entered the shop when the proprietor was in the rear living quarters. When Wallis appeared the men ordered him into the back room. "One man produced a revolver."

"When I protested, the shoot I reached into the cash drawer and handed over the money without delay," Wallis said.

After snatching the money the thugs left the store and entered an automobile which was waiting with the engine going. The car had licence markers of a Brantford issue, police said.

BEAVERS RETURN TO TRAINING GRIND

North Battleford Determined to Win Senior Title of Dominion

BY LORNE BRUCE

Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Calgary, April 1—Determined to keep the Allan Cup in Western Canada by bringing it to Saskatchewan for the first time in 23 years, North Battleford Beavers made a routine return to the training grind today.

Given a full day's freedom in celebration of their great comeback victory over Fort William Wanderers, which gave the Saskatchewan outfitists went through a solid hour of scrimmaging at Okotoks yesterday to loosen stiffened muscles. Okotoks is 20 miles south of here.

Not since Regina won the Dominion title in 1914 has the trophy donated by Sir Montagu Allan of Montreal been taken to the Prairie Province, and North Battleford, survivors of the Canadian that can saw coach Frank Coulson overseeing things, will do all in the club to accomplish the feat.

Skate in High Gear

Manager Jack Abbott, successor to Coulson as coach and no "green-horn" to the master-minding job either, ordered his blue-and-white clad squad out to skate in high gear throughout yesterday's practice.

Postponement of a scheduled trip to Banff caused Abbott to rearrange plans for the lay-off. Beavers must remain here until either Winnipeg or Hill Voltants can win the Eastern grown and reach Calgary for the Dominion final.

Instead of going to the mountain beauty spot today, North Battleford will return to Okotoks for another practice during which passing plays in puck-carrying drills will figure in the routine of a daily practice until next Tuesday, when the city, by boat or will be made.

While grooming for the Allan Cup finals, Beavers will confine themselves to practices. No exhibitions games with outside teams are contemplated. All workouts at Okotoks will be behind closed doors, according to a wolf sot los in case of a thaw.

DAILY SHORT STORY—

Rejuvenating Edward B.

By Elsa S. Grant

The neighbors could never understand how Emma put up with Edward B. and his ailments. Perhaps Emma couldn't herself, unless it was because she loved him so much. Whenever the neighbors saw Emma filling her pail like with clean clothes or dragging her little cart through the streets with a basket of washing they would shake their heads and tell one another what they thought of that Hawley man, Edward B.

Edward B. was a tall, gangling man with thin hair and black mustache under a straight nose. He had a limp in his right leg and carried a thick yellow cane. Because of this limp Edward B. had not done a stroke of work for six years.

One morning he found a letter in the front hall as he was leaving for the park. He brought it out to the kitchen. Emma dried her hands on her apron and sat down by the kitchen table where the light was good. Letters were rare and Edward B. hovered in the background watching Emma for signs that would indicate whether the contents were fortunate or otherwise.

"It's from sister," Emma confided at last, tucking the letter in her apron pocket. "She sent us a little something to help us going."

"How much?" Edward B. asked, holding out his hand for the letter.

"Twenty dollars," Emma answered, ignoring his hand and returning to her tubs. Her thoughts were on needed shoes and clothing for both of them.

"Twenty dollars!" Edward B. was elated. "There's a swell little radio," he crowed, "that I've had my eye on for a long time. It's just the thing to put up here in the kitchen. Only fifteen-fifty."

When Edward B. returned for supper—he had prudently remained away at lunch time—he found Emma sitting alone in the living room attired in her best clothes.

"Edward B." she called out to him, "you change, too. We're going to the Jewel Box for supper."

The Jewel Box was fronted by two wide plate glass windows with brass rings on poles across the rubber plant in a green tub and green babe curtains hanging from brass rings on poles across the back. In one window a card announced that supper was seventy-five cents in the other a card stated: Dish Washer Wanted.

They ordered the seventy-five cent dinner and it was brought to them savory and warm. Edward B. sat straight in his chair looking down his nose at the other patrons. He pictured himself as an actor giving a small dinner party. He joined Emma's conversation only in monosyllables. He was distant and pre-occupied and at first Emma did not notice she was so busily engaged in enjoying the dinner and her surroundings. When she did become conscious of Edward B.'s distant attitude toward herself his detached manner, then was she truly hurt. She was trying so hard to enjoy herself, to make the most of this little excursion into a realm so long denied her, that Edward B.'s indifference to her presence hurt beyond measure.

The waiter brought the bill. Edward B. looked at it and then nodded at Emma. "Fifty," he murmured. Anger flamed white hot in Emma.

"Pah, you have the money," she heard herself saying softly.

"Me?"

Edward B. went slowly through his pockets, all of them. Emma looked in her purse. The manager came and spoke to the waiter.

"Finally wrong, eh?" they heard.

"Can't pay," the waiter answered gruffly.

"Two dinners, eh?" the manager observed. "I noticed you two before you came in here. Well, you can't get away with that game on me." He turned to the waiter. "Rush him out to the kitchen." Then he took Emma by the arm as she picked up Edward B.'s hat and yellow cane. "You can just wait outside."

It was embarrassing. Edward B. was hustled out to the kitchen and the diners were watching as Emma was led forward between all the entrance, where the cash desk stood, she jerked her arm free.

"Here's your money," she said, opening her purse. The manager looked surprised, but took the bill and went behind the counter. Emma counted the change and stowed it carefully away.

"You've a card in your window for a dishwasher," she said. "Take it out, you're hired once!"

In the kitchen Edward B. was soap to his armpits before an ever increasing stack of dishes. He looked helplessly around. He had lost something vital, his cane, Emma had it. She was standing on a stree corner breaking it over her knee and stuffing the pieces down a drain. In the darkness. It was hard to tell whether she was laughing or crying.

17,300 ARE IDLE IN FOUR PLANTS

Pontiac, Michigan And Cleveland, Ohio, Plants Affected by Strikes

Detroit, April 1.—(AP)—General Motors Corp. said today that 17,300 employees were idle in four plants because of strikes. The strikes, the company said, were in Chevrolet Plant No. 3 at Flint, Mich., and the Fisher body plants at Cleveland, O., and Pontiac, Mich.

Some departments of the Pontiac Motor Co. also were closed although there was no strike there.

General Motors officials here said the number of employees thrown out of work by the new series of strikes included:

6,600 at the Pontiac Fisher plant; 2,600 at the Pontiac Motor Co., at Pontiac; 7,200 at the Fisher body plant in Cleveland and 900 at the Chevrolet No. 2 plant in Flint.

They said the strike in the Pontiac Fisher plant apparently was caused by the discharge of a company policeman. A wage dispute caused the strike at Cleveland.

An undetermined number of workers in Fisher body plant No. 3 at Flint were left idle by the Chevrolet strike which necessitated a suspension of production

There was no storage space for bodies with the assembly line idle.

YOUTH CONFESSES TO ARMED ROBBERY

Edmund Herbert, Windsor, Arrested As He Played Cards With Wife

Windsor, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Picked from a police lineup by the holdup victim, Edmund Herbert, 20, confessed to police today to armed robbery of the T. Eaton Company order office here Saturday. Herbert was identified as the gunman by Miss Annis Dickens, 24, Windsor, office clerk victim of the robbery.

Herbert and his 18-year-old wife, Daisy, were arrested early today as they played cards with friends. Both were asked to explain possession of a quantity of new clothing, established a suspicious circumstance because parents of both husband and wife are relief recipients.

The couple told police the clothing was purchased from proceeds of gambling by Herbert but 18 minutes after being identified the youth detailed a confession to police.

Miss Dickens was about to close the office Saturday when the bandit walked in and said he had called to pick up some parcels. Other employees were in a back room, one of them working at a sealing machine which served to cover conversation.

NINE MINERS KILLED IN FATAL BLAST

Worn by their efforts to locate bodies of their comrades in the bowels of this mine near Dubois, Penn., rescue workers emerge from the shaft for a rest period. Nine men were killed, some of them would-be rescuers, when an explosion shattered mine tunnels far below the surface. Company and state officials began investigations into the disaster. The crew clambering from the pit were sent in to seek victims of the blast.

HORNETS DEFEAT SYRACUSE STARS

Game Featured by Chair-Throwing Fans, Forcing Delays

New York, April 1 (AP)—Springfield Indians tangle with Philadelphia Ramblers on home ice tonight in an effort to duplicate the performance of Pittsburgh Hornets in staying in the International-American Hockey League's playoffs.

Facing elimination if they lose, the Hornets came from behind last night to whip the favored Syracuse Stars 3-1 at Pittsburgh in a battle featured by chair-throwing fans who twice forced delay in the game. The victory deadlocked the Western Division final play-off series at 2 all, thereby forcing it into a fifth game at Syracuse Sunday.

The Ramblers, who came close to making a runaway of the regular season eastern division race, had little difficulty downing the Indians in the opening game of their two-out-of-three series for the divisional title Monday, and will clinch the finalist berth with a victory tonight.

Smothering Stamford Collegiate of Niagara Falls under a 43—19 score here last night, Kennedy earned the right to meet Central. The Hamilton squad inched out a 31—26 decision over Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa in the second game to enter the final. The losers meet in a consolation tilt, to be played as a curtain raiser for the title clash.

Reserve Force for R.C.M.P. is Proposed

Ottawa, April 1—(CP)—Creation of a reserve force for Canada's scarlet-clad Royal Canadian Mounted Police to be called out in event of an emergency and to furnish a ready supply of trained men for recruits is proposed in a measure given final reading yesterday in the House of Commons.

Strong opposition came from three members of the C.C.F. group when Justice Minister Lapointe moved the necessary resolution. They said that if the force needed reinforcements it be increased in the customary manner.

"Fifth Highlander" and "storm-troopers" were the designations used by opponents of the measure in referring to the 300 young men the government proposed to enlist in a volunteer reserve for the mounted.

This group would be called out for training for a maximum of three months a year, or in event of an emergency, and would be paid only when in training or service.

Cost of the reserve would be about $80,000 a year, the Minister said, compared with $500,000 if the permanent force were increased to the same extent.

PULLET-IN-JAR CASE DISMISSED

Brooder Full of Chicks Brought as Evidence Into Court

London, Ont., April 1. (CP)—Into Magistrate Menzies' courtroom today crowded policemen, veterinarians, spectators, lawyers, witnesses, Humane Society officials and about 50 live chickens.

It was for a trial of William Shoe, manager of a hatchery who was charged with ill-treating a white, eight-week-old Leghorn pullet by keeping it in a five-gallon jar.

While chickens chirped and pecked at each other, witnesses went to lengths to tell the court whether or no the bird in the bottle was suffering. There was a wide difference of opinion and finally Magistrate Menzies decided there was doubt about the feelings of the chickens. Consequently he dismissed the charge.

And after it was all over officials of the hatchery said they would cut the bottle and take out the chicken. They said they had intended to release the bird last Saturday but it had been seized as court evidence.

One of the features of the trial was a brooder full of chicks the defence brought into court. There were dozens of the birds in the large box placed on a table in the courtroom. They were brought to show the court how young chickens were raised in a confined area.

SAYS ACE DIPLOMATS TO U.S. TO PREPARE FOR WAR"?

Washington, April 1 (AP)—Representative Fitzmaurice (R. Vt.) told the United States House of Representatives today Europe was ending its ace diplomats to the United States "for the purpose of pre-brawl, paring" for war.

He said some of the nations — "Britain, France are others—have the audacity to hope that in event of a conflagration which involves them, as it must, they will again be able to induce us to join in the fight."

Terry looked at her respectfully. "Shoot", he said through a mouthful of roast beef.

"I was reading in a fashion magazine the other day where The Four Hundred, they're called, are having tea their own limes."

"Hah!" Terry muttered indegnantly. "Perhaps they want to wash a little of it pownd."

"You're the one to talk!" Dolly looked at him meaningly. And Terry got it. If one Mrs. John Talbot hadn't being doing a little gobble dirty linen washing these three wouldn't be starting a big adventure.

"Well, anyway, as I was saying," Dolly continued, "this magazine says that the smart thing to do is to take along very special things — Oh, good Lord!"

"What's the matter?" Judy and Terry asked the same question as Dolly looked aghast.

"We have no personal maid!"

Judy said, "I'll do anything you want, done, Dolly, dear."

Terry looked thoughtful. He got Dolly's meaning. They would have had one, but a personal maid might half things up by talking too much. They'd have to get along without one.

"You don't need one. They get in the way, Dolly." Terry told Dolly, and hardened to her that he would explain.

"Oh, what have I done?" she continued, ignoring him. "Packing my crepe de chine sheets I won playing bridge, four lace pillows and the dark blue blanket Tootsie Bernstein brought me from Paris because she didn't know any better, all into one suitcase, so that the porter can see them for Judy's compartment."

Judy looked at them through misty eyes. "Why are you both so awfully sweet to me?"

Terry and Dolly didn't look at each other.

Finally:

"Judy James, eat that food and drink your milk. We've a busy day ahead of us."

"Dolly, don't you want to hear what happened?" Judy was dying to talk about it, but she hoped Terry would say something about her running away with Dolly's coat.

"Sure, I want to hear every word, and I'll tell you nothing about her running away with Dolly's coat.

Terry looked at them through misty eyes. "Why are you both so awfully sweet to me?"

Terry and Dolly didn't look at each other.

Finally:

"Judy James, eat that food and drink your milk. We've a busy day ahead of us."

Dolly looked thoughtful. He got Dolly's meaning. They would have had one, but a personal maid might half things up by talking too much. They'd have to get along without one.

"Stick to the bathing suit and evening stuff, Dolly," Terry wanted her.

"Mind your business, you lanky boy. I know what to buy. Speaking of buying, have you done your list?"

"I'll do that while you girls are going broke in the shops. Did you send that telegram to your Aunt Sue, Dolly?"

Dolly looked surprised. Aunt Sue was a new development. Then she got it!

"No," she answered. "I thought if we just dropped in it would be a much better surprise. She might drop dead of something."

"Bright girl," Terry approved.

Funny people, but sweet, Judy thought.

"Please, don't you think I ought to buy a coat?" Judy put it. She couldn't bear the thought of that shabby thing after wearing the mink.

"Wear that one, Judy," Dolly said casually. "I'm going to break out in my brassfull with silver fox. Not that you can't have anything you want. I mean, Terry, that you don't get an advance out of Marshall?"

"Sure sure!" Terry took the envelope from his pocket. He waved it in their astonished faces and to Judy:

"Anything you want is yours, sister, but a few things you must remember: You are not to read any papers, talk to any strangers. Do as Dolly tells you, keep out of love, and make up our mind that you're coming back to New York and become the greatest sensation this town has ever known. Get it?"

"I get it." Judy had the feeling that she and Allen in Wonderland had a great deal in common. Only he was going to have something to run.

"Seat it, youngster. Comb your hair and get ready. I want a word or two with Terry, and then we're off." Dolly dismissed her. She watched to the door with the younger girl and closed it in back of her, then walked swiftly to Terry's side as she looked at him for a long minute. Her voice was gentle, but she tried to keep the note of anxiety out.

"Terry, darn your redhead, you know I don't know nothing I won't do for you, but I want you to answer me one question before you give me the dope on what happened."

Terry pulled her to his knees. "Are you falling for her?"

Terry waited for an answer before he answered her. It was an agonizing moment for Dolly. Then he smiled and tweaked her ear.

"Nope. You'll do."

Dolly sighed and rumpled his already rumpled hair.

They had little more than two hours to shop. Terry had been wiring and getting in touch with Pennsylvania Station at five o'clock. Judy thought that was silly, since there was so much to do and so little time to do it in. Besides, the train didn't leave until six. But she said nothing.

The shopping trip was one dazed whirl for her. One giddy, glorious furious orchestration, and she was forced to linger over every detail. It seemed such a terrible thing not to have a good time, and anything I'll rather do than lie down with a cold towel on my head and listen to you croon about the 'great big beautiful tomorrow' what he said, but we've got to beat it to a department store and lay in some glad rags and fast."

MAJ. MURRAY'S SPEECH ATTACKED IN COMMONS

Bilingualism Reference Stirs Leader Bennett And Thos. L. Church

If Murray Spoke Without Authority He Should be Dismissed

BENNETT STATEMENT

Hon. C. D. Howe Says Government Had No Knowledge of Speech

Ottawa, April 2—(CP)— Major Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, was under fire in the House of Commons today for his recent Ottawa broadcast on bilingualism.

Conservative Leader Bennett declared if Major Murray was not speaking with authority of the government "he should be retained or dismissed without any further delay."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Transport Minister Howe both stated Major Murray's statements were not authorized by the government.

Major Gladstone Murray addressed the Canadian Club in Montreal March 24 when he was reported as saying:

Words as Reported

"There is a very important development connected with the public service knowledge in Canada and the whole of Canada must realize that we have two parent languages.

"We must be ready and willing and we should be anxious, to accept the heritage of these parent languages with their storehouse of literature and history, and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is pledged to make Canada bilingual, to eliminate cheap differences of opinion."

T. L. Church: (Conservative, Toronto Broadview) Before proceeding asked a similar question previously without receiving what he considered a satisfactory answer. On that occasion the answer was that Major Murray as having said the Corporation was "pledged" to make Canada bilingual, and asked if that was the policy of the government.

Government's Lack of Knowledge

"That question was answered the other day," Mr. Howe said.

"No, it was not answered," Mr. Bennett interjected.

"That the government had no knowledge of the speech," Mr. Howe continued.

"That is not an answer at all."

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thomson
Belleville Meteorologist

How long is twilight? That delightful period between sunset and dark is more exactly defined as the time between sunset and when the centre of the sun is 12 degrees below the horizon. This represents twilight in the morning and evening. Twilight is longest in the spring and fall when the sun is south of the equator. But for those particular days, as mentioned at the equinoxes, about March 22 and September 23, and for those days immediately about June 22 and December 22.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, April 2 (CP)—A moderate depression, moving eastward across Northern Ontario, has caused rain in south Ontario and snow in northern districts. Malcolm Henry, 20-year-old Sidney farmhand, pleaded guilty to the theft of a bicycle, when he appeared before Magistrate A. J. Bester K.C. in today's local police court and was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail.

A. G. Denman, K.C., County Crown Attorney, commented at length to the court regarding the increase in the matter of the theft of bicycles in Belleville, many of which are never recovered, that the practice is being carried altogether too frequent. After the sentence of the court was pronounced Mr. Denman announced they were in possession of an Iver Johnson .36 calibre revolver, serial number 1778. The gun was found on Henry when he was arrested and it is believed to have been stolen, as the weapon is not registered, police state.

Man With Rifle Chief Force In Achieving of Victory

Sooner or Later Hand-to-Hand Fighting Becomes Deciding Factor in Military Manoeuvres

(Editor's Note: John Lloyd, Associated Press War Correspondent in Madrid, applies the test of actual warfare to one of the most hotly debated questions among the General Staffs of the world today and analyzes the future of the man with the rifle in the light of his performances on Spain's proving ground of battle).

By John Lloyd

Madrid, April 2 (AP)—A widespread belief infantry is doomed to a minor part in modern warfare has been proved unfounded in the bloody counter-attacks of the Spanish government forces.

Scale of Spanish War

Although the Spanish war has been fought on a reduced scale—estimated have indicated 400,000 men on a battle-front 500 miles in field for both sides at any one time —it has been fought with the latest equipment, excepting only gas and tanks.

The last word in artillery, aviation, tanks, armored combat cars and other mechanized warfare materials have received a thorough test in Spain, but none of it, according to a high-ranking staff officer, has replaced the man with the rifle in the background.

Infantry Support Needed

No matter how potent modern equipment may be, and there is no denying the tremendous death and destruction it has dealt, it must be supported by infantry before victory can be achieved.

Government commanders base their opinion on a long list of engagements including the successful defensive battles of the Jarama River, south of Madrid, the rout of the Insurgents at Guadalajara, northeast of the Capital, and the Basque counter-offensive around Cordoba in Southern Spain.

Hand-to-Hand Struggle

In all of the battles mentioned, the action finally developed into hand-to-hand fighting after mechanized attacks had cracked resistance. Bayonet skirmishes between mechanized shock attacks and the decisive infantry engagement armed with rifle, sized and hand grenades.

It has developed into the major principles of warfare as used in Spain.

"You can not expect to take many alone," one officer who has commanded units on the fronts said. "But, with these ingredients, reinforcements can be brought to the point where the infantry's task is greatly lightened."

U.S. Durable Goods Too Dear Roosevelt Cites Copper, Steel

President Plans to Discuss Aggressions on Stock Goods

SEES DANGER SIGNAL

Washington, April 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today that United States prices of durable goods such as copper, steel and copper were far too high. He added the time had come when the Government to discourage Federal expenditures for public works and to encourage expenditures for consumer goods.

The President's lengthy informal statement on the present trend of business was prompted by a query as to his position on future public works expenditures.

Channel Dredging Urged

He said he told the five Democrats who called at the White House to discuss the public works administration, that future Federal public works expenditures should go, not for steel bridges and other such permanent structures, but for channel dredging and earthen dams.

Emphasizing that he favored projects, the President said, would give the greatest employment for the least expenditure, constituted a danger signal.

Rise in Steel Prices

The President said there had increased in price about $6 a ton. He recalled that steel rails, only two or three times larger than the rise in increase recently approved by the industry.

He said foreign naval building also had run up materials and domestic steel.

Three mines, Mr. Roosevelt said, could turn out copper for five or six cents a pound and that mines like Anaconda could make a profit at eight or nine cents, yet that commodity was selling now at 13 or 13½ cents.

His conclusion was that the pushed up the price of all things into which copper enters, primarily durable goods.

Scrap Metal Situation

Members of the committee, publication of which was the scrap export situation was not so difficult forthe large producers with large mill resources, small producers who must rely on raw materials in the open market are wholly inadequate.

NEW DEBT LAW ALBERTA'S PLAN

Call For Reduction in Principal as High as 50 P.C.

By George Pinlay, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, April 3 (CP)—A new debt law, calling, it was reported, for reduction in principal as high as 50 per cent, may be introduced in the Alberta legislature today.

It was considered in caucus by government members last night and was called the Debtors' Relief legislation, that will be introduced within the next few days.

The government's Debt Act was debated ultra vires early in March by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing of the Alberta Supreme Court. It was the reduction and settlement of debts Act adopted by the legislature in 1936.

The old Act dealt primarily with interest charges, a matter which the court ruled within the jurisdiction of the Federal parliament alone. The new Act will be based mainly on reduction in principal and will probably be known as the payment. It was said the terms would be extended over 10 to 15 years.

Members of the Insurance group of Bondholders Creditors, including Dr. Harry E. Brown, Calgary dentist, attended the two-hour caucus last night. Premier William Aberhart said only general legislative matters were discussed and that there was no talk of resignations.

Spanish Frontiers Controlled By Land, Sea, During Week

French And British Warships to Patrol France's Territory

WEAK LINK IN CHAIN

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 3—(C P Cable)— After many delays it is now expected that the frontiers of Spain will be controlled by land and sea during the coming week.

British and French warships will patrol the war-torn country and France's territory, Italian and German naval vessels will patrol those outside the Spanish Government ports. Observers will be stationed on the French and Portuguese land frontiers. Then, it is hoped, "Hands Off Spain" will become a reality.

There are still, however, weak links in the chain. Control will be limited to land and sea only. There is to be no air patrol. It will still be possible to fly direct into either Government territory. Moreover, although assistance to either side by air would be a breach of the international agreement on volunteers and war material alike.

With control still hanging fire, diplomats are wondering what Premier Mussolini will do next. A note which the Spanish Government has presented to Britain and other nations asking for an international committee is accompanied by a stack of photographs of documents among which the Spanish Government claims were seized from Italian prisoners.

These documents the Spaniards assert, prove the complicity of high Italian Government Officials in the presence of Italian "Volunteers" in Spain. The note to Britain is in Spanish and is being translated for proper study by British experts.

TRAPPER CLAIMS BOUNTY TOO LOW

John Kainola Regards Wolf More Valuable Alive

Sudbury, Ont., April 2.—(CP)— A $15 bounty reward on the head of every Ontario wolf isn't high enough to make wolf-killing profitable for the trapper. Anyway, John Kainola, trapper in Simard Township, regards the wolf more valuable alive than dead.

"Other animals coming to feed upon the undevoured parts of the wolf's kill make it a valuable bait and profitable matter for a trapper to set traps in the vicinity of wolf carcasses and thereby get a good catch," Kainola explained here.

Kainola said he and other Northern Ontario trappers look on the wolf as one of their best assets. They don't particularly like him personally, but the kill bounty isn't attractive enough to make it worthwhile to kill him.

"The best bait to catch—harder than the fox. "He does not feed on fish, but on deer. I regret but more for the sheer joy of killing," said Kainola. "He eats part of the deer and leaves the rest."

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Many Canadians are not aware that Canada ranks first in total pounds of air express carried and that in fact our total is almost as large as the rest of the world combined. In 1936 there were approximately 7,500,000 pounds of air express carried in the U.S. as opposed to approximately 35,000,000 pounds carried in Canada, and the great percentage of this volume is booted for the northern mining areas. Each year has shown a steady increase as the search for new wealth has pushed northward and the plane has rapidly demonstrated its invaluable service to mining men. Mackenzie Air Service Ltd.'s record is typical of the progress being made by air transport in Canada. This company has been an important factor in the development of the mining areas in northern Alberta, Saskatchewan and the North West Territories, since the inauguration of a regular service was commenced in January 1933.

Sherritt-Gordon

Sherritt-Gordon, with the mine in a highly developed stage, has a more ambitious plan for metal production than is generally realized. The company plans to take the fullest possible advantage of high quotations for copper and zinc.

Altered Refunding Outlook

Complete change in aspect of the refunding enterprise has removed the fear of impending redemption from a large group of corporate bonds. Until a month ago or so any outstanding bond of well-secured position carrying a coupon rate of 4 1-2 per cent or higher was labeled as a potential candidate for refunding, hence the call price automatically served as a check on the market price.

Both the upward revision of interest rates and the prospect of prosperity that refunding, even when it is resumed, will be only quietly pursued in comparison with the pace of 1935 and 1936, are considered in bond circles as reducing the list of potential candidates for redemption. Consequently, investors are reported engaged in scanning the bond list with an inclination to dip, for portfolio purposes, into issues heretofore disregarded.

WALL STREET

New York, April 2—(AP)—Stock market leaders hurdled 1 to 5 or more points today following President Roosevelt's warning signal of the excessive production of durable goods and riding prices on the United States, which he indicated were unjustified.

The selling wave which swept over the list put the ticker tape four minutes behind for a while.

Canadian Pacific, Distillers-Corp. Seagrams, Dome Mines and Molybdenite tapered off a bit. International Nickel was fairly active, the only declining issue after a point. Dominion government 4s picked up a little. Canadian funds were unchanged at 100.09 3-8 cents. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines receded slightly.

Outstanding shares on the downside included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, American Steel Foundries, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, General Motors, American Can, Kennecott, American Smelting, Certain-teed, Phillips Dodge, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear and Goodrich.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, April 2—(CP)—Depressed by the sharp decline on the New York Board, Toronto Industrial listings of the Stock Exchange sold off in good active volume, while the Metals were barely firm. Trading bulked chiefly in Base Mets and a few of the recent buoyant issues, including Kirkland Lake, Pickle Crow and O'Brien, turned modestly heavy. The cheap Oils held to the up side.

Paper stocks dropped their early gains and lower prices ruled in the Steel. Utility and Bank groups. Brazilian, C. P. R. and Ford A were down.

Losses exceeded a point for Nickel and Consolidated Smelters and the cheaper issues of the Base Metal group, Fend Oreille, Sudbury Basin and Base Metals Corporation were down. Eldorado was slow and barely firm.

Montreal, April 2. — Trading on the local wholesale food commodity markets was dull and featureless yesterday with egg prices unsettled and others mostly unchanged.

The open wholesale egg market although receipts were not as heavy today the poor demand continued to unsettle the market. Fresh receipts today were reported sold at 20 cents for grade A-large, 18 cents for A-medium and 17 cents for grade A-pullets. Some A-large were reported sold at 19 cents per dozen but this could not be limited.

The poultry market was quiet with the best demand centered on heavy chickens with steady improvement in enquiries for veal was also reported. No further new export business was reported today.

There were no sales of butter on the Produce Section, Canadian Commodity Exchange today. At the close Quebec buyers inspected 3 cars of No. 2 at 27 1-2 cents and Ontario-Western regraded at the same price. The open market demand seemed to have abated but with offerings light prices were being maintained all firm. The quotation this afternoon was 27 1-2 to 28 cents per pound, for No. 1 grade.

EXPLORE SEWERS FOR MURDER CLUE

Detectives Seek Sharp Instrument Vague Description

New York, April 2—(AP)—New York City's sewers were explored today in an effort to find an answer to the five-day-old question: Who committed the Beekman Hill murders?

Confronted with blind alleys at every turn of their night-and-day investigation of the six-year-old homicidal killing of Veronica Gedson, artist's model, her mother and a roomer in their home, detectives sought a sharp instrument of vague description in the city's drainage system.

The twenty-year-old habitues of night clubs, and her mother were strangled, but their roomer, Frank Byrnes, was stabbed repeatedly with a sharp curved instrument.

Rip Out Pipeline

A search of the sewer system in the Beekman Hill area, a midtown district near the East River, was ordered, and all the plumbing in the Gedson five-room apartment was to be ripped out.

Joseph Gedson, estranged husband and father of the slain woman, faced questioning in police lineup incident to his being charged with possession of a firearm without a permit, but the questions and answers in prospect were largely routine.

The harried little man who boasted of the strength in his fingers, badgered with questions day and night, lay on a jail cell cot with a special guard just beyond the barred door. Vague in his answer but quick to exasperation, he only exclaimed over and over again:

"I wouldn't kill my own family."

HUNT IS MISSING FROM 'HEAVEN'

Los Angeles, April 2—(AP)—John Hunt, alias "Mr. John the Revelator," alias "Jesus Christ" still was missing from his Beverly Hills "Heaven" today, sought on Mann Act charges involving a 17-year-old Denver girl.

The pudgy, 300-pound white follower of Father Divine, Negro Religionist, is accused of transporting pretty Dwight Jewett here from Colorado for immoral purposes.

U.S. District Attorney Pierson M. Hall said he was considering charges against several close associates of Hunt in Father Divine's local flock.

The last clue to Hunt's whereabouts was a report by a Pasadena coach worker, where a $25,000 "throne car" is under construction for him and his Negro cult leader.

Called Self "Jesus The Christ"

The 32-year-old scion of a wealthy Cleveland family appeared at the shop last Saturday, dramatically announcing himself as "Jesus the Christ" attendants said. When he ordered the car built two months ago, he told a salesman he was "St. John the Revelator".

Majestic fittings are planned for the 10-passenger machine, supplied with a 200-horsepower engine of expensive make.

The rolling "throne" is placed in the centre of the rear seat, flanked on either side by star-shaped windows. A canopy of milk-white plush, dotted with golden stars, has been designed. A dais before the throne is wide enough for four persons. The recording angels" as Hunt described them, in the radiator he ordered placed an inscription: "dove of peace."

"Rolling Throne"

Federal officers were informed the "rolling throne" was destined to be used on his west coast visits by Father Divine and six other times by Hunt.

A push-button, it was planned, would slide down the top or the bonnet, revealing the occupant of the throne "to the multitude."

Detectives sought evidence that Hunt abducted Miss Jewett to come to California in the belief she was the "Virgin Mary".

FLAMES THREATEN ENTIRE HAMLET

Fire Loss at Dungannon in Huron County Estimated at $25,000

Dungannon, Ont., April 3 (CP)—Flames threatening to wipe out this Huron County hamlet were halted today by volunteer firemen, aided by a change of wind and a driving snow and sleet storm. Known damage was placed at $30,000 after the fire, which first roared through the main section of the village of about 300 residents.

Men from nearby towns, Auburn, Blyth and Lucknow, rushed here to form a bucket brigade. After four hours of fire-fighting the outbreak was brought under control. For two hours it appeared as if the entire village would fall prey to the flames.

Structures destroyed and estimated damages were: Montgomery's general store, where the fire started $8,000; Montgomery's house, $2,000; Robert McKenzie's hardware store, $4,000; Lorn McKenzie's garage, $7,000; Rivett's restaurant and hotel $3,000.

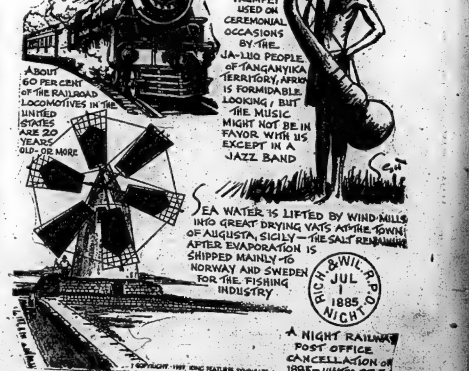
Mr. Bennett declared, "The honorable member (Mr. Church) has shown me extracts from the newspaper which, in quotation marks, is a declaration of policy by the head of the government of this country. Whether or not that policy is authorized by this government is a proper question."



"It is contrary to the British North America Act," Mr. Church observed.

"With respect to the broad question as to who authorized the statement," the Prime Minister declared, "I would say that the commission made its own statement without any knowledge in advance on the part of the government."

"The question," said Mr. Bennett "is whether or not that statement made by Mr. Gladstone Murray shown in quotation marks in the Gazette is a statement which he was authorized to make. I understand the Prime Minister to say he was not. If he was not he certainly should be dismissed at once."

ACROSS THE BORDER

Hands-across-the-border is no mean phrase, even if it has been used before. The phrase means something to Franklin D. Roosevelt and to Baron Tweedsmuir, who have crossed the border to visit the Dominion of Canada and the United States.

This week the Canadian viceroy has paid the first visit of a Canadian governor-general to the neighboring republic, repaying the visit of the President, Mr. Roosevelt last year to Canada.

Both nations in North America should be proud of the understanding and sense of security which every one of the millions of inhabitants feels from the risk of frontier difficulties. Two things in common geographically they have, the oceans and the one boundary line, and they do not need to be jealous of one another.

Such informal visits are what two great peaceful peoples can understand. They are neighbors and are bound in a common fraternity of interest. In the two men the President and the Viceroy, Americans and Canadians can see themselves as fraternizing and as guests in one another's houses.

May this attitude of the two peoples remain this way forever. And may Canada always have as democratic a representative as Baron Tweedsmuir and these two lands of Canada and the United States two men who can typify the two peoples as meeting and enjoying one another's hospitality and friendship without thinking in terms of armaments frowning at one another.

Lord Tweedsmuir made a memorable utterance in his reference to the differences in the nature of the two peoples being such as to make it possible for them to understand one another and be such good friends.

LATE WM. M. LOGAN

One mentioned as the best known Masons of Canada has gone—William McGregor Logan of Hamilton, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario. His name will live within the order for many years to come.

Family names of office as he did in various branches of Masonry, and interested as he was in many phases of life, Mr. Logan was not content to be limited by the bounds of the positions he filled. He was an outstanding man in whatever society he moved.

His good nature was apparent, his sense of ready wit and humor made him a popular favorite at meetings of Masons and others, where his rich treasury of thoughts and words was called upon and flavored with inspiration.

Mr. Logan was a proof of the value of the old humanities in education. He was a scholar in the classics, one of the greatest of his day. Everywhere he went he carried the atmosphere of the gentleman and the scholar. His scholarship was of the kind that linked him to his fellows and equipped him for life.

Mr. Logan's association with Belleville being of a family nature as well as fraternal he was always a welcome visitor.

Masons everywhere mourn the passing of this able and representative member of the order.

WESTMINSTER BUSY SCENE

Westminster City Council is to decorate four miles of streets for the coronation of King George Sixth and Queen Elizabeth less than six weeks hence and additional works and the entertainment of school children will bring the city council's coronation expenditure to 30,000 pounds.

Ancient Westminster, the heart of authority, will see the decorations on masts twenty-eight feet high surmounted by large ornamental crowns without garlands, from May 8th to May 19 on which latter day the King and Queen will make their drive about the city.

Coronation is to be an auspicious event for everyone. Children of Westminster schools each receive a coronation spoon and some 5,000 will be entertained at the Royal Albert Hall on May 21st when they will be visited by Queen Mary.

Visitors to London for the coronation will be furnished every opportunities to get a closer insight into British history and institutions.

Elaborate arrangements are made for the feeding and comfort of the crowds on the route of the Coronation procession. There will be fifty buffets at various points behind the stands, 12 marquees in the parks, eight stores for distribution of refreshments, a milk bar in Hyde Park, 200,000 newly cut sandwiches and a serving staff of 800.

TEXAS FOLKS ARE RIGHT UP ON THEIR TOES AND GOING PLACES. Last summer they staged a World's Fair in Dallas, with Billy Rose, of Jumbo-Hippodrome fame, in charge of stellar attractions—and was it a humdinger? It was and then some. Texas is also making a very good attempt to feed the continent with fresh vegetables and fruit, and is not hiding its brilliance under a bushel or tent or any other old thing. Our Dallas correspondent reports that Texas is not The Lone Star State any longer but a whole galaxy of stars, the last state to be touched by depression and the first state to be paid a return visit by Prosperity. Our Dallas correspondent sends along the following news notes to show how the Texas section of the Other Half lives:

Dallas contributed $89,763 to the fund for flood sufferers in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys.

x

A rural resident brought twelve dozen eggs to Dallas to sell or trade—left them in her car while she entered a store. When she returned the basket of eggs had vanished. Now she wonders if she should have put all her eggs in one basket.

x

Fewer free lunches for pupils at Dallas public schools this year is noted. Last year 852 pupils were supplied with ten-dollar lunch books, but this year the number has dropped to sixty. Lunch books contain five and ten-cent coupons, good for milk, or milk and crackers, or a serving of one vegetable and a slice of bread, a salad, a hot meat dish such as beef stew with half a slice of bread, and a dessert. Half pints of milk, usually sold for 4c, are sold at 2 1-2 cents to the welfare cases. The regular ten-cent lunch consists of a meat, two vegetables and two slices of bread. At ten, o'clock every morning milk is served in the schools to under-nourished children.

When a man loses his ear, finds it again, and has it replaced—that's NEWS, according to all the standards of newspaperdom. Thomas M. Sears, University of Texas student, lost his right ear in an automobile accident. He was carried to the hospital minus an ear, but the hospital attendants were too thorough to let him go through life with one ear so they organized a search where the accident took place, and as Rob Burns would say dashed if they didn't find the ear, slightly disfigured but still in the ring and capable of much service yet. At the hospital the ear was given first aid treatment and sewed back on the face of the student where, it is reported, it will become a permanent fixture after Dame Nature does her durndest.

The more we get together the happier we'll be is the theme song for Dallas during April when many conventions booked through the Chamber of Commerce will dump in even more dollars and visitors into the city every day. Thirty thousand delegates have already booked reservations and it is expected a good time will be had by all. Later on the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition will attract visitors from all parts of the world—so it looks like Texans would not be lonesome for some time to come—if ever.

Fifty years in prison and a fine of ten thousand dollars to a gang leader convicted of selling narcotics, while a woman was sentenced to a three-year term for the same offence. Two to twenty-year terms were meted out to other like offenders with fines from $1,000 to $5,000. Judge Davidson sentenced dope peddlers as worse than robbers or murderers in passing sentences.

Jaywalkers in Dallas are receiving police attention, claiming that nine out of ten traffic deaths since January 1 were due to pedestrian carelessness. The police are continuing an educational campaign which will be followed by prosecution of jaywalkers who persist in jeopardizing their lives needlessly.

Building permits issued in Dallas for March thus far go beyond the million-dollar mark—for the year thus far $3,000,000. Looks like Dallas was due for a growing pains—or somefin. What a city! What a State!

Philadelphia, April 2 (CP) — The Zoo has more than it bargained for in an animal swap with a Zoo at Hoosick Falls, N.Y. The Philadelphia Zoo received for a pair of European wild swine, as per contract, shown as they inspected the ancient time-recorder during a visit through the estate.

Prince Albert visited Glamis in 1920, to be heartily welcomed by the Earl and Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne and a party of house guests, though no rumor of engagement between the Royal Prince and the youngest daughter of the house of Bowes-Lyon was yet heard. Royal Prince though he was, Scottish nobleman could claim as ancient and aristocratic a line as their honored guest. And Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, youngest of a family of ten, had already become known to England and its soldier heroes for her nursing work.

SOFT COAL MINES

The miners' demand for time and a half for overtime proved the principal stumbling block after other barriers had been hurdled but even if this strike became effective, hope was expressed settlement could be effected to permit resumption of operations Monday.

30 Days Supply

The industry which in 1935 produced coal valued at $700,000,000, shut down with only 30 days coal supply above ground, operators estimated. The bituminous industry employs 400,000 persons and in recent years, is one of the U.S.'s principal sources of fuel and power.

The coal is the largest and most far-flung the country has witnessed since the U. M. W. struck for one week in September, 1925. Miners in a score of states from Pennsylvania westward to the State of Washington and southward to Alabama are affected.

Agreement Expires

The old contract expired at midnight March 31 and without a new agreement not a wheel turned. Negotiations for a contract opened today but the miners were idle as the anniversary of the eight-hour day was observed.

After conferences nearly every day since the negotiations started Feb. 17, the miners by yesterday had rejected their demands to the following:

An increase of 50 cents in the basic wage, from the north and $0.10 in the south under the old agreement; an increase of nine cents in the combined cutting and loading rate for miners paid by the ton; an increase of 70 cents for operators of loading machines and an increase of 10 per cent for hoisting and deadwork (removal of rock, etc.), with time and one-half for all overtime.

AIR SERVICE

These amendments had no relation to the principle of the measure and were designed more to strengthen its provisions.

Open in September

Depending upon the ability of factories to provide machines and flying equipment the intention is to have the Canadian main line service operating between Halifax and Montreal, and Montreal to Toronto by September 1.

The proposed North Atlantic Air Service between Ireland, Newfoundland and Montreal, is expected to be in operation within 13 months, the Minister said. Canada will be $6 2-3 per cent shareholder in the corporation operating that service.

Toronto will not be on the Ball line of the Trans-Canada Service, the nearest point to that city being Scotia Junction. For the moment the corporation is to be established

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION 3

At Historic Glamis, the Queen's Ancestral Home

Today we leave Prince Albert and his host to peer in with us for a short time one of Scotland's most historic castles. For it was at Glamis, huge buttressed pile with a history that dates back almost as far as Scottish legend, that the Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne had his family seat. And it was here, where legend says the ghost of Bloody Macbeth and many another unhappy spirit wanders through dimly corridors and towers, that the future King of England would find his bride.

Today's pictures provide two excellent glimpses at Her Majesty's home and parents. The Earl of Strathmore, her father, who is pictured here alongside the grim and stately castle which is his seat, traces his ancestry back into the dimness of Scotland's forgotten days. History has it that Glamis came into possession of the Strathmore family in 1372, a gift from then Scottish King, Robert II. The family has kept its name firmly embedded there ever since and through the years has grown, and spent many happy days as the family seat in Hertfordshire, Glamis is her ancestral home.

One of the most noted features of the castle and its estate is also pictured. It is the large sun-dial which adorns the grounds and which Elizabeth and the modern, the Countess of Strathmore, are shown as they inspected the ancient time-recorder during a visit through the estate.

Prince Albert visited Glamis in 1920, to be heartily welcomed by the Earl and Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne and a party of house guests, though no rumor of engagement between the Royal Prince and the youngest daughter of the house of Bowes-Lyon was yet heard. Royal Prince though he was, Scottish nobleman could claim as ancient and aristocratic a line as their honored guest. And Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, youngest of a family of ten, had already become known to England and its soldier heroes for her nursing work.

PROBE ACCIDENT

Glen Summers, driver of one of the three cars in the funeral procession was still unidentified. The elder Summers suffered severe head injuries, died in a hospital here, while Thomas died while enroute to Ottawa.

Leopold Surell of Outremont, Que., suffered a possible fractured skull and other injuries. He was brought to hospital here where his condition was described as serious. Joseph St. Amour, 39, of Ottawa, the truck driver, received a dislocated left hand, lacerations to the face and head and possible fractured ribs.

The others, not seriously hurt were Mrs. Almon Summers, 56, Bernard, Ottawa, the truck driver's wife, Lyle and Arthur Summers, cousins of Glen and passengers in his car.

Car Passing Buggy

The accident occurred a mile from Winchester village, 36 miles south of Ottawa. The funeral procession was that of Alvin Deeks, 17, fatally injured Monday in an accident on the same highway.

According to provincial and other police officers, the automobile driven by Glen Summers swung out while in passing a horse and buggy going in the same direction.

The truck, approaching from the opposite direction, sideswiped the Summers car, they said, throwing it off the road. Glen and Mrs. Summers and Lyle and Arthur Summers were passengers in this car.

After the truck hit the Summers' automobile, it swerved and grazed the car of Myles Harper, who had his wife and Mrs. James Cordon as passengers. Neither were not injured.

The truck swerved again and crashed into Thomas and Surell who were on their way to Williamsburg. The truck then hurtled through a heavy cement and wire guard or a culvert, cut a pole in two and ended up on its side in a 10-foot ditch. St. Amour and Shaver were able to get out of the vehicle themselves.

HAYSTACK FIRE CAUSE OF LOSS

Redesville, April 3 (Special) — Fire originating from an unknown cause in a haymock on the farm of Glencoe Brickmen, three miles west of Redesville, ignited and totally destroyed the large U-shaped barns and three machine sheds during the afternoon of Sunday yesterday afternoon. Thirty tons of hay and two calves were destroyed by the flames. Owner Brickmen which was in the barn at the time was let out to safety by neighbors. Machinery in two machine sheds in the vicinity of the blazing barn, which escaped, suffered considerable damage before being dragged out. A motor spraying outfit in a shed attached to the barn was also destroyed.

First intimation that his barn was ablaze was given Mr. Brickmen by his six year old son who rushed into the house with the news that fire and smoke were pouring from the top of the haystack. The strong west wind which was blowing at the time conveyed burning embers from the blazing stack 75 feet away in the direction of the farm buildings and by the time Brickmen arrived at the scene the barn proper was blazing.

With no immediate telephone facilities at the Brickmen farm a member of his family some distance to search in the alarm while he rescued livestock and horses from the burning building. Neighbors soon arrived but the fire had made such headway that salvage of buildings was impossible. There was no insurance on the buildings or contents.

Re-decorate Bathroom For Spring

The bathroom should not be neglected when the rest of the house is being re-decorated. It can be made as attractive as any other room in the house, and the modern equipment that may be found on the market is not only a joy to the eye, but also to the heart of the keeper, for it is easily cared for.

Many of the bathrooms of twenty years ago are out of style. A new bathroom is necessary if one is not bring them up to date, any more than a smart bow would make grandmother look like a girl of today's creation. Funds may now be obtainable from which to work under the given terms of the Home Improvement Plan, so this way the bathroom may be entirely done over.

One housewife attained exceptional results when she made a few expenditures. A high wainscoting ran around the modern bathroom. This was replaced by a washable tile, while the washable wallpaper in a flowered pattern was used. The pink and blue and green of the wallpaper formed a border.

New streamlined fixtures were installed, and a new floor laid, the radiator was moved to a more convenient position, and was covered. The new floor had shower curtain visions, which the old room had not boasted.

"Ticket For One"

by

Marie Blizard

He gestured in the direction of the ticket window, "Third from the end. They're all paid for and they are in my name. You, Judy, hear it over to that gate and wait for me," he pointed at the gate with no sign.

"Oh, Terry, that's not the one. Look, in back of us Track Number 32. That's where it says Florida Special."

"Not your train," Terry said firmly. He tried to propel her in the direction he indicated.

"Besides, it doesn't say anything on that sign," Judy persisted.

"Oh, yes it does but you just can't see it. As a matter of fact, my child, the idea is that the prospect gets a look too rushed, I know the boys around here and I've arranged for our party to slip on board through another exit. Satisfied?" Judy was.

The porters are over there, dear and you should stay with our baggage," Dolly told her. Judy nodded. Her high heels clicked on the metal floor. Dolly's coat flashing about her graceful figure. All eyes turned toward her. What darling was Dolly!

Terry watched her anxiously and then turned hurriedly to talk to Judy.

"She'll probably throw a fit but give the train boy a dollar and he'll slip with your story and it will be okey dokey."

"I sure be glad when we get on that train," Dolly answered.

"Then Terry got down to starting. Now, Dolly, you beat it over to the telegraph stand and send that wire to Mrs. Talbot. Sign it Judy . . . sign it . . . oh, sign it Gloria. I'm sure to know somebody named Gloria."

Dolly thought you said to wait and spring it on her when we arrive."

"She couldn't get packed and out of there in time. Besides, every less 2 mins my guess she'll be the first person in the train shouting! She loves this newspaper stuff. Run along."

The word was like a bullet. It brought them both about to look into each other's faces.

Judy sailing on clouds as she approached the gate. Her head high and aware of everything about her. She did not notice the activity of the porters, who walked straight into. And when she was upon them, they let down their bags, silently. Flashlights boomed as they crowded in upon her.

Desperately, she looked about her for help.

Dolly was coming toward her. Dolly sat, a picture of misery on her face. She looked like an indignant queen.

"Oh darling," she said as she slipped her arm protectively about Judy, "don't be annoyed. I've always can't go anywhere without these terrible newspaper people getting in our way."

The terrible people paid no attention to Judy, but turned their lights on Dolly.

"Miss James, are you going down to join Talbot? . . ."

"Miss James, be a good kid and give us a line. What is my story Job . . ."

Blue suits and brass pillows and still sounded haughty:

"I'm afraid you have made a mistake . Whoever Miss James is this is not the lady. This is my friend, Miss Louise Van Styne. Now may we pass please?"

Judy's head bowed and the dumbfounded Judy before her and through the gates. Her head was held high and she refused to throw them one last haughty stare. And then she followed one girl.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

BROKEN HEART

If Judy James had had any thoughts at that moment when Dorothy Lalley pushed her through the gate and steered her down the stairway, they might have been hysterical laughter. But she had no such mind went blank. Then Dolly had come along and saved her with her declaration that she was not the famous Judy James and the country's front page divorce story but her own sister, Louise Van Styne.

Dolly's arm fast on Judy's arm was leading her over a bridge to the train where the Palm Beach train stood.

She kept up a babble of conversation, muttering in assumed anger until they reached the car where their parts parents were.

Judy staggered slightly. Her ankles began to ache. A fire of fatigue. Her head ached and her eyes were felt hollow. She was too tired to protest.

Dolly's efficiency was going full speed. She directed the porters. She supervised the disposal of luggage. She looked to windows and comforts, issued tip orders and looked at her watch before she turned to Judy.

"Come on, baby, off with the hat and coat and shoes." Tenderly Dolly took the hat from Judy's hot forehead aligned the coat off and opened one of the shoes.

. . . here now. Take off your dress and get into this robe. I adore those mannish silk dressing gowns for travelling. You can roll 'em up in a ball and they come out without a wrinkle."

Why didn't Terry come? At any minute Judy might start her questioning and Dolly would have to answer all the answers. She was so tired, she could lie down, bat, cost and sleep for a week. Sleep for Nobly, she kept up the conversation.

"We won't be able to get any water until the train gets under way but we might be able to stir up some ice and ginger-ale and have a nip of what I have to make an old girl feel like new one."

Dolly came a flash and some soft slipper.

Judy was in a state of collapse. Tired lines were etched on her girlish face. Her golden hair had lost its luster and she attracted sugestion on the berth. She tried to smile at Dolly but her face ached with the effort. She managed a single sentence.

"What time is it Dolly?"

"Quarter of six. Worrying about Terry?"

Dolly nodded.

"He'll be here. He had to phone his mother or the paper or something. Terry's always late but he always turns up."

Terry was coming through at that moment, followed by a grinning porter, who had two bags, a hat box, an and a suitcase and a "trust me" expression. Yowsah he'd take care of the lady. Such an important lady. And if he could remember, he would call her "Miss James".

What was that high-falutin name she was using?

"Okay, George, that'll be all." Terry closed the door behind the porter.

"Well, if you two dames don't look like the last minute survivors!"

"What'd you expect, daisies?" There was a brittle note in Dolly's voice.

Terry changed the subject; "Sorry I took so long to get here. Had a hard time getting the office on the phone. You know how those things are. See you got aboard all right."

Dolly went into her act. She looked at Judy and smiled.

"We almost didn't get on all right. Some damn newspaper people on to us by hang around the Palm Beach train"—the newspounds Terry had carefully sent to the Palm Beach—led us and recognized Judy or at least Dolly thought she did—"

Judy rose from her languor very quickly and sat bolt upright.

"They probably wouldn't have noticed me if she hadn't looked so darn. However I put it over very nicely."

Dolly pretended to look very much upset.

"Good night! That might upset all our plans. You know Marshall doesn't want any publicity about that case."

Judy sighed a deep sigh and the last of her strength went with it.

"Oh I don't think there will be."

Dolly was very reassuring. "That case disappeared from the news a week ago and you know, Terry, there's a week end in the wind."

"Mercy, yes" Terry's expression seemed to say. Aloud

"You're right. Haven't seen a line about the Talbot case since that gal dumped off her gangster beau in the Clarion the other night. Well that's the news game." She laughed. They were silent while the brown liquid in the glasses diminished.

"Now you two dames get to bed, Dolly," Terry asked politely.

"Oh" Dolly was absolutely casual. gave them the queen sagle, glared them into obedience. Terry frozen them with my hauteur and informed them that this debutante was not that person — whoever she is—but my young sister, Miss Louise Van Styne."

"Nice work. How'd you ever think up such a refined name?"

"Read it in a book one day. may be it was the social register. Anyway what's in a name. Any old name under a picture of our beautiful child . . ."

The beautiful child yawned.

"This has been a lot of fun and it's been nice to see you, Terry, but I must go . . . really I must go."

No one tried to detain Terry and he knew it.

"So long, kid don't take any woodon nickles." Terry shook hands with both cheeks, "and don't forget you're my everything."

Dolly was tired and irritated and she didn't like that last line but she said nothing until Terry were standing on the platform, then she asked: "Anything more?"

"Write me every day. I'll send you instructions. Good luck . . . Old bless you, Doll. If anything unforseen happens, phone me but I don't thing it will. We've laid our whole campaign and once we get a national calamity, it'll go over on front pages. I don't know yet what I'll have it fit for you but . . ." Terry's voice trailed off and he looked at her miserably.

"Terry, I . . ." but Dolly waited for him to finish.

"Oh, I don't know," then with one of his old flashes: "If I can't think of anything else and since you're such a nice gal but such an idiot."

Dolly wailed with fear. Why didn't he say something? The train would pull out in three minutes.

"Terry say it!"

"Oh, I was trying to say, that I might marry you. If you're foolish enough to want me to."

Hastily Dolly looked before Dolly's eyes. Her whole body tingled. She was going to get him and not for ever. Terry was still talking.

"Of course, I'd don't have to marry Judy for The Cause."

Blindly Dolly turned her back on him and ran to her car to Judy's compartment. Slowly she opened the door, Judy looked at her and ran to her side.

"Just Ordinary Girls" State Hilton Sisters

Born Together 29 Years Ago And Have Travelled Extensively

HAPPY, CONTENTED

Vivacious, dark-eyed, with curly raven tresses showing to vivid contrast to their pastel ensembles, they sat on a chair, these two Hilton sisters, in the lobby of the Imperial, maining pairs of Siamese twins left on the North American continent by time.

Blue suits from cigarettes curled upward as they chatted with a colorful ease which is the intimacy of their room. For these girls in spite of a career which has brought cash, at least it is so considered by those or us who are different, exude a personality which can rarely by found in ordinary humans.

Violet and Daisy they are named have never had any wish to be any other girls are. "They haven't a thing on us" they said in unison "for there isn't a thing the average girl can do, that we can't, in fact we can do several things, that the ordinary girl can't do."

Size 2 Shoes

Twenty nine years of age, these remarkable twins have visited every country in Europe and North America. They have learned the ways and the atmosphere of the theatre for twenty-six years. The stage is their home.

Born in San Antonio twenty-six years ago, they are now looking American parentage, although the never saw their parents. At the tender age of three they took their first professional appearance before the footlights and from then on have been ever since. Vaudeville, the legitimate stage, the movie (Remember the picture Tod Browning's Circus?) are not strange to the twins.

London, Paris, Berlin, New York, the whirling maelstrom of theatrical life in other big cities of the continents have been part of the trotting itinerary of these girls.

"We are just ordinary girls" said Daisy, "Our likes are different as are our tastes. In many things, Vi wants a blue dress she gets it. I want a red one I get it and like blue cabbage. I like beans."

"I notice you are married" said this reporter, gazing at the wedding ring on the third finger of Violet's hand. "Yes we are married "I was married last year." "And I gave the bride a present the week later "but not too much" she added.

"Er, wasn't it rather awkward, when the husband came strolling."

"Not a bit" replied Daisy." I was like Ida 3 monkeys, I saw nothing heard nothing, and said nothing. But now it's time is coming, at least I hope it is."

Only One Serious Illness

The girls have only had one serious illness in their lifetime. Last year Daisy underwent a minor operation, which sent her to bed. "I didn't mind a bit" said her sister, "I needed a rest anyway."

"On no we never argue," one said in response to a query, once when we were young I pulled my sisters hair and then dressed and shot a right to my jaw. From that time we have settled our little differences verbally."

Possessed of a remarkable versatility, the twins play the saxophone, violin and piano. They execute a tap dance routine, as well as ballroom dancing. Once they toured England with two dancing partners. In fact Violet's husband was a former dancing partner who came from San Antonio "Among the girls" Some town but whom they had never met until ever since. They hav given up their music and dancing temporarily and are confining their act to vocal entertainment.

They have never seen a hockey match or a baseball game. They do not care for them. But as a wrestling or boxing card be staged within 10 miles and the girls will hitch-hike to see it.

They weigh 98 lbs together and are five inches in height. Violet wears a size one shoe, while Daisy's foot is one size smaller. They occupy one chair at meals and Violet declares Daisy reads before she goes to sleep, but Violet always wakens first in the morning. They seldom have a row even.

Happy, Contented

Happy, contented, ordinary remarkable girls think this is a fine old world. "We have no objections at all," they smiled. "We like to work and to play. We think people are fine and we would like to do a lot for them sympathize with us. Lots of times we feel like sympathizing with some of those people, who feel sorry for us."

We almost forgot to mention the inseparable companion of the twins, Jack Dalton, a New York showbiz writer, given to the girls by a Mr. English dinner last year, while they were touring England. And a strange thing, Jack scorn the fact, that she is a confirmed woman-hater. Let a man fondle her hand or kiss her and it was the appreciation. But let a woman approach, and Jack with will save and growl come from the small throat.

Furthermore Dolly is cautioned in a small robe, but when winter comes, she nestles comfortably in the sleeve of a fur coat. They are inseparable, these three.

THE EYE IS THE MOST PRECIOUS AND MOST HIGHLY TAXED HUMAN ORGAN

The further human culture advances, the better and more perfect all our means and resources must become in order to render more valuable the service of each individual in his particular field of action. This is especially true of all things pertaining to optics,—and rightly so, since the eye is the most precious and highly taxed human organ. Science has centered its special attention upon the study of the human eye in order to aid imperfect vision to regain its normal function, and we offer you an optical service based upon the most modern scientific methods.

"Canadians are swell folks" they smiled. "You over here are different from the folks in the States. CORONATION SUPPER IS FINE SUCCESS

The "Coronation" Supper by the members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Y.M.C.A., was a crowning achievement in the long list of successful events sponsored by this young group. Held last evening in the lecture room, the supper was attended by over two hundred people who thoroughly enjoyed the delicious meal. The room presented a striking appearance. The tables were draped with Union Jacks, the Royal Standard, the picture of King George VI. Attracting the attention and admiration of everyone, the beautiful crowns, the main decoration of the tables, were the cleverly designed by Mr. Douglas Bews. Ably assisted by Miss Cut by Deacon Shirt Company, the Auxiliary ladies were in the official Coronation dress of gold and green, with slender vases of red tulips forming another colorful touch.

An excellent menu was planned, and was served in pleasing fashion by members of the Business Girls' Group and the Junior Business Boys Group of the Y. who proved very capable waiters. The service was the result of their training at camp in serving and very efficiently carried out their duties.

At each table, an Auxiliary member presided, welcoming the guests after every requirement of the meal had been attended to. Mrs. Gordon who also played for community singing at the supper, proceeded with, Mrs. Smith delightfully rendering solo numbers of 020-time melodies. Humorous readings were given by Mrs. Fisher, "The First Railroad Ride" and Mrs. Fisher, "A Trip" Several numbers by the general thoughts for the ladies to carry home with them were rendered by repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

Group No. Four held a successful sale of home-cooking.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Siamese Twins
In Person on Stage

There are a couple of pretty sisters, just arrived from the United States who have to take each other with them every time one dates a boy friend. . . whether they like it or not.

They are the famous Hilton Sisters, Daisy and Violet, the world's only living Siamese Twins here in person on the stage of the Capitol Theatre on Friday and Saturday with matinee and evening shows.

Daisy and Violet have been earning their living since they were 3 years old. They've been around the world twice and have been in every country except China and South Africa.

They don't have to act and dress alike just because they're sisters, they declare. If Daisy chooses to wear an evening dress, and Violet doesn't—well, Violet just turns up in whatever she likes, to show she's independent.

Violet plays the piano, while Daisy accompanies on the sax-saxophone or violin. Both like jazz and both are fond of detective stories. Both are fond of boxing.

Daisy is already married, and her husband is the star of their vaudeville. Violet admits to "two or three" beaus, but there's only been engaged once so far.

Don't miss this inside wonder of human nature. Besides the Hilton Sisters, there's Jack Dalton, showbiz writer and other well-known feature players complete the cast.

"Here Comes The Bride Cow" was directed by Mitchell Leisen, who has directed such features as "Cimarron" and other outstanding musical films. Its music was written by Ralph Rainger, Leo Robin, and Sam Coslow and Al. Siegel.

Carolle Lombard and Fred MacMurray, the romantic team of "Hands Across the Table" and "A Princess Comes Across," are together again in "Swing High, Swing Low, a romance with music that comes to the Belle tomorrow (Saturday) Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily.

"Swing High, Swing Low" is the story of night club life in Panama and New York. Miss Lombard plays the role of an entertainer in a Panama cabaret who makes a famous musician out of MacMurray, who has been very much on the loose in the canal zone. This role gives Miss Lombard an opportunity to sing and dance, the first time she exhibits her talents in these lines and MacMurray plays the trumpet, also for the first time in picture.

The cast also includes glamorous Dorothy Lamour, the beauty who captivated America in her first screen appearance, "The Jungle Princess." She plays the role of "the other woman," with whom MacMurray falls in love. Miss Lamour, who was famous as a radio singer before her entry into pictures also sings and dances in "Swing High, Swing Low." Charles Butterworth, Jean Dixon, Harvey Stephens and other well-known feature players complete the cast.

Many Are Injured

More than 40 persons were injured when two suburban trains, packed with people bound for work during London's morning "rush hour," crashed on a 60-foot high viaduct.

One coach was badly telescoped across a live rail and burst into flames. The blaze was extinguished by hurriedly applied fire fighters. The smash was one of the worst train accidents in the London area in recent years.

Some of the dazed occupants of the car swinging precariously on the viaduct crawled from the crumbled coach and along the railway foothold to safety.

They looked like swaying tight rope walkers," a rescue worker said.

Taken Down on Ladders

Others refused to leave the car until ladders were run up to the bridge from the main line below.

A heavy rain beat down as stretcher after stretcher loaded with dead and injured was carried to ambulances.

There were screaming and moaning from underneath the bridge.

It was the second train wreck in London within 24 hours. Eleven persons were injured in a collision of two trains north of London yesterday.

No reason for the wreck was advanced after a preliminary investigation.

Last Carriage Smashed

The last carriage of the first train, which had stopped on the tracks, was a shambles. Its wooden body was ripped off completely. Four men were killed in one compartment; three women in another.

Arthur Anthony, motorman of the electric train from Coulsdon to Victoria which hit the rear of the stationary train between Battersea Park and Victoria Station, escaped with minor cuts but was in a hysterical condition.

The other train, from Clapham Junction, had stopped about 150 yards outside Battersea Park.

Current Off Live Rails

Flames burst out when one coach was knocked across a live rail, to yeal crash on the viaduct.

"Look out for the live rails!" survivors screamed. Instead of panicking, they got off. The fire was put out.

Rescue crews, reaching the viaduct with long ladders, worked in a soaking rain to pull the dead and injured from the wreckage.

One man, injured internally, joked with the rescuers as they extricated him with blow-torches and double-handled saws.

It's a good thing for you lads that I'm not Carmera," he grinned.

MONARCHS TAKE TWO PERIODS TO FATHOM DEFENCE

Winnipeg Win First Game From Saskatoon by 5 to 2

TORRID SPEED

Wesleys Show Great Pair of Defencemen in Ettinger And McFadyen

Winnipeg, April 2 (CP)—Aiming to regain the Western Canada Junior Hockey title they last won in 1935, Winnipeg Monarchs ruled favorites today in their best-of-three game series for the championship with Saskatoon Wesleys. The winner enters the Memorial Cup finals against the Eastern champion.

In a bang-up game here last night, Monarchs took two periods to fathom the Wesley defence and then shattered it to score four goals and win 5-2.

Heralded as a team with an amazing defence, Wesleys, Western championships last year holders of the Abbott Cup, displayed a rearguard that will finally be judged out of their first win.

Pete Ettinger, captain and veteran of three seasons with the team, and Allon McFadyen, the other brilliant defenceman, bemurred Monarchs' flashy forwards for two periods but well into the third before the Winnipeg crew finally got their number.

Don Ivel, going into the final period, Monarchs tied the score on a penalty shot by Reni Vandelet that whipped past the starry Wesley goalie, Charlie Rayner.

Then in two minutes to go the scoring splurge started. Pete Maguire, Monarch centre, put the Winnipeggers ahead on a lone effort and, in quick succession, Don Kowcinak and Tod Dent banged in two more as the Wesley defence crumpled before the torrid speed.

TORONTO BOUT LIKELY TO DRAW ABOUT 12,000

Toronto April 3 (CP)—Gordon Wallace currently the head man among Canadian 147-pounders, takes on the up and coming Sammy Luftspring here tonight in a 10-round defence of his welterweight boxing title.

The Vancouver tiltshopper was a slight betting favorite to whip his Toronto challenger, but Sammy's supporters were almost as good as more than 12,000 were expected to jam Toronto Lee Gardens to see the bout.

Against his ring craft Wallace has gained in the way of ballbusting Luftspring, 21 and with only seven professional fights behind him, will rely upon his hard-hitting right hand and has considered an "edge" in his age. Wallace is 26.

ENGLISH TEAMS PLAY CORONATION SERIES

London, April 2 (CP)—Seven teams will take part in the Coronation Ice Hockey Championship meet, preliminaries of which will begin next Tuesday and continue until April 10.

The teams to take part in the championships are Harringay Greyhounds, Wembley Monarchs, Streatham Brighton Tigers, French-Canadian All Stars and Harringay Racers.

Wembley Lions, National League champions, will go to Canada to compete in a Toronto world amateur tournament. On their return to England they will take part in the Coronation Cup play with the two teams which survive the qualifying round.

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Riviere Du Loup, Que., April 2 (CP)—Two men were killed and a third seriously injured when a boiler in a Biencourt lumber mill exploded here today, it was learned by Biencourt is in Temiscouata County near the Maine border.

The dead are Wilfrid Boucher of Cabano and Alphonse Cagne of St-Honore. Joseph Le Parnel was brought to hospital here in an unconscious condition.

All the men are believed to have been employed by Pierre Malenfant in the mill.

At the Training Camps . . . .

Tulsa, Ariz., April 2 (AP)—The Cubs and White Sox play the first of six games here today with the Bruins slated over the pitching of veteran Tex Carlton in yesterday's 7-5 win over Los Angeles. The Sox were gloomy after Ted Lyons was relieved in the fourth after a fractured nose in a workout.

Tallahassee, Fla., New York Yankees pitching ace McCarthy is brimming with confidence. "This is the best Yankee ball club I have ever taken north," says Joe. "Barring unforeseen accidents we should win the pennant."

Gulfport, Miss.—Manager Bill Terry gave his old number, No. 2, to John McCarthy as the Giants took the field against Jersey City, yesterday,—another indication the 1937 international league is to be the regular first baseman.

Clearwater, Fla.—Manager Burleigh Grimes has a new panacea for défeat. The morning after his Brooklyn Dodgers lose a game they're roused from their beds at 6 o'clock, for a "wholesome" morning workout.

RAMBLERS WAIT FOR OPPONENTS

Defeat Springfield Indians in Two Straight Games

New York, April 3.—(AP)—With all doubt gone as to who is the Eastern Division champion, the Philadelphia Ramblers waited today for settlement of the Pittsburgh-Syracuse fight to determine their opponents in the inter-national-American Hockey League finals.

After just about making a runaway of the regular season Eastern Division race, the Ramblers followed it up by scalping Springfield Indians tit two straight games of their sectional series playoff to decide the champion. The final set-offs against the Western winner.

Opening the semi-final playoffs at home Tuesday, the Quaker City budds romped to a 3-1 win over the Indians. They made it look much easier in the clincher last night, trouncing the Springfield sextet 3-0.

Their finals round playoff opponents will be decided Sunday night, when Pittsburgh and Syracuse tangle on the latter's ice in the "crucial" game of the three-out-of-five sectional finals. Tonight the Hornets and Stars are deadlocked at 2-all in games.

DETROIT WINS N. H. L. TITLE; RANGERS DEFEAT MAROONS

'Babe' Pratt, Rangers, Scores Only Goal of Game to Defeat Maroons in Stanley Cup Tilt

MAROONS CRITICAL

Claim Officiating of Ion and Mitchell Little Off-Color

New York, April 2 (CP)— Still confident of ultimate victory, but somewhat annoyed at the officiating by Madison Square Garden, the Montreal Maroons sped homeward today one game down to New York Rangers in the best-of-three Stanley Cup semi-final series.

Although they surprised the Gotham thrashists by feverish onslaughts from the coming face-off the big red team from the Canadian metropolis finished 60 minutes of fast and trucking hockey on the short end of a 1-0 score.

Walter (Babe) Pratt, laughing defenceman Rangers continue to use sparingly in the playoff bouts, set the Montreal down on the short end by scoring the lone goal late in the opening frame.

The big Calgary youngster was teamed up with the burly veteran Ching Johnson of the New York rearguard when his big mates sat arrived. Ching balled a 40-room thrust, made a quick, short pass to the gradonite from Kenora Thistles and the Babe was away.

Spectacular Play

He slickhandled through the blockading visitors and crossed their blue line. Checked at the defence, he veered sharply to the left, lost the puck just a moment, then recovered and smashed the disk under the outstretched arm of Goalie Billy Beveridge.

It was a spectacular play, accomplished in the style only the Babe can duplicate and the packed arena of more than 16,000 fans went wild. Horns tooted, whistles shrieked and papers littered the ice in tribute to the good-looking young Westerner, who only a week previously had knocked Toronto Maple Leafs out of the first round by a brilliant "sudden-death marker".

From then on Rangers played just as cautiously as they had expected Maroons to do from the opening whistle. Maroons started the opening up with a swift attack although the blueshirts stopped that but little Dave Kerr, the Ranger netminder, was in the groove and New York by the same Maroons three years ago, prevented the Montreal gang from gaining an early lead in the first ten minutes.

Officiating Criticized

After the rugged encounter Maroons accused Chairman of the officiating. Manager Tommy Gorman and defencemen, L. Goodwin or Hooley Smith, new favorites in the decision of Referee Micky Ion when he ordered Babe Pratt to take the risk to penalize Paul Runge, the Montreal scoring ace, for a second frame for tackling Ott Heller's ears with a stick butt-end.

They also pointed out that Johnny Mitchell, official from Hamilton, Ont., had called too many penalties on one to penalize Rangers Butch Keeling shortly afterward. However, neither sentence figured in any dramatic play.

WINDSOR SCHOOL CAGE CHAMPIONS

Defeat Hamilton Collegiate in Secondary School Finals

Toronto, April 3 (CP)—The Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball championship will remain in Windsor for another year. Kenora Collegiate Institute last night took over the pennant as they blasted a 44-17 victory over Central Collegiate of Hamilton. They follow the lead of their fellow townsmen of Kenora Collegiate, last year's champions.

In a nomadical game played at a curtain-raiser to the final, Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa, last year's runners-up, took a 36-26 decision from Stamford Collegiate at Niagara Falls.

The fast-breaking plays of the Border City team held Hamilton to standstill in the early stages of the game. Joe Krol, smooth-working forward line, shot off Windsor's scoring plays as well as chalking up 14 points.

'WINGS' MANAGER IN JOYFUL MOOD

Adams of Detroit Feels Hard Part of Road is Behind Team

Montreal, April 3 (CP)—"It's in the bag, now," said Jack Adams as he bundled out of the Detroit Red Wings' dressing room this morning.

And the Wings' manager had no need to comment on the contented scene he left behind him. The Red Birds from Michigan were strangely sober after their triple-overtime victory over the Habitants.

"Looks like good-bye to Montreal this year." That was Bucko MacDonald's observation as the manager added: "But we'd like to be back."

The furry-cheeked Sundridge pharmacy dashed off his bros dabsidders with a towel and answered the question that was flung from all quarters:

"Sure it was a tough game—but remember the one we played against Maroons last year, when Detroit slopped in a goal after 104 minutes of overtime. We really got acquainted with Montreal that time."

Bucko slipped on his coat, and walked out for a breather.

The jubilation was mostly from the fans that crowded past the contender. The players, strangely restrained, seemed to be thinking of that other series they must play for the Stanley Cup. Still—they are N.H.L. champions.

SILENCE SETTLES OVER THE FORUM

Canadiens Disappointed as They Troop to The Showers

Forum, Montreal, April 3 (CP)—Silence of the tomb settled over the Forum early this morning as Detroit Red Wings retained the National Hockey League championship and earned the right to challenge of the Montreal Canadiens.

The Wings and their few supporters alone broke the quiet that gripped the crowd after tousled-haired Mud Bruneteau, the goat who had netted the endurance duel that ended 3-2.

Kilrea was gauged by his own players as they rushed to pat and hug Mud. Then a dozen and a bunch swarmed over the rinkside to the ice to the time big bunch they rolled off the ice.

They whooped it up in a merry group as Mud headed for the dressing room and slammed the door, carrying with them the good luck wishes of Canadien players who went the handshaking rounds.

Canadiens Disappointed

Once they returned to their own room Canadiens made no effort to conceal their disappointment. They left it to Leo Dandurand, president of President Ernest Savard "to forget about it."

"It was a swell game," Savard said. "Forget all about it. I'm satisfied. Remember you've got to be well be back there again."

Then said Leslie Wilf Cude. "It's just another game, another game, except that we lose 500 bucks."

Johnny Gagnon limped across to the shower, where a foot baller-ed by a crack across the instep. He dropped limp across a chair hazed with Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Smythe was free in his praise of Canadiens. "To Manager Cecil Hart he said: "Cec, old boy, it's sure tough to take a licking like this, after going so far. But you've got a great team and you brought them from the bottom to the top."

Red Wings Take Canadiens In Fifth Game of Series 2-1 After 51 Minutes of Overtime

Hec Kilrea Scores Winning Marker After Rebound

DETROIT OUTPLAYED

Norm Smith in Goal With Injured Arm Plays Brilliantly

By SIDNEY GRUSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, April 2 (CP)—A big blond fellow with a quarter-moon smile wrapped his arms around a little pudgy guy with a lame arm and his long-sought prize, Hec Kilrea, the blond, and Norm Smith had just won Detroit Red Wings their second straight National Hockey League championship.

Kilrea, veteran of 12 seasons, fired a goal after 51 minutes, 49 seconds of overtime and the world champion Red Wings had beaten Montreal Canadiens 3-2, won the league championship three games to two and gained a place in the final Stanley Cup playdowns.

It was close to one o'clock in the morning and 13,000 fans had settled back for a long spell of tight-check-ing hockey when Kilrea picked up an end-board rebound of Marty Barry's wide shot. There was a mix in front of the nets, then the net and Canadiens' comeback was over.

They had battled furiously from the start to defeat Red Wings in third straight time, after losing the first two games of the series and make Stanley Cup history. They outshot the champions almost two to one and outplayed them most of the way. But there was Smith in the Detroit goal and he offset all that.

Norm Smith Brilliant

The Vezina Trophy goalkeeper, hit left arm almost useless from an injury suffered in the third game, had held Wings together long enough for Kilrea to score the winner. Sent to the nets in a surprise move by Manager Jack Adams after Earl Robertson subbed for him in the fourth game, Smith made Adams' gamble good.

He never was more brilliant than in the second period after Bingo Goodfellow fired a 25-foot drive to open the scoring. Canadiens' ace, Paul Haynes and Lionel Conacher bombed heavily for the equalizer, but Smith, what relief and Joe-lief first, first. Smith kicked it away, dropped to his Haynes' stick at the rebound and was up and down again with cat-like quickness to get Aurel's second shot.

It seemed Smith, batting at pucks with only his good arm, would win the game in regulation time.

But Bill MacKenzie slipped off to Cecil Hart for more than two and a half periods, took a defence position like in the game and two minutes later tied the score on a brilliant individual rush. He brushed through Wings' defence, scoring with a rising backhand drive from close quarters.

Wings Score on Breakaway

Indirectly, Kilrea also had a hand in Wings' first goal, the direct tap in penalty of the game, sending four Canadiens to the attack. It was Bobo Goodfellow's chance to break down right wing and send his blistering shot into the Frenchmen's cage.

Through the overtime periods the teams went without a sign of a decisive crashup, though Canadiens had a half-dozen or more chances to end the game during the second extra 20 minutes. One time Haynes had Smith at two-foot range and the goalie came up with the puck. The pace had been surprisingly fast and open, considering the prize at stake. Only once did any trouble between the players break into the open, Johnny Gallagher and John-ny Gagnon drawing majors for fighting in the third.

Kilrea Reserves' Scoring Ability For the Playoffs

Detroit, April 2 (CP)—Hec Kilrea, the blond Irish Okava bomber who reserved his scoring ability for the playoffs, has been a thorn in every league competition longer than shy Norm Smith has been between the Red Wings, crowned National Hockey League champions last night by the second successive year, and for the third time in the last four years. This is Hec's 12th winter in the "big time."

Playing in his ninth post-season playoff, modest Hector is the toast of Detroit today, for his "game-winner" counter in the third overtime period of last night's game with Canadiens at Montreal gave his team the league title and a chance to repeat as Stanley Cup triumph of last season.

But that's not all. Hec started Jolly early in the Wings on their way to the series' victory by counting two goals in the first game here, won by Detroit 4-0.

Since last March, Hec has said the greatest thrill of his hockey career was when he scored the winning goal after 177 minutes of battling the Maroons in the Forum. He was credited with an assist on the play, which gave the Wings the National League championship.

"Winning that game made winning the Stanley Cup an anti-climax," the veteran said only last week. He's probably changed gave his team the league title and a chance to repeat as Stanley Cup triumph of last season.

When it was pointed out last week that the number 13 which celebrates the back of his crimson sweater was altogether fitting for a man, who has been 13 years in the National League, Hec, elder brother of Wing Wally, said:

"I never thought of that before. It's a strange co-incidence. I hope they don't ask me to wear No. 13 next season."

Sports Roundup

By Eddie Briesti
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 2.— (AP)—Don't be surprised if Boston Bees turn out to be the "Yanks" team in the National League for the first month or six weeks. The Bees are coming north splendidly conditioned. Bill McKechnie has his veteran players ready and most of the best-of-three series. Grads lead the Wings by two games to one.

Cleveland a gent named Mike Gron reached the 1861 top of the Lake Shore Golf course needing an ace to crack 100 for the first time in his career . . . No sooner said than done. . . Mike reached for a No. 7 iron and scored a 1-like yarder. . . . (P.S.—Last two items positively are not April Fool Gags)

Joe Louis' tour of Texas was just so-so from a Kale gathering standpoint. . . Houston contributed the biggest gate—$1,200—and there wasn't a lunch at that jet. When Joe took out the rental for a special car, "outs" for Joe's two managers and Mike Jacobs, salaried like the two stooges who got lapped and other expenses . . . Bob Quinn has about given up on Vince DiMaggio as a regular this season.

This corner just can't go for the Golf Pete story saying Hank Lehrer laid down the law to Bill Terry and told Bill he'd have to play Hank regularly in centre field or else. . . . Mrs. Gene Kornelius is the proud mother of a baby daughter . . . Buffalo, her husband, who exports on golf for the Evening News never cracked 100 in his life.

Wesley Ferrell, ace hurler of the Boston Red Sox, and one of the best golfers in the pill chasing ranks, picked up the amateur pool, when the playing season starts around the major hops. . . . He well does he take care of that throwing arm that when for good thinking in the playing season, he does his casting with his left arm.

Wilcey Moore, former star hurler of the Yankees, is known when he recalls a bet made with the great Hamilton. . . "I bet the Babe $15.00 against $300 that I would get a hit during the 1927 World Series. Moore recalls. . . "it looked like a lost bet until near the end of the game, when I made my hit—and the Babe paid off like a slot machine. . . . "When I came home, I paid the $300 for a span of mules, and named them "Babe" and "Ruth."

There is a growing feeling among a great number of hockey fans over the country, especially those who follow the Senior O.H.A. and Intermediate O.H.A. groups, that the hockey game in the world, then, and only of late years, by fact since the five man law has squared off and slugged it out in a game, has John Public demanded a measure of violence with his hockey meals.

o o o

Nowadays the average hockey crowd, if they do not see a couple of fights, three or four rough and tumble or lots of gore spill, classify the game as tame. Which they would have described as classics, as days affairs.

o o o

The feeling of retaliation stirring in the hockey fan is the best of the battle they get the "works" in the ring—and it is because the sports where bodily contact is part of the game. . . . In the old days, when civilization was not what it is, other fellow is out to "get" them. . . . And naturally they try to "get" him first.

o o o

So marked has become this feeling among players, or is it just a fad, that in the Senior and Intermediate managers ranks, that their players wear helmets. . . Perhaps since the days of Cyclone Taylor, when someone noticed spectators screaming for more violence, and the conflict, an astute manager detected the coming of the "helmet" to the rough stuff, and gave his players the necessary instructions.

o o o

However, one of the strangest displays of this sort was when a paper cut was noticed in a Detroit paper for one day, in the sporting picture of Normie Smith, injured Wings goalie being treated by the team trainer. . . . Below was the caption "Normie Smith under care of Wings' trainer, supplied by Les Canadiens Reprisal?". . . . Note the question mark. . . . However to give the fans of Detroit the benefit of the doubt, the caption may refer to the Canadiens of the Montreal fan, who works in a newspaper office.

The following items may be of interest to the lady who called this department a few days ago with a request for the address of the veteran race horse, Mr. Gately. It is none other than Hamilton Spectator, "the late Joe Atkinson. . . . Joe was a great sport, as he sanctioned off, but not Mr. Oakes' . . . Joe can be taken over by Dr. J. W. Mc-Murrich, who is still continuing to live on the best equine menu."

GRADS BEHIND TITLE

Vancouver, April 2.—(CP)—Edmonton - Grads defended their Western Canada Women's senior basketball title here last night when they turned back Vancouver Meralomas 31-23 in the second game of the best-of-three series. Grads lead the play-offs two games to one and a possible third game in Toronto on Thursday next. Clarence Campbell and Babe Dye, two N.H.L. arbiters, were named as the officials in charge of the series. The winner meets North Battleford Beavers in Calgary in the Allan Cup series.

Ray Mallen, former Belleville roundsman and centre-ice player was in the city over night and awaited to be transhipped to all of the old boys of 1922-23.

Efforts to revive the old Bay of Quinte intermediate baseball league were made for the first time last night, three teams being represented—Picton, Napanee and the Belleville Kiwanis. Trenton and the R.C.A.F. were invited, but the former did not make an appearance and are doubtless out of the picture. It is different with the "Flyers", however, as we understand that Art Holmested has sponsoring intermediate ball at the Trenton airport and now that they can draw players from Trenton town, the Flyers may be included in the league to become a four-teamed loop. The process of double elimination of the diamond pastime in Belleville has been launched and it will not be too long before Belleville will once again take her rightful position in the senior baseball ranks, we hope.

Tomorrow the annual meeting of the O.H.A. is being held in Oshawa. Although it has been circulated around as a rumour it was not until this week that definite news was announced stating the retirement of Frank Moran, Toronto, and President of the O.B.A.A., Under ordinary circumstances E. O. Gale, of Belleville, would be in line to step up, but we have reason to believe that Jack Scott, of Kitchener, will receive the support of the O.B.A.A. and that Secretary Ernie being satisfied to remain as 1st Vice-President during Mr. Scott's term of office. It is also all probability the "east" will be strongly represented and may carry the balance of power when it comes to voting as was the case three years ago, when the Eastern delegates were the cock of the walk and worked whatever motions they deemed to their advantage.

A concerted drive to raise funds to finance George Pepper's proposition to compete in the world's championship motorcycle races in the Isle of Man will commence locally next week, Specially designed may enter in both the 250 C.C. and 500 C.C.—Class T's, goes.

Hec Kilrea is the hero in Detroit today. Hec's goal winning the N.H. L. championship for the Redwings over Canadiens, 2-1 last night, was another of those annual 11 minute affairs. Undoubtedly the returns of Normie Smith, Wings' goalie, proved the difference between victory and defeat for Jack Adams' charges.' After losing the first two games of the series, Les Canadiens made a brilliant and successful comeback and Detroit drew first blood in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, taking Maroons 1-0, however.

We wonder what recognition will officially be given the members of the Belleville Rodeo for their sterling feat of bringing to this city its first O.H.A. championship? Surely the boys are deserving of some consideration and a token of acknowledgment for their efforts. Gold watch charms and gold watches were given the members of the Belleville Nationals after they won the senior O.B.A.A. championships in 1916 and 1926 respectively. Surely the Redmen are deserving of some consideration in the reality a public banquet and presentation of the O.H.A. trophy, along with individual tokens of appreciation would about be in order. We imagine, the Redmen played to too many vacant seats at the Arena all winter, so here's an opportunity for the fans to show their appreciation and reciprocate in a fitting manner. It is a matter of some kind of a presentation that the players may cherish and remember over in the years to come.

o o o

"Well, Eddie, now that you've accomplished your one ambition and that is O.H.A. championship has been won by your team, what plans have you for next year?" we asked Skipper Thomas this morning. "Well, Ken, I guess we don't have one smart line in the Jackson and Tompkins. We'll have to go out and get a few more and the players next year if we hope to get any place in the standings. "Buries" Whitton will not be available at all. Marty Barry is retiring, so a high-class forward and a good defenceman, to work alongside of Ross Lowery and Ken Gibbard we'll require. Oh, yes, Ed. I believe," explained Eddie. Incidentally we were in conversation with a former N.H.L. star during the first Thorold-Belleville game here and asked him his opinion of the relative strength of the two clubs. "This Boy Ross is a good defenceman and is the makings of a good player," was the lone reply we received.

It is seldom a community the size of Belleville and district can boast of two O.H.A. championships in one season. The Jr. B.A.A. "Flyers" went out and won the intermediate O.H.A. title, while our own Belleville Redmen were toss in the intermediate "E" section and both clubs are worthy titleholders and a credit to the community. Clayton Browne, the local sports editor of Toronto Standard scoffed at our suggestion of giving the Redmen standing in Niagara Falls, but we still think the locals should have won by a larger margin. Out in Peterboro' the local grapes win the Litzlock City keyboard pounder, Jack Bell, who claims being in the "village class." Well, it's better to be a big fish in a little puddle, than swamped in a big pond, a la the Petes. The Oshawa Times is still in a quandary as to what happened to that collection of stumble bums imported by the Motor City and while all of this was going on, and the boys were having their fun putting the bee on the Redmen rolled merrily along their way and crowned the hockey championship of the province. Now that the boys and the Moors, they're theirs to get.

The Hull Volants and the Sudbury Tigers will start their best-in-three game series for the Eastern Canadian senior finals in the Allan Cup playdowns at Ottawa on Saturday night. The second game will be played in Sudbury on Monday and a possible third game in Toronto on Thursday next. Clarence Campbell and Babe Dye, two

ABERHART TO RECALL SOCIAL CREDIT CHIEF

Premier William Aberhart of Alberta, unable to secure passage of his budget, was saved from defeat at the hands of insurgent members of his Social Credit government on condition he recall Major C. H. Douglas from England to head a committee of five to bring about the introduction of Social Credit into the province. The bolting members of Mr. Aberhart's government rescinded the premier withdrew the present budget and substitute one supplementing Social Credit principles. The request has been granted for three months. Here the two men hold hands with Major Douglas during the latter's visit to the western province prior to the Aberhart victory at the polls.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A COLOR SCHEME

By Nora Lybeck Spencer

Mary Allen dropped her tan suit to the floor of the bath house dressing room, then she confided just live in this, she thought, as she surveyed her trim figure in its black bathing suit.

She shoved her mousy hair under a blue-green cap, and a breathless transformation took place. She did look nice. She wished she could get John to come with her to the baths, just once. He would see that she was a woman and not just "such restful company."

She ran in through the water, blue eyes sparkling. She looked, thought the handsome young man who lay sail concealed under a huge umbrella, about twenty-five, and interesting.

"Oooh!" Mary's foot hit a sharp stone and she went into the soft sand, sending the umbrella spinning.

The young man grinned and rolled over beside her, making her eyes with daring friendliness. "I'm so glad you dropped in," he said.

Mary sat up quickly. Heavens, a young creature like this trying to make up to an old maid! "I'm sorry," she managed to say, "hope I didn't break your umbrella." She started to rise, but he put out a restraining hand. "Please stay," he begged.

Might be fun to stay awhile, for. get she was thirty-three and had wailed six years for dawdling John Drake to pop the question. A man who came to see her, to get rested in her cozy little home after a hard day's work, who even had his favorite chair in the living-room.

"There," said the young man, surveying her, "that will keep you from getting burned. A fair skin like yours should be protected."

"My skin doesn't tan," said Mary, thrilling to his praise.

"It's lovely. Who are you?" he asked. "No, don't tell me. You're a mysterious adventuress. Your sweetheart has just run away with another girl, and you came out alone to forget." He smiled. "Am I right?"

Mary laughed. "Perhaps. Go on, tell me more about myself."

"You can't understand why he prefers the other girl. She's just an ordinary creature—doesn't even dress well." Mary drew in a quick breath. He went on, not noticing, "while you, dashing as the blades and—" he paused.

"You mean what other colors do I wear?

"What's the color of your hair?" He reached up to remove her cap, but Mary quickly clapped her hands over it. "No, that isn't fair. This is make-believe," she reminded him.

"All right. It has a tinge of red in it. That's why you wear that blue-green cap and black suit. I'd like to see you in an evening gown of either shade."

Mary rose, said quickly, "I must be going."

Mary stood before the mirror in Madame Soulé's exclusive dress shop. "Isn't it a bit young?" she asked, as she breathlessly surveyed the blue-green gown molding itself to her slim figure.

Madame handed a bit of eyebrow pencil, a lipstick, no rouge, but yes—a light henna for the hair."

"If I only dared!" breather Mary. The young man had said, "a glint of red in your hair."

But that evening Mary wondered how a blue-green gown, a light henna pack, lipstick and an eyebrow pencil could perform such a miracle. Tonight when John came, she thought wistfully, she wouldn't be "restful company." There was another daring thought. If John didn't come to life, there were other men.

Her heart skipped a beat when she heard John's cheery "Hello Annie," as the maid let him in. She heard the squeak of his favorite chair as it received his bulk.

Mary tiptoed in, the hand of her hands wet with nervousness. John's chair faced the window. His head was tilted back on the cushions, his eyes closed. He seemed perfectly content. Mary paused a hand over his eyelids. He captured it, blinked, smiled a yawn and got to his feet.

"Hello Mary," he said, "I was almost asleep." He was looking straight at her, apparently seeing nothing unusual.

"I've been wondering about things a lot lately—" he was actually stammering. He stopped his forehead with a big handkerchief. "I'm not good at this business," he blurted out.

"What are you trying to tell me, John?" asked Mary.

"You know, you must know, I've been wanting to marry you. Would you, dear?"

"Why John I hadn't thought about it." Hot Mary, "not after all, why not? I'm terribly fond of you."

He kissed her a bit awkwardly. "You're sweet, Mary", he said. "I love you."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reading the paper after supper, saying to pop, Really Will-yum, I mean really, I dont see why the government should spend so much money that the papers have to mention it day after day in a derogatory manner. I mean, simply because it's there, is that any reason they should squander it like a big overgrown drunken sailor? she said.

A good bit of it isn't there, that's the cream of the jest, pop said. But I have a theory about public spending. I think in every country frugality begins at home. Look at the French, the most frugal people in the world. You never hear of their government's shooting billions of franks up in the air. But here we dont know what it means to save money, so how should we ex-pect our government to know? Take yourself, for instance. We're supose to be on a budget, just like the government, and yet only yes-tiday, still in the middle of the week, you had to ask me for an-other check for household expenses, he said.

Now Willyum there's 3 boxes of entirely diffrent colors, ma said, and pop said, They're the same box. If you cant manage just one check, what rite have you to expect the government to manage millions of checks? It's my theory that the government takes in more from the housewives of the nation. To quote an old proverb, as the housewife is best, so will the government in-cline, and I can prove it by a thousand instances and examples, he said.

Well if you can then that just goes to prove that the government has more worries than people imag-ine, and if people only realised from their own troubles what the government has to put up with they'd proberly be a little more considerate in their criticism, ma said, and pop said, Yes gods it's a woman's weird and I hope the day never comes when it fales to

SOLIDARITY OF LITTLE ENTENTE AFFIRMED

3-Power Bloc Unwilling To Be Drawn into Group Fascist or Communist

Respect for Internal Regimes of Other Lands Emphasized

MUTUAL SAFEGUARDS

L'Oeuvre' of Paris Says It Was Bad Day For France at Belgrade

Belgrade, Apr. 3 (CP)—Having satisfied the unity of the Little Entente remains solid, the foreign ministers of the entente council returned to their respective capitals today after a two-day conference that ended with a unanimous declaration of fidelity to the commitments that bind Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

Fact With Italy and Reigate.

The council also indicated its conviction that Yugoslavia's pacts with Italy and Bulgaria conform with the spirit of the entente. In its communique, it stressed the unwillingness of the three states to be drawn into either of Europe's so-called ideological groupings—Communist or Fascist.

Nothing was said specifically about the Negrin-Blum government, but it was understood, still meets with the opposition of the Entente. Respect for the internal regimes in other countries, strict neutrality as regards Spain, and collaboration to preserve their mutual security, were emphasized.

Paris Press Doubtful of Solidarity.

Paris, Apr. 3 (CP)—Reaction in Paris press was almost unanimous today in casting doubt upon the affirmations of solidarity made at the conclusion of the Little Entente council meeting in Belgrade last night.

"It can be doubted," said L'Oeuvre, "it must be admitted that it was a bad day at Belgrade for France and its influence in central and Southern Europe. However, despite appearances, Paris and Geneva will soon be recognized by all European peoples as the inevitable exogenous in case a conflict should break out in Europe. No, patience for a few months, and perhaps Belgrade will act in a fashion diametrically opposed to its action of April 3."

Populaire, Socialist party organ, declared "the project to strengthen the bonds of the Little Entente on the basis of mutual assistance made no progress."

FORMER MODERATOR OF FREE CHURCH DIES

Edinburgh, April 3 (CP Cable)—Rev. Alexander Stewart, who 10 years ago was Moderator of the Free Church of Scotland, died here today. He was 68 years old. Dr. Stewart took part in the Scottish church dispute "of a number of years ago and was an active advocate of what was known as the "We Free Kirk."

WORKERS REJECT 10 P.C. INCREASE

Hold Out For The Increase to Apply on Old Wage Scale

Brantford, Ont., Apr. 3 (CP)—A picket line was formed today by employees of the Kitchener Overall and Garment Company here who rejected an offer of a 10 per cent. increase in wages and walked out on strike yesterday.

Officials of the Garment Workers' Union, of which all but five of the seventy employees are members, said that in the last few years workers at Kansas City yesterday, Fred became the third of the "big three" automobile producers to be affected by U.A.W.A. sit-downs.

130,000 Idle.

Approximately 130,000 wage-earners of these and other automotive firms were idle today. Most of the elements will return nearly 30,000 of them to work the end of the week. This figure is only 5,000 less than the highest number made idle during the 44-day General Motors strike at the start of the year.

Yesterday's strike call was announced by Homer Martin, who has immediately signed an inter-departmental agreement between G.M. and General Motors.

Arnold Lenz, Chevrolet operations manager at Flint, promised to meet with Robert G. Travis, union organizer here, and the committee of nine shop stewards set up under the agreement. Lenz said the company had made a sincere endeavor to fulfil its part of the agreement.

Travis declared: "We announced, the strikers voted to leave the shops,"

City and District News

WILD DUCKS TANGLE IN NETS

Wild ducks arriving from the south are giving fishermen of this district new netting in Lake Ontario considerable trouble by becoming entangled in the nets, it is reported. Drowned at depths said to range over one hundred feet in the water in their chase for the fish, the ducks in their struggle are cause of much breakage of the meshes. The peculiarity are of non edible specie, known as good divers.

As yet little supply of fish is being received by city wholesale buyers, it was stated today.

ROADS IN NORTH NOW QUITE MUDDY

Roads through the northern section of the county are discouraging for week-end touring owing to their muddy condition, it is reported. Deep bog holes have developed in spots owing to recent rains and frost coming out of the ground, the main highways are reported in fair condition, but "dumpy" warnings have been posted for both No. 7 and No. 28 highways by the Highways Department.

TORONTO AIRPLANE CRASHES IN FIELD

Enroute to Pandash Lake in North Hastings, from Toronto, a small airplane piloted by one, Lorne Stevens of that city, crashed on the farm of William Richard in Sidney Crossroad. Engine trouble is held as the cause. Though some damage to the plane was noted, its pilot escaped with a few bruises.

CHEESE FACTORIES BUSY OVERHAULING

Cheese factories of this district are overhauling equipment in the present time in preparation for a general opening which is expected to start within the next two weeks or so, according to advice from the office of the Dairy Products Cheesemakers' Association local office.

ICE IN QUINTE BAY STARTS TO BREAK UP

"It just naturally sinks and goes to the bottom," explained a Belleville waterfront man of the city regarding the sudden and unaccountable, to the uninitiated, disappearance of the comparatively thick floes of ice in the Bay of Quinte almost over night. "The surface of the water is being warmed by the sun and so on—thus it sinks," it was added.

This morning cars are reported patches of ice floated in large expanses of water stretching from shore to shore, but the movement of the ducks are also marking the outer waters of the bay where they are floating in solid black rafts.

As for the water front is to be locked but the ice shows considerable erosion.

No date for local harbor opening has been given as yet by Harbormaster Joe Weadick here, it is announced by K. Reid, chairman of the Hospital Board.

CLIFFORD BAKER GIVES BANQUET

Truck Owners And Operators Guests of Baker's Service.

Truck owners and operators were the guests of Clifford Baker of Baker's Service, distributor of Dominion Tires at a complimentary banquet held on Friday evening at the New Sidney Hotel, when more than one hundred filed into the dining room, the tables being most tastefully decorated, while the repast prepared by Mrs. Zile Ryan was all that could be desired in the culinary art. A most pretentious program was outlined in a comprehensive menu with Ernie Brown and his Flatiman Blenders of Toronto supplying the entertainment.

Before the banquet proper, a reception was held, where the various owners and operators and their families met to talk shop and advance ideas for the general betterment of the trade. Around the corridors of the hotel and on the spacious floors was placed advertising matter of a striking nature showing the advantages of the Dominion tires, and these tires were exhibited and a cross section of the tire construction. Interwoven with its fine workmanship and its undoubted quality to "stand up" to all road work, Mr. Baker, who was the official host, was quite busy with the visitors for a time and he presided as chairman of the banquet and entertainment that followed.

The head table was filled with George Parks, president of the Dominion Transportation Association of Tweedo, and E. F. Billings-worth, official of the Dominion Tire Company besides many prominent in the trade. Mr. Parkes gave the principal address, discussing at length the Provincial Commercial Vehicle Act, and many interesting points were brought out in the discussion. By the aid of lantern slides the motion picture, "Dominion Tires" was fully explained and the views were both interesting and instructive. The entertainment or floor show following which was a programme of popular numbers, stories, dancing and assemble numbers, both act and vaudeville received and the audience were loathe to have the artists leave the floor. The National Anthem closed a most pleasant evening.

Patrick J. Roach Honored At Banquet by Associates

Retiring From Bell Telephone After 25 Years of Service.

GIFTS PRESENTED

Recognition of thirty-two years of faithful and efficient service was given in a tangible way last night, when members of the Bell Telephone Company representing practically all its branches paid tribute to Mr. Patrick J. Roach, who retires from active service on March 31st, at a banquet given in his honor at the Belvidere Hotel. A beautiful red upholstered easy chair and ottoman were presented to the guest of honor by his fellow-workers in Belleville while a handsome leather wallet suitably engraved with his initials was given Mr. Roach by the Bell Telephone Pioneers Association. A life membership in the Pioneers was also presented to him in the form of a beautiful framed certificate.

Over forty guests, representing the Eastern Division of the company sat down to a scrumptious repast served by after eight o'clock.

It was evident in the easy camaraderie, and good fellowship which featured the affair that Mr. Roach held a high position in the esteem of his fellow workers. And while at times during the evening of laughter and hilarity, underneath the party of the occasion was always noticeable a strong current of regret. For one of the most valued of their fellow-workers, and one whom the most of those present had known for over a score of years, was leaving the active service of one of the "Happiest Families" in the Industrial life of Canada.

Executives Join in Praise

Not only did Mr. Roach have the esteem of the men with whom he worked, but officials of the executive of the company also showed in a marked manner appreciation of the lifelong loyalty and efficiency of the man who gave him best over a period of years.

Among the representatives of outside points, were executives of the company. At the head table in the banquet room men grown grey in the service, were: Mr. Hall, Assistant Association, sat with the guest of honor. Representing the Kingston company present were: D. H. McDougall, Kingston Ontario Division Plant Superintendent; Mr. Andrew Drew, Plant Superintendent, Kingston; D. F. Hamilton, Traffic Engineer, Kingston; W. N. Welbourn, Accounting Division, Kingston; and Mr. G. W. Proctor represented the local telephone office.

Not only did the gathering take the form of a tribute to the faith and loyalty of Mr. Roach, however, but it also served as a get-together for those men of the wires. Many met and visited with old friends and reminiscences which flowed around the festive board.

Shortly after the banquet ended Mr. Jim in a splendid address to Mr. Roach, congratulated him on his record. "Any man," he said, "who can stay with the Bell Telephone Company without making an enemy for 25 years, has a record which is a credit to any man." He's a jolly good fellow" rang out in the room, when the chorus echoed an interruption to the speaker. "I am honored to do this," continued Mr. Jim, "and also to pay tribute to former associates I present this token of appreciation to you Mr. Roach with the hope that it will remind you from time to time of the happy associations you have had in the Bell Telephone Company. We wish you health, happiness and best of everything in your well earned rest."

Visibly Moved

Mr Roach, who was visibly moved by this splendid gesture on the part of his former colleagues, expressed his appreciation in the few brief words. "I can't say any more than thank you on behalf of my wife and myself," he said.

Mr. D. H. McDougall of Ottawa, in presenting Mr. Roach with the leather wallet from the Benefit Fund Plans paid high appreciation of the loyalty shown during the years of service of the retiring employee. "He has shown exceptional loyalty and faith," he said, "and I have heard nothing but praise from all who knew him. We younger men of the company see him go with sadness, for it is the old-timers who made the company in Canada, what it is today. It is up to us to carry on what they started to do."

D. H. Ulman presented Mr. Roach with a leather autograph album which had been signed by all those present, on behalf of the Lady Pioneers of the district. Secretary Miss Knapp of the B.N.P.A. also presented him with the framed certificate of the Pioneers. Greetings from Cobourg and Peterborough were voiced by Messrs. Wilhoski and Sproat.

The rest of the evening was spent in song and story. Reminiscences of the lives of those hardy men were disclosed, much humorous and pathetic rot. Perhaps one of the outstanding short speeches made, dealt with a bit of humor in the French Canadian dialect of the speaker, recounting with no voluntarily, perhaps, the high esteem and faith in which the company is held by its employees. Mr. Paul Schetagne of the Kingston branch was host to his fellow guests. Then there is somethge which you forget. This Bell Telephone Company, he is good feller to work for." For a closing strike, no stand-up strike. He pay his good rent, and we all like him." Loud applause greeted Mr. Schetagne's speech. Mr. Schetagne is one of the veterans of the company having been in its service forty-eight years, and is still in harness.

Mr. A. R. Goodier of the local staff made an efficient chairman for the evening and is to be complimented on his splendid handling of the affair—Mr. Tommy Mason presided at the piano with Jack Norris leading the singing.

Dr. P. G. Goldsmith Praises Old Cold Cures

Seattle, April 3—Grandmother's mustard plasters, hot foot baths and goose grease rubs go marching on, but grandpa's cold remedy of "hair of the dog"—drew frowns here Friday at a regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

"Old remedies for colds haven't been greatly improved," Dr. Perry G. Goldsmith, of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, told the group. He said grandma's hot beef tea may have been evil—but it's a good medicine.

Dr. Milman Johnston of Portland, Ore., said Dr. Goldsmith's grandmother's views were excellent, but that grandpa's whiskey cure was harmful. "Liquor tends to produce an acid condition of the blood stream which already has too high an acid content," he said.

SYRUP VENDORS DO BRISK TRADE AT $2 A GALLON

Largest Number on Market Since Christmas Season

EGGS 20 CENTS

Butter Plentiful at 55 Cents For Two Pound Roll

The whimpering of small collie and black spaniel puppies which were being exhibited by dozens of child-ish eyes; the grey blooms of flowering Pussy Willows and the sweet scent of the maple sugar syrup with warm winds and brilliant sunshine made a perfect early real spring atmosphere this morning which brought out many shoppers in one of the largest crowds seen since the Christmas holidays.

The prophesied shortage of maple syrup was not evident here, with over a dozen vendors vieing for a briskly moving trade. The popular price for the pure syrup in small jars selling at 50 cents. Maple sugar in round cakes and oblong squares sold at 5 cents each and six for 25 cents.

Dairy produce descended on the trade market in great quantities. Perhaps most of the largest display of farmers' butter seen in many a week was here, with prices correspondingly marking a slight decline. Although the majority of vendors held out for the former price of 60 cents for two-pound rolls, plenty of the product was offered at 55 cents per pound. Eggs too were plentiful but remained steady at 20 cents for fresh laid and 17 and 18 cents for the mediums.

Fowl Not Plentiful.

Chickens were not over plentiful, and quite a number of birds sold at from 75 cents to $1.50. An inferior quality of fowl was offered at from 50 cents to 75 cents per bird. Home cooking to-days did a brisk business with some vendors selling out their supplies.

Winter apples and staple vegetables also found a ready selling offering of the outside market with the former moving well at all winter prices. Number one Spies sold at the hamper lot. A special quality Ben Davis apple was offered at 75 cents per bushel; Starks sold at $1.50, and Greenings at $1.25. Good cooking apples of all varieties were quoted at $1 the bushel.

Lovers of carrots, beets, parsnips, and onions held steady at all winter prices. Cabbage and Brussu sold well at ten cents the quart.

A crowd of small boys surrounded a cage of white rabbits and a black whimpered their delight. Two months old, the pure wees offered for sale at $2 each. A short distance away, black spaniel puppies also cried their delight at their confinement. These pups, six weeks of age, were quoted at $1.50 each. Pedigreed at $1.50 for the male of the species.

Fish dealers also found trade at 15 cents the pound, panfish at 12 cents the dozen, and whitefish and salmon at 15 cents the pound.

Patrick J. Roach Honored At Banquet by Associates

Retiring From Bell Telephone After 25 Years of Service.

GIFTS PRESENTED

Recognition of thirty-two years of faithful and efficient service was given in a tangible way last night, when members of the Bell Telephone Company representing practically all its branches paid tribute to Mr. Patrick J. Roach, who retires from active service on March 31st, at a banquet given in his honor at the Belvidere Hotel. A beautiful red upholstered easy chair and ottoman were presented to the guest of honor by his fellow-workers in Belleville while a handsome leather wallet suitably engraved with his initials was given Mr. Roach by the Bell Telephone Pioneers Association. A life membership in the Pioneers was also presented to him in the form of a beautiful framed certificate.

Over forty guests, representing the Eastern Division of the company sat down to a scrumptious repast served by after eight o'clock.

It was evident in the easy camaraderie, and good fellowship which featured the affair that Mr. Roach held a high position in the esteem of his fellow workers. And while at times during the evening of laughter and hilarity, underneath the party of the occasion was always noticeable a strong current of regret. For one of the most valued of their fellow-workers, and one whom the most of those present had known for over a score of years, was leaving the active service of one of the "Happiest Families" in the Industrial life of Canada.

Executives Join in Praise

Not only did Mr. Roach have the esteem of the men with whom he worked, but officials of the executive of the company also showed in a marked manner appreciation of the lifelong loyalty and efficiency of the man who gave him best over a period of years.

Among the representatives of outside points, were executives of the company. At the head table in the banquet room men grown grey in the service, were: Mr. Hall, Assistant Association, sat with the guest of honor. Representing the Kingston company present were: D. H. McDougall, Kingston Ontario Division Plant Superintendent; Mr. Andrew Drew, Plant Superintendent, Kingston; D. F. Hamilton, Traffic Engineer, Kingston; W. N. Welbourn, Accounting Division, Kingston; and Mr. G. W. Proctor represented the local telephone office.

Not only did the gathering take the form of a tribute to the faith and loyalty of Mr. Roach, however, but it also served as a get-together for those men of the wires. Many met and visited with old friends and reminiscences which flowed around the festive board.

Shortly after the banquet ended Mr. Jim in a splendid address to Mr. Roach, congratulated him on his record. "Any man," he said, "who can stay with the Bell Telephone Company without making an enemy for 25 years, has a record which is a credit to any man." He's a jolly good fellow" rang out in the room, when the chorus echoed an interruption to the speaker. "I am honored to do this," continued Mr. Jim, "and also to pay tribute to former associates I present this token of appreciation to you Mr. Roach with the hope that it will remind you from time to time of the happy associations you have had in the Bell Telephone Company. We wish you health, happiness and best of everything in your well earned rest."

Visibly Moved

Mr Roach, who was visibly moved by this splendid gesture on the part of his former colleagues, expressed his appreciation in the few brief words. "I can't say any more than thank you on behalf of my wife and myself," he said.

CLIFFORD BAKER GIVES BANQUET

Truck Owners And Operators Guests of Baker's Service.

Truck owners and operators were the guests of Clifford Baker of Baker's Service, distributor of Dominion Tires at a complimentary banquet held on Friday evening at the New Sidney Hotel, when more than one hundred filed into the dining room, the tables being most tastefully decorated, while the repast prepared by Mrs. Zile Ryan was all that could be desired in the culinary art. A most pretentious program was outlined in a comprehensive menu with Ernie Brown and his Flatiman Blenders of Toronto supplying the entertainment.

Before the banquet proper, a reception was held, where the various owners and operators and their families met to talk shop and advance ideas for the general betterment of the trade. Around the corridors of the hotel and on the spacious floors was placed advertising matter of a striking nature showing the advantages of the Dominion tires, and these tires were exhibited and a cross section of the tire construction. Interwoven with its fine workmanship and its undoubted quality to "stand up" to all road work, Mr. Baker, who was the official host, was quite busy with the visitors for a time and he presided as chairman of the banquet and entertainment that followed.

The head table was filled with George Parks, president of the Dominion Transportation Association of Tweedo, and E. F. Billingsworth, official of the Dominion Tire Company besides many prominent in the trade. Mr. Parkes gave the principal address, discussing at length the Provincial Commercial Vehicle Act, and many interesting points were brought out in the discussion. By the aid of lantern slides the motion picture, "Dominion Tires" was fully explained and the views were both interesting and instructive. The entertainment or floor show following which was a programme of popular numbers, stories, dancing and assemble numbers, both act and vaudeville received and the audience were loathe to have the artists leave the floor. The National Anthem closed a most pleasant evening.

LABATT TRANSPORT IS ALLEGEDLY SIDESWIPED

Side-swiped by a passing motor car, a transport truck owned and operated by the Labatt Brewing Company, was damaged to the extent of $150 when it was struck on Highway No. 2 four miles west of Belleville today. The truck driver, Robert McRae and William L. Street were uninjured, but sustained slight minor injuries and were taken to the Belleville General Hospital where they were given medical attention by Dr. J. J. Robertson. The police investigation into the accident completely wrecked and a mass of damaged metal and glass had rained down over in the ditch. The men suffered lacerations on hands and elbows when the truck left the road allowed to proceed.

The transport truck was filled with empty bottles and was proceeding westerly towards the home brewery in London at the time according to the information received by Sub-Inspector Pelrimon of Whitby, Trenton, who investigated an east-bound automobile crowded with larger cars which caused the side-swiped it in the front wheels sufficiently to veer it from its path and force the larger transport into the north ditch, where it rolled over. The matter is still under investigation by police.

7 Million Whitefish Hatched at Glenora

Seven million of whitefish are in the process of being hatched at the Glenora Fish Hatchery, near the Lake on Prince Edward County, Prince Edward County. Besides these fish, huge numbers of trout and salmon will make their way to the waters of Ontario rivers and lakes from this hatchery when they are matured to be the largest of its kind in Canada.

Bass are hatched in the Lake-of-the-Mountain, which, of course, to anglers, forms a natural hatchery. Net repairing and conditioning of the various provincial hatcheries is done at Glenora under the supervision of Clarke Barnhart, manager of the hatchery. Nets will be sent out in the near future to Manitoulin Island where they will be used for the collection of pickerel eggs.

POLICE BLOTTER

While on patrol throughout the city late last night in the police patrol a police call broadcast over radio station CJH, Belleville Police Department, received by the car being driven directly to the Tweed Milling Company by investigators reports of suspicious persons being heard in that vicinity.

Although the officers in charge scoured the surrounding community, no signs of suspicious persons were found and everything was reported to be quiet and serene.

Kingston police asked assistance in the recovery of a 1934 Ford coach stolen in that city last night. The license plate number was not provided, however.

W. E. Lunan, 179 Dundas street, reported the theft of his license to local authorities late last night. The matter is still being investigated, it is believed the coat was taken by mistake from a local hotel.

Snake Snoozed Away Snowy Season But Now Suffering from Spring Fever

Leamington, Ont., April 3—(CP) summer—and, incidentally, a little Oscar the snake, who snoozed away the snowy season in Sam Wallace's truck, is suffering from spring fever. That's a sure sign winter has waned.

The two-foot garter snake has been riding about in the cab seldom peeking of Leamington man's truck for nigh onto three months. Only a few days ago Oscar emerged from his winter bed, decided he'd like a bite to eat, and quietly perished with cold.

Sam brought his find to Leamington, where he has been on a diet all these months and has turned up his nose at attempts to feed him.

Oscar finally won't come back when he does make up his mind to "get up," according to Sam, who found the pet in a Dover Township woodpile in January, curled up and nearly perished with cold.

Sam brought his find to Leamington where he has been on a diet of juicy pieces of steak. But it was no dice.

Next day Sam took the snake to work and placed it on a cushion in the cab of the truck. Oscar immediately went to sleep.

Sam thinks it won't be long before lively weather has worked into his ophidian pal comes out for the padding.

LONDON EXPECTS TO BUBBLE OVER FOR CORONATION

By MARSH W. PETERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, April 3.—(AP)—London is planning so much Coronation gayety the famous old chimney pots are likely to bubble. The city of "The King, the King, God bless him," will be the busiest throughout London, its night-long revelry. It is estimated that at least 200,000 extra barrels of beer will be required for this toasting of the King's health.

The street crowding the night of May 13 is expected to surpass anything before realised. West End restaurants have been preparing for weeks. Several new ones have opened. Special supper-cabaret programs have been devised; special menus prepared. Dedding a table May 12 is going to be difficult.

There is a police campaign at the same time to "clean up" London before the coronation. Shady haunts are being rounded up. Noisy parties clubs, where drinking can continue all night, are being watched closely. These clubs, which sign up members and dispense liquor by the bottle, are outside the licensing law's scope. Extension of licensed drinking hours to 2 a.m. and 1 a.m. for restaurants, meanwhile, is being urged.

Also open to the public will be such entertainments as a coronation costume ball at Royal Albert Hall May 13. There will be processions and pageantry and the court of Queen Elizabeth will be represented by descendants of courtiers of those days.

Prominent hotel and hostesses are co-operating with the Overseas League and the various empire societies in providing entertainment for overseas visitors.

Ocean liners moored in the Thames, will cut their own brilliant lighting pattern at night, and give further scope for private parties and celebrations. Hotels will be packed to overflowing. London has 12,000 bedrooms in first-class hotels and 200,000 bedrooms in smaller hotels and boarding houses. Special trains to be run on overnight basis will ring the city.

As varied a selection of visitors who will see in this gayety would not be difficult to find. "There will be Indian potentates and scarlet-clad Canadian Mounted police, Australian soldiers in wide-brimmed campaign hats and kilted Highlanders. In the efforts to do and so see, the Strat side will rub shoulders with Mayfair.

Regalia On Show After Crowning

London, April 3—(CP)—Royal standards for the town of Bradford, for the navy and the yeomanry are being displayed in the King's colors and a new standard of the household cavalry are among orders underway at the Royal School of Needlework. The directress of the school, Lady Smith-Dorrien, said they had rarely been so busy before.

As it seemed a pity the general public should not get more than a fleeting glimpse of all the intricate handiwork on Coronation robes, it has been decided to hold an exhibition of the royal robes and other needlework connected with after the ceremony, together with those from past coronations, which are now lost by corners and museums.

The work is being done in the Royal Needlework School and will be open for several weeks.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
CONFIDENCES

Judy threw her arms about Dolly. Impressively, Dolly stiffened. Judy drew her to the side and laid her head the luxurious compartment.

"I'm the most selfish girl in the world, Dolly. All day long you've been rushing about waiting on me and doing things for me and now you look simply dead. Here, let me do it. There's what you did for me. She realized for Dolly's hat and tried to help her with her coat.

"I'm all right, Judy. You might pour me a very short picker-upper."

Dolly threw herself back on the pillows and watched the younger girl with speculative eyes. Was Judy as innocent and simple as she appeared to be? Her weary brain tried to find the answers to many questions that burned into it. Why was Terry doing this? Which of his parting lines had he meant, that he might marry her, Dolly, or that he might marry Judy for the cause he had said.

Dolly slipped her coat now, fixing the hat aside and pressed her finger tip against her burning eyeballs. Then she smiled. It was hard to be emotional when a woman was as tired as she was. Nevertheless, she meant to know right now. She sat up as the train began to move.

"Judy, sit down here, honey and let's have a heart to heart talk. In a few a minutes, Grover or Rufus or whatever his name is will be in to fix up this place and a . . ."

Judy clasped her hands like a child before a Christmas tree. Even her extreme fatigue could not deny the excitement from her voice:

"All this is like a dream. I always thought that on a train one slept on an upper or lower berth! . . . but this . . . oh, this is magnificent. A real bed and a dressing-table and . . ."

"One would think you were never on a train before, Judy. . How did you get to New York?"

"Oh, I came on a train, Judy said, "I came in a day coach."

"You mean you sat up three nights!" Dolly collapsed, aghast. She thought.

"Certainly, but . didn't mind. I had only a little money and I was afraid my cousin wouldn't be in New York and she wasn't. So it's a good thing I did save something." Judy sat curled up at the foot of the soft bed.

"What did you do when you arrived and found your cousin was not here?" Dolly demanded.

"I went to see a minister who used to be our home and he sent me to the Y. W. C. A. and I lived there while I had a job. Then when I knew I couldn't afford to live so expensively I went down to the Y. M. C. A. and got a room for myself."

"Live so expensively!" Dolly murmured to herself. Aloud:

"Judy, it seems that we are going to be closer than the Siamese twins and we might as well get a lot of things straightened out."

Dolly waited for Judy to say something, Judy was silent; she did not know what Dolly was getting at.

Dolly continued:

"I mean to say that I don't know anything about you except that Terry, brought you to me," Judy opened her mouth but she said nothing— . . . and I liked you and I still like you. I guess everyone will. There's something so helpless about you. You look as though the whole word had given you a bad deal. It's a gift. A terribly dangerous one. Men will do to that one think they're gallant knights. . . ."

"But Dolly-please . . ." Judy was visibly worried. "I wouldn't have allowed you to do all you have for me if I'd known. I'll pay you back that . . ."

"Don't say it. And don't get the idea that I'm not glad to be here. I am and I'm sorry if I'm upsetting you. There are just two things I want to know and one thing I've got to know."

"Go on," Judy's voice was hardly audible.

"One of the things I'd like to know is, how did you get mixed up in the Talbot divorce case?"

Judy jumped to her feet. Her eyes blazed. She would never talk about that to anyone. John Talbot had been good to her and she only way she could reward him was to keep her mouth shut for all time and she'd do it.

"Dolly, you and Terry have been wonderful to me. I like you both. I'll do anything you say but as long as I live I will not tell you about that except to say that it was all a mistake. I was not Mr. Talbot—I was not what the newspapers said about me."

took a long sip of her drink again and the rest of her drink again said:

"Okay little one, keep your negligee on. We won't discuss it and besides I believe you. That disposes of question one. . . . The second is more important to me—" Dolly did not go on until Judy had stopped her pacing of the tiny compartment.

"I guess I'm just a fool," Judy said at last, "but I just can't talk about that without losing my head. You see, Dolly, I was living in Mr. Talbot's apartment when that all happened and I feel that I'm responsible and I . . . well, I like him."

"I see." Dolly saw more than Judy knew, "but to go back to my own question, how do you feel about Terry?"

"I think he's grand." There was sincerity in Judy's voice and nothing else. Dolly noted that and some of the leaden heaviness left her chest.

Her tone was elaborately casual when next she spoke.

"Terry's doing a lot for you. He's doing it because he gets something out of it, too—"

"He told me. That's the only reason I'm letting him —and you—be so good to me . . ."

"You know there's more truth than fiction in the situation where Terry saved drowning girl falls in love with the lifeguard."

"I know he's fond of me," Judy went to fall in love with Terry."

"I don't want you to," Dolly assured Judy, her eyes with fervor. "Terry's terribly attractive and so are you, but your relative positions have all the elements of proptiquity."

"Dolly," Judy waited for the other girl to look at her—"you're in love with Terry aren't you?"

Surprisingly enough Dolly burst into tears. Judy held her tightly in her arms and soothed her with little phrases.

"I knew it as soon as I saw you and I knew from the way that Terry talked about you that he thinks you're the most wonderful girl in the world. And I know how you feel because I'm in love too."

That brought Dolly about to search Judy's face.

"I'm in love with a boy back home. Oh, Dolly, if I could only see him!"

Fatigue dropped from Dolly as easily as her coat had done. The world was all right again and she might have been 18 instead of twice that age when she sat up cross-legged and demanded:

"Tell me all about him, honey."

"There isn't much to tell you. His name is Larry . . . Lars Johnson. He's six feet, has yellow hair and . . ."

"Did he make love to you under the Wabash moon or something?"

"No." Judy's voice was hesitating. "He's not so good at talking but he's always been my beau and I adore him."

"I'll bet he adores you," Dolly added.

"Larry doesn't adore anything but aeroplanes and the hum of a motor is music to him. He works at the airport in the summer and he's learned to fly and he wants to be a great aviator . . ." Judy was enthusiastic but a yawn stopped her story.

"You'll be able to buy him an aeroplane pretty soon if Terry will take my advice, you'll find yourself a millionaire," Dolly tried to joke with. An aviator's life in the air! At the expression on Judy's face brought a pang to Dolly's heart—Never mind, darling, you can have your aviator. You have to buy him along with the plane to make you happy."

Dolly dismissed the thought from her mind. Judy would forget that moment. But Judy didn't and all the forces of popularity and powers that to be piled together in the moment of love that Dolly and Terry had forgotten.

CHAPTER NINETEEN A MEETING

As the Florida Special roared through the first night of that journey Dolly and Judy fell into a fast and dreamless sleep. Worn with the strain and misery of the weeks behind her, she gave herself over to the blessed healing delight of utter rest. She knew nothing when Dolly insisted that she have a cocktail in the compartment. She passed idle hours watching, with her great eyes, the changing panorama of the country they passed through. She lolled on her pillows and gloated through Dolly's magazines Terry had bought for her. Dolly did not rest. Scarcely grossed, she was to be found in the dining car at all mealtimes. She graciously accepted an invitation to bridge in the recreation car. Her sparkling conversation added much to little groups. She let it be known —with a faint air of mystery— that she was travelling with a very distinguished person. In subtle ways she hinted that he was a diplomat.

And at the last luncheon before the train arrived at Palm Beach she produced Judy. Judy, fresh and lovely from her rest. Judy in a slim frock of blue Scotland wool, a great childish bow of white at the throat and a small hat of white piqué on her golden curls.

Dolly bowed coolly to those of her acquaintances she had made and who started now with frank curiosity. She did not introduce them to Judy. She warned the girl that a battery of cameras would greet them when they left the train. As the familiar look of terror rose in Judy's eyes, Dolly glibly explained that it was the usual thing since there were so many distinguished guests arriving on the Florida Special. She assured Judy that she would not be recognized and respected that the Talbot case was no longer news.

Prepared for such a reception, it was no shock to the younger girl. She waited patiently while Dolly talked to the camera men and allowed herself to be led about as though she were a child.

And last but not least for two weeks was precisely what Dolly did. It was two weeks of delicious dreams for Judy. She lived like a princess in residence at the most fashionable hotel. She ate delicious foods. She lay for hours on warm sands. She swam in the sparkling blue waters. She wore beautiful clothes. She grew accustomed to the looks that followed her on all sides. She grew accustomed to the camera men who rose up seemingly from everywhere and posed her in her brief wabbie bathing suit and brought the color of the pinafore frocks as she was mounting the bicycle Dolly had hired for her.

If there was any thought in her head, it was like the life she was leading, vague but beautiful. When she got back to New York there would be the theatre and the play waiting for her. Dolly refused to allow her to talk about Terry. And after that one scene on the train, Dolly didn't seem to be interested in hearing about Larry either. Judy wanted to send one of the pictures to Larry but she knew that she had permission because she had given Terry her promise that she would not look at a newspaper or magazine unless he told her he might.

The girl was content with the strange beauty and simple routine of that fortnight. She was neither bored nor enthusiastic with the few luncheon parties or the occasional afternoon cocktail she and Dolly shared with others.

It was enough for her to sit under the stars alone with Dolly and listen to the music. When she was told to trot along to bed she trotted as though she were six and Dolly, her governess.

It is surprising but true that through she was the center of a well conceived scheme, a storm centre in Palm Beach social circles, she knew nothing of it. She never knew the scene that had ensued when Mrs. John Talbot had called the infamous Judy James was staying at her hotel. She left immediately accompanied by her prince, her maids, chauffeur and all complete pieces of luggage and dogs.

Judy never knew of the daily telegrams from Terry to Dolly or that the papers were full of her picture hinting alive the most sensational divorce story to break in her time. She couldn't have dreamed of the noble sacrifice Dolly had with searing reluctance told her acquaintances. Dolly said, of course, they had no idea. Mrs. Talbot was at Palm Beach when they came and she let it be known that they were going to Havana when they got word from an important person.

All Palm Beach knew who the important person was. John Talbot was staying at the Nacional. His yacht lay in the harbor at Havana. Cabanas and cocktail bars buzzed with the news. So did the newspapers and so did the telegraph wires with Terry's further instructions to Dolly.

Then came the long-distance call from Terry!

"Start at once for Havana," he ordered Dolly, "and plan to remain no longer than three days. He's there! Go directly to the National Hotel. Register under your own name."

"What shall I tell Judy?" Dolly pleaded.

"Tell her that having gone so far south, we must have the experience of flying to Havana. Tell her it's your turn to come down. Think up something but get going."

Dolly tried the first excuse. It would be a shame not to see Havana or to have the experience of flying over. It might be years before they'd ever get another chance. It was all right with Judy. She was willing Tribby to Dolly's unwilling Svengali.

It was just another part of the dream of beautiful scenes and luxury. Judy loved the flight and Havana dazzled her. She would like to have stayed there all her life.

In Havana, Dolly changed her tactics. No longer did they stay in the privacy of their own rooms. No longer did they seek the least conspicuous table. They were out early and late. Dolly met people she knew. The two girls joined them at the races, at the smartest gathering places.

They had been there three days and Judy was beginning to tire of the pace. They would be starting back to New York at any moment. Dolly had her and Judy was eagerly anticipating the trip by boat. She was anxious to get back to the play. Her heart did somersaults when she thought of the play. What if she couldn't do it! What if all this wonder came to an end! Fiercely, she determined she would do it and made silent prayers that her good friends had not been wrong in believing in her.

Judy studied Dolly's face, looked tired and worn. She seemed to be under a strain. Judy noticed that Dolly seemed always to be looking for someone.

They were having late tea. They were alone for the first time that day.

"Dolly, I'm worried about you." Judy told her. "I'll be glad when we get home. It's been grand but I think . . . . well, I'm actually sure I have been sacrificing yourself for me. I know I'm tired and you. . . ."

"Are you?" Dolly's voice was dis-trait. She ought to send a wire to Terry. 'Look here, child, we've nothing to do until eight o'clock. Run along upstairs and get yourself a nap. I . . . I want to send a wire to my broker."

Dolly rose and walked to the verandah with Judy, watched the slim figure walk to the elevators and strode off toward the telegraph desk.

STOP GUESSING

"Stop guessing. The real driver knows the answers" is the title of a booklet issued by the Accident Recording Division of the Motor Vehicles Branch, Department of Highways of Ontario, conveying suggestions for added enjoyment in driving of motorcars, and calculated to diminish the present tremendous waste of life, health and property from motor vehicle accidents.

There are twenty-two questions with answers on very important rules of the road.

Then there are other questions which make very clear what is the real nature of highway accidents. For instance it is pointed out that the greatest number of deats is caused in the type of collisions, of a car with a pedestrian. That while most accidents occur at street intersections, most of the fatal accidents occur between blocks, so that which means that the driver must keep the car under control at all times.

No one can be considered a real driver unless his traffic habits include care, courage and common sense as fundamentals for safety.

"If you drive, don't drink. If you drink, don't drive" is one of the sane pieces of advice.

"Do you know that motor accidents cost the citizens of Ontario about $25,000,000 a year?"

"That about 550 persons are killed and over 10,000 injured—many of them permanently disabled or disfigured?"

"That most accidents are caused either because the driver did not see or anticipate what was comnig or because he saw what was coming but too late to do anything about it?"

"That tire blow-outs and traffic officers should not be your only matters of concern when driving at high speed?"

"That people get into accidents, not because they want to, but because they don't try hard enough to keep out of accidents?"

"That it is the minor mistakes which cause most of the major accidents?"

"That driving is not a right but a privilege which can be revoked for any good reason?"

"That the force of impact with a fixed object at 40 miles an hour is the same as if the car had fallen from the top of a four-storey building?"

"That if you think you drive as well or better after drinking you are deceiving yourself?"

"That pedestrians frequently 'jay-walk' but that death or serious injury should not be the penalty for this offence?"

"That it is not sufficient to tell children to 'look out'? They should be taught the proper way to use the streets."

SILVER JUBILEE EDITION

The Sault Daily Star recently issued an excellent special edition in honor of its silver jubilee.

J. W. Curran, editorial publisher, tells of his association with the Star since 1901 when it was still a weekly. It is natural too that he should devote an entire article to the wolf under the three-column heading "Wolf is a Timid Animal; Never Attacked Anybody." His knowledge of the wolf he has used to good stead in countless articles and debates.

The anniversary edition naturally gives a great deal of attention to the growth of Sault Ste. Marie and the district surround it.

In the district coverage the edition gives place to the mineral wealth of this part of Ontario. The amount of capital invested in Algoma farms is placed at $6,746,365.

M. W. Arnott points out that Algoma was the birthplace of mining in Ontario. Copper was mined as far back as 1778, according to old records. Even on the arrival of Jacques Cartier in Canada 400 years ago he was presented by Indians with copper, which is believed to have been collected from the copper-bearing deposits of Batchawana or Manitoulne. The article says that the Indians used primitive mining and knew how to use heat and cold in shattering rocks and probably used this method in breaking large slabs of rock to get at the native copper. Earliest records of exploration for metals go back to 1767. Today copper mining has been almost forgotten in Algoma but there have been recent discoveries of native copper.

The Algoma pyrites deposits are the greatest in America, it is said.

The large edition is a competent and enterprising survey of the development of that city as the centre of an area of great importance.

HARBINGER OF SPRING

A dinosaur is nesting
In the lot across from me.
It's clawing out the ice and earth
And has rooted up a tree.

I heard it clank and gobble
As it crawled up the street,
And I knew that it was searching
For a dinosaur retreat.

A scrawny neck of iron,
A clumsy yellow frame,
Steel jaws adrip with boulders,
It looked anything but tame.

Dismayed I watched its coming;
I prayed that it would pass;
I pointed to a frozen sign
That says: "Keep Off the Grass."

Yet there it squatted in the snow
And digs, where violets grew,
A nest for an apartment house
That will cut off my view.

MOHAIR RANCHERS IN TEXAS are having one of the greatest years in the history of their business. Prices have advanced from fifty to seventy-five cents per pound for grown hair and 60 to 80 cents for kid hair. Ranges are in excellent condition, with streams full of water and grasses higher than usual. It is estimated that the total tonnage of mohair in the United States this year will be about 16,500,000 pounds. Of this amount Texas will produce about 13,700,000, which will bring more than $8,000,000 to growers at an average of 60c a pound. Many herds of mohair goats are grazed in the Texas hill country.

NEW YORK CITY IS SURE TO BE CIRCUS MINDED THIS SEASON, with Clyde Beatty and Cole Bros. Circus at the Hippodrome and Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey opening next week at Madison Square Garden, by which time it is hoped to have all hockey games concluded. According to the New York Times "Dexter Fellows, chief of the Department of Understatement of the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus, arrived in town yesterday (Monday) to herald the approach of what he fondly describes as "The Greatest Show on Earth." The Ringling circus opens at Madison Square Garden Thursday evening, April 8 for a run of nine consecutive days. The circus trains will arrive in Jersey City Saturday night from winter quarters at Sarasota, Florida, and the parade to Madison Square Garden is scheduled for noon Sunday. Dexter Fellows, the world's greatest publicity expert, announces the engagement of the Illinois High School giant, Robert Wadlow, 19 years old, 8 feet, 7 inches in height and weighing 475—some lump of a lad. Another new attraction is billed as Maria Rasputin, daughter of the "Mad Monk" of the Czarist regime in Russia, with her trained horses. The spectacle this season will be a processional pageant depicting India in its most glamorous, and gorgeous moments, with 2,000 persons and animals participating. "Why," said Mr. Fellows, "the Durbar of Delhi was child's play compared to it."

AN AUTHOR'S STORY

My agent telephoned me in great excitement: "Sold the rights to your book in Germany, England, France and Sweden!" "Great" said I. "I get ten cents a book?" "Yes—but the publisher gets five." "Fine!" "I get five cents?" "Yes, but the translator gets two." "All right, I'll settle for three." "Ah, but the agent gets two." "Good! I still make a cent." "There's a tax, you know." "Well, what do I get out of it?" It's a great honor, you know, and it won't cost you more than ten cents a copy."

Parliament Hill Hears

By Wilfrid Eggleston

A feature of this session has been the outspoken criticism of the government from within its own ranks.

There are the makings of four or five insurgent groups in the Liberal party. Some of the members have been talking as independently in the House as in caucus. Either the 'party whip' has lost some of its effectiveness, or a new breed of sturdy members has arrived.

If all the 'rebels' were united on any one principle, they would form a dangerous threat to party solidity. But it is a different group that arties each time. One rebel group violently condemns and cancels out another rebel group.

If it's monetary doctrine, the insurgent leaders are Tucker of Rosthern and McGeer of Vancouver-Mainford and others. They appreciate the direction in which the government is moving, but they are frankly critical of the speed, both in private and in public.

If it's defence, there is J. T. Thorson of Selkirk and eight of nine French-Canadians.

On the United Kingdom agreement, there was W. H. Moore, former chairman of the Tariff Board, who both spoke and voted against it.

Independents on general principles include Jean Francois Pouliot and A. W. Neill.

For a sample of plain speaking from a Liberal to his own party, made in the House with Galleries well filled and Hansard taking it all down, there has been nothing more candid than the remarks of Neill of Comox-Alberni on the sock-ery and moon convention.

Mr. Neill scored in trenchant terms "the ever-growing custom in this house, not under this government alone, but under preceding governments as well, of proceeding in slimplace almost all the policy and influence of the ordinary common members of parliament in government by cabinet rather than by parliament.

"We hear a lot about the common man, the man in the street, the forgotten man. I think caucus should be a movement in this house to prevent the right and privilege of the man who represents the common man — that is, the ordinary member of caucus from ..... being ..... .

"Twelve men on the government side and about eight on this side (Mr. Neill sits with the 'overflow' Liberals or Young) is the last of the democratic control the policy of this house — The rest of us ..... are mere puppets, members chessmen on the chess board of political history ....."

Parliament Hill figured prominently in the cultural life of Ottawa this season. Within a period of ten days Percival Price, Dominion carillonneur, directed and conducted 'Orpheus and Eurdyce' in the Little Theatre at Ottawa; a play by Lourigny de Montigny, chief translator of the Senate, was performed at the same place ("Les Boules de Neige" or Snowballs); and a play by Lloyd Roberts of the parliamentary press gallery was staged at the Glebe Collegiate Hall ("Let's Pretend").

"Shower distressing may be the rash radicalism of British Columbia. I doubt if its position is not relatively better than that of the indifferent East."

Anyone who thinks that the Pacific Coast province has recently secured a reputation for radicalism, or Ottawa its reputation for indifference, would be startled to learn that the above sentence is drawn from a letter written to Mackenzie King, then deputy minister of Labour, on November 13th, 1901, by Henry Albert Harper, the associate editor of the Labour Gazette, and Mackenzie King's intimate friend who was drowned in the Ottawa river only a month later attempting to save a companion from death in the icy water.

Mackenzie King was out at the coast at the time attempting to settle a Labour dispute in Lethbridge, whose deed inspired the fine bronze figure of Sir Galahad which all people pass on their way from Sparks Street up to the Parliament Buildings, and had previously been a member of the Press Gallery.

30 YEARS AGO

April 3rd., 1907.

Milk has been reduced in price in this city to 5 cents per quart. Cheer up! — the days are fast fading.

It is said that at the coming summer minstrel performance George Dulmage will spring a joke which made Job laugh so heartily that he forgot all his boils. It must be funny.

What about a little sport this summer? Why not get a team to take up the good work and help to organize baseball and lacrosse teams? The material for both is here; all that is needed is for somebody to get busy and start things along.

Prince Albert in the Air Force (H. GIFT) and in the Army

Today we present his majesty as an officer in the Royal Air Force, as well as in the uniform of an active officer during the war years.

Though the then Prince Albert entered the flying arm of the fighting forces only after ill-health forced him from the sea he had come to love, no more enthusiastic recruit ever sought his "wings".

In February of 1918, with the struggle in France still dragging on but with mighty strides taking place in the development of aviation, Prince Albert became a "dickman" recruit. Perhaps to rid themselves of the persistent attentions of royalty, since the navy was barred to him after his serious operation of 1917, the high command assigned the prince to the royal navy air station at Cranwell where he was to learn something about the flying arm of the navy in which he once had served.

He welcomed the opportunity to again be working among men who knew the navy and its heritage, even if their interests were in different spheres, but with the strict excess of war the naval flying branch was soon amalgamated with the army wing. the royal flying corps, to become the Royal Air Force. Prince Albert moved into the R. A. F. with the rank of captain. The war was soon to end, but before the armistice was signed, the flying prince had completed his training, was also the navy was barred to him after his serious operation of 1917. the high command assigned the prince to the royal navy air station at Cranwell where he was to learn something about the flying arm of the navy in which he once had served.

He welcomed the opportunity to again be working among men who knew the navy and its heritage, even if their interests were in different spheres, but with the strictness

BRITAIN PLANS RADIANT WEEKS WITH CORONATION

By THOMAS J. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 3—(CP)—With all the age-old ritual traditions, old London cannot produce a precedent for a season of the brilliance predicted for the coming Coronation summer.

Centering on the ceremonies of May 12 is a program that will bring thousands of leaders of fashion and culture from almost every corner of the earth. The King and Queen will hold their first court May 5. This marks the opening of the high social calendar, which will run right to July 23 when the King and Queen give a garden party at Buckingham Palace.

Among noteworthy royal engagements during this period are:

May 11, Presentation to the sovereign of addresses by the prime ministers of the Dominions, chief representatives of India and of the Colonies. The King will hold a luncheon party at Buckingham Palace for the representatives of the British Commonwealth.

July 1, Court at the Palace.

The King and Queen will be residing at Holyrood, Edinburgh, July 5-12 when the Scottish capital will embark upon a week of such social brilliance as it has not witnessed for many years. For two days after the Scottish visit their Majesties will be among the people of Wales, visiting Windsor en route.

In addition to the royal garden parties the Archbishop of Canterbury is holding one at Lambeth Palace, and many owners of lordly houses purpose making similar entertainment for their personal friends and visitor ascend after.

Society leaders of London have for months been engaged in preparations for the entertainment of friends in this summer of Coronation balls and dinner parties, literally by the score, both on the large scale and in the more intimate, more brilliant type, will take place nightly in London and suburbs. Some of the hotels have all their accommodation already engaged for such functions.

A movement which has started under the banner of business aims at providing hospitality for overseas visitors apart from the various receptions and other official entertainments. The City Guest Committee, of what is known as the welcome committee of the Overseas League, and which is associated with her are the Countess of Plymouth, Lady Annaly and Lady Limerick-Toffen. Offers have been received from many quarters to organize luncheon and dinner parties of six or eight people, of whom some three or four would be from overseas, thus enabling some interesting personal contacts to be established.

DUKE'S TERRIER IN TROUBLE AGAIN

Shepherd Dogs Take Advantage of Absence of Owner

St. Wolfgang, Austria, April 3 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth of Windsor having trouble again protecting his dog.

He returned to his lakeside retreat after a six mile walk yesterday but in time to find that his new Cairn terrier, "Schnookie", Two German shepherd dogs were getting the best of the small dog.

But it was an old story to the Duke, who had to send his first Cairn, Dippers, back to England after Dandy de Rothschild's dogs chowed him up during the stay at Rhasedol.

The Duke drove to St. Ohlgen, dismissed his car and walked home today, exchanging the customary "God bless you" with his Austrian neighbors.

A grey riding coat, grey knickers, white socks and blue turtle-neck sweater comprised the Duke's hiking costume.

POTTERIES STILL CROWN EDWARD

London, April 3—(CP)—Three months ago British manufacturers caught by the alchinism with huge stocks of Edward VIII Coronation souvenirs, were bemoaning their expected crippling losses.

Now most of them are smiling. The demand for Edward souvenirs from all parts of the world has been so persistent some have already assumed a worthy value.

For example, one firm made a limited edition of 1,000 china loving-cups stamped with the head of King Edward and the legend, "Edward VIII, 12th May," were sold at approximately $12 each. All were disposed of a few days after the abdication and the firm has since been offered as much as $50 each. In the potteries in Birmingham and London, there are factories still turning out orders for Edward VIII souvenirs.

The Birmingham Jewellers' and Silversmiths' Association spokesman for most of the firms, which have been manufacturing millions of medals, cigarette cases, spoons and souvenirs of Edward VIII, have announced that Edward VIII stocks have been completely cleared.

Pictures of Edward in coronation robes are also bringing fancy prices in London.

SAYS DOCTORS STARVE

Lahore, India—(CP)—"It is a well-known fact that 90 per cent of doctors in private practice in the Punjab are starving," President R. R. Chaudry told the Lahore session of the Indian Medical Association.

"I gained 10 pounds .. and everybody says my complexion is really grand!"

MANY young girls shoot up in height, but stay as thin as a rail. Miss Mary B—— was like that until recently. She says:

"I was awfully tall and thin for my age so Mother got me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and now I have gained about 10 lbs. And everybody says my complexion is really grand."

When young people are growing, or when adults are underweight, nature must have the proper materials or the body won't gain a pound. Very often the whole body building material required is iron. As soon as Mary B—— began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, she gained in weight and in health. Her energy also increased, provided the iron she needed. Note how her complexion improved, too!

If you are too thin or if you are rundown, nervous, have no pep and get no zest in your work, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They will build up your health and build up your body; give you back your pep and good spirits. And this better health will be reflected in a clearer, rosier complexion. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are 50c everywhere.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly for a month at least. Then, better, stronger and healthier, your money will be back in full.

YES, THIS FOOD ENDS YOUR CONSTIPATION

Look out for those half-sick days, when you feel listless, headachy, out-of-sorts! Trouble may be constipation. The real cause of common constipation is too little "bulk" in meals. Your system misses its regular exercise.

Get this right! "Bulk" in a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls, in "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently stimulates the system.

Why keep on feeling bad when you can feel good? Millions of people use ALL-BRAN. Tests prove it's safe and effective. ALL-BRAN is delicious. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into recipes. Remember, ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Certainly you'd rather eat a food than take pills and drugs. Eat ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London.

THE DRAMA

"There's A Man in the House" Presented by Tabernacle Mission Circle

Members of the Mission Circle of Tabernacle United Church presented an evening of hilarious entertainment last night when they presented their play "There's a Man in the House" in the church parlor. This refreshing comedy was a success from the opening scene, as amusing as the dialogue was the capable the actresses who took part. The evening was one of delightful entertainment and the cast, together with their efficient director, Leona Bailey, are to be congratulated on the fine performance given.

"There's A Man in the House" concerns the strong dislike Miss Selina Slocomb has for the opposite sex and the complications which arise when a male guest enters the household. The part of this eccentric old lady was taken by Lou Gordon who was perfect as always in character, and always convincing. The two young girls of Miss Slocomb's home, her niece Peg and a visitor Ida, naturally resent Miss Slocomb's attitude and Ida's romance with her ideal, Dick, and Peg's interest in a mysterious stranger who spends the night in the Slocomb home causes many amusing moments. Edith Stirk as Peg and Myra Irvine as Ida, portrayed their parts well, Miss Irvine being very sympathetic and appealing and Myra, petite and flippant, as the parts demanded.

It remains for the Featherbone family to be complimented on the hilarity of the evening. Arabella Featherbone had in the Slocomb home, had a flair for improvising stories at random, helped out by the romantic novels she read and Arabella did a thorough job of providing an alibi when the mysterious stranger is accused of murdering the village miser. Loretta Stark was Arabella and proved herself an excellent comedienne.

Professore Featherbone, Arabella's mother, enjoyed the reputation of being the village newspaperman, and her visits to Arabella's home provided her with sufficient material to keep her busy for hours. A murder in the village kept Prudence completely occupied. The part of this good natured, kindly woman was very well taken by Rachel Fox. Her encounters with Miss Slocomb were very spirited and funny.

Mrs. Pengley and her daughters Angelina and Stella added to the general amusement of the play. Mrs. Pengley was Penelope's first friendship, and her daughters merely resolved in jovial, chorus style, the big ends of their mother's conversations. The parts were taken by Mae Edmondson, Thelma Hodges and Emma Dafoe, who gave realistic characterizations. Marion Morseville as Mary Markel, the detective sent for in desperation by Peg as the mysterious stranger and Dick seem to be suspected in the crime, played her part well, and gave a good portrayal of a book agent when she is trying to disguise her identity. The play ends very happily, with Miss Slocomb revising her less Victorian ideas and welcoming the girls' friends to the house.

Between acts Joan and Betty Shorey delighted the audience with their songs, in harmony, and piano numbers.

Her charming personality and artistic attainments surpass the limitations of verbal description. For certain reasons her name cannot appear in this article, but the writer will supply it personally on request. Fashions Spring 1937

The Fashion Theme of the Spring of 1937 is the most romantic and feminine story we have scanned for a long time; it is none other than a realization of a gracious lady era. Femininity has become more poised and charming, all of which should be duly regarded in terms of the so-called stronger sex. Mother's canned girl's lip and make it more beautiful, but Art can make a beautiful woman, still more beautiful. Read the following lines over and over again.

Paris Openings 1937

The Paris openings of 1937 place stress emphatically on color and accent. The silhouette has thrust aside all unnecessary exaggerations and colors are being used usually only having padding or manipulated tucking to give a widened trimmed appearance.

The waistline is the most important part of our silhouette, and is exquisitely slender. Skirts are shorter and either softly flared or gracefully slim with a boxy bolero or jacket.

Suits are softly tailored and usually have soft fluffy neckwear or jabots. Sometimes it is just a blouse with either boutonnieres of fruit or flowers or an amusing pin on the lapel of the suit.

Coats look new with flaring skirts, softer detail, elegant furs and with a return to the costume coat.

Accessories

Handbags nearly always will have top handles; while jewellery is assuming and more bulky.

Millinery

The millioners of Paris have become 'Mad Hatters' again, but their creations worn correctly are adorable. Suzy, Agnes and Talbot have given up everything from the trim little sailor to the most romantic hats adorned with veils, flowers, butterflies or birds.

At all times you will be gay and colorful, but never forget that colored accessories should be worn in pairs or triplets, never more, for example with a navy blue costume you would keep all your accessories in navy blue except yellow gloves or a yellow hat, yellow belt and perhaps a yellow flower.

Evening Silhouette

How lovely and romantic you will look in evening silhouette! Imagine yourself in wakis dresses of lace, tulle or net or in swinging bouffante Second Empire skirts of taffeta or chiffon or even as a gipsy with Roman stripe dresses in silk or fon or as the season advances in cotton.

Conclusion

In conclusion remember that black and navy are always classics, and to begin your Spring wardrobe use either of these basic shades and spice it with color.

Color accents are to be understood and employed for the purpose of obtaining CLEAR CONTRAST effects, for example, with beige (an important color for Spring) use black, navy, carnelian or Kelly accents. Never, Never, have a complete beige ensemble with beige accessories; it would be absurdly monotonous.

The above information concerning this Spring's fashions has been gathered from Paris, London and New York. Only such fashion highlights have been adopted as will fit into our mode of living in Canada.

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

Your Garden

Even the tiniest garden can contain a measure of beauty and comfort so long as you've a little grass, and a few shrubs. Just spread the color on with a lavish hand—some artificial and some natural—by nature. Even if the family's back yard of limited scope that the big city dweller proudly calls a garden, the little plot can be a garden spot.

Of course, nature's the big provider. And she's right for most of us. Choose just those plants that grow best in your locality—and you'll have a garden for the most formal and sumptuous of parties, or for the simple, quiet hour or night attended only by a couple of friends.

And of course there's that other necessity—a rustic or set piece of furniture to sit and watch things grow. An old wicker chair comes to mind with those flower pots with colored waterproof cushions. And there's a rustic bench on fresh ground sentiency. A grand way to repaint wicker furniture is to dip it in wet Pik gun with enamel and then sprinkle it with powdered bronze. Another popular hue of the wicker is a deep blue. Rustic furniture will last many, many years if you give it a coat. Choose the ever-popular white for your garden furniture. It makes a cool effect. Next, an old table and a few comfortable chairs, preferably of the wicker variety, and you're all set for a delightful evening.

Flowers, of course, are the thing for you can make a perfectly grand cool the table out of an old wheelbarrow. You can paint it white and then paint the wheels body one bright color and the wheels another. Or paint the whole body one bright color and the wheels another. Or paint the whole body one bright color and the wheels another. It's so attractive a piece of garden furniture as you could find for the shops. Have it filled with flowers and stroll around with your friends admiring your handiwork. Then a brother and comes forth an admiring remark, and you feel as the day you put it on.

Then, a cocktail now would be just your little garden spot with sweet and enthusiastic after a work-out of this kind. Or, if you like, a cup of tea. Just the price of the counsel you like. Sit of your time, effort and money.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was wawking around the living room pushing crooked things straite and picking things crooked, saying to pop, O dear, I certainly put my foot out of the frying pan into the fire this afternoon. I could knock myself over with a feather for being so stupid. Now I'm just the one that always prides myself on understanding people's voices she said.

Who did you think it was and who would it not pop said and ma said, In the first place I never expected that Mr. Big and Mrs. Treeston Willows of all people would call on me up. I mean of course I hoped against hope that she would invite me to take a lite bite for they always bridge but that she would call me up about it in person, I never expected in mote thawts. So when I anserd the fone and heard a woman say I immidiately thawt of Maud Hews whom I was expecting to hear from and I said, O hello Maud, just like that, O hello, Maud, ma said.

And it was the glamorous fabulous Mrs. Thersten Willows, pop said, and ma said, Yes, but the wrist wasn't over. The wrist for pete's sake, pop said, you dont quite know who's speaking, and I immediately thawt of Bobby Hew's nothing more belittling to a person's pride than having their name mistaken for somebody else's, ma said.

The only thing left for you to do is to greet every man, woman or child you meet as one on the fone with a cheery O hello, Mrs. Willows, and in time this will surely pet to the ears of Mrs. Willows and she can hardly but be pleased, pop said, and ma said, such senseless nonsense.

But the best idea I have at the moment, pop said.

And he pit his back of the sporting page and ma kept on saying O deer to herself.

IN MEMORIAM

PARKS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Theodore Parks, who passed away April 4, 1936.
Gone is the place we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach,
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away April 3, 1926.
It's just one year today since God called mother away,
To dwell with Him in Heaven,
That bright and beautiful land,
Though time and friends may sun-round us,
Still none can take her place,
That silent thought, that secret tear,
Keep mother's memory ever dear.

GEORGE V HAD BUILDING SCHEME

Assistance For Servants However Dropped Through Depression

Halifax, England, April 2 (CP)—The story of how the finances crisis of 1931 forced King George V to give up plans for launching a building society for the benefit of his servants has been told by Sir Ralph Hurd, the late Monarch's financial secretary.

Sir Ralph described the projected scheme as "the building society of borrower's dreams." It was going to charge the borrowers only two per cent on their mortgages, and it would have been willing to advance the full 100 per cent of the cost of mortgaged property.

Encouragement of Thrift

The plan had been evolved by the King after a discussion of the rich list. The King had pointed out that the financial position was so satisfactory that he would like to do something for the permanent benefit of the servants.

"He did not want to give wage increases because the wages were good and increases might not always be put to useful purposes," Sir Ralph said. "He wanted to do something which would help and encourage them to be thrifty, and be of permanent advantage to them—he warmly welcomed the building society scheme."

However, the King asked for a £250,000 cut in the civil list when the financial crisis came and so the scheme had to be dropped.

Carole Lombard Comes Together Again In Brilliant Film

Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray, the romantic team of "Hands Across the Table" and "A Princess Comes Across," are together again in "Swing High, Swing Low," a brilliant romance with music, at the Belle screen today, Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily.

"Swing High, Swing Low" is the story of Carole Lombard, as the girl whose love and faith in a ne'er-do-well trumpet player lifts him to the pinnacle of success but robs her of his love. He discovers he cannot succeed without her and returns to beg her forgiveness.

The story is set in Panama and New York City, and there are many gorgeous settings. Dorothy Lamour, the girl who became famous after "The Jungle Princess," is in the elaborate cast, which also includes Charles Butterworth as the "Piano Panic of Panama," Jean Dixon, Harvey Stephens and many others. The film was directed by Mitchell Leisen, directed "Easy Living" and "Midnight" and other musical hits.

"Swing High Swing Low" is the kind of film in which talented Mrs. Lombard reveals that she can sing and dance. This is a side of the blonde beauty which was known to few even among her friends. It is to be hoped that there will be more pictures with Miss Lombard exhibiting her talents in this field.

There are three musical numbers in "Swing High, Swing Low" which are in the high class of "Thanks a Million," "Panamania," sung and danced by Miss Lamour, and "I Hear a Call to Arms" and "When it Rain Love," sung by Miss Lombard to the trumpet accompaniment by MacMurray.

The Belle Late World News and Walt Disney's latest color symphony will be exhibited on the same program. Performances start daily at 2.50, 7.30 and 9.30.

"Last of Mrs. Cheney"

Modern to the current instant, zay and ultra-smart, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture, "The Last of Mrs. Cheney" will be presented at the Belle, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily.

With Joan Crawford, William Powell and Robert Montgomery in the stellar roles, the film also boasts a notable supporting cast which includes Frank Morgan, Jean Dixon, Nigel Bruce, Colleen Clare, Benita Hume, Ralph Forbes.

The story based on the memorable stage play by Frederic Lonsdale, is improved by modern treatment. The dialogue is smart and the whole atmosphere is one of ultrasophistication.

SLAIN MODEL'S FATHER

Pulling a cigarette, Joseph Gedeon, father of the murdered Beverly and estranged husband of Mrs. Mary Gendron who were murdered in their New York apartment together with a boarder, Frank Byrnes, is shown at a New York police station after renewed questioning. Though Gedeon was not booked on any charge, he may be held under the Sullivan law which makes possession of firearms a felony. A revolver was reportedly found in his room.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Flying Down to Rio" and "Dark Angel"

Continuing our present policy of bringing back only the great pictures of yester-year Sunday, Monday midnite at 12.00 and also Monday, Tuesday, the Capitol presents the Sunday midnite two swell entertaining features "Flying Down to Rio" with the never-to-be forgotten musical that brought the dance craze to the screen, and "Dark Angel" starring Fredric March, Herbert Marshall and Merle Oberon.

Novelties — news, shimmering, thrilling novelties, are the rule rather than the exception in RKO-Radio Pictures' musical extravaganza, "Flying Down to Rio," shown at the Capitol No. 1.

First, the story starts out with Raymond Guion Raymond singing about the country in a "flying piano" (it flies, too) seating several hundred to complete harmony for his band.

Then he takes his outfit, by air, to beautiful Rio de Janeiro, where he is scheduled to open a new hotel for the wealthy visitors.

He falls in love with the owner's daughter, Dolores Del Rio, and a rivalry for her hand is begun between himself and handsome Raul Roulien, a native Brazilian.

They engage in a musical duel, American versus Brazilian, with native ones for supremacy, while tango dancers go quite mad with their convolutions. Such music you've never heard and such instruments, you've never seen as the partinkles, upon which the player sits while he plays, the violas, the cavaquinho and the chokalho.

Finally the villains attempt to break up the romance by getting out an injunction preventing Raymond from putting on his show. When this threatens to break the heroine's father, Raymond saves the day by taking his 30-piece band and his band aloft, where they stage the most thrilling dance ever in the history of the world.

And what a show—six dozen dancing girls in the ensemble, girls doing aerial acquapleaing (a rear thriller) ballet girls in nothing but hair and air as they flutter to earth in parachutes, girls lowered from planes to plane by adagio dancers, and many other dizzying, thrilling and entertaining features.

"Dark Angel"

One of the most powerful and beautiful love stories ever filmed will unfold on the screen at the Capitol Theatre, when Samuel Goldwyn's production, "The Dark Angel," starring Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall is shown as extra feature on the

Adapted from a play by Guy Bolton, the screen play of "The Dark Angel" was written by Lillian Hellman, author of the play, "Broadway" and "The Children's Hour," and Mordaunt Shairp, who has been engaged for his stage success, "The Green Bay Tree."

The story which is set in a quiet corner of lovely rural England follows the lives of a young man, Alan Vane, (Merle Oberon) and two men, Alan Trent (Fredric March) and Gerald Abbott (Herbert Marshall). Since childhood, Kitty has loved Alan, and Gerald loves both Kitty. The War takes both men and in the trenches there comes to Alan the realization of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he tells her of his love, but their plans are rudely shattered by a sudden call cancelling all leaves.

When Alan is reported killed, Kitty's life is broken. After the War, she becomes engaged to Gerald and in the eleventh hour Fate steps in and the dream of her life is fulfilled in a glorious happy ending.

MOST DIFFICULT TO REVISE ACT

Combines Investigation Act Criticized by The Opposition

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)—Revision of the Combines Investigation Act is proving the most difficult piece of legislation the House of Commons has to deal with in the dying hours of the session.

Due to opposition and criticism of details of the new act's makes slow progress through committee of the whole. It was before the committee for seven hours yesterday and only two sections were approved.

At one stage Hon. C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. George), described powers given the combines commissioner to enter premises, search and seize documents as comparable to Nazi Germany's legislation against the Jews. He said it was the negation of all authorities he had read.

J. T. Thorson (Lib., Selkirk), spoke up to say he was not still in support of a clause the House at two previous sessions sought to insert in the law, only to have it rejected in the Senate. It is one which would make documents produced at a preliminary investigation under the combines Act admissible in evidence in a subsequent prosecution. Thorson said it was necessary and the Senate had misunderstood its support.

Hon. Manion Liberal also disagreed with Mr. Cahan as to the latter's general attitude of the law. Canada has reached the stage where regulation and licensing investigations of combines was necessary. Industry had nothing to fear from the law if it conducted itself properly, he said.

COAL INDUSTRY FREE OF STRIKE

Shutdown of a Day Brings Signing of New Agreement

New York, April 3 (AP)— The United States soft coal industry after a one-day shutdown, was free of a strike threat today, with a new contract for 400,000 anthracite miners wage increases aggregating $30,000,000 annually.

The shortest shutdown in its history, a matter of hours, it covered States was climaxed late yesterday with a two-year agreement between the anthracite operators and United Workers of America providing increases for more than 400,000 employees.

The operators' spokesman solemnly said the boost probably would occasion an increase in the price of coal to the consumer of cents a ton. The union said it would add only 15 cents to the cost of mining a ton.

No strike occurred, said the union. The men just refused to work without a contract. The old agreement expired at 12 midnight Wednesday.

John P. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, called the culmination of the negotiations "industrial statesmanship." Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in Washington said it is proved settlements could be reached without "resorting to costly strikes and lockouts."

John L. Lewis, Union President, said, "both sides yielded on certain points, and there was a spirit of mutual consideration and an effort to compose the differences in the industry without a strike."

Will Jackson, although he only scored 6 goals in the play-off series, joined his scoring advantage in the matter of assists, the centre player on the "kid line" handing out exactly 8 assists in the last eight games. REDMEN GUESTS AT THE CAPITOL

Each Member of The Team Introduced And Given Hearty Applause

Spontaneous applause individually and collectively acclaimed the Belleville Redmen intermediate "B" O.H.A. champions of Ontario when they were introduced to the patrons of the Capitol Theatre last evening. As Master-of-Ceremonies "Moe" Nod introduced each member of the "champs", the capacity-filled theatre heartily welcomed Belleville's championship boys, the key team with voluntary applause for the boys, who had brought great honors and great athletic prestige to the city.

As the individual players were introduced to the audience, they took turn about in standing while the only living Siamese twins, Violet and Daisy Hilton, who are appearing in person at the Capitol theatre, successfully the champion Belleville Redmen were the guests of Manager Gordon Hall, Sam of the Capitol theatre, to witness the hockey's first picture—"King of Hockey," last night.

As Manager Eddie Thomas was introduced as the entire group virtually rose to his feet to welcome the popular director of Belleville's hockey clubs but in his characteristic unassuming manner Manager Thomas successfully landed the champions. "It was a great season, the boys played good hockey and we are glad to bring a championship to Belleville," Mr. Thomas' only remarks over the loud-speaking equipment, that had been installed in the Capitol theatre on the occasion of welcoming home the champions after their successful winning of a provincial title.

Mayor Ellis, Secretary Frank Bunter Whitton, Harry Ingram and Ross Burley, who could not be present, were introduced. Thorold Redmen's tainees" 5-2 at home and repeat the dose in Niagara Falls to bring Belleville the first O.H.A. championship ever annexed by this city, a very creditable record.

"King of Hockey."

Nearly 10,000 fans, reminiscent of pre-depression days, filled the Queen City, viewed the battle in Maple Leaf Gardens and left somewhat disappointed with the one-sided display. Only the first two of the ten periods provided the fans pep to raise the fans from their seats.

Wallace was credited with five points, Conacher and Goupille had two and three were called even. Lafleuring his ninth consecutive scoring spree started with promise of upsetting the experts, catching the Canadiens off their guard in the second and driving him with a two-fisted attack that left the latter groggy.

Veteran Wallace, however, got his right into Lafleur's face in the second and right-crossed himself to the decision.

There was only a half pound difference in weight with Wallace 165 and the challenger carrying the slight advantage.

BETTING REVENUE HELD UNTAXABLE

Archie Compston, Pro Golfer Wins His Fight in Court

By L. NORMAN SMITH

London, Apr. 3 (CP)—The professional golfer may make a tidy sum each year on backing his own skill, but his betting revenue is not liable to income tax.

Archie Compston was the subject of a full dress debate in the revenue court of the King's Bench division and won when his counsel made a sharp drive out of the rough to secure the revenue authorities of "looseness of thought".

Compston, professional of the Coombe Hill Golf Club, admitted winning $5,000 in bets during 1936. Years ago the revenue department went after him for additional income tax. The case has been heard by lesser bodies and now Mr. Justice Lawrence has dismissed with costs an appeal by the authorities against the decision of the general commissioners. Due Compston was not keeping a full more sheet.

Compston explained that if an ordinary person had a bet his profit was not accounted for as income tax collector; think a ship's officer did not have to pay a part of any winnings he made betting on the ship's run; that the bets had no relation to his golfing ability and his job made him a good man to back.

But the plaintiffs declared Compston's betting had been done on a regular a schedule, each year amounting to hundreds of pounds, that his activity in the betting line made him engaged in the trade, a book-maker who was accountable to the income tax department.

Mr. Justice Lawrence ruled the winnings did not arise from his employment or profession and were in no way analogous to gratuities for services rendered.

GORDON WALLACE RETAINS HIS TITLE

Nurse is Broken Hand And Right-Crossed Himself to Decision

Toronto, April 3—(CP)—After brushing aside his ninth challenger with one hand broken and another, Wallace, Vancouver's sly ringster, scanned a Canadian boxing horizon last night for his next welterweight title tussle.

He mused along a left hand with a broken bone last night as he loosed back his threat of banner battering, careful Toronto boy, and cleverly retained his Dominion welterweight title in a 10-round fight.

Six days ago the bone was smashed in training for the title match. Wallace after the fight figured he had the use of it about six or seven times but he knew exactly what he was doing. With this ring generalship and craft it was sufficient to keep the Toronto challenger on the defensive.

Sudbury And Hull Start Series For Eastern Title

WESLEYS HAVE CHANCE

Saskatoon May Possibly Even Series With Winnipeg

(By The Canadian Press)

The Dominion's 1936-37 amateur hockey cavalcade neared its climax today with the end of another week's history-making. Next week a senior team will best west and a junior band will move east for cup finals.

Six of seven survivors in the two chance will go back for action tonight. If precedent means much two will be eliminated. At any rate a hearing for Sudbury Wolves tonight will be no more than four games between tonight and the start of finals.

The fast North Bellefford Beavers still stand and walk does not dim their impressiveness. Beavers gallop into Saskatoon as the country's number one team, when they rocked to Saskatchewan with a second Senior title. They'll stay on their pedestal unless Sudbury Tigers or Hull Volants can turn the tables when they play Saskatoon Quakers in Al Capone Cup finals at Calgary.

Sudbury and Hull ended eastern finals tonight at Ottawa. Playing as Frood Miners, the former Ontario packsters lost only one game over a heavy league schedule. Under Tiger sponsors, however, they've lost only once in playdowns.

Although Sudbury's reputation in the winter's record on which to base comparisons, Hull has certainly made favorite to take his best-of-three round with Hull and go west.

But no one can apply figure Volants' condition. A winning record upsets they have registered some of the best hockey ever seen outside of Quebec Aces was a classic. A Montreal defence corps and a lot of courage that makes champions carried them past the favored Aces in a rousing finish.

Volants will not be trading in the Ottawa, for the whole district cheers Hull's title hopes.

Another chance should be made too, by the extent of the Sudbury Hospital list. A head injury will keep Tiger Cyclone Taylor and Lavigne out for the season, Coach Bill Breen and Hall Wright, and Dominion Don Grosso may not play tonight because of a charley-horse.

Second game of the set is scheduled for Tuesday night and a third is necessary it will be played Wednesday night.

Ottawa Rideaus and Saskatoon Quakers meet in second Canadian game for semi-finals tonight. If they go out, their opponents, Winnipeg Monarchs and Montreal Wesleys, with meet, will contest. Memorial Cup finals at Toronto.

Of the two underpups, Wesleys seem to have the better chance of surviving the night. They were beaten 5-2 in the opener of their home-and-home series with the Monarchs but to come from behind and win 3-2 in the return.

Dunc Farmer, Saskatoon coach, has a wide-open offensive in mind

DAILY SHORT STORY

He Put It Over

By Irving H. King

Although Roderick McKesson was guardian for his niece, Alice Randolph, and for Gerald, the son of his deceased friend, Simon Crabbe, he had no idea of allowing his wards to marry. He regarded Gerald as too lacking in business ability to ever amount to much in the world. He was too light and airy in his talk and behavior to suit old Roderick, who was a ponderous person and liked solemnity and profundity in others.

Roderick's idea of the proper sort of a husband for Alice was Gilbert Anderson. Anderson was a hustler always in business up to his neck; full of schemes for making vast amounts of money. He had not made any yet, but there had always been a plausible reason why the particular scheme he had been trying to put over had not succeeded. Gilbert had married Roderick as his own and deferred to him.

Alice detested Gilbert and told her uncle she was going to marry Gerald. Her uncle said emphatically he did was not and she replied: "You just wait and see." When she left him Old Mr. Gerald upon his proposing, he had replied: "Say, old girl, you don't really mean that—do you?" To which she had answered: "Why, of course I don't, you silly. Can't you hear got to wait. Uncle is dead set against you and is looking for his fortune person. But I'll be twenty-five six months and my own boss. Then I'll marry you, if you want me to, and I don't want you to. In six months you come and ask me again."

This set Gerald to thinking. Six months was a long time to wait, but Alice was a level-headed girl and quite right to want to avoid sacrificing her fortune. When Gerald had turned twenty-one Roderick had called him into his office and shown him a lot of figures, of which he comprehended only enough to know that they represented a considerable fortune, and he had insisted that the old man go on managing his affairs.

The next day Gerald went in call upon Roderick McKesson. "Oh, sorry," said Roderick. "Was it to Make it short; I am busy."

As a rule Gerald was a trifle late in his dress; today he was attired soberly. His manner was generally a trifle frivolous; today he had an air of seriousness and suppressed energy. You would have scented him anywhere for a business man accustomed to deal with important questions. It was not for nothing that Gerald had been a star in amateur theatricals. "Sir", said he gravely, "called on me if you could not reconsider your objection to my marriage with your niece?"

"No," roared Roderick, "I never reconsider."

Gerald saw a large envelope lying on Roderick's desk in the upper left-hand corner of which was printed in large type, "The Agawunk Finishing Company." "Have you—er—have You, if it is not an impertinent question, invested anything in that concern?" And he pointed to the envelope.

"I have," snapped Roderick, "what of it?"

"Well," replied Gerald, "I have been taking rather an interest in business matters of late, especially new enterprises, and the Agawunk company is a rather doubtful concern."

"Nonsense," cried Roderick; "they have contracts ahead for twenty years."

"Yes," said Gerald, "and they show those contracts to lure investors. The fact is they are losing two cents a yard on every yard of cloth they finish."

"I am too busy to talk further with you today," said Roderick. The old man got exceedingly busy after Gerald left, calling up creeks concerns and financial men who kept well informed all that was going on. Roderick himself had been rather "out of it" for some years, keeping close in his office. He had been lured into the Agawunk scheme by Gilbert Anderson—and he had invested ten thousand dollars of Gerald Cuthbert's money in the concern.

When the old man had finished his investigations he had a grim look. The first thing he did was to cancel the Agawunk bonds to his own account and deposit a certified check for ten thousand to the account of Gerald. "The young whippersnapper has business ability after all," he grudgingly thought.

As a matter of fact Gerald was no infrequent visitor of Gilbert and Gerald, "I never heard Roderick, "I never reconsider."

Gerald saw a large envelope lying on Roderick's desk in the upper left-hand corner of which was printed in large type, "The Agawunk Finishing Company." "Have you—er—have You, if it is not an impertinent question, invested anything in that concern?" And he pointed to the envelope.

Jane commanded preparations for the dangerous march. Her self except Prince Sbotov reduced their baggage to the barest essentials, but His Highness insisted on four suitcases, which he ordered Tibbs to carry. "I don't think I can do it, sir," the valet protested.

"Well, let Annette carry the small bag," Alexis suggested. Brown exploded. "Annette won't carry any of your stuff, you skunk! And if Tibbs does, he's a darned fool." "I fancy I rather agree with you, Mr. Brown," the valet said, and dropped all the baggage.

Sbotov was enraged. "Why, you impudent little upstart, I'll—" "No you won't, sir. I know just what you're going to say, and it won't do any good. Tibbs drew himself up haughtily. "I am giving notice, sir. Im leaving your employ—immediately."

"Oh, Alexis!" Jane exclaimed impatiently, "take an extra pair of shoes and some socks and come on." Alexis stepped out into the trail and headed eastward. How could she know that that way lay the most terrible of all his jungle's dark mysteries?

"The Saga of the Bounty," edited by Irving Anthony, is the true story of that dramatic sea epic—told, retold in fiction by the Nordoff and Hall. In the book we have the original diaries, letters, accounts and testimony of Bligh, Fryer, Christian, Morrison, Heywood and Alexander Smith. The narratives are as they left the lips of those who lived and sailed. Mr. Anthony has arranged the accounts so that a continuous story results. Included also is the only surviving log of the unfortunate vessel of the Pandora, the frigate sent to apprehend the twenty-five mutineers. Mr. Anthony has presented this volume in the belief that "it is time to present the matter from the words of the men who dared, suffered and paid for their presumption."

Agnes Keppeller, an outstanding comment in contemporary American letters, has, in her new book, traced the humour in English life and literature from the middle ages to the present. "The Spice of Laughter", a selection of the best jokes from the literature of humour through the ages, is a rich volume we have to day's humour. "No man pursues what he has at hand," says Miss Keppeller. "No man recognizes the need of pursuit until that which he desires has escaped him."

A far cry from the gentle tolerance of Agnes Keppeler is the new book of essays by Aldous Huxley "The Olive Tree." Mr. Huxley turns his rapier thrusts at wit on a variety of subjects, English snobbery, Words and Behavior, New-Fashioned Christmas, Literature and Translations and Writers and Readers. The book is a stimulating one filled with alert observations of the inequities of present day humanity.

A traveller to mysterious faraway places, Freya Stark has given account of her strange adventures in her book, "The Southern Gates of Arabia." Her journey in a country still partly unexplored and unmapped was one of peril since few Europeans have penetrated into the tribal warfare which is constantly waged there. The author, however, was enchanted with this remote world and lived with tribespeople during her stay. Local customs, superstitions and characters, among her keen interest and sympathy and she writes of them with the sensitive wisdom of a scholar.

ATTACKS EDUCATION PLAN

Bombay.—(CP)—"Compulsory education as practised in most countries is a sort of intellectual canning factory," declared Dr. Clifford Manshardt at a Rotary Club gathering, adding that it discouraged development of individual initiative.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford to their customers.

Despite labor troubles across the line, signs of a check to the present recovery are still entirely lacking and it is logical to believe that the stock market will continue in the advance scenery or later. In Canada where we have far escaped any serious labor troubles the industrial and economic picture is distinctly bright. The Federal Government is lending every effort to make its Home Improvement Plan a success and, if it is successful to any great degree, the construction industry will benefit substantially. With more or less marked prosperity in almost all other industries, the long and lasting forest industries and, spending power, on a much greater than in some years, the outlook remains distinctly promising.

Dominion Steel and Coal Co.'s report for the last month made its appearance, but judging by the fact that the company was able to pay practically the full rate of interest on the bonds, the income for the month should show an improvement in revenue. There have never been any rumors on the "D" stock. Under the reorganization plan carried out a short time ago, the fixed charges of the company were reduced. If there is any reasonable increase in the volume of business, the company might easily show substantial earnings on the stock. This factor is recognized in the price, with the result that on basis of the actual and prospective improvement, the stock has advanced sharply in value.

Some of the .soundest Canadian utility stocks are now available on a 5 per cent. basis which is an attractive return. Stocks in this class are Montreal Power and Canada Northern Power.

Imperial Oil Limited.

Representing proprietorship participation in Canada's industry, one enjoys a considerable measure of immunity from sharper fluctuations in general business and trade. Imperial Oil Limited common stock cannot be expected to display the pyrotechnics which characterizes the market action of many another industrial equity. But, by the same token, the issue holds forth a considerable degree of appeal for the more conservative-minded individual wishing to secure a very satisfactory yield return on his commitment without entirely sacrificing possibilities for ultimate market betterment.

From the 50 cents annual regular dividend rate plus the 75 cents "extra"—a yield of over 3 per cent is afforded at prevailing quotations of 21%. The forthcoming financial statement for the 1936 period will reveal an earning position much similar in character to that which was shown for 1935. Only a small portion of this company's income is now coming from Canadian sources.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, Apr. 2 (CP)—Price fluctuations were slimmed to modest market, stimulated by publication of the annual statement showing net profit on operations double that of 1932, and the preferred sold as high as 91½ for board lenses, showing an advance of four points.

Miscellaneous industrials to do better than Canadian Canners A, Vinalator, and Tip Top Tailors. Bathurst Power "A" was unchanged to slightly lower.

The senior oils were fairly quiet at steady prices. Losses of the minimum fraction were boarded, for Imperial and Montreal, while International Petroleum and British Americans were unchanged.

Nearly all the base metals were down. Nickel declined more than a point, Noranda, Falconbridge dropped fractions and losses of 5 to 10 cents were showing at the close in Hudson Bay Mining, Sherritt and Sudbury Basin, Eldorado was off the close at a price of $.50, up 10 cents.

Dome was off a point at 45.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Apr. 3.—Butter prices on the local market today were advanced to the highest levels seen since April 1934, touching 32½c a pound. Receipts were 1,000 cases of eggs, 144 boxes of butter and 113 boxes of cheese.

There were no sales on the Canadian Commodity Exchange. Butter was quoted unchanged to 1c above at 27½c to 28c for Quebec buyers in expection of western regraded. On the open market 92 score creamery at 1.c.l. was generally 26c.

ABERDEEN LEADS AT HALF TIME

Ahead of Morton 2-0 In Semi-Final of Scottish Cup

Easter Road, Edinburgh, April 3 (CP)—Cup-tied, fast-moving clubs in the first and second divisions of the Scottish Football League, Aberdeen and Morton, had the field to themselves today for the semi-final cup joust. The Dons, striving to advance to the final, are runners-up in major league honors to Rangers, Morton fighting hard to regain a berth with top-flight clubs.

Dull, drizzling weather did not dampen the ardor of Morton enthusiasts, 4,000 transplanted buses from Greenock to the Scottish capital. Both teams were at full strength.

The second division entry won the toss and the 37,000 spectators saw an uproar with some heads-up football.

At the 13-minute mark Armstrong fought his way clear of four Morton players and punctured the nets with a hard shot. Aroused by this unexpected turn of events, the Greenock players continued to press but did not give the Dons much to worry about.

Stenson gave the northern representatives a 2-0 lead at 36 minutes.

RUNAWAY BRIDE ON WILD FLIGHT

Runs Away From Millionaire Husband After Five Days of Marriage

San Francisco, April 3 (AP)—A flight that made a wild, 900-mile flight from Hollywood to San Francisco ended today.

She ran away from her husband of five days, Maxwell H. Brill, Jr., millionaire sportsman, who had been hiding from her.

Reckless driving had been a stormy scene with her husband and newspaper reporters, who charged plans for annulment of the marriage.

"They will have to catch me first," she said. Then she hedged a bet of 100 to 1 that the marriage of his four cars and roared away. An accelerated Press reporter and photographer were in the automobile with her. They expected her to stop at her hotel in Hollywood.

She stopped 100 miles later.

"We'll get on, Jane, and then go on to San Francisco," she gasped. "Don't be nervous, too. I'm going to have hysterics now, and then you've got to help me dodge the police."

She said Brill's mother had told her of his 1936 car, and she would arrest her for having stolen it.

It was a wild day and a strange night.

Eloped On Monday.

Monday the eastern social figure eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with his her second husband. After a one-day honeymoon, they returned to Hollywood, where she said she had $0 to his mother's apartment noon and left him alone. Tuesday.

Until yesterday, that was the last time she saw him.

"He broke me my explanation. He has left. So I reported him to police," she explained. They found him, all right.

Wanted Divorce.

Yesterday the petitioner added to the storied the guise of the $60,000 penthouse where her young husband, Brill, and Brill lived.

"He's my husband and I want him. I'm going to see him tonight, warning him, and now I'm going to find out what everything's about."

Brill Is Found.

Brill was in the big, yellow automobile with a garage. She ran to him. They fell into each other's arms, and there was a long embrace. He told her, after she was sure of her way to her.

At this moment, Mrs. Mary Brill appeared and cried, "Man, what is all this?"

A bitter angry scene ensued. The heiress accused the mother of keeping her son from her. The mother replied Nan had engineered "all the publicity on the affair."

Brill, when his mother came in view, darted up the back stairs to his penthouse again. His family will be called after him.

"You know I'm a wife ig. more than name only. I don't wait your call. I'm not a chattel. I'm free. And I don't want your mother, either. I can buy a dozen like her, too."

Then started the wild trip to Frisco.

CAMPBELLFORD

He then notified the fire department. Chief Ellis and Deputy Ellis were sent in by employees of the Campbellford Cloth Company who used the fire from the boiler room of their factory situated across the river.

It was necessary to carry both Mr. and Mrs. Leonard from the building. Mrs. Leonard will also be sent next to Leonard's, Mr. and Mrs. George Rice and their three sons also sleeping above the dry goods store but they were awakened by the fire which had started to make their escape. The flames reached the kitchen and bedroom above their apartment and destroyed their furniture.

Damage to the extent of $2,000 was done to the furnishing of the Page store and stock, principally while water seeped through the floor from the kitchen above. Some doing considerable damage to a large stock there. A quantity of dynamite stored in the back of that store made the firemen doubly careful to prevent the blaze from spreading in that direction.

Mountains Proving Ground For Modern War Weapons

Bilbao Stoutly Defended by Picked Forces of Basques

LATEST ARMS USED

Bilbao, Spain, April 3—(AP)—Mountains southeast of this Basque Capital were turned into a proving ground for virtually the whole modern arsenal of weapons today as defenders held an Insurgent drive in check.

Picked troops of Basques, and Government militia were reported to have withstood the shock of Moka's second thrust about Ochandiano, 25 miles southeast of Bilbao. Insurgent claims were that Mola's front was about 18 miles from the city on the Bay of Biscay.

New Tanks Used

The Insurgent drive, started Thursday, brought into action from both sides a vast array of armaments, including the latest in tanks and armoured cars, planes and artillery. Bombs were heavily bombed towns in the back area.

Reports from the front Saturday, the day before the infantry offensive was launched, there were 800 casualties, including 150 dead, according to delayed official figures.

Barricades were erected in many streets throughout the Basque country, informed quarters declared today, indicating the forces fought a life and death struggle to keep back an Insurgent thrust on Durango.

Thousands of defenders were said to be digging trenches in the front from Bilbao. Durango lies about 15 miles from the Basque Capital, east and slightly south, in the centre of precipitous terrain.

CELTICS ONE UP ON CLYDE TEAM

Two Glasgow Clubs Clash in Fight for Soccer Battle

Ibrox Park, Glasgow, April 3 (CP, Cable)—Celtic and Clyde, two Glasgow clubs, clashed on a rain-soaked ground today in one of the semi-finals for the Scottish Football Cup. Celtic defeated the Clyde, champions for their 15th. trophy, but they were beaten by a shaky referee which failed yet to win the coveted honor.

Celtic's forwards and their teams let they lined up before a huge crowd. Both sides were at full strength.

Clyde went on the attack and Kenneway was forced to dash out of his goal to clear. His pass, intercepted from Robertson, Murphy sent a low, hard shot to the centre flung himself at the ball and headed a spectacular goal.

RUMOR SAYS

The request for an expression of opinion presented the same questions, it is stated, that were said to have been before a Wednesday night meeting that lasted well into Thursday morning.

Questions were: Do you want William Aberhart?; Or, alternatively, whom do you want for your new leader?

Dr. Harry E. Brown, recognized leader of the Aberhart anti-Social Credit group, who earlier confirmed reports that a petition was circulated, attended the meeting but refused when his cabinet members were not present.

Premier Hears of Petition.

Dr. Brown last night said he did not know what progress he being made" regarding the petition. Premier Aberhart said he had heard of it and that it stated "the cabinet can no longer function in the interests of Social Credit".

Several members left last night for Edmonton to attend sessions which went today.

The Social Credit legislation is still to be introduced in the legislature. It may be brought in early next week.

Securities' Legislation

An amendment to the Securities Act, introduced yesterday by Hon. J. G. Dugill, Attorney-General, would increase the fees for effective administration and for prevention of fraud in trading in securities whether upon any stock exchange or elsewhere in Alberta.

Another measure dealing with debt may come next week when the provincial plan for a commission to adjust debts between debtor and creditor is presented. It is understood it would be made effective.

RAPIDLY

Here are a few of the more outstanding changes:

1. The Orwachtas (parliament) consisting of the President, the King and two houses.

2. The power of general no longer summons and dissolves parliament.

3. Recommendation for the appointment of judges by the president is made by the executive council (cabinet) instead of by the council general.

Executive Authority

4. The executive council exercises the executive authority and power of the Free State conferred on the king but the last paragraph of the diplomatic and consular agents and the conclusion of international agreements, the council may avail itself in these matters of any international organ for the like purposes" by any of the members of the Commonwealth of Nations.

5. The president of the executive council informs the president by the Dail Eireann (lower house) of matters proposed by the governor general on the nomination of the Dail.

The chief effect is that for internal purposes, at any rate, the king's assent disappears as a vital cog out of the constitution of the Irish Free State.

Newfoundland and India

East and west, too, changes have come. Newfoundland no longer enjoys Dominion status because consequence of financial troubles and the appointment of a commission that United Kingdom, the constitution of Newfoundland was suspended in 1933. Government in Newfoundland is still carried on by a commission responsible to the government of the United Kingdom.

India, on the other hand, is emerging from bulwage. On April 1, more than two years after the first stage in the great scheme of a federated India. The scheme, when it comes into full force, will give a measure of Dominion freedom to the 352,000,000 people of India with a population three times that of the United States.

Responsible Government

The first stage provides the first real approach to responsible government in the 11 governors' provinces of British India. It is a responsibility limited by much criticized safeguards and reservations, but India's tangled history. Previously the 11 provincial legislatures had been at least partly elected. The Congress Party (which has declared Independent British rule in India) has won.

BRITAIN, FRANCE, BELGIUM STUDY TRADE ISSUES

International Commerce Development is Favored By British Government

No Tendency Toward Free Trade is Indicated

THREE VIEWS HELD

Concern is Felt Over Continuance of British Conditions

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 5 (CP Cable)—The Governments of Britain, France and Belgium are exploring ways and means to lower barriers in the rising stream of international trade.

The three Governments are not so much contemplating the negotiation of definite trade treaties as endeavoring to reach an agreement on the best best means of tackling the problem. But the sweeping ending of an international trade conference in New York last fall by the United States has come for a more concerted effort to keep the wheels of industry moving.

International Understandings

Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, who is the moving spirit in the talks, holds that the development of international trade is the best stepping-stone to the improved international relations.

Action, it is felt in British circles, should aim at reducing the present lines: elimination of import quotas, reduction of excessive tariffs and greater freedom in exchanges.

The British Government, that is understood, does not favor the creation of free trade groups. Such groups, it is felt, would invite retaliation from countries not included and thus precipitate a tariff war. What is sought is rather a general easing of trade strictures, not limited to any particular group of countries.

Report Is Developing

The talks are a sequel to the joint declaration by the British, French and United States Governments of Sept. 26, 1936, when France devalued the franc. In that declaration stress was laid on the importance of developing international trade.

In British financial circles concern is also felt over the possibility of a slump following on the heels of the present boom in international trade. What, it is questioned, will

CAT'S HEAD COVERED WITH SALMON CAN

The proverbial cat in the bag was in decidedly comfortable straits, comparatively speaking, when, early this week, a resident of a fellow sister found itself in an 03a year of the Kyle House apartment, on Saturday evening.

For hours, it seemed, rear residents of the building heard ghastly tappings against the sides of buildings in the rear, but the thud thing interspersed with mutilled yowls.

Harry Wils investigated. And at the risk of being scratched badly with the flying claws, managed to wrench a tightly wedged salmon can from the head of a half-wild alley cat.

23 INMATES IN COUNTY JAIL

"It is the regular Spring reduction" declared Jail Governor C. H. French this morning, commenting on the low number of inmates of the county jail.

SHOPPERS' PARADE HAS SPRING NOTE

The usual Saturday afternoon parade of shoppers was enhanced with a gay Spring note as milady, of all ages took advantage of the warm breeze and sunshine to inaugurate the new spring styles in chapeaux and other warm weather raiment.

Dinky little hats of shiny black straw, flat pancake-shaped creations, perched at a rakish angle on gleaming coiffures, tall concoctions of effects in varying colors and embellished with colored flowers, appeared to be the general favorite with the ladies, Spring suits, and coats in all the popular styles and shades also came in for a great deal of favor. The male of the species, appeared to be somewhat conservative in the style tastes. Browns and Coronation Blues were the predominating colors, with a dark tone grey being seen to advantage.

SUMMER APPROACHES AS CARTER SNAKE SEEN

Great snakes alive! employees of the local filtration plant could rave been forgiven for saying on Saturday afternoon, when a large black silve garter snake in its familiar markings of green and white slithered from between a cranny in the rocks or the bay wall and took a hesitant dip in the water. Evidently the temperature of the bay was sufficiently too low for comfort. It was reported that after vainly trying to regain shore, the two-foot reptile finally succumbed.

FARM LABOR SHORTAGE POSSIBLE IN DISTRICT

Belleville and district is threatened with a shortage of farm labor, according to figures released by the local Employment Bureau office.

"The wages offered are the highest we have had for a good many," enlightened Rose, "farmers are offering as high as thirty dollars a month with house, fuel, etc., included. In months like these male men are being offered twenty-five dollars per month. But the men are not taking advantage of these offers and the situation is becoming quite acute. There are hundreds of men in the office on Saturday looking for help."

Mr. Rose for a reason as to the lethargic attitude of laborers toward farming, stated that it was due to the fact that the attraction of jobs with various highway projects with their excellent wages and the scale of wages, "But some of them will be out of the district," he said, "the highways can take care of only a certain number and the supply of labor will exceed the demand."

SOMETHING DIFFERENT IN A TRAVELOGUE

"Hitch - Hiking 'Round the World," a travelogue, that is distinctly different, will be given in the Bridge Street United Church on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Wherever presented, the lecture has met with splendid success, and the centres visited drawing large crowds, delighted with the unusual entertainment.

The Toll Brothers, Ellsworth and Lester, are University of Toronto students, who decided that the call of adventure could not be ignored. For two full years they worked and hiked their way around the world, visiting twenty-seven countries, travelling thirty thousand miles. The story of their trip will be graphically told in over 200 lovely pictures, compellingly described by a brilliant speaker.

Of the many admirers the Toll Brothers have made throughout Canada in the last few series none is more enthusiastic than Rev. F.E. Maiden, pastor of Wall Street United Church, Brockville, formerly of Bridge Street United Church in this city. Mr. Maiden says of the entertainment: "It passed my highest expectations, and I have heard many travelogues, including those of the famous Robeson, but this travel story has even Robeson beaten. Many of the pictures are unbelievably beautiful, the story is fascinating. The lecturer has a fine personality, a rare voice, a very real humorous style, and throughout the evening he held his audience spellbound."

CASES ENLARGED FOR SENTENCES

Theft Charge of Ballast And Brass Fittings Heard in Court

Thomas Graves, Belleville, pleaded guilty to the theft of a quantity of German brass, the property of the Canadian National Railways, that had been removed from engines stored in the local C. N. R. yards recently, when he appeared before Magistrate Ponton, K.C., in today's local police court. Canadian National officials investigated and presented the case in court.

Graves' record of previous convictions was then brought out by counsel, admitting having been convicted of three previous charges for theft. "We are satisfied this man had an accomplice and would like to have him remanded in custody for sentence. He might talk by that time which would contribute to the recovery of some of the metal," stated Crown Attorney R. D. Denman. He was remanded until the four of the German brass fittings had been recovered, but or arrests of stolen. His Worship enlarged the matter for one week for sentence.

ARTICLE No. 4

The attendance at the Ontario Educational Association this year in Toronto was unusually large due to several conditions.

1. The approaching coronation was emphasized in various ways.

2. Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, was present and delivered an address.

3. The Education Department, through its Minister and Deputy-Minister, outlined for the first time revolutionary changes in our system of education.

For these reasons the attendance in all departments was nearly double that of normal years, and, as those people spend much money while here on wearing apparel, and other requirements, Toronto in one week is richer by several hundred thousand dollars. For this financial one advantage of a central location for all Ontario.

The Press

The Toronto Press for the past three years has given utterly inadequate reports of this greatest of Canada yearly conventions. Those who are unable to come to Toronto Easter week, glean very little from Toronto's otherwise superb newspapers, and how can it be otherwise when the reporters are green, inexperienced youths, who cannot boast even a baseball match (taking on each side) for a moustache?

Teachers Wonder

Teachers wonder whether education is after all as important as it is proclaimed to be from the housetops, and whether they themselves are indispensable. In all other departments of life, first things usually come first, and are given corresponding consideration.

The success of the new courses of study will depend to a very large extent upon the teachers concerned, and their fidelity and enthusiasm is taken for granted. It is fair, is it even sincere to continue their drudgic outs in salary when so much is expected from them, and when salaries are being restored to pre-war levels in the United States and also the railways? Teachers are unwilling to believe that the people of Ontario are either hypocrites or dight-wads. The writer was a teacher for forty years, and knows how teachers feel at the present moment. Let us as people live up to our professions and convictions, or cease to express any.

Lord Tweedsmuir

Convocation Hall with a seating capacity of about three thousand or more was packed on the evening of Easter Monday, to hear his Excellency's address.

This noted gentleman is tall, quite slender (weight, not over one hundred and fifty pounds) and has a thin face with an unusually long nose. These impressions are only momentary, because as a speaker his wonderful personality from eye and words soon holds you in thrall. His humor is splendid, frequent and always comes as a surprise from a serious face and topic. In fact that is the key note of his Excellency's personality — studied seriousness. When he was presented with a life membership in the O. E. A., he replied that it was the kind of honor he most liked, because it was highly honorable but had no obligation whatever.

Lord Tweedsmuir was a publisher of books for a quarter of a century, and no doubt this accounts for his serious, comprehensive grasp of all important subjects, especially education.

His ideal of education for Canada is a happy combination of the cultural and the practical, the one to develop a thoughtful mind and the other to keep a youth from starving. Dr. Simpson, Minister of Education, the next evening, outlined the new course of studies for first and second classes in High School and it fulfils the expressed ideals of our Governor-General. The most important function of Public school teachers was to produce good citizens.

Minister of Education

Next to Lord Tweedsmuir, Dr. Simpson, Minister of Education, was the most important person at this year's O. E. A. convention. He gave a brief history of Ontario schools, and showed that civilization had greatly changed, and that certain readjustments were now absolutely necessary.

All students entering High Schools and Collegiates next September must take the following subjects:— English, History, Civics, Geography, Health Studies, Writing, Mathematics, Elementary Science, French, Business Practice, Shopwork for boys, Household Science for girls, Music and Art, in all thirteen subjects for every student.

These subjects are intended to assist a student in deciding upon the occupation or course for which he is best fitted, and of course the teacher's cooperation will be invaluable in many ways. The greatest danger to this new project is the present unwieldly classes.

The initial year just described may be followed by any one of the following permanent courses which are each complete in themselves.

1. A general course, similar to the present course leading to university matriculation.

2. A course preparing for employment in industry, agriculture or art.

3. A specialized course in household science.

4. A commercial course.

It will require at least four years to put the proposed system into complete operation, and adjustments will take place from time to time as practice and experience may warrant.

The theory underlying the new system is to provide more adequately for the vast majority of students who remain in High School only one of two years. It is coincidental that these students have for years been sacrificed in the interests of the few, who go to Normal Schools or the Universities. Needless to say Ontario will give this project a sympathetic trial, but the more complicated the machinery, the more difficult the experiment.

Examinations

Much has been said concerning examinations during the past few days from platform or in corridor. A few of these remarks now follow:

1. The Minister of Education said that examinations must be retained as standards of scholarship.

2. Dr. Dunlop, Public School Inspector, said that examinations in English Composition have been useless, a fool test.

3. A High School principal said that proper examinations are a great stimulus, and are tests such as life gives. They are the most effective antidote for lazy students.

4. Principal Wallace of Queen's University said that examinations should stress thinking ability rather than an accumulation of facts.

Why are Examinations Now Unpopular?

Many criticisms were heard concerning the Departmental examinations of the past quarter of a century, but should summarized fall by the above statements. A few of these now follow:

1. In theory examinations are tests of ability and scholarship but Ontario has long been content with examiners seek for sentences or paragraphs in an authorized text, a most sacred book, which a teacher might not question, an unimportant, and which would have been no less if not more true at all, and set a question on the examination paper which will enforce due caution and respect. In this way examinations become slavish and foolish.

When marking examination papers, examiners take the authorized text, give marks for each point found there bearing on the question, and nothing at all for equal, if good answers from older sources. These secrets have been carefully guarded by the officials concerned, or Ontario long ago would have spoken out more boldly.

A few years ago a University professor was assigned the task of setting a science paper, and he set it on the wrong course to the great discomfort of the students who wrote. It is often said that allowance is made for such inexcusable blunders, but somehow it never is adequate nor does it atone for a student's nervous condition through out the rest of the examination. Some teachers want to know why University professors receive so many favors over themselves, since they do not show so avril look as intelligent, nor have they had any training in teaching whatever?

In 1916 the Middle School Algebra was set with the intention of plucking many students because too many were then seeking entrance to Normal Schools. This case was positively verified, and there have been others from time to time under strong suspicion.

Other remarks even stronger were passed from one to the other but enough has been written to show why students have been driven into disfavor not in theory, but in practice. Some cram for a test so far as to say that the pupils and teachers of Ontario have been so discouraged that many of them prefer the life of a hobo, from three to four thousand of whom pass through our towns and cities every year.

Other Pertinent Remarks

1. Only about thirteen per cent. of the cost of Education is borne by the province. As a result there are numerous cuts in teachers' salaries and also municipal debatits.

2. Education is measured out to children in compulsory doses but they are seldom taught to use their equipment to obtain a livelihood.

3. Education in Ontario has not kept pace with the development of our general life.

4. Classical teachers have a strong resolution, expressive of their disfavor, because Latin was omitted from the new first year course.

5. All members of School Boards should be elected, not as at present, a few by the city or county council due to some favouritism and/or false qualification or suitability.

6. Some young teachers are not appointed by School Boards, because their applications reveal much incorrect spelling and grammar.

7. Time will tell whether other and better standards than junior matriculation can be found for young people entering various professions. One thing is certain, it is the best known preparation for a reporter, or for a publishers' career.

Conclusion

Now I conclude this brief series of articles for I must be as business as/gnd within a few days. I have tried to give some of the most important news that Ontario has known for many a moon. A serious attempt has been made to be fair and impartial, by stating arguments where possible on both sides of any given question. Readers today want all the facts, and from this background they are quite competent to draw their own conclusions.

Best Wishes to All.

Tweed and District

Tweed—A meeting was called by the Community Club on Wednesday evening to hear Mr. J. A. Jones of Toronto discuss the Home Improvement Plan as sponsored by the National Government. Mr. Jones explained to interested citizens the plan as suggested and how it works out. The following committee was appointed:

Chairman—Reeve W. H. Sayers; Secy.—S. R. Curry; Exec. Committee—W. G. Gordon, Dr. W. A. Paul, Paul Rashotte, Jos. Rashotte, Ed. Reih. E. Myles and the Manager of either The Royal Bank or the Bank of Montreal.

Fred with whom she resides, and Walter, of Tweed; George and Arthur of Peterboro; Charles and Hugh of Windsor, Percy of Collingwood, and Mrs. George Harvey of Peterboro.

The home of Mrs. Galan on No. 7 Highway west of Actinolite was completely destroyed by fire one day last week. The cause of the fire is unknown and when assistance arrived from Madoc it was found that little could be done to save the dwelling. Neighbors prevented the spread of the flames to other buildings by means of a bucket brigade.

Tweed's new theatre will be known as "The Victoria Theatre." Several contestants suggested this name in a contest recently conducted by the proprietor Mr. Stanley Quinn. On Saturday night a drawing will be held at the theatre an the contestant whose entry is drawn will be given six tickets of admission. Each of the other contestants will be given two tickets. The popularity of the theatre continues with capacity crowds witnessing both showings of "Rainbow on the River" on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. C. A. Thompson, Chairman of Tweed High School Board, T. N. Beatty ex-chairman will represent the Board at the High School Convention to be held in May, D. N. Morrison, Secy.-Treas., will be alternate delegate.

At March meeting of the W. A. of St. James' Anglican Church was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. J. Luffman. Rev. W. G. Swayne read the Scripture lesson and offered prayer. A report of the Board Meeting held in Kingston was given by Mrs. Fred Mitchell, the delegate. Mrs. Drew gave an excellent paper on "Our Christian Duty to Our Fellow-Men." Mrs. Swayne followed with a splendid reading "Prayer and the benefits derived from regular intercession". Rev. Swayne delivered a short address. Mrs. Wallace gave a resume of a chapter of the Study Book. Lunch was served and a vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Luffman for her hospitality.

MAJOR MURRAY ISSUES REPLY

Says CBC Pledged to Try to Unify Canada Move

Ottawa, April 3.—Emphatic denial that he stated at Montreal had the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation pledged to make Canada bilingual" was forthcoming from Major D. Murray, General Manager of the Corporation, following a rumpus in the House of Commons Friday.

Major Murray issued the following statement:

"This is what I said," he declared: "The Corporation was pledged to try to make Canada more unified than it was, to bring about a better spirit and understanding between all sections, and in this connection it was hoped primarily through entertainment to make French Canada more attractive to the rest of Canada. Also through the development of education in the Provinces it might be possible ultimately to open the storehouse of literature and thought of both parent languages for the whole of Canada, but this could not be done nor was there any intention of trying to do it by imposing French on a reluctant English section or English on a reluctant French on a reluctant English national presentation of acceptable broadcasting, it was a matter of programs and avoidance of all main purpose. Officials state that With these clues, police experts hope to track down the slayer of Veronica Gedeon, beautiful model, her mother and a boarder, slain ritually in the storehouse of New York's triple murder. New evidence points to the theory that the parrot languages for the whole of Canada, but this could not be done nor was there any intention of trying to do it by imposing French on a reluctant English section or English on a reluctant French on a reluctant English national slightful presentation of acceptable programs and avoidance of all propaganda."

CHIEF CLUES IN NEW YORK'S TRIPLE MURDER

Veronica's murder was thereby circumstance, she having walked in on the killings of Mrs. Gedeon and Frank Byrnes, the roomer. This towel and glove, found in the Gedeon apartment, police say are positive links to the killer. They were found by police who arrived shortly after the crime was discovered.

The Student Prince (RIGHT) became a Doctor of Law (LEFT) along with the Queen

The greatest war of all time was over, and England along with every nation which participated in the titanic struggle, found herself flooded by men—young men grown old with their time, grown grim with the memory of cruelty, death and destruction.

Like his fellow soldiers, Prince Albert, a navy man, ex-air force officer, saw before him the task of picking up the threads of a life that had been rudely interrupted by the war. Like them too he had stood side by side with death, and steeled his nerves to the cruelty and bitterness of sudden destruction or permanent maiming. But emerging from it all, unembittered, unembittered, he plunged into university life as the most filling method of further schooling himself to the task ahead.

There could be no retrospection; a king's son has too many calls upon his time and energy to spend standing still or slipping backwards and in 1919 Prince Albert, along with his brother Prince Henry, became undergraduates of Trinity College, Cambridge.

No sirn of royalty surrounded the princes there; they entered and were accepted into the full round of university life through boat, and Prince Albert in particular, took up not the regular curriculum but those subjects that would best fit him to play the allotted part in life that was laid before him.

The princes leased a house in Cambridge under the guidance of Wing-Commander Louis Greig, who had been guide and counsellor to Albert in earlier days. And one of to-day's pictures show how the prince, who would one day be king, attended his classes, pedalling a bicycle along the ancient city streets, wearing the gown and mortar-board of an undergraduate. That was the accepted mode of travel for Cambridge students then and Prince Albert would be no exception.

He studied his subjects well did this prince. The other of to-day's pictures show another view of the King—and with him the Queen—in university robes. The happy couple, then Duke and Duchess of York, are pictured as they were honored with degrees of doctors of law by Queen's University, Belfast, in 1924. The Irish institution of learning "too had recognized the student abilities of the king-to-be.

LIVING LONGER

Not all the romance is told in books and novels. A great deal is to be found in the records of medicine and scientific discovery.

Romance in books may cause a thrill of imagination and nerve and the romance of medical discovery should also cause a thrill, because it adds to life.

Full knowledge of the discoveries in nutrition will, according to Dr. Henry F. C Sherma nof Columbia University, increase the average life span seven years and ward off senility and disease. Dr. Sherman sald the old idea that heritage was the principal factor in longevity was "out of date" as nutrition must be looked upon as a positive factor increasing the length of life. The most important part is that the average person has it within his own control by proper nutrition," to add life to his years and years to his life."

Such knowledge, he claimed, is not being fully appreciated today with the result that most people enjoy only passable instead of buoyant health and die years earlier than they nee dto.

Dr. Sherman said that "the averages of our vital statistics improved at many points by the simple taking of a larger proportion of the needed minimal calories in the form of the protective foods." He looks forward to even greater results when the average purchasing power of the people rises.

"It is now clear to any one who will study the evidence that nutrition has greater constructive vitality and potentiality than is foreseen and that even in the everyday choice of food we are dealing with values which are above price for the health and efficiency, duration and dignity of human life."

Expectation indicates a ten per cent. increase in the human-adult life expectation from 70 to 77 years, he said.

This statement comes along with the expressed belief of Dr. Perran if the full advantage were taken of available medical knowledge, life expectancy could be increased ten years, apart from the possibility of discovering an effective preventative for cancer or major heart diseases.

Then just on Saturday the Surgeon General of the United States said it was not beyond the hope of finding some substance which would retard or prevent cancer growth just as coal tar and some other substances are known to have a relationship to the cause of cancer.

Surely such discovery is as romantic and imaginative as a fairy tale; it lengthens and saves life.

ROADS AND RAILWAYS

Those who think in terms of highways and most persons do in this automotive age, especially those who tour abroad will be interested in the viewpoint of an American motorist as to the six general types of highway hazards which cause both accident and death:

1. Sharp curves with too short visibility.
2. Three-lane highways which invite collisions in the centre passing lane.
3. Congested express routes in cities, used also by local traffic.
4. Four-lane highways which lack a centre dividing strip to separate opposing traffic.
5. Narrow highways with narrow shoulders, railroad crossings.
6. Dangerous highway grade crossings and railway crossings
7. Unsafe surfaces, inducing loss of control of machine.

The same motorist suggests that the American railroads should be studied by motorists because the U. S. railways have a very fine low-accident record, both day and night. He says:

"When they increased the volume of traffic and the speed of trains, they did not illuminate their right-of-ways but they did:

1. Build adequate roadbeds.
2. Provide adequate sight distance for the engineer.
3. Separate travel lanes (space between tracks.)
4. Eliminate sharp curves.
5. Reduce steep grades.

In principle and in safety practice, both the rail locomotive and the highway locomotive (automobile) moving from thirty to sixty miles an hour, deserve adequate roadbeds and safe rights-of-way both day and night."

Canadians can give a like study to Canadian highways and railways and see if the railway record in the Dominion might not be studied to advantage by the Canadian motor driver.

There are no chances so unlucky from which clever people are not able to reap some advantage, and none so lucky that the foolish are not able to turn them to their own disadvantage.—Rochefoucauld.

AN IDEAL SPOT

Although Russia occupies one-sixth of the earth's surface, it does not possess a single golf course.

My former haunts forsaking,
Where I we want to play,
For Moscow I am making
Without the least delay,
For, though no links are found there
On which a man can walk,
And I shan't get a round there,
I'll have a chance to talk.

In chatty groups included,
I'll garrulously flit
From bunkers I've eluded
To screamers I have hit,
And how I got near bogey
With driving straight and strong,
Which made (like little dogey)
The pillute get along.

The soga of the third hole,
Done perfectly in par,
When told in this absurd hole
Evocuates the bar;
But, since the local moujiks
Will find such stories new,
Those ignorant but huge-hicks
Will doubtless hear me through.

"HOBSON'S CHOICE" CAME TO THE SURFACE AGAIN in Admiral Hobson's death recently, recalling the war between the United States and Spain over Cuba, following the blowing up of the U. S. battleship Maine in Havana harbor. The Spanish fleet of warships were riding at anchor in the harbor of Santiago with Uncle Sam's ships waiting outside. An attempt was made to bottle up the harbor by sinking a heavily laden coal transport across the harbor mouth. Lieut. Richard Pearson Hobson, a young officer, volunteered to undertake the task with a crew of seven volunteers. The attempt failed as the Spaniards sunk the coal transport in a spot where navigation was not interfered with and Lieut. Hobson and his volunteer crew were picked out of the water by a rescue crew from a Spanish warship. However, it was a big story for the small army of newspaper correspondents who were weary with waiting for something to happen worthy of cable tolls. Immediately under the flashing pen pictures of the best news writers in the States Hobson became a hero, and became a great figure upon his return after the war, and so picturesquely romantic that he became "the most kissed man in America," flappers everywhere developing an insane desire to kiss him. At 32 he applied for retirement from the navy on account of poor eyesight. This was refused and he resigned, to begin a career of reform, 8 years of it spent in the U. S. House of Representatives. His exploit occurred in 1898 and it was not until 1934 that he was given a Congressional Medal of Honor, rank of Rear Admiral, and retirement pay of $4,500 a year. He was a crusader against alcohol, narcotics and un-Americanism, warned of possible Japanese invasion and communist infiltration. One evening recently Richard Pearson Hobson retired early, slept soundly, woke early, ate a hearty breakfast, buttoned up his overcoat preparatory to a trip to his office, when death suddenly took him at 66 years of age.

LEAVENS BROS. TO LEAVE CITY

Will Locate In Toronto In The Near Future

Pioneer barnstorming aviation aces of the Dominion, Leavens brothers of this city, whose landing field and hangars have been located just east of Belleville for the past many years, have announced their intention of removing all equipment to Toronto where they will take up permanent residence. An application has been made by them for permission to construct a modern $3,000 hangar at Barker Field.

Arthur Leavens, the first of the three brothers to learn to fly, gained his knowledge in the early days in St. Catharines. He returned to Belleville in 1927 with an old "Jenny" formerly in service in the United States Army. With this machine he taught his other brothers to fly. Since then, in their barnstorming tours from the Maritimes to British Columbia, they have carried an estimated total of 175,000 passengers without a single fatality or injury to any of them.

One of the familiar sights over this city for some time past has been their auto-gyro, one of the first ever seen in this district. Their recent purchase is a new Taylor Cub, smallest ship of the many they have owned.

MANY MEMBERS ARE RECEIVED

Impressive Reception And Communion Service at Bridge Street Church

One hundred and sixty-three members were received into membership at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning at a special reception and quarterly communion service Rev. Dr. James Semple minister officiating.

The minister spoke briefly on the importance of the communion as the supreme act of worship, the most uplifting and effective of all the regular services of the church. It can be a positive peril if partaken frivolously, he said.

In the early church the service was long, preceded by a love feast and followed by a long sermon. He made the references to the Lord's Supper to the Bible as only four in number and very brief.

The communion is a memorial feast of the church's foundation, which Jesus Himself established as the most fitting manner in which to remember Him. It is the sign of a "new agreement—the covenant,—a ratifying meal between the communicant and God. It is the sign of Christian brotherhood. It is the badge of Christian discipleship, and it is a privilege for Christians to come to His table.

The minister, speaking of the reception of new members, referred to those who came from a living congregation with a long and honorable record in the history of the church and city, a record of almost ninety years as a witness to the Gospel of Christ in Belleville. He referred to the expressions of regret at the destruction of the Street Church buildings by fire. But the church is greater than the buildings, was no easy matter for the members of the merger John Street congregation to say goodbye to the church of their childhood or many of them. Dr. Semple said he had seen tears in the eyes of members on the day when the church was burned to the ground.

"We feel for you," he said. "Everything we have is for you to use, in the name of the church we welcome you into the fellowship of the church. We bid you welcome to the church as the vine your own in its aims and loyalties."

POMPOONFIGURED HORSE TO BEAT

Belmont Futurity Winner in Grand Fettle For Derby

New York, April 5 (AP)—Although fury history and blood lines are arrayed against him, Jerry H. Loucheim's Pompoon, is the horse to beat in the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby, in the opinion of the men who quote the winter book odds.

No Belmont futurity winner ever won the Derby and Pompoon captured that famous two-year-old stake last year to win the greater part of his earnings, which totalled $82,280. Pompey and the majority of his offspring never showed a liking for the Derby distance of a mile and the Downs, May 8.

"He has never shown me that he can't by the route," said Cpt. Hirsch. "He's differently gaited than his daddy and that long stride of his should be just suited for the Derby distance."

CHURCH PLAYERS AT BRIDGE STREET

Napanee Group Presents Impressive Religious Drama

"Into His Kingdom", a one-act religious drama of the dawn of the First Easter and closing on the resurrection, the Immortal Day, was presented at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening in service by the Grace United Church players of Napanee. Screens, footlights and a painted background lending the hill of Calvary with its three crosses as a background made up the stage on which the dramatis personae in the Calaphas household took place. The setting despite the handicaps of the scene set in the open air, and on the small platform was most impressive as the painted curtain held the mind intent upon the drama which was developing.

The play dealt with the story of Joel, the son of the high priest who had been driven from home by his father. The events of the morning just before dawn with the slowly unfolding fact that the son Joel, was that one of the malefactors who had been crucified with Jesus and who had sought forgiveness of his new Lord from Christ were intensely dramatic.

Ruth Greer played the role of Joseph's mother. Iris Semmens acted as Adina his wife; John D'Ocsange as Joel, the son and Gerald Symons as Nicodemus; Frances Caldwell as Tammah, Adina's hand maiden; Dorothy Brooks as Jabal; Jetta Thompson as Reba and Lorne Clark as the Roman soldier. Staging and direction were in hands of Miss H. Vanalstine, Miss M. Hamond and Miss J. Russell.

The back curtain was painted by Mr. F. S. Scott and Mr. Willrid Smith of Napanee.

The costumes were Oriental and effective. Every one of the actors spoke the lines clearly and every word was distinct and the play movements also faithfully matched the cast. Some of the players did very effective work. Iris Seymour as Adina, the wife of the high priest, was excellent. Her acting in the most tragic portions showed she realized that her son had been crucified with Christ and was impressive in its presence of power.

Rev. Dr. Semple at the morning service announcing the presentation of the religious drama at the evening service said that the evening service of the church of the future would no doubt be revolutionized. This opinion he said was upheld by leading educators, preachers, and public men, to whom he had spoken on the subject.

For those who are not used to the use of drama in the church, Dr. Semple made it clear that the drama had a place in religious instruction. He recalled how it had been the child of the church, though in later times, like human beings it had fallen into evil company.

San Antonio, Tex., April 5.—Six persons were drowned in Madena Lake last night. A sudden gale from the northwest struck two boats and caused them to capsize.

Three women were rescued from the water.

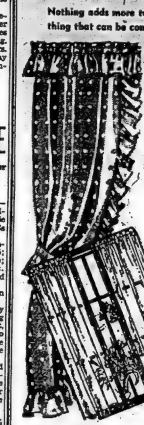
Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop and ma went to the theater, and he was downstairs, waiting for her and she was up in her room making him wait, pop got kind of mad and cut loud. If there's anything I hate to do it's wait, and if there's any time I hate to wait it's when I'm already late, yee gods what a sex. Mending ladies. And pretty soon ma came down in her new evening gown, saying, How do I look, Willyum?



I warn you dont look a day older, pop said. After all this time, it's amazing, he said, and ma said, How do you mean, all this time, you dont look older? You mean this rap actually does make me look old, or it never would of occurred to you to mention that, though of course I was afraid of that. I knew there should of been more silver in it and less black, well I haven't actually worn it yet, I think perhaps I can exchange it if you really feel that way, Willyum, she said.

What way? pop said. For Yee Haw I dont feel any way, I mean what's the dooce is going on here, huh, when your rep is at stake, it looks like a million dollers and no cents, yee gods let's get going, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum dont try to cover up your tracks. I heard what you said, I have plenty of time before me to look like an old woman without starting in prematurely after being married to so many werds. I'm going rite back upstairs again and put on my other rap, she said.

If you make one falls step I swear I'll tear the theater out by tickits under your still youthful nose, you said, Horse blanket in blazes. I was referring to the time you were taking, not to the clothes you were wearing, he said and I said, Sure, ma, I heard him before you even came down.

Then why didn't he say so, hurry up, Willyum, youre wasting valuable time and the first thing you know we'll be late, ma said, and pop said, Give me air, let's go.

Wich they did.

JUGULAR SEVERED

This smiling youngster is something of a plainsmen. Although he looks as if he never knew a day's illness, 7-year-old Ralph Norman, Jr., of Painesville, O., was in danger of death from a blood clot that was traveling towards his brain. Physicians severed Ralph's jugular, one of the rarest cases in surgery, and now the boy is once more normal and completely recovered.

Nice lads down in Panama, Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray discover when they end up in one. It happens in the dramatic romance with music, "Swing High, Swing Low" now on the Bells screen.

"UNIT" OF HOTTENTOT ORIGIN

The name "gnu" is of Hottentot origin and was in use by natives when settlers first went to South Africa. The name "wildebeest" is a Dutch word meaning wild ox, and probably originated on account of the animal's habit of prancing and capering in antics suggesting those of bull enraged by toreadors in a Spanish arena. It is said that the Boers, in early days found that a red cloth excited these animals and was frequently used in hunting them. In addition to the white-tailed gnu, there is a species known as brindled gnu or blue wildebeest, which is abundant in East-central Africa. Gnus have disproportionately large heads which give them a grotesque appearance They have maned necks and distinctive tufts of hair on their faces. The bulls stand about four feet tall at the shoulders. The general color of the white-tailed species is a deep brown. Their horns are formidable weapons and under certain conditions the animals are dangerous.

Ingenuity Makes Attic a Most Attractive Room

An unfinished attic sometimes mounts only a catch-all for broken furniture and discarded clothing. Such clothing which invites moths and old magazines which make that serve merely as dust collectors.

A place of this kind may present it's hazard, and in any event it represents space which might with a little thought and ingenuity easily be converted into a room affording comfort and convenience to one or all members of the household.

By the clever use of wall board the walls and ceiling of an unfinished attic can be attractively covered and a cozy fireplace may be introduced with tile forming a base for the burning logs.

Floors may be varnished in a grained effect, although paint, linoleum, cork or any of the applied floor coverings might be used with equally pleasing results. Bright cretonne curtains add a cheerful note to a window and colouring might be carried out effectively in washable rugs. Chairs and tables not needed in the room used in the house should be revarnished or painted to harmonize with the colouring.

Such a reconstructed room may answer many purposes. By the addition of a studio couch or day bed it presents possibilities as a bedroom may be acquired. It could meet the requirements for a sewing room. It can at all times be an attractive sitting room, or be used as a card room, study, work room or place of general recreation.

Best of all it represents the creation of a charming usable apartment from an unthrifty wasted space.

Funds for improvements are now obtainable from any Canadian bank under the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan.

The birthday cake, gay with lighted candles was served on a glass cake plate which was her wedding present. Her guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Forestell and two children of Madoc; James and John O'Toole of Madoc, also Patrick O'Toole of Springbrook. She had several callers during the day wishing her a complete recovery and received more years of health and happiness.

"Ticket For One"

Judy was troubled about her friend. Lost in her thoughts she did not hear the knock she had followed her into the car. Nor did he notice her until she brought her head up and looked directly into his eyes.

Looked directly into the stern dark eyes of John Talbot!

Judy's breath quickened. A half smile of gladness touched her lips. Then suddenly she caught up from her heart and then chilled.

Gladly he stared back at her for a second then with a curt nod he gas, he bowed stiffly and passed on to the car on other opened. She saw the contempt in his eyes; her own filled with tears.

BACK TO NEW YORK

CHAPTER TWENTY

When Dolly opened the door of Judy's dressing room a minutes later she expected to find the girl sleeping. She sat down at the dressing table and she'd been looking for him every Saturday night when she finally arrived at Dolly's little flat.

"Come, come now, tell Aunty Dorothy what's the matter."

If Dolly had expected Judy to wind her arms around her neck and sob out her troubles she was nonplussed for Larry, she was mistaken. She sat up straight and flashed her eyes on Dolly's face.

"Why, Dolly, John Talbot is here and he hates me!"

Dolly was caught off guard for she thought Judy was beautiful and she'd been looking for him every Saturday night when she finally arrived at Dolly's little flat.

"No, he's not. He's right here in this hotel. I saw him in the lobby and—and . . . oh D-d-dolly , he bowed like a stranger from the waist —and he looked right through me except that he looked as though he hated me."

"And what did you say?" Dolly hoped she wouldn't have anything rashly much the answer meant to her.

"I . . . I didn't have a chance to say anything."

Dolly sighed. Dolly muttered fervently under her breath.

"I wonder what on him now sorry I was and that I didn't know how the story got out? There was someone in that office who knew. . . . and got out of it after I saw him. . . and now I don't know what to do. Do you think I could get back to Paradise if I wrote him a note. . . ."

No note, Dolly said firmly. "I think the kindest thing to do would be to forget it. You see maybe his lawyers told him to be sure and see you to act that way."

Dolly wondered if she'd ever be able to tell the truth after this trip. A hundred times a day she repeated herself that she and Terry were really hoping the child and going to make their life beautiful to be happy but she hated the lies.

They left Havana that night and three days later they were back in New York.

It was an utterly exhausted Dolly and a rejuvenated Judy who greeted Terry when he finally arrived at Dolly's little flat.

He made them tell him about every minute of their time. He sighed with relief when he found that Judy had not been subjected to quisite white skin to tan. Neither Judy nor Dolly told him about the meeting with Talbot in the Havana Hotel. But Terry guessed there were many things that were not told to Terry during that reception. Later, when the girls left Terry even alone Dolly would report faithfully every move as a good lieutenant to her captain. And the things he would have to tell her! She could hardly wait.

Meantime:

"Well, youngsters, are you anxious about the play?"

Was she anxious about the play! This was the moment she had been waiting for. Eagerly Judy reached for the blue-bound script Terry carelessly fingered.

"There you are." he handed it to her. "It's called 'Ilea's Return'. It's the story of a girl who always wanted to be a great dancer. She fell in love with a millionaire and he with her. He couldn't marry her but he . . . well, she took that life instead of her and then when her life disillusioned her. . . . oh, beat it and read it for yourself."

Judy's hands touched the script as though it would break. She hungered to be alone and she walked to the bedroom and closed herself in.

Terry silently beckoned to Dolly to follow him to the little kitchen.

"Let us leave her alone," he said. "Oh, Terry you silly touse headed, red haired Irishman, why will you wear your necktie screwed around the side? And I'll bet your heels need straightening."

"Oh so that's it," Terry assumed a deeply hurt expression "You've fallen for one of those Palm Beach devils."

"We'll talk about that later," Dolly said and famished into a detailed story of all that had happened during their trip. She told him of the curiosity and admiration that followed Judy everywhere. She told him how she had discovered let it be known that she was the apple of Mr. Talbot's eye. She told him how Mrs. Talbot had suddenly departed from the hotel when she learned of Judy's arrival. And then she told him about that bad moment when Judy had met Talbot.

"Boy, oh boy, wait until you see the clippings. I didn't dare bring them with me but you got space! Every front page in the country has been using stories about the girl artist at Havana and as for pictures! They are plastered all over town. We've been dancing in Marshall's office and we've started the stuff on the show.

"Homan and I worked all night for his nights changing the character and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if Judy crashes through. Remember we've made the part pretty simple so that even if she isn't a dancer she shakes as an actress, she can put it over."

"When do rehearsals begin?" Dolly hoped she wouldn't have anything to do with that.

"Tomorrow. Marshall's in a fever over the whole thing and dying to get the show on before the Lenten season begins. There'll be a good many things to get done and I'm going to let you off. We'll have a nice, pleasant, shrewd old stage mamma to look after Judy."

"You'll do nothing of the sort, Terry Shannon, I'll handle Judy and I prefer to do it without any dignant parent.

"Now, Dolly please for you, Marie-Lalley," Terry's voice was very serious.

"Listen, Terry, I'll make my own plans if you don't mind."

"But I do", he grinned, "I mind very much. I need you a lot more than I've ever done, and I thought—well, I thought maybe if you would not mind not having a honeymoon, you might make a date to go calling on the Mayor with me."

"Terry!" It was a cry right from Dolly's heart, and then, from somewhere in the vicinity of his tobacco laden pocket he drew some very small.

"Poor Judy. All she has is a career and wealth ahead of her, and I've got you."

"Sidewalk Secrets"

Draperies, bedspreads, pellet-pelon, tapestry, antique pieces . . . they can all "dare to be individual" at Langley's.

"Oh, that reminds me." Terry reached into his pocket. "A letter marked 'important' came for her a couple of days ago."

"There's nothing important in the world but this. Please, Terry, don't ask me to take it with Judy. She's a sweet kid, but this is my moment." Dolly handed a letter to where she could run away and think about the moment that she had waited for and dreamed.

"How about tomorrow afternoon?"

"Tomorrow afternoon? . . . Oh, you mean get married tomorrow afternoon?"

"Why not? I'd say the morning but you need rest and I've got to take Judy down to Marshall in the morning. I think I can get away in the afternoon for an hour or so."

Dolly sighed, not happily, not unhappily, but with a sense that it was going to be like with a guy who "thinks he can get away for an hour or so." Well, that's what she wanted and she was the luckiest girl in the world. Terry Marshall too she thought, as she realized she had paid no attention when Terry said an important letter had arrived for Judy.

"Where's the letter for Judy, Terry? I hope it's not bad news." Terry looked at the letter and looked once more.

Dolly took it from him and studied the childish scrawl. "Must be from her little sister."

"No ma'am. The address is on the back. It's from the flying parlour, looks, I take it," Terry informed her.

Dolly turned the envelope over and read the name "Lalla Palmer etc." Suddenly the envelope seemed to weigh pounds. Dolly had a premonition that its contents were going to upset Judy. She wished the letter had been lost.

"Judy!" she called.

REHEARSALS

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

The weeks that followed Judy's return from Cuba were weeks of glittering kaleidoscope. There was the excitement of work, Marshall, Dolly and Terry worked themselves to shadows to make an actress out of the talented and beautiful girl who was Judy. Judy had the imagination, the interpretation and the innate artistry. That was not enough. The finesse, the polished performance of the true actress, was the goal toward which Marshall worked. Judy knew that she shall had hoped, before he knew that she had been born with natural suffice, but when he had watched her work, watching the soul back of the color scheme, he had realized that he had found a woman worthy of his genius.

When he tried to find the quality in her which had made her what he believed (as none of the world did) the beloved of a multi-millionaire and the center of a world scandal, he could not fit the pieces of the puzzle together.

But it was enough for this producer that he had found an actress! Her personal life was her own affair with other than its effect on his box office receipts, and since, in this case, her personal life was to be adventure, he shrugged his well clad shoulders and wisely refused to be thought on anything save her progress in the role Dolly had cast her for.

He surrounded her with a cast of finished performers and knew that if she should slip her lines, the play could not fail as a fine performance.

He need not have worried. In her part as Ilea she was superb. Those who lived the part of Ilea. She was tender, cold, sweet, submissive, spiteful by turn as the role called for of the play. A dancer who loved a rich man who gave her every thing to throw discretion to the winds, tailing to realize that love was not her portion, returned to her art.

She lived the life of a great artiste who gives everything to her art. Dolly and Terry, deferring their marriage until Judy's production could be launched, worked like generals with the girl. It was Terry who found the greatest dancing master in New York, the finest dramatic coach, a secretarial assistant for Judy to speak her lines.

No infant was guarded more jealously by doting parents. It was Dolly who saw that Judy's life was regulated on correct lines. It had to discuss were the hours in the theatre, the rehearsals, the relaxation. Each Signal in proportion were the hours of rest and relaxation. There was daily massage of every inch under scientific lamps. Diet was watched and prescribed by the best doctors. Above all, there was sleep.

Dolly would not allow to read a book, to see a movie, No newspaper man was allowed to interview her, Judy's every hour was accounted for.

Judy was thrilled most of the country, was by this time aware of who Judy James was. Dolly refused to drop that pose and gradually and cleverly Terry and Marshall changed the genre of their publicity be a sensation. For Marshall, noted for the beauty and perfection of his productions, to have selected an unknown actress, famous only for her part in a divorce scandal, to lend itself enough to arouse the attention of the press and public.

A long-established actress does not find the waiting before her play opens an easy time of leisure. To Judy it was almost torture. Strangely enough, she suffered less the terror stage fright. She could not fail. She who had been so afraid of everything else in her life, did not fear that. She believed that she was merely an instrument in the hands of people who could not fail. She did not know the extent of her own personal power.

When her body screamed for rest, she forgot it. When she felt she had no voice left, she heard Dolly's husky, sweet tones come from her throat as though from another's. She was tireless. Marshall, watching from the wings, at her light body marched about the stage in her dances, marvelled. He foresaw the success and greatness of his play and studying her sweet, sensitive face, her lissome body which never tired, the steal of genius would one day be her portion, come from what source it would. He had not found yet, but when she did it would break her heart and from that moment she would be finished or the woman who would come out of it would be another Bernhardt.

Triumph, not tragedy, was in the mind of Marshall. The only two friends, Terry Shannon and Dorothy Lalley. The gruelling fear that they had done wrong to deceive the girl by building on the publicity of the past never left them.

"By the way," Dolly broke in casually, one evening "what did you hear from the flying boy friend?"

Judy's face dropped but her voice was high when she answered gaily. "He wrote me, after I told him I'd be busy for a while."

"I suppose he was delighted?" Dolly tried to look indeed."

Judy reassured herself.

"Well, what did he say?" Dolly persisted.

"Why, he said . . . he said, 'I'm sorry to hear you've got a job. He says he's been promised one in the spring with the aeroplane manufacturing boss for which he's now instrument for recording."

"See." Judy's voice was short. She'd never seen Larry but she could picture him from the letter. This poor little kid wanting to share her big moment with him and his fool engines. Judy would soon forget him.

The play scheduled to open March 5th at the Morrison Theatre.

The last week of dress rehearsals was a trying one for Judy in the weight. Costumes had to be refitted. Judy's dancing dresses were on edge. Actors snapped at each other, Terry was always at Judy's side. His work was at its peak. Rehearsals lasted far into the night. Judy's body began to lose flesh, look like a sure success. The timing was perfect. The musical score had to be revised.

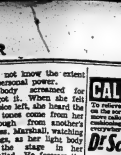
And on the night of March 4th Judy James fell unnaturally. Two bright spots of color burned in her cheeks. Her eyes glittered, her body was dead and consumed with fever. Dolly felt tenderly on her face. A limp and lifeless head in a swirl of silver gown.

JUDY'S COLLAPSE

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

When Judy's lithe figure collapsed lifelessly into Terry's arms at the last stage, pandemonium reigned. Stage hands, electricians, actors rushed to pick her up tenderly. Actors and actresses clustered about helplessly. Judy and Dolly rushed from the pit with Marshall, like a flash he had leaped from his seat in the front of the footlights.

But Dolly felt leaden. She could only clutch at Terry's arm and murmur through her cold lips "Judy, Judy, Judy, Judy, Judy."



Terry calmed her: "It's only a faint, Dolly. Better come along with me."

"Get a doctor, quickly!" Dolly urged Terry.

"Marshall will have done that," he answered as he lifted the unconscious dark manes back of the boxes to the stage.

They had taken her to her dressing room. She lay waxen white on the couch. Dolly had ordered out everyone from the dressing room. She opened the door for Terry and Dolly. They found Judy's maid chafing her limp little wrist. Her eyelids did not stir.

"Dolly, Dolly smoothed the hair back from Judy's cold forehead. "Dolly" she pleaded. "Dolly" she pleaded for the privilege of a shower.

FRANKLIN MARSHALL PRESENTS JUDITH JAMES IN HER TRIUMPHANT RETURN

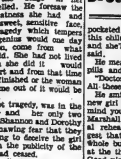
she looked at the brilliant words as a child looks at its first candle-lighted Christmas tree. Then the joy of ownership floods over it.

Already the crowds were arriving at the theatre. Great sleek cars were drawing up. Judy and Marshall were late. The hotel ballroom was black with eager watchers. Marshall fought a way through them for himself and his star.

Dolly and her maid were waiting immediately for Judy. They assisted her off the frock she wore. While she worked with make-up the other slipped off her stockings. Now she was ready. She stood motionless before the long glass that gave back her reflection. The deep green velvet gown that clung to her figure and ended softly in a train at her feet, lent her added height. Her golden hair was brushed softly to hug her head like a cap. Pale jewelry gleamed from, her throat and arms. She did not look like Judy James, ex-chorus girl. She looked like an exotic woman of the world.

Marshall paced the floor. Over and over, he repeated words of encouragement, pleading with her, stressing those lines on which the play must depend. Judy seemed not to hear.

Faintly from without her dressing room door, sounded the hum of the chatter of the theatre die away. The overture was beginning. Next, the curtain rose. What's he done here?



"He hasn't really done anything, Judy . . . well that telegram last night. And I don't know the type of those things that most girls get . . . well, I sent it to tell me he'd gotten a job with some aviation firm. That's what it means."

"Maybe that means he'll have more money and was anxious for you'd to know it." Dolly hoped that wasn't true, but she was glad she'd had the courage to tell Judy the effect she wanted.

"Whatever work is never done." Judy hopped out of bed. "And I've rehearsed this morning at twelve. Tuse me that bothered you, honey?"

WOMEN WHO SUFFER

WOMEN who suffer in silence often pay a double penalty for their silence. The feeling of unselfishness or silly pride. Painful periods are nature's warning that something is wrong and needs immediate attention. Growing girls as well as women in middle life are often sufferers from female irregularities. They should find relief in Beecham's Pills. Mrs. Ethel Dean, Toronto, writes: "I suffered from Headache, Backache, Rheumatic Pains, Loss of Appetite, Nervousness and Constipation. Since I have taken Beecham's Pills I have gained 10 pounds in weight, suffered from headaches and my strength was completely gone. It was almost impossible for me to do my housework. Another advantage I got from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was that I was relieved of those terrible pains at the time of my periods. I am free again." Now size, tube 25c. Buy now!

Dramatic Romance With Music Presents New Lombard -

"Swing High, Swing Low," the dramatic romance with music that opened to three large audiences at the Belle Theatre Saturday is a brilliant love story masterfully directed and high-lighted with good music, dancing and gorgeous settings.

It is also a picture with many pleasant surprises for movie-goers. Beautiful Carole Lombard, who is co-starred with Fred MacMurray, sings and dances in this film for the first time revealing talents which are certain to lift her even to greater heights of popularity. MacMurray plays the trumpet, an instrument upon which he is just as adept as he is with the saxophone, and Charles Butterworth exhibits his talents as a pianist.

Powerful Love Story

But even though it is well-garnished with music and glamour, "Swing High, Swing Low" is essentially a love story. A dashing and a night club entertainer in Panama who falls in love with a hanger-on lucky adventurer, played by Mac-Murray. Through the mistaken that he intend to business, he develops him from a mediocre trumpeter to an international sensation.

Fame goes to the man's head and he forgets Miss Lombard. But he is made to realize that without her he can neither play nor work and he goes back to her begging forgiveness.

The role of "the other woman" in "Swing High, Swing Low" is portrayed by Dorothy Lamour, the girl who captivated Belleville and vicinity screen lovers in her first picture, "The Jungle Princess." Miss Lamour sings several songs in the picture and leads a beautiful chorus of dancers. She wears clothes exquisitely and is a sure star-material in the making.

There are three musical numbers in "Swing High, Swing Low" which are in the hit class. These are "Shanandoah" sung and danced by Miss Lamour, and "I Hear a Call to Arms" and "Then it Isn't Love" sung by Miss Lombard to the accompaniment by MacMurray.

Leisen Directed

The film was directed by Mitchell Leisen, who directed Miss Lombard and Fred MacMurray in "Hands Across the Table." He was also responsible for "The Big Broadcast of 1937," one of the hits of the season.

"Donald and Pluto," one of the funniest Walt Disney Color Symphonies exhibited in many months, and Hall News of the World preceded the feature offering.

The entire program will be repeated again tonight and Tuesday, matinee and evening.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Flying Down to Rio" and "Dark Angel"

Now playing the Capitol until Tuesday nite, two Grand Revival Hits brought back for the many who missed these on previous showing. "Flying Down to Rio" is shown as hit no. 1 and "Dark Angel" as hit no. 2.

"Flying Down to Rio," RKO-Radio "Follies" musical extravaganza, with its flying chorines, its soaring music, its fabulous and its chocolates, literally knocks the spots off anything hitherto produced under the title of "musical production." It is spectacular beyond words.

Equally astonishing is the fact that the production has a story.

Handsome Gene Raymond takes his American jazz band to Rio de Janeiro to open a show in a new hotel. He falls in love with Dolores Del Rio, daughter of the hotel owner, and a romance develops between Raymond and Raul Roulien a stunning Brazilian lad. The fact that Roulien has been engaged to Del Rio for years.

Any attempt to list the delightful and thrilling innovations introduced in this production is futile. "Flying Down to Rio" is one of those films that has to be seen to be appreciated.

"Dark Angel"

Prominent among the many things that is recommended not to miss is "Dark Angel" which is shown as the Grand Revival hit no. 2, for top place on your "Must Be Seen" list. Chief reason for opportunity to see the ever-lovely Merle Oberon co-starred with Fredric March and Herbert Marshall, in her delightful new screen personality—shorn of her exotic make-up, blazes forth in mysterious air.

Based on the book, "The Dark Angel," we think, the most powerful and gripping romantic drama to reach the screen in many seasons. Skillfully adapted by Lillian, Hellman and Mordaunt Shairp, from a play by Guy Bolton, this beautiful love story, set in a quiet corner of lovely rural England, follows the life of Kitty Vane and her two suitors, Alan Trent (March) and his cousin, Gerald Shannon (Marshall).

Since childhood, Kitty has adored the indifferent Alan and Gerald has adored Kitty. Then Alan goes men and in the trenches there comes to Alan a correction of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he tells her, and they plan to marry at once. Then comes a sudden end to everything all leaves. They spend their last hours together trying to forget that they may never see each other again. Alan is reported killed and Kitty's life is broken. After the War she resigns herself to an engagement to Gerald, but she stops in and provides a happy ending.

4 B.C. SCHOOLS

Guard Stationed

The lone bombing occurred at Deutchenia, where the school was damaged slightly by a crude bomb. Police feared a second attempt might be made to destroy the structure and a guard was stationed there.

Other guards were stationed at Crescent Valley and Tarry's. Ten other schools attacked in the past few years with fire and bombs, each of which guards have been stationed, were not affected this time.

Loss in the four government schools destroyed was estimated at $14,500. Loss in the Castlegar community hall fire was estimated at $3,000 but there was no estimate of damage in the other fires.

The fires followed a period of relative quiet since an outbreak last June when three schools a sawmill and a community hall fell prey to bombs or fire. A month earlier a bridge near Nelson was fired without extensive damage. For this outbreak Paul Vaitkin, Grand Forks, B.C., Doukhobor, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Sect is Blamed

The Sons of Freedom Sect of Doukhobors have been denied by their orthodox brethren the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, for the bombings and burnings and for nude parades in 1929 and 1931, for which some 800 Doukhobors were sentence to three years each, at Pier Island Penitentiary in the Gulf of Georgia. Many children were placed in institutions until the parents were freed and all were gradually absorbed into their normal life.

Election of the Sons of Freedom from the Christian Community brought on the nude parades as protests.

One of the earliest bombings was that at Farron, B.C., west of here, when Peter Verigin the elder, then spiritual head of Doukhobors in Canada, was "killed by a bomb placed under his railway coach in 1924. With him died four others, including a member of the train crew, 38, was succeeded as leader by a younger Peter Veregin.

Prince Tanihito Chichibu and his princess are shown upon their arrival at Vancouver from Japan, en route to London where they will represent the royal house of Japan at the coronation of King George VI in May. The prince, brother of the emperor, will sail from New York after crossing Canada. He was widely acclaimed by Japanese residents of Vancouver.

Katharine Cornell, one of the world's foremost actresses, proudly exhibits the medal presented her by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at a White House dinner, which was attended by Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir. The presentation signifies Katharine Cornell's winning of the Chi Omega achievement award.

WINS ACTING AWARD

JAPANESE ROYALTY ARE ENTERTAINED

Ottawa, April 5 (CP)—Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan today will spend another busy day, their last in Canada's capital before leaving for Montreal and New York.

A sight-seeing tour, a visit to the Dominion Archives and the Parliament Buildings, a possible trip to the sugar bush in the Gatineau Hills north of Ottawa and a luncheon to be tendered by Prime Minister Mackenzie King were on today's program.

The royal couple, who will represent Emperor Hirohito at the coronation of King George VI, arrived in Ottawa Saturday, and were the guests of honor at several functions, among them a state dinner given Saturday night by the Governor General and Lady Tweedsmuir.

More than 500 persons, including Mr. Mackenzie King, members of the cabinet and the diplomatic and consular corps last night attended a dinner party and reception to the royal couple.

Copper Cliff Redmen Win Eastern Junior Title and Meet Either Winnipeg or Saskatoon

Sudbury Frood Mines Down Volants in Senior Tilt

WESLEYS STILL IN

Both Eastern Teams Score at Will in Their Contests

(By The Canadian Press)

Hopes high in Northern Ontario and Saskatchewan aimed their representatives at the Dominion's two amateur titles today. Indications the two sections would battle in both Allan and Memorial Cup finals mounted hourly.

Northern Ontario chances seemed the brighter. Copper Cliff Redmen have gained junior finals and Sudbury Tigers are expected to reach senior finals tonight. But the western Province's challenge is nearly as strong. North Battleford Beavers have won a place in senior finals and Saskatoon Wesleys are one step—though a long one—from the last stage of junior playdowns.

Ottawa District ambitions were shattered Saturday in a pair of one-sided games. Ottawa Rideaus were ousted from Senior finals while when they lost a second straight game to Copper Cliff 13-1 at Toronto. Hull Volants dropped the opener of their best-of-three eastern series with Wesleys 7-4 at Ottawa.

Ottawa's elimination meant Memorial Cup finals will be staged at Toronto's Copper Cliff's entry played home games since intersectional playoffs began.

Western Series Tied

The West's junior delegates will be decided tonight at Winnipeg when the third and concluding game of the round robin series between Monarchs and Saskatoon Wesleys' brilliant juniors continues. Monday, wearing the series, swung many observers behind the Saskatchewan challengers.

Northern Ontario fans were skated at the rapid scale Saturday. Sudbury won handily over Hull-Ottawa in the second game and easing down just a little before the courageous Volants' third-period drive, Copper Cliff gave another magnificent show of power to trample Rideaus' three first forward line scoring 11 of the 13 goals.

Tigers did their cast, some of costs, peeping at the forthcoming world tournaments at Toronto as either Dunlaps Ontario representative, tive, may put prove strong enough to tear down North Battleford Beavers' prestige at Calgary.

The Sudbury team climaxed an Ottawa-Hull crowd of 10,000 with a first-period offensive that brought five goals, three of them by Wes Chamberlain. The former Shawville, Que., player scored again before the finish and Don Grosso contributed two counters. Frank Jansen scored twice for a Hull team, whose star was goalie Louis St. Denis.

Arguments Start Again

Arguments over the great junior forward lines of recent years attained new heights today when local critics declared Red Hamill, Pat McHenry and Roy Heninger-of copper Cliff a better unit than Sudbury's 1936 line of Ray Gellifie, Jig Brennan and Joe Coffey. Some even better, too, than the 1934 St. Michael's College trio of Moss Metz, Art Jackson and Pep Kelly.

Redmen have scored 31 goals in six games since leaving the Northern Ontario title. Hamill, McHenry and Heninger-Hamill contributed a huge majority of the total. Hamill scored five times Saturday. McHenry got four goals and four assists, McHenry two goals and six assists. The Copper Cliff star was twice given on for four counters in the first period, two in the second and one in the third.

A main reason Saskatoon is given a good chance of defeating Winnipeg in the absence from the Monarch lineup of Paul Runtz, ailing. The starry wingman suffered a badly pulled thigh in Saturday's conflict after scoring twice. He will be replaced by Lorien Marsh.

Eddie Martinson's goal after two minutes of play Saturday tied the round for Wesleys. He had scored his team's fifth and sixth markers in the lid-lifting period but the only winners was big Pete Ettinger on the defence, who sparked their late rally.

W. A. Hewitt, registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said last night Sudbury Tigers would board a train for Calgary immediately after the Memorial game—if they win. Present plans call for starting Allan Cup finals Thursday and Tigers will have little chance to condition themselves to the rarefied Calgary air if Hull should win tonight cup finals would start Saturday, Volants and Tigers ending their round Wednesday at Toronto.

The crowd at Saturday's Sudbury-Hull attraction was Ottawa's greatest since the Capital city had a team in the National League. Doubtless a disappointment, the customers cheered a Hull team that has created more upsets than any other team in the country.

North Battleford and Copper Cliff have become more pronounced be more rested than their opponents. It's going to be a long, hard haul West for Sudbury or Hull. Winnipeg's Monarchs will be playing their fifth game in 8 nights tonight and Saskatoon has had to toil nearly as hard.

FORK ATHLETES AT EDMONTON

Don Perly Heads Cage Team And Helen Perley, Noted Swimmer

Two former Grand Forks B. C. student athletes are making a name for themselves in athletic circles at the University of Alberta, Edmonton. The sterling performance of Don Perley, captain of the Golden Bears basketball team, who contributed 15 out of a total of 36 points in the play-offs was a big factor in the Golden Bears win. This team won the inter-collegiate championship at the University, according to the report in the Edmonton Bulletin. Helen Perley, a first year student in Arts, is was one of eight swimmers chosen from the University women, coached with seven men, to compete in the intercollegiate sports on Feb. 27th, when teams from the Universities of Saskatchewan and Saskatchewan took part. Among the events in the women swimmers is Mary McCroskey, a student at Ottawa University, Ottawa Olympic team.

Helen secured place in the fifty yards sidestroke race and was on the winning relay team. The women of the University of Alberta came first in the meet which was attended by the Edmonton papers as the biggest and fastest swim-ming carnival ever held in Canada.

Don and Helen are son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Perley of St. John's Church and Queen Street, in Belleville.

Sports Roundup

New York, April 5 (AP)—Note to New York and Los Angeles: Let them fight, Jack Dempsey, who once was a Manhassett, who once was a Los Angeles the other night, has cheered a referee for stopping a ball bout.... Now, he does flock to the hotel swimming pool, where Eleanor (Sis) Holm, former Long-Island State track star, is a lifeguard.... Van Alen of the Dodgers is turning on the heat early. He's fanned 31 men in 18 innings of exhibition games.

That California college pitcher who turned in a no-hitter last week, Breadon-style, is getting better, better, too, than the 1934 St. Michael's Outing trio of Metz, Art Jackson and Pep Kelly.

Redmen have scored 31 goals in six games since leaving the Northern Ontario title. Hamill, McHenry and Heninger-Hamill contributed a huge majority of the total. Hamill scored five times Saturday. MAXIE SILVERMAN UNDECIDED HOW TO KEEP TEAM FIT

Not Likely Copper Cliff Will Play West Before Saturday

MAY PLAY EXHIBITION

Ace Defencemen May be in Action Against West Winners

(By William H. Dunnaby)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 5.—(CP)—Maxie Silverman, wily mentor of many Nickel Belt Junior campaigns, today undecided on the best method to keep his Copper Cliff Redmen in shape for the Dominion Junior Hockey finals. The Northern Ontario Miners await the invasion of either Calgary Wesleys or Winnipeg Monarchs.

With the question of it will be Saturday before the Memorial Cup Series gets under way here, Coach Silverman may arrange an exhibition till for his club this week. He figures Redmen have hit their best form of the season after watching them polish off Ottawa Rideaus 13-1 here Saturday night to take the Eastern title.

"It's rather confusing just what to do", said Maxie, when debating whether to keep his club in trim with his lads in shape with a game Tuesday or Wednesday, or merely let them have team workouts until any event Trainer Fergie Dowdall and Coach Silver bring them each other. Boucher fired the other counter.

Strain Tells on Players

Silverman, whose championship playoffs had told on his proteges, most of them being from 10 to 15 pounds underweight, figures a few days lay off might do them good before the finals. "The strain has told on some of the kids going stale.] An exhibition game in Toronto Junior or Senior City may be necessary, he admits.

There's at least a hope Redmen will have their two injured ace defencemen in action against the western champions. Dick Perry's injured eye is considerably improved although within it still will be doubtful and there is a possibility the same may be removed from Johnny Godfrey's broken wrist late this week.

Godfrey was injured in practice before Redmen tackled Toronto St. St. Michael's Col-lege Majors. Perry was hurt in a game against Montreal Victorias. Both figures his teams chances would be much brighter with these stars in harness as the western invaders are expected to provide tougher opposition than Saturday's contest in the east.

Ross Sweet on Line

Among the slim crowd of spectators, that watched Redmen polish off Rideaus 13-1 in the Eastern title was Art Ross, Manager Boston Bruins. Ross is an unlikely sweet on Copper Cliff's crack forward line of Red Heninger, Roy Heximer and Red Hamill as Junior National League timber. He is always on hand to check the progress of defencemen closely.

It was Ross Gateway-Heximer-Hamill flank, that counted 11 of Redmen's goals Saturday night to put the Eastern title in the bag. Hamill scored three times in one straight games The two have clicked for 64 of the 82 goals in the last eight playoff games. Al Webster completed the Redmen forwards while Rideaus' lone menace was Alex Higgins.

Both Newman and Dowdall, former Athletic director of North York College, were Leslie Lyons' mentors the toughest opposition they have faced in the East. But, several times Saturday, the figures his St. Michael's were a better balanced team.

Redmen's smashing playoff drive to the east has impressed Junior Hockey history. Their overwhelming successes bared on total goals for four games 31 to two goals each:

Copper Cliff 16, Timmins 8.
Copper Cliff 13, Toronto St. Michael's 2.
Copper Cliff 14, Montreal Victorias 5.
Copper Cliff 24, Ottawa Rideau 4

SUNDAY BASEBALL

Allowed by Parent Body When Permitted by Municipalities

Oshawa, Ont., April 5 (CP)—Where municipalities permit Sunday baseball, the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association will be permitted hereafter to indulge in the pastime on the Sabbath.

Delegates to the 18th annual O.B.A.A. meeting, here Saturday when N. A. Taylor of Delhi was elected president, decided to amend the rules in connection with Sunday baseball. The amendment, however, the association was not ignoring or condoning the Sabbath play.

Semi-final and final O.B.A.A. series will be permitted Sunday play but the change has the effect of permitting only County teams to enter playdowns. Winning categories said Sunday ball was played in Essex County for last eleven years but the league was barred from entering teams in the playdowns.

Stan Shantz of Kitchener was elected vice-president. When he sought to have the rules changed for 11 minor players set back to 18 years of age, Shantz, who said such a step, favored by the Kitchener Junior Baseball League would eliminate "packed" junior clubs.

Representatives of the Niagara Baseball Association favored coach or manager being permitted to coach on baselines but the meeting decided on the ten. Niagara delegates argued professional baseball players should be permitted to coach in baseball games but the meeting decided on baselines instead of remaining in dugouts.

R. A. Elliott of Deloro, former President of the O.B.A.A. was given a life member through a resolution of the Central Ontario League which withdrew the move to have clubs permitted to play exhibition games with non-league clubs.

Next year's convention will be held in Niagara Falls.

Manager Mickey Cochrane, who bought Simmons from the White Sox for $75,000 and a big salary, announced the deal at the baseball camp of Philadelphia Athletics. Their camp followers were agreed the price was right.

Estimates on the sale price ranged from $25,000 to $40,000 for the outfielder who hit well over .300 for his 13 years in major league baseball and who was one of the top flight fielders for many years.

RAMBLERS, STARS IN FINAL SERIES

Syracuse Wins Right by Defeating Pittsburg in Fifth Game

Syracuse, N.Y., April 5—(AP) Although they both had to take the long way around to reach the final, Philadelphia Ramblers, Syracuse Stars will meet in the final playoffs here for the championship of the International-American Hockey League.

During the regular campaign these two stood head and shoulder above the rest of the league, topping their respective divisions by comfortable margins. They also had quite a tussle in the western division semi-finals, going the limit of five games against Pittsburgh before they took the deciding game on Sam Jacks' ice here last night 4 to 3.

Philadelphia, which won the Canadian-American League title a year ago and compiled the highest total in either group during the regular season, participated only briefly in the eastern playoffs. The Ramblers waited on the sidelines while Springfield Indians eliminated Providence Reds, then they polished off Springfield in two straight games. Since last Thursday they have been awaiting the outcome of the Syracuse-Pittsburgh playdown.

The final series will open at Philadelphia tomorrow with the second game scheduled for Syracuse Wednesday. Thursday's contest will be a and-home wrangle until finished with the latter set for next Saturday and Sunday and the following Tuesday.

R. A. ELLIOTT OF DELORO HONORED BY THE O. B. A. A.

Past President of C. O. B. I., And O. B. A. A. Made Life Member

Ernie Gibbard, Napanee, and Max Hastings, Peterboro, were returned to their respective offices on the executive of the O.B.A.A. at the annual meeting of the baseball moguls of Ontario at Oshawa on Saturday. Mr. Gibbard stood for re-election to the office of First Vice President and was not opposed. N. A. Taylor, Delhi, replaced Ron Walsh as President, Mr. Walsh refusing from office owing to business

The C.O.B.I., Lake Shore and Hastings Junior leagues were the only leagues represented along the water front. Once again the Lake Shore interests fell down badly and in so doing lost the position the Purdue sponsored at the semi-annual meeting of the C. O. B. I., namely: to permit amateur baseball clubs to compete against one another over cost production games. The Kingston mentors were very conspicuous by their absence, which, like their approach of a habit with the Limestone interests, left their support in the lurch. The T.A.B.A. battled the mingling—argration, but the real trouble was the Lake Shore with which the O.B.A.A. is affiliated to a certain degree, although no amateur cards are taken out by the O.B.A.A. players.

"Peck" Payne, of Niagara Falls, considered the best umpire in the O.B.A.A. circuit, was presented with a relative to the great work done in the Niagara District, the stimulation of interest in that district and the service clubs sponsor junior ball clubs in the district. Payne's first duties are taken care of, one being senior. Friday will be given over to Oshawa, instead of Peterboro this year while Peterboro will be host here for G. and W. in the T.A.B.A.

Although the Toronto interests are backed hard, R. A. Elliott, dean of baseball moguls of Ontario, was honored with a life membership via a unanimous vote. The Toronto gang fought bitterly against the smart sleeper for the balls and strikes, but when the delegates bowed them down with a unanimous vote it was the question." The vote was solid, as the Toronto O.B.A.A. Commissioner, Mr. Elliott.

With one of the youngest clubs ever to get into the Stanley Cup playdowns, Coach Lester Patrick of the Rangers are today the surprise team of the N.H.L., they having rubbed the Maroons out of the picture with a decisive 1-0 and 4-0 consecutive victories. The Rangers now meet the Detroit Redwings in the Stanley Cup finals commencing Tuesday night in Gotham.

VERNON BISHOP REFUSED MOVE

Former Napanee Hurler Not Allowed Transfer to Welland

Oshawa, Ont., April 5—(CP) Amateur baseball moguls of Ontario gathered here Saturday for the 18th annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association. As a foretaste, decisions were held Friday night at which player transfers were discussed by the executive.

Only one transfer was refused and that was Vernon Bishop, who wouldn't allow transfer of Vernon Bishop, Napanee hurler, from a change from Napanee to Welland.

Three Toronto boys made moves in the senior ranks this year, but all-round man, joined the Napanee team, Frank Baker, assistant manager for Dunedee, went to Welland along with two other importers, and Sparky Speer, smart second-baseman from St. Mary's, threw in his lot with Orillia.

Several transfers were turned down by the Kingsmouth League and if that Association does not grant them the O.B.A.A. is agreeable. Transfer of pitcher Bishop from Port Arthur to St. Catharines, however, was held over for further investigation.

Toronto tried for two transfers and got them, three moves brought Pitcher Smokey Smith from Barrie to the Queen City baseball world club as well as Shortstop Harold Crippen from Penetang.

Oshawa strengthened their powerful Ontario championship senior club by picking up Catcher Harry Dennett from Galt and Thomas Young, a centrefielder who hails from Peterborough.

Four transfers were requested by the Cathartic and Stratford, but former got three with Benk's held over and the latter's requests were turned over to the Intercounty League.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Just We Two

By Joseph Carlos

Having put the dinner dishes away Margaret came into the living room of our little apartment and said, "Now, Bill, your vacation begins in two weeks."

"So it does." I replied, laying aside the newspaper. "I haven't thought much about it."

"I have. I've been thinking that it would be nice if we could spend this vacation together—just the two. We've been married almost three years now and with you only home on week-ends I haven't seen much of you. We haven't even been alone on your vacation. The first year mother was with us; last year, your brother."

"Right you are, honey." I returned "We'll stay away this time. Where would you like to go Biloxi again?"

"Oh, any place. Biloxi will do. It's such a pleasant contrast to these Kentucky hills."

"Okay, Biloxi it'll be. And we will just skip away."

One morning two weeks later the rising sun found us headed southward, our sedan loaded with golf clubs, fishing tackle, tennis rackets and other vacation paraphernalia. We approached Birmingham about five o'clock Margaret suddenly facing the idea "Oh, Bill," she exclaimed, "let's stop and see Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien here in Birmingham!"

"We can do anything we like, honey." I replied. "But just who are Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien?"

"They were neighbours of ours years ago. Mrs. O'Brien used to play with me when I was a little girl. They live here in Birmingham now. I'd love to see her!"

"Well, let's look up the phone book. Then we'll go to a hotel for the night, an early start in the morning and reach the coast some time tomorrow afternoon."

After consulting the Birmingham telephone directory and making several inquiries, we drove up in front of Mrs. O'Brien's house.

The door was opened by a fat woman past middle age, grey-haired and with a double chin, who stared at us.

"Hello, Mamma, O'Brien," gurgled Margaret.

"Well if it ain't little Margaret Wentz!" gasped Mrs. O'Brien, opening the screen and throwing her huge arms around Margaret, Margaret returned and for several seconds the stood there kissing and hugging and showering each other with joyful greetings.

We went in and sat in the living room where they talked of old times. "How is Mr. O'Brien?" asked Margaret.

"Pop? His health ain't been so good the past few years. Had to give up his plumbing business and now he just pulleys around. He's out now taking his afternoon walk."

About that time the front door opened and "Pop" entered. In sharp contrast to his portly wife, Pop was a weather-beaten little man, lean and wiry-muscled. After a while I suggested that we'd better go, explaining that we were getting an early start in the morning.

"Why, you'll do no such thing!" declared Mrs. O'Brien while Pop grinned toothlessly. "We've got plenty of room; you'll stay right here. I haven't seen this little girl in over ten years. Besides, it'll save you a hotel bill."

We stayed.

Next morning Mrs. O'Brien prepared an early breakfast for us, after which we made ready to leave. We went through the goodby formalities; I thanked them for their hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien stood on the front porch as Margaret and I went out to the car.

As a parting salute I waved a hand and called out carelessly, "Better go with us."

Mrs. O'Brien said something to Mr. O'Brien. Mr. O'Brien said something back to Mrs. O'Brien.

"Hey, wait a minute!" called Mrs. O'Brien. She came waddling out to the car. "Could I get in, too?" she said. "The coast climate would be good for Pop. And I ain't had a vacation in twenty years. You just wait till we pack—we'll go with you!"

$250,000 LOSS

the flames licked them and thick, noxious smoke from the chemical plant rolled in.

Three Alarm Fire

Officials placed the Merck plant's damage at $120,000 and the Glas Company's loss at $200,000. Fire Director Christopher Carson calculated the full loss at $250,000. The estimate was considered conservative.

The three-alarm fire started some time before last night. Long after daylight today, firemen pumped five streams of water into the flame-racked buildings, and dense clouds of stinging, acrid smoke still rolled down into narrow St. Philpot Street.

Danger was past, though, and much of the panic from more than 30 fire stations had left the spot. The firefighters looked for no further outbreak. Earlier the famous church just a short distance from the blazing buildings had been in imminent danger.

Flared in Chapel

So close was the towering office to going ablaze that at one stage flames from the glass factory pierced through a tiny vent of the church's annex and flared out in the chapel. They were halted swiftly as firemen turned on the Chapel's sprinkler system.

That was as near as they came. Three streams played steadily on the church and its annex. After this, while dozens more hose soaked other nearby buildings and poured into the inferno-like interior of the factories.

Now and again, dull roar from the interior of the doomed Merck building signalled an explosion of chemicals and drove firemen back. At least eight blasts rocked the plant, each time sending great red pillars of flame shooting up into the smoke-darkened sky.

Wall Held Together

For a time it was feared a wall of the building would tumble outward, but it held together. From out the windows leaped long flickers of fire, some of them reaching across the street to lap at office a full red feet away.

Buildings damaged by the flames, or by smoke and water, were the window blind factory of Daley and Morris, the new dry goods store of Saconsky and Freres, the silverware store of Ferrer's and part of the Elite Metal Novelty Company and F. Bacon and Company, manufacturers' agents.

The firemen were hampered chiefly by the biting smoke. Gas masks had to be used to get near the fire, but even then the fire fighters could see only a few steps before them. Three of the firemen were injured, though none was seriously hurt. Three were no persons hurt. There were no persons out.

FIRE AND AUTO

McDonald, 34, suffered lacerations to the head but Miss Mary Marshall, 34, Blenheim, was placed in Chatham hospital in critical condition, suffering from compound injury and facial lacerations.

Milton Crawford was driving the truck which at the time of the crash Saturday night was parked with the right wheels off the pavement. The crash knocked the truck 40 feet. Sawyer's body was found in the crushed car.

Inquest ordered

Inquest will be held Thursday into the death of Alfred Grainger, Detroit, who died in Dagenais hospital after a crash half a mile from Ingersoll while enroute to a relative's Toronto wedding.

Mrs. Grainger was seriously hurt and is in Ingersoll hospital. Two young children, Betty and Billy, were treated at hospital and then taken to Toronto by relatives.

Mrs. William Y. Whittier was fatally burned in her Ottawa home Sunday, when flames from an improvised altar set her dress afire. The 72-year-old paralytic managed to fight her way from the room but collapsed and died before aid could reach her. She had been saying her Sunday prayers before the altar.

Struck by an auto while walking across the road near Sudbury, Mrs. Vera Mottram was taken to Sudbury Hospital in semi-conscious condition. Romeo Ross, 22, Walmsley, faces a criminal negligence charge.

George Mattice, Brantford, and Harry Franklin, Port Rowan, were injured when their auto hit a post and tree in Brantford.

Three Toronto citizens including a five-year-old boy were injured in accidents on city streets, Alex Nimmo, 43, Toronto, is charged with criminal negligence.

SUPRISE

hampered De Llano's concessions-tions from his Cordoba base.

The fall of La Granjuela followed the capture of Valsequillo, three miles to the north, which had been the first objective of the Nacionalist columns.

So precipitous was the Government descent on Valsequillo yesterday the Insurgent garrison fled leaving their breakfasts still cooking in the field kitchens.

More than forty prisoners were captured in the storming of the town.

Around Madrid, the Government army was taking new lost steadily. Progress on the Guadalajara front to the northeast, penetrating deeper into Avila Province to the north-west and pushing the enemy back from the Corunna highway cutting through which General Francisco Franco supplies his Insurgent army based at Siguenza.

Progress at Bilbao

2. The Basque front—The Insurgents, led in this sector by General Emilio Mola, have thrown offensive in the Asturias and a strong army was advancing against Basque, one time capital of the Insurgent regime.

Considering each front as a unit, the picture as it looked from the government, side of the lines today was:

1. Guadalajara—General Jose Miaja's troops northeast of Madrid have pushed their lines on either side of the Aragon highway almost on a line with the important transportation centre of Alcadrones, about 55 miles from the capital.

The town of Jadraque, on the Henares River to the west of the highway, is under fire of government batteries. Its fall would be a severe blow to the Insurgents as it controls the mountain passes through which Franco's principal headquarters towns has been menaced. Indirectly by a government advance to the heights above Navalperal, 18 miles from the city, a main supply and railroad junction for the Insurgent lines west of Madrid.

PARISH COMMEMORATES FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION

The annual commemoration of the Forty Hours' Devotion in the parish of St. Michael the Archangel commenced with Solemn High Mass at ten thirty yesterday morning, the celebrant Rt. Rev. J. R. Nicholson, V.G., with Rev. G. E. Baker as deacon and Rev. J. C. Collins, sub-deacon.

The altar was beautifully decorated with lilies and many lights. The "Mass of St. Cecila" was sung very effectively by the choir, under the direction of Mrs. James Grant. The solos in the Mass were taken by Mrs. Clapp, Miss Bawden, Miss Grant, Mr. Jack Tovey, Mr. J. V. Doyle and Mr. R. Breen.

A procession of the Blessed Sacrament was held with banners being carried by representatives of the Sodality of the Holy Name, Children of Mary and Holy Name Society. The members of the Knights of Columbus acted as a guard of honor.

At the Devotions last evening the speaker was Rev. Father Corrigan, well-known in this parish, where he was assistant for some years. Father Corrigan chose for his theme "Blessed Sacrament," using the text, "I am the Bread of Life," showing the necessity of living in constant communion with Christ. This communion can be brought about most aptly by greater knowledge of the Blessed Sacrament and by frequent communion. The speaker exhorted all to frequently approach the Holy Table.

Solemn Benediction with Rev. H. J. Farrell, P.P., Stirling, as celebrant, assisted by Rev. J. Powell, P.P., Erinsville, and Rev. E. M. Lecy, P.P., Desoronto, concluded devotions of the evening.

This morning at six, seven and eight o'clock Masses were heard, bers of the congregation received the Blessed Eucharist. Tonight the speaker will be Rev. D. Cullinane, P.P., Stoco.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

The statement by President Roosevelt last week that the American Government would not buy purchases from durable to consumers' goods in effort to combat the danger of inflation, brought about a bear setback in New York and found reflection in the local interlisted issues. The Government stated that the dollar was the most important consumer of such products as steel, copper, lead, zinc, aluminum, etc. and the Administration has considered that the rise in the price of these products has been too rapid and not entirely warranted by the gain made benefited the working man through increased wages as at 30,000,000.

President Roosevelt is not endeavouring to arrest the upward movement in prices, rather to spread the recovery movement in such a manner as to benefit the majority of the population. Advice, in the long run, will be constructive.

Western Oils

The Western Oils received a setback this week because Dalhousie Oils, one of the recent finds, struck crude oil producer. However, the Dalhousie Oil Company is managed by experienced oil operators and capitalists as the control lies with Imperial Oil. This should be a stabilizing influence on this connection. Dalhousie is expected to commence drilling again on an early date in order that the West Plank of the Turney Valley might be proved up.

Montreal Power Common Lags

In its disappointing behaviour during the recent past, common stock of Montreal Power Cons. during the recent past has corresponded together with the action of most utility equities. Among other things the classification the shares constitute an entirely desirable holding for the conservative minded individual. From the regular $1.50 a share annual dividend basis the stock yields 5 per cent is obtainable. Earnings of $3.00 a share in 1936 showed ample covering protection for distributions.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, April 5 (CP)—The main action in the early trade on Toronto Stock Exchange this afternoon was in a group of the gold shares scattered heavy trading in base metals and industrials. WALL STREET

New York, April 5 (AP) —Stocks ambled along recovery paths in today's market.

Selected steels, oils, motors and specialties edged forward in fractions to around 2 points in slow dealings.

Gains were fully well maintained near the fourth hour.

Federal loans pushed up briskly in the bond department and corporate issues moved ahead substantially.

In the Canadian division Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific, Distillers-Corp. Seagrams and McIntyre were a shade higher, while Dominion Stores and International Nickel fell back somewhat. Canadian government 4s rose fractionally. Dominion funds advanced 1-64 of a point to 100.31⅜ cents. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines was about even.

97TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

Mrs. Margaret J. Allen, Tweed's Oldest Resident Honored

Tweed, April 5 (Special) — On Sunday, April 4th, Mrs. Margaret Allen, Tweed's oldest resident, celebrated her 97th birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) A. C. Locke. This "grand old lady" of Tweed enjoys remarkably good health and has fair to reach the century mark. Longevity in the case of Mrs. Allen is hereditary as her father lived to celebrate his 102nd birthday, while her mother reached the age of 96.

Mrs. Allen was born in Prince Edward county, the daughter of Abner Morse. She was the eldest of the three children born to Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh. For many years following her marriage to John Allen some seventy years ago she lived in Napanee and later in Marlbank, Hungerford township, where Mr. Allen was a member of the Methodist and Anglican churches. She was deeply interested in the work of the church especially of the Missionary Society which was a particular appeal for her. Two orphan Chinese girls were her proteges for a time through her financial aid they were educated and prepared for service. Interested to read and write English they became Christian missionary workers interested also in the welfare of the Chinese people. One of them corresponded with Mrs. Allen until Mrs. Allen.

The number of years Mrs. Allen lived with her daughter Emma (Mrs. (Dr.) W. M. Mather) who passed away about two years ago. During that time she has lived with her son-in-law, Dr. Locke, and his wife, grand-daughter, Mrs. A. C. Locke. Despite her advanced years, Mrs. Allen is remarkably active and is able to care for herself, making her way unassisted to and from and up and down the stairs. She delights in reading the daily issue of the household and in spite of impaired eyesight assists in sewing and mending.

Two sisters, the youngest members of the family, Mrs. Isabella Bellerby, and a brother, John Burleigh in Tweed.

ALLEGED ROBBERY OF MAIL REPORTED

Pay Cheques of William Larue And George Little Taken; One Forged

Provincial Police today are investigating reported theft of registered mail according to information received by Inspector Hackett, Belleville. The mail contained pay cheques, that are alleged to have been taken from the department headquarters of the Ontario Government at Maple Grove, Belleville, one of the Fish Hatchery at Belleville, never reached their destination.

Those to suffer the loss of their pay cheques are reported to be William Larue and George Little, both of Belleville and employees of the Government Fish Hatchery, located east of this city. Provincial Constable Ernest Hawkins, Belleville, informed of the missing cheques has been in touch with Inspector Wm. Mesars. Little and Larue had received instructions, that their cheques would not be issued until they had made some four days previously.

Authorities during their investigations have found that one of the cheques reached Belleville, as one of the missing cheques was cashed in a Belleville place of business and had been forged. It is believed the envelopes containing the cheques, were removed from the mail box, at the Fish Hatchery situated at the intersection of Highway No. 2 and Herchimer Avenue. It is the seriousness of the crime alleged to have been committed that Provincial Police will carry out an investigation in this matter.

DISMISS CHARGE AGAINST PAIR

Magistrate Holds Evidence Not Sufficient to Warrant Conviction

Charges of the theft of a Redson seal coat from the premises of Delaney's Furs, 113 Dundas street, against Jean Ross and Arthur purrette, both of Toronto, when they appeared before Magistrate C. H. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court.

"The evidence may be positive in the matter of identifying this coat," he said, but it is not sufficient to place these people on trial and I will have to dismiss the charge for lack of corroboration. These people are to be held in custody pending a trial in Trenton tomorrow, however," stated His Worship. Miss Ross pleaded not guilty to the theft of the fur coat from Delaney's to-day in fur store. Gordon Delaney, manager of the store, identified the accused and her partner, Arthur purrette, who also sat in the prisoner's docket. "These two people came into our store around Christmas time of 1935 and looked at some fur coats," stated Mr. Delaney.

"Did they purchase any then?" asked Crown Attorney R. C. Donlan, K.C.

"No, but they returned with my clerk Miss Eileen Berg on March 13th, 1936 and asked to see some Broadtail and Muskrat coats. They were identified and asked to see some swagger coats, that we were manufacturing in our upstair fur department. I went up and got some of these swaggers, but later the man and woman left, stating they migh return. Miss Berg after they had gone to our taking their club bag with them, that I discovered the loss of the Redson seal coat valued at $275.00," stated Mr. Delaney as he positively identified the accused woman.

Put Two Coats in Bag

"Could you put a fur coat in that club bag?" asked Mr. Donnan as he produced the club bag, which was identified as the one in question and also as having been taken from the premises of Delaney's by Miss Berg.

"Yes, I could put two fur coats in it," replied witness.

Upon cross examination by Col. Donlan, Trenton barrister representing the accused, Delaney could not tell the court, what kind of fur coat the man had, but "by the woman on the day in question, Miss Berg identified the coat as one worn by the accused woman."

Mrs. Sadie Ross, the fur coat, is fat of the clients. "There has been absolutely no corroboration on the charge of conspiracy as similarly in the looks of the young lady," stated Mr. Donlan.

"Mr. Delaney is quite positive this is the young lady, who was in the store, however, I am not convinced and that fact has not been contradicted," stated Crown Attorney B. C Donnan, K.C.

"The evidence of Mr. Delaney may be positive you have not produced sufficient to convict this young man and woman," declared Magistrate His Worship.

"The evidence is identical in the case against Burnette, so I presume that charge will be dismissed also?" asked Crown Attorney Donnan.

"Yes, I suppose so, but these two girls should not be discharged until there is a theft charge laid against them in Trenton tomorrow," warned His Worship.

religious education. Mr. Walmsley ceases today to be acting superintendent, but he will be with us as superintendent emeritus. Mr. A. D. Archibald, as superintendent of the school who comes with an excellent record of service, will find he is also "a chip of the right old gentleman".

Thos. G. Bell, clerk of the session, on behalf of the Board, referred to long association with Mr. Walmsley, and deeply appreciated his long service and his deeply Christian character. He accepted office in 1874 and has since given continuous service except for four years, making fifty-nine years of a record, scarcely ever reached in a school. A well-deserved rest, and God's richest blessings will rest upon him. He has held an honored place for many years to enjoy the achievement, worthily won and the leisure from active work won.

Mr. Charles Frost, the oldest Sunday school member of the Tabernacle, recalled early days, told of the school's progress under Mr. Walmsley. Members of the school were to be found in all parts of the city with a tender memory of Mr. Walmsley as superintendent. From Mr. Walmsley's address Mr. Archibald welcome and wished Mr. Walmsley many happy years.

For Mrs. Walmsley a bouquet.

Mr. Cecil Lent for the younger members of the Sunday school said it was a privilege to honor a service of such importance. There was a privilege of regret and it is impossible to pay adequate tribute, "In the Tabernacle Sunday school we are superintendent", he remarked. "Why not more like Mr. Walmsley? For so many years in work of the kind? He did it with the thought of reward, his object has been to do something for the good of the boys and girls. The greatest possession of our days is that the young people are to be clothing with the character Mr. Walmsley has made his contribution to the life of the School and to the life of the city and many others. Today so many have wrong conceptions of life and its values. To these Mr. Walmsley's years of service is an example." Mr. Lent welcomed Mr. Archibald.

Mr. George Wright read the following address, which was later to be presented to the retiring official:

"Tabernacle United Church,
Sunday School,
April 4th, 1937.

"To Mr. J. E. Walmsley,
"Superintendent,
"Tabernacle Sunday School,
"Belleville.

"Dear Mr. Walmsley,

"It is with deep regret that the Officers, Teachers and Scholars of Tabernacle United Church, have decided to bid farewell to you as Superintendent of our Sunday School. We feel sure, however, that you will still be associated with us as Superintendent Emeritus, and pray that you may be spared for many years to serve in this less exacting, but no less important office.

"Since the year 1874, you have been actively connected with our School, first as Secretary-Treasurer, and for the last thirty years as Superintendent. You have rendered a service unique in its length, and characterized by fidelity and loyalty. By your courteous bearing, Christian example and genial personality you have endeared yourself to countless numbers who have passed through our School during your years of consecrated leadership. You have also rendered long life of distinguished effort in the cause of Religious Education. Mrs. Walmsley has shared with you to our best thanks for your unfailing help and kind interest some of loss in your retirement.

"Signed,
J. B. Naylor,
Minister.
George Wright,
Secretary.

"On behalf of the Staff and Scholars."

Presentations

Mr. R. Edmondson on behalf of the school presented a beautiful floor lamp to Mr. Walmsley.

Mrs. Walmsley, on behalf of the teachers, made the presentation of a handsome bridge lamp and table. Mrs. Walmsley, whom she termed as an inspiration to Mr. Walmsley.

Mrs. Jos. on behalf of the Intermediate Club made presentation of a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. Walmsley, a tribute to his faithfulness to duty.

Mr. Walmsley, in reply, said Mr. Walmsley spoke as follows in reply to the kind words and gifts:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, I seem to be a long time since I came to this Sunday school, and in that section, 57 years is almost a lifetime. I have been a member of the Sunday School and from May Day Sunday School before that.

"I have had the privilege of good deeds accomplished; rather he regrets opportunities that he has failed to endorse that he ought to have done.

During those years as Superintendent Sunday School my ministers have come forth from this school and many have become useful men of life and some even who lie in Flanders' fields.

"I have had an influence on my Sabbath School life:—one, Mr. Joseph D. Northrup of Glen Street Sunday School, an honorable Christian gentleman. Wm. Shenston, of Bridge Street, a perfect Superintendent, and Mr. Archibald with the same length of time. No unhappy incident among the students, young and old, has marred the record.

My resignation depended upon a satisfactory successor. The question has been up for some time. Personal inabilities were making it imperative. After the regretable calamity which has overtaken Tabernacle congregation at Christmas, the question of farmers' barns due to inclemenis weather,

WORRIED BY PIMPLES AND ECZEMA

Complexion Unblemished After Six Weeks of Kruschen

"For over the past two years," writes a woman, "my face was covered with hard pimples and red blotches, and I also had eczema on my neck and fore-arms. I tried lotions, cream and ointment, without the slightest effect. I was so worried, particularly as I decided to try Kruschen a trial, and without any exaggeration, within six weeks my face was without a blemish, and I have not had a sign of eczema since. I take Kruschen regularly every morning, and would not be without it."—(Mrs.) J. G.

Pimples and eczema are frequently due to impurities in the blood, which the glands which provide body organs are failing to expel from the body. Kruschen Salts help to keep the body organs functioning normally and healthily, thus preventing the accumulation of impurities in the blood.

His abilities and wealth of Christian experiences were recognized and sought for, we record with gratitude that he accepted.

Then a strange emotion came to me. I had never seen him or spoken to him, but when I heard he would follow in the work, I experienced a thrill like that the old people say they had at conversion. May I ask a fuller measure of union with the new that you gave to the former superintendent.

I cannot adequately thank you all for the bewildering presents so generously given me. I have gone with a sense of duty and under the belief that you would expect and respect a ten lelsure return from a two talent servant, but it does mean you have more than two interests."

Mr. Archibald Introduced

Captain McClelland bore personal tribute to Mr. Walmsley, reading from the minutes of the Sunday School Board, of which were felt for him and which paid tribute to his Christian character and Mr. Archibald also a former soldier, the speaker learned with pleasure that he was to succeed Mr. Walmsley, had spent years in carrying soldiers of the King overseas. Mr. Walmsley must feel pleased, he said, that he was being succeeded by so worthy a man as Mr. Archibald. The speaker personally knew him for high principles. He knew Bridge Street Church for Mr. Archibald, and he knew him as Mr. Archibald. He was glad to welcome him when he came and because he likes to work and likes to make others work. We pray God to bless Bridge Street Church like to work."

Asks For Same Loyalty

Mr. Archibald was accompanied to the platform by Mr. Walmsley at the platform. The new superintendent said that the congregation was exceeding its order of service when he might ask for a double portion of his spirit.

"Give me the same loyalty you have given Mr. Walmsley," Mr. Archibald asked. He could see the reason why the retired official was so highly esteemed. He was a chapter of the book, Mr. Walmsley goes as superintendent emeritus. "And we are going to write it," he told the scholars.

Rev. McGuire presented flowers on behalf of the Onondaga Club for Mrs. Walmsley and Mrs. Archibald graciously accepting and thanking.

Mr. Walmsley then resumed the superintendency for a few moments to close the session.

TANDEM BICYCLE USED FOR TRIP

Weyburn, Sask., Youths Seeking Country in Leisure Manner

On a bicycle built for two, Herman Jackson and Max Weir, of Weyburn, Saskatchewan, hard, youthful, bronzed from days of outdoors, whose sturdy legs have been pedalling for 3,000 miles on their intermittent highway travel alike in sunshine and rain, spent several weeks ago passed through this city yesterday after a brief stop over, en route east.

Their destination the Atlantic coast, but further information as first hand of the fiora and fauna they have seen on the journey.

Barchecard, dressed in heavy corduroy trousers, leather coats and are worn the name of their home city—and equipped with breeches and leggings, the youths are making the trip a leisurely one.

Their bicycle, which is made up admittedly the idea of Herman, Sunday school teacher, who annually has taken monthly vacations on a wheel through the prairie provinces in native trails. This is the farthest east he has yet travelled.

"From the Pacific to the Atlantic" is the motto and profound hope of the boys.

"The bicycle built is easier," advises Herman. "We take turns at resting when we can, on hills and when the road is good. With a single bicycle we couldn't do this.

"We started out early to make sure we'd get there and back before the cold weather comes again," he added.

Laden with heavy kit and pup tent, the boys have made a day by day. Only a few times so far have they been forced to seek the shelter of farmers' barns due to inclemeni weather.

BALKAN INFLUENCE MAY HOLD ITALY TO PACT

Britain, France Reported Ready to Use Pressure To Preserve Neutrality

Mussolini Anxious to Preserve Friendship With Balkan States

ITALIAN CHARGES

If Formal Charges Are Laid by Italy, Action Will be Delayed

Paris, April 6 (CP)—France and Great Britain were reported today ready to bring "last resort" pressure against Premier Mussolini to halt any possibility of Italian withdrawal from the agreement to isolate the Spanish Civil War.

The two Governments informed sources in Paris told The Associated Press, would attempt to hold Italy in line with the 27-nation non-intervention agreement by a threat to steer the Balkan States away from their friendship with Italy which Mussolini is so eager to obtain.

Such a move, in answer to statements by an Italian spokesman that his country might withdraw from the efforts to keep the Spanish War from spreading, the Paris source said, would be taken only as a "last resort."

Italians Blame French

The Italian threat of withdrawal and re-examination of "full liberty of action" in Spain was based on authoritative charges in Rome France had flagrantly violated the non-intervention accord in permitting aid to the Madrid Government.

Should Italy prefer formal charges against France before the non-intervention committee, called only meetings, informed political sources said it would indefinitely postpone any effective and definite action to bar volunteers and munitions from Spain.

Council Reverses Decision; Continues with Angle Parking But Degree of Angle Reduced

Many Delegations Heard before Members Accede to Request

LENGTHY DISCUSSION

Two Properties Owned by City Sold to Residents

The present system of angle parking will remain in effect in this city, the Council decided at its regular meeting on Monday evening after presentations had been made by delegations of the Retail Merchants' Association and a lengthy discussion by members of the Council. When the bylaw was introduced to permit parallel parking, the clause was defeated, only Aldermen Baldree and Clapp supporting and the bylaw was dissarmed. More room will be given on the streets by having the angle at 25 degrees instead of 45 as at present and this will give little better than two feet more width in the available portion of the main thoroughfare.

The business at the meeting of the Council was not as heavy as usual with the result that the meeting was concluded shortly after ten thirty. Two delegations besides the Retail Merchants were heard and each was informed that their considerations would be given their requests. R. M. WERREN IS LIBERAL WINNER IN N. RENFREW

Makes His First Venture in Federal Field of Politics

VOTE IS CLOSED

Riding Always Considered A Conservative Stronghold

Pembroke, Ont., April 6 (CP)—R. M. Werren, Liberal, long prominent in the Farmers' Co-operative Movement and former U.F.O. member of the Ontario legislature, will represent North Renfrew in the House of Commons.

Making his first venture in the federal field, the Wilberforce township farmer and Reeve retained the seat for the Liberals in yesterday's by-election necessitated by the death of Dr. Matthew McKay.

Only 56 of the 58 polls were heard from. While totals on the 56 were not available, polling areas 24 gave Warren 4,86 and Dr. Wood 4,552, a majority of 330. The chief returning officer estimated not more than 150 votes in all would be received from the three remaining subdivisions to report. Results from those polls would likely not be known until next Monday, he said.

It was estimated about 10,000 votes were polled out of 15,800 possible.

North Renfrew, regarded as a conservative stronghold, has sent only seven Liberals to the Commons in the 34 elections and by-elections since Confederation. Excepting 1930 and 1935 the successful candidate has always been returned with a majority less than that polled by the runner-up.

In the 1935 general election Dr. McKay polled 6,057 votes in a three-cornered fight and had a majority of 1,912, largest in the district's history. Dr. D. Cormack, who had represented the constituency for 15 years, 1904-1917 and 1921-1925, Reconstruction, 1,949.

Warren's victory brings the House up to its full complement and raised the Liberal representation to 174. Conservatives have 40, Social Credit 17, C.C.F., seven, independent one. Commonwealth and U.F.O. Labor, one.

Belgium Becomes Neutral, Is Released of Guarantees

Britain And France Will However Continue to Guarantee Her Integrity—Belgium is Relieved of Pledge of April 1, 1936

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, Apr. 6 (CP)—Belgium returns to her pre-war state of neutrality. Letters exchanged between London and Brussels are shortly to be published. It is stated, relieving Belgium from the pledge she gave April 1, 1936, to go to the assistance of Britain and France if either were attacked. Britain and France will however respect the Locarno treaties guarantee Belgium's independence and integrity. But the guarantee will not be reciprocal.

Guarantee of Last April.

The guarantee of last April was a sequel to the tramp of German soldiers in the Rhineland. By the Treaty of Locarno Germany undertook to respect the Rhineland frontiers. Chancellor Hitler claimed that Treaty by her treaty with Soviet Russia had violated the Locarno Treaty. Therefore Locarno no longer existed.

Hitler backed up his view with military occupation of the Rhineland. Representatives of France, Britain, Belgium and Italy, signatories of the Locarno instrument, gathered at London to consider the fate of Locarno. Locarno guaranteed the frontiers between France and Germany and Belgium and Germany. Britain appeared in the treaty only as guarantor. She undertook to give assistance in the event of flagrant violation, but was not guaranteed assistance if Britain were attacked. The Dominions were expressly excluded from Locarno obligations unless they chose to adhere. None adhered.

Baby Weighing Less Than Pound at Birth Dies in Hospital

Fort Erie, Ont., April 6 (CP) — Four days of effort to maintain the spark of life in the body of an infant weighing less than a pound proved in vain last night at the Peace Bridge Memorial Hospital here.

Mrs. Helen G. Jones, hospital superintendent, who with Dr. Frank W. Mrs. Jones said she had heard of infants weighing one pound, and a half being born in Canada but this child was under the pound mark.

It was a caesarian birth and the child was immediately placed in an incubator at a temperature of 90 degrees. The baby was fed with an eye dropper.

Motorists Fined Claim They Were Not Arraigned by Chief

Charged with theft by alleged conversion of police fines collected by him, F. H. Brooks, Chief Constable of the village of Deseronto, was placed under arrest by Provincial Police authorities late yesterday and brought to Belleville where he appeared before a Justice of the Peace, and was released on bail of $2,000.00. The subsequent date for the trial was not set. Inspector Frank Gardiner of the O.P.P. revealed today.

Chief Brooks was arrested at his office in Deseronto by Sergeant Major Hollingsworth and Provincial William McBrien and charged directly with theft. It is alleged by Provincial Police that Chief Constable Brooks had, on two occasions now known, collected fines for alleged breaches of the Highway Traffic Act, and had failed to return the same to the authorities as required by law. The matter was drawn to the attention of the Provincial Police some weeks ago, when two motorists complained that the Traffic Officer in Deseronto had collected fines from them without arraigning the alleged offenders before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace. The fines in each case, however, reported to have been the identical amount of $5.00.

Chief Brooks was arrested on a single charge of theft, but today a second charge was added to that of the original was laid against the accused. Provincial Police added that the complainants in the matter laid by Chief Brooks had "shakedowed" their automobiles from the outskirts of the village of Deseronto, into the village and then accepted the cars, charging the drivers with speeding within the limits of the municipality. Later the officer took the fine and costs levied by him, in full, and in no case, stated by Provincial Police, failed to make the payment to the municipality or to the Highway Department of the Ontario Government. The two cases cited by Inspector Gardiner today are alleged to have taken nearly a year to occur.

Before making the arrest yesterday Inspector Gardiner had a conference with Crown Attorney B. J. Donnan K.C. following which conference Provincial Police and Constable McBrien placed Chief Brooks under arrest. The charges will be heard in a Deseronto police court next week.

Flood Dangers Not Imminent Except at North Bay

North Bay, Ont., Apr. 6 (CP)—Water was six feet deep in some parts of North Bay today as one of the worst floods in the city's history appeared imminent. After a 24-hour rain, water raced down from the hills, causing Chippewa Creek to overflowatis banks.

The water level was above the first floor in at least a dozen homes. Families removed household goods to high ground outside. Firemen rescued one marooned family.

Fears that a situation might become more dangerous arose when a blizzard blew up, the weather becoming colder. If water surrounding small homes froze it was feared families would be forced to move for an indefinite period.

Cottages Isolated.

In the flooded area, where cabin basins were incapable of taking care of the rush of water, many one-floor cottages were isolated.

Though snowfall in the city was light during the winter, considerable snow was left in the bush northeast

Petticoat Government Begins, Because Some One Said 'Beer'

'Community Better if Church Operated on Sale,' Says Mayor

FORD, KAN., 'FOAMING'

Ford, Kas., Apr. 6 (AP)—Someone mentioned "beer"—and things started foaming.

That's why this western Kansas town looked forward today to two years of petticoat government.

Will be a woman mayor, woman city clerk, woman police judge and a woman's council.

Joke Becomes Earnest.

The whole thing shacked up as just a bit of a joke with the women until the morning of the election. Abruptly a third ticket appeared advocating the sale of beer. Right then the telephones started ringing.

The women had E. W. Patterson, owner of a truck line, keep fifteen trucks busy taking supporters of the feminine ticket to vote. The women won over two male tickets by almost two to one.

"We are united on opposition to beer," declared the mayor-elect, Mrs. Catiflene Ernie, 50. She defeated Mayor John Small, 56 to 53.

No Beer Licenses.

"No licenses will be granted in this community," she vowed solemnly between telephone calls either from well wishers or persons seeking jobs.

"We believe the community can be better if the church democracy is permitted to operate. Four of the defeated councilmen leads Sunday school classes."

Mrs. W. B. Warner was elected police judge. The council victors are Mrs. M. Hoffman, Mrs. George Curtis, Mrs. R. L. Wood, Mrs. E. B. Patterson and Mrs. E. W. Stockstill. The individual candidates polled from 74 to 56 votes as contrasted with from 26 to 53 cast for male opponents.

An anonymous telephone call sent police to the Wales's Ontario St. home where they found the husband sitting on a bed. A doctor had been called and Wade received treatment.

RESOLUTION PASSED EXTENDING SYMPATHY

At last evening's meeting of the City Council a resolution of sympathy was passed, expressing sincere regret to Alderman Clen Thompson upon the death of his sister, Mrs. Wesley Way, of Rossmore. The resolution was recorded on the minutes of the meeting.

CHEESE FACTORIES OPEN IN EAST

A few cheese factories have opened, for the most part in the eastern district, but the supply of milk so far is low, according to the current report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"It is too early to state yet whether winter conditions have caused serious damage to clover and alfalfa fields. No doubt there will be some loss but to what extent it is impossible to estimate," the report states.

CITY STREETS CLEARED OF WINTER DEBRIS

A return to the days of hand sweeping of city streets was noted today when ten men of the department of public works were engaged on this work along Front Street, clearing up the debris of winter.

Employment of the men with brooms, is due to the fact that this year no authority has been given by city council for the annual work of flushing and the street sweeper, it was stated by the department. Whether this hand sweeping will continue throughout the summer was not indicated.

BAY OF QUINTE NOW NEARLY CLEAR OF ICE

For the first time in this season, white-caps were observed on the tumbling waters of the Bay of Quinte, hashed into tumultuous waves by the heavy winds. At the present time the bay is reported to be clear of ice almost from Trenton to well past Big Bay. It is one of the most sudden, break-ups on local records, occurring for the most part during a few hours this morning.

AGE OF ENTERPRISE NOT ENTIRELY OVER

"The age of enterprise is not over —in this city at least—it was indicated this morning on the windiest day of the year.

Patrolling Front Street with long ladders on shoulder and tool chest in hand, one of the city's unemployed scanned the fastenings of the numerous awnings that were closely on the watch for weakened fastenings and corners.

Several were found and business was good throughout the morning. It was stated by the busy safety first repairman.

But the height of opportunism was probably reached when a younger resident took up his stand on the corner of East Bridge and Front street throughout the morning with a dozen or so in the hope of rescuing hats blown from the heads of pedestrians. Tips were few he mourned.

TRAPPING BETTER AFTER HEAVY RAIN

Heavy rains of the past day and night have been the answer to prayers of muskrat trappers of this district, dismayed over the scarcity of the little animals and the poor season, so far attendant upon their efforts at trapping.

Scarcity of the muskrats was reported to be due to the unseasonable conditions and low water of the past winter. In many cases starvation is cause of their absence this spring.

Today, local buyers were offering prices ranging from $1.25 to $2 for skins. Rice Lake and Trent River trade, declared to be furrier and in better condition, were commanding the higher prices and were in keen demand.

BOYS SUCCESSFULLY CAPTURE LARGE PIKE

Stranded in a small stone-enclosed pool in the Moira River below the upper bridge yesterday afternoon, a large pike attracted the attention of several youth by its violent threshing in the shallow water. After removing shoes, wading into the pool and baffling with the large fish for some time, the boys successfully captured it.

SMALL QUANTITY OF SYRUP IS OFFERED

A small quantity of maple syrup on the market today brought no change from the weekend prices, Casilio Bros. quoted at $2.00 with quart containers, selling at 50 cents. Vendors prognosted no further reduction in price of the syrup as unfavorable weather has put a temporary stop to tapping operation. "The season is just about done" one said, "and I would advise those who are holding back for lower prices to get their stock before it is too late."

Eggs were quoted at twenty cents, the same as today. Butter sold at 35 cents for two pound rolls, and a few creameries were quoting 36 each. Potatoes remained steady at the week end price selling at $1.90 for ninety pound bags.

PETTY ROBBERIES TROUBLE POLICE

Practically All Thefts Are of Scrap Metal For Sale

Belleville police recently have been confronted with a series of petty robberies, more noticeable since the general rise in the price of scrap metal.

Today George Dunsberry, 67 Dundas St., reported the theft of a quantity of lead, removed from the gill nets stored in a barn, at the rear of his premises. The lead weights had been cut from the gill nets presumably by the use of a sharp knife, leaving the nets badly damaged as well.

In a vacant house on the west side of Mr. Dunberry's residence, Rev. Jean Dundas St., robbers entered the building sometime over the week end and stripped all lead from the entire plumbing system and equipment in the house, being left in pipes leading from the various pieces of plumbing were cut completely off and stolen.

Frederick Sly, 45 East Dundas St., reported that chicken thieves had entered his hen house over the week end and had stolen two hens and a rooster.

For some weeks past the police department has been busy in investigating numerous reports of metal being stolen in this city, presumably for the purpose of being sold for scrap metal, Iron, steel, brass, copper and lead thefts have been reported to the police. In many incidents the robberies have been successful, but in a number of instances have become so prevalent, that the police have commenced the clamping out of such practices were promised by police today.

KINGSTON CLUB GUESTS IN CITY

J. O. Herity Praises Work Service Clubs Are Doing

The Belleville Y's Men's Club entertained over the week end by the Kingston Y.M.C.A. at their regular supper last night at which J. O. Herity Secretary of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, was the guest speaker of the evening.

Mr. Herity, in his address, spoke on Service Clubs and what they are doing today. Service Clubs are here in their present form organization, but they are old in their philosophy. Nineteen centuries ago, Christ tried to put into practice the philosophy to help one another which is the basis for the service clubs today. Service Clubs are today bringing together people, who are leaders in their respective lines, difference in creeds, religions and nationalities. Mr. Herity said.

Socrates said the secret of wisdom is to know thyself and in order to know ourselves, said Mr. Herity, we must come in contact with other people, by comparing ourselves with them. Brotherhood is the greatest work on earth. Christianity has been found difficult but many yet has not really been tried and practised but think all the not too distant future will be the greatest opportunity given to us nineteen centuries ago by the Galilean Carpenter.

There were 18 members of the Kingston Club present at the supper headed by President Forrest Jackson, Secretary Leslie Rivi, Treasurer Jack Hutchinson and Vice President Warren Black.

Belleville Y's Men's meeting next on the play "To Have The Honour" to be presented at the Y.M.C.A. on April 13th, at the Belleville Collegiate, under the direction of Miss Leslie Tulle.

CONDITION UNLIKE MONCTON CASE

Belleville Doctor Assured Symptoms Not Similar

In reply to a request for information regarding the condition of a young patient under his care, Dr. W. J. Morgan of the city received a long distance telephone message from Moncton, N.B., today, from the physician who attended Master Marcel Le Blanc, Toronto, student nurse, who died today.

Dr. Morgan was assured that there was no similarity between the symptoms of his patient and those which attended the disease of the student nurse.

Moncton, April 6 (CP)—Baffling blood disorders which puzzled specialists and commendators from physicians half across the continent caused the death of Marcel Martin Le Blanc, 20-year-old Toronto student nurse and daughter of Judge Le Blanc, Dalhousie of the New Brunswick Supreme court.

Miss Le Blanc was a third-year student nurse at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto, and was taken in February with what was at first believed to be influenza. After recurring attacks she was removed to her home here.

When her illness grew more serious blood samples were taken and mailed by Pilot R. T. McNulty to airplanes to Toronto last week for examination by specialists. Diagnosis confirmed fears of physicians here that the girl had contracted pernicious leukemia, a disease which turns the blood to water, and for which no cure has been devised.

ROBBERS ENTER LINCOLN STORE

Five Pair of Ladies' Shoes Stolen Over Week-end

Five pairs of ladies' fancy shoes were reported missing from the shelves of the Lincoln Shoe Store, Front St., R. Shannon, store manager stated to the police this afternoon. The shoes are believed to have been stolen from the premises sometime during the week. The building had been made by means of forcing a rear entrance door over the week end.

Plainclothes Constable Fred Irish investigated and was informed that Mr. Shannon had entered the store late Sunday night and had found the bar, that is used to secure the rear door, standing in the corner in its accustomed position when the store is open for business. Believing that the door had been placed to secure the door on Saturday night, Mr. Shannon placed it in position. He made no report of the incident, until Monday at noon when he discovered five pairs of fancy shoes were missing from the shelves in the store. Constable Irland's subsequent investigations revealed that a skylight window had been broken and a hole made through which a stick was lowered to unhatch a larger window.

It is believed by police, however, that the robbers, made their gain entrance through the skylight window later gaining access to the rear door and removed the lock-bar, later standing it in the corner and merely pulling the rear door open as they left the premises. Only fancy shoes are reported taken.

Welch And Cash Stolen

Rev. A. G. Sinclair, 152 William St., reported the loss of a gold watch and chain, valued at $35.00 and another in cash to the local police today. The money and watch were taken from the home on Sunday night while the family attended Divine Service. The robbery was not reported until a thorough search of the home had been made yesterday by Rev. Sinclair and members of Rev. Sinclair's home were found to be missing. It is believed that the gain entrance by the use of a skeleton key during the family's absence.

No arrests were made in Belleville today, but a Toronto shoe block available for the six translents, who sought dry sleeping quarters there last night.

Breath-Taking Wind Sweeps Large Section of Province

Almost Hurricanic Velocity Lifts White-Caps on Bay

LITTLE DAMAGE CAUSED

Sweeping into the district from the west this morning with a strength which at times reached almost hurricane-like dimensions, tree-bending hat-snatching winds which held the city in their grasp during the great part of the day, swirled through downtown corners leaving a citizenry slightly breathless through its attack.

Throughout the residential streets of the city tree limbs cracked and crackled dangerously, littering pathways with their snapping branches, while signs lifted from heads and sent rolling at oblique angles while winded owners pursued in their bobbing wake. White-caps tossed on the Bay of Quinte, now cleared of ice through its action early this morning, and on Front Street pedestrians were at times forced to a standstill, edging close to the walls of buildings while heavy gusts tore at their clothing.

It was the city's windiest day of the year.

Little damage, however was reported. Except for the repair of a few signs along the business section of the city and the fastening down of the more feeble attachments in front of gasoline service stations and other places, and the difficulty in walking the wind did little more than furnish a topic of conversation for comment.

What the actual velocity was, could not be learned locally, as we have no anemometer, but it is a small one, used merely for experimental work, and it is not suitable for this type of work", stated officials of the local Dominion Meteorological Laboratory, when questioned. "The nearest one is at the Toronto Island."

Conjectures by citizenry as to the actual velocity ranged from 50 to 60 miles, but the local hats, big hats and little hats, all fell victim to the wind'god which took a large toll of headwear. Next Spring fedoras rolled from heads, twisted in the grip of fate in shirting breezes then suddenly darted across streets, while more particular pork pie hats were in view. The tight fitting hats of the ladies were perhaps the best off, but, the small pancake-shaped affairs seemed to be partial prey for the twisting edicts. One lady, however was fortunate. Veering around the corner of East Bridge with a sudden lifting grasp snatched at a spring-like Easter hat, plucked it from its precarious retreat but futile grasp and deposited it, like some huge bird on a nearby doorway. She resurrected the windblown piece of headgear and nonchalantly walked off, carrying it in her hand.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Albert Joined Peers as Duke of York

Not until 1920 was Prince Albert, second son of their majesties King George V and Queen Mary, raised to the peerage. In the birthday honours list of that year, it was announced that the Dukedom of York had been bestowed upon Prince Albert, thus giving him a seat in the House of Lords and bringing him more notably into the public eye.

King's son though he was and a Knight of the Garter, an honor bestowed upon the 21st birthday, Albert held no seat in the Lords. The Dukedom of York is not hereditary to the king's second son, as the Dukedom of Cornwall is to the eldest son, and must be conferred. Thus, when in 1920 his majesty created the prince Duke of York, he was conferring the first honor upon him that carried with it a seat among the peers of the realm.

The new-made peer took his place on June 22nd, 1920, and the picture records that historic incident. The duke, robed in wears are those of a member of the House of Lords.

The dukedom goes back to 1385, when it was created by King Richard II, and though it has lapsed at times for long periods, it has always remained in the gift of the monarch to bestow upon a son or other close relative. And successive dukedoms have centred around the title from the first conferring until the day last December when Albert, Duke of York, became George VI, King and Emperor. In addition to the dukedom, Albert became Earl of Inverness and Baron Killarney—another tie-up with the Scotland that has played such a dramatic part in his life.

The honors were fitting, for he was already taking an increasingly active part in the official duties that fall upon the royal family, and was deputizing, on many occasions, for his father, the king, and his brother, the Prince of Wales.

sauce. Alderman Armstrong enquired on the basis of the Council's present grant was figured on the amount given by the municipality and Mr. Mahe explained it was the same as from Sidney, Thurlow, Ameliasburg and Belleville governed the grant. The grants last year to the Belleville fair were over $2,800. The Council promised earnest consideration of the request and the matter was referred to Committee.

Jamieson Bone, Cyril McBride and I. Scott represented the Belleville Skating Club and Mr. Bone stated that the club had rented the rink at Dufferin and Queen but there was a deficit of $65.00 and wanted assistance. He stated that an effort was made to erect a tennis court at that point to care for the needs of the youth in the city. He requested that $100 be increased to cover the cost of the grounds were improved. He also requested that the assessment be fixed at $400. Alderman Ellis was again brought into the picture but the Council informed Mr. Bone that a vote had been taken against Daylight Saving and the will of the people still had another year to run. The spokesman asked for a vote on the question of the provincial list. Again the Council promised co-operation and consideration of the proposals made.

Delegation Heard

Russell Woodley, president of the Memorials' Association, and J. J. Galloway were the spokesmen, when the parallel parking, which was put into effect at the last meeting of the Council, as opposed as being detrimental to the business interests of the city. Mr. Woodley stated that the business men dispensed on the rural trade to a great extent and that all were not such good drivers as to make parking easy with the parallel system. He stated the question was a contentious one and it would be better to leave it alone for the present being. Mr. Galloway made a plea for angle parking, believing it to be the best for the majority due to the conditions which exist in this city. "We have only one street on which we can park owing to the layout of the city," said the speaker, "and I believe the system in vogue is the better one for all concerned." Mayor Arnott stated the city was in an unfortunate condition with regard to traffic but he believed that the angle parking was the better for the present. The Mayor stated he would like to see the angle changed but would also like to know how many cars different the two systems would actually park.

Alderman Cressman asked if the merchants were among the privileges now in force and Mr. Woodley stated he bought the merchants should be made to pay if they use the streets for parking, when others who are here to spend money can't get a place to park. Alderman Baldree enquired what other city in the province had angle parking besides Belleville. "They can't all be wrong and Belleville is right," said the alderman. Mr. Woodley stated that probably conditions were different in other places. Alderman Barlow was in favor of the angle parking with a greater degree than at present used. He stated they too feet more width would be added to the traveled portion of Front Street.

Alderman Clapp, who proposed the parallel parking in the recommendation passed at the last meeting stated with the new system there would be ten feet more width on Front Street and even with double parking as is now the case with angle parking in vogue there would still be more room for traffic to move. He stated he would be the last to drive any prospective buyer from the city but he believed the new system would make business better instead of worse. Alderman Baldree stated he had interviewed a large number of the citizens and had been informed they were not in favor of the angle parking closing with the remark, "Front Street is not a parking lot, but a place where a driver can place his car for a short time, buy what is needed and move out to give his place to someone else."

Alderman Jennings thought that truck drivers should be forced especially when unloading on the west side of Front Street, to drive down one of the several alleyways on that side and distribute their load. He was of the opinion that parallel parking was not good for the average driver and left the fixing up of the parking lots at the rear of stores on the west side of Front Street, the trouble will be eliminated and angle parking would be better. He also thought that angle parking was stopping fast driving to a certain extent. Alderman Armstrong stated that Belleville was a rural town and depending on rural trade for its existence and that angle parking could be criticized as there was something better in parallel parking. He stated that 37 cars were lost by the parallel system over the angle parking and taking one for a ten hour period, there were 270 cars containing prospective customers, that did not have a place to park to conduct their business. Alderman Wills suggested that a block be marked off for parallel parking as an experiment but that he would like to know before and the vote was taken only Aldermen Clapp and Wills voting against the parallel parking and the bylaw was defeated.

Committee Asks Support

Reg. Moncrieff asked for assistance with regard to the bathing beach. Cole bought the property at 45 West Bridge Street from the city and $75 was placed for a lot on South John Street. A number of applications for Coronation Celebration committee.

A number of recommendations passed by the Council in committee of the Saturday evening were passed in open council. Clothes were ordered placed in parking places at the earliest possible time, using unemployed Labor Bureau applicants and also that necessary lights be placed in gangways not now lighted.

City Clerk to Write

The City Clerk was instructed to obtain from various similar municipalities the amount of money expended upon advertising for the purpose of obtaining industries and the way in which such amounts be made up, and particularly whether or not they employ an Industrial Commissioner, and if so, on what salary, and whether or not he is on a full time basis. Mr. J. O. Herity will be allowed to make a trip to the United States this month as usual.

A $50 grant was made to George Pepper to assist in defraying his expenses to the motorcycle race in the Isle of Man, the grant to be taken out of the industrial committee estimates as advertising.

GERMANS EXALT NEOPAGANISM

Ludendorff Cult is Recognized By Nazis

Berlin, April 5 (CP-Havas)—Possibility of an intensified anti-Christian campaign in Germany—with the aged General Erich Ludendorff at its head—arose today as Ludendorff announced his neopagan cult had been given the status of a religion by the Nazi regime.

The former Quartermaster-General of the Imperial German Armies, now 72, recently became reconciled with Chancellor Hitler after a controversy of several years.

His statement, issued as a supplement to today's issue of his magazine "An Heiligen quelle Deutscher kraft" (at the holy source of German strength) Ludendorff announced his religion, "The German understanding of God," which he identified with the idea of a totalitarian racial plate, had been given equal status with Protestantism and Catholicism.

At the same time he called upon his followers within the Nazi party and outside it" to wage "pitiless" war against Catholicism and "the state of priests," masonry and the Jews, all of whom, he declared, are international forces bent on destroying Germany.

LONG AND FAITHFUL SERVICE.

Mr. J. E. Walmsley has rounded out an active life in many spheres, in the business field, militia training and the municipal arena and has just closed an active superintendency and official capacity at the Tabernacle Sunday School after about two generations of years. He has made his mark in many ways but in none is it possible even for a man of Mr. Walmsley's attainments to make a greater mark than in the active work of the superintendency which he has just yielded up.

Sunday he stood as superintendent on the platform and could see before none who recalled when he was not an official of the school. As many as three generations have been in the school during Mr. Walmsley's service, a record of which he must be proud. Youngest and oldest separated by the gap of many years had but one thought as tribute was paid to him with kindly words and best wishes for many happy years yet to be, and with gifts, the symbols of the affection of all for him.

No finer expressions could have been paid to his life of usefulness which is not yet closed, because he remains as superintendent emeritus of his beloved school.

Join this week in doing something for the children has been given a worthy place, and it is by such work that he will be remembered by many hundreds of present and former scholars.

FIRE TRENDS

Fire records for the first quarter of 1937 show a decline of 489 from the 4124 fires reported in Ontario for the first three months of 1936. The loss was $1,836,963, a reduction of $615,506 in insurance and an increase in losses not covered by insurance $413,159 as against $222,280.

Total fire loss for 1936 was $7,867,483 in 14,783 fires, which were 148 more than in 1935.

Barn fires, numbering 51 cost $100,158 in the first quarter of 1937, more than double for the same period in 1935. Dwellings were damaged to the amount of $530,566 as against $738,521, a drop of 207,955. Stores damage aggregated $779,566 against $633,015. Factory damage was $202,766 instead of $467,674 in January, February and March of 1935.

From the fire marshal's report it is indicated that there is sign of continuance of the great increase in arson noted in 1936. In the quarter of 1937, there were twelve convictions for arson and allied crimes with one acquittal and one case pending. This is a total of twenty-two criminal cases in the period. There are now six more arson cases pending at the close of the quarter than there were at the beginning.

Gasoline and other flammable petroleum products caused 602 fires in 1936 for a total loss of $234,090.

The Fire Marshal's Department points to the increase in barn fires as a warning signal which should not go unheeded and that increased vigilance should be exercised in connection with such risks.

TEUTONIC PAGANISM

Neopaganism has been given the status of religion by Germany in the latest move and General Ludendorff proclaimed on Sunday an open battle against Christianity and "the caste of priests". With this factor, religious strife in Germany is intensified.

Christian forces of the Lutheran Church and the Roman Catholic Church will not diminish their opposition to this queer trend among the Germans. Ludendorff indicates very clearly why this Walhalla heaven-world of the neopagans has come about—it is a political answer, and has of course naught to do with religion.

Ludendorff may be given an honorary military post—a sign that military power and the Nazi party are the makers of this new religion.

Christianity is going through the furnace of affliction in Germany, just as Judaism is. But they have right on their side against the political expediency of the Nazi state. Christianity cannot help being opposed to such racial paganism.

True religion must come out on top. Walhalla cannot be restored. If there is a Walhalla of the old Germanic gods, these are just dressed up military ideals. There may be a Spartan state but no real Walhalla.

Multitudes of laws are signs, either of much tyranny in the prince, or much rebellious disobedience in the subject.—Marston.

A PORTER'S POEM

Of all the verse inspired by the Great War—and it is without end—none has been more widely read or quoted than that which was written by a London-born railway porter, says the Winnipeg Tribune.

First published in the London Express, Aug. 26, 1914, "The Kaiser is known to have bitterly resented" The Day which (says the Express, in recording the death, last month, of Henry Campbell, aged 63) is "declared to have done more than any other written words to bring home to the world his responsibility for the war."

Yo boasted the Day, and you toasted the day,
And now the Day has come.
Blasphemer, braggart and coward all,
Little you reck of the numbing ball,
The lasting shell or the "white arm's" fall,
As they speed poor humans home.

The arraignment was pitiless: "You spied for the Day, you lied for the Day," dreamed and schemed for it; had sown for it, and grown for it; had wronged and longed for the Day—

But after the Day there's a price to pay
For the sleepers under the sod,
And the you have mocked for many a day—
Listen, and hear what He has to say:
"Vengeance is mine, I will repay."
What can you say to God?"

"The poem, Chappell wrote, "went all over the world, was translated into every tongue and pirated by thousands. Coningsby Dawson told me he found a copy fixed by a thorn to a tree in the Rockies."

Once Chappell was shifting luggage. "Chappell, I believe?".

"Yes," the porter replied.

"Glad to meet you," said the stranger, shaking his hand. Then he added: "My name's Kipling!"

FOOD IS ALWAYS AN INTERESTING SUBJECT OF CONVERSATION for most folks, and as the subject for a book will interest many. Hence George Rector's book, just published, "Dine at Home With Rector", should be cordially welcomed by those who have good appetites and like good food well cooked and plenty of it. George Rector ran a famous restaurant in New York City for many years, known as "Rector's". This book inspired the chief book reviewer of the New York Times to write an extended article in its praise, the introduction of which is odd and interesting, as follows:

"George Rector's book, "Dine At Home With Rector", is a labor of loving propaganda for dunkable doughnuts, inch-thick steaks smothered with onions, Irish stew served with the hair on. It is a throwback in spirit to the days before efficiency and prohibition—abetted by Hollywood and the camera, athletics for all occasions, cigarette and life insurance advertisements, &c.—took the exuberance out of eating in America. It seemingly is meant as a kind of rear-guard action in defense of pie for breakfast, Vienna-rich coffee, hot breads, and three hours for lunch. Subtly written, never loud in its propaganda, it is like a muted gong to call men back to the table, quietly assuring them that a few more inches added to the belt-line will do no real harm, no matter what the women say."

NEW REFORM MOVEMENT IN CHINA HAS ITS HUMOROUS ASPECTS according to a correspondent who says that the movement includes a "War on Fly" crusade, in which military squads are employed to kill all the flies in sight in hotels, eating places and the like. Extreme zeal was shown at first when Chinese Boy Scouts were stationed at strategic points on the streets and with the aid of a box to stand on straightened people's hats which seemed too jaunty for the New Movement, and also removed cigarettes from smokers' lips as a reminder that it was bad form to smoke on the street. Chinese women appearing in public in dresses considered too Western and Fifth Avenue had the dresses stamped in large letters as outside the pale of the New Movement. Seems hard to believe that reform should go to such extremes but the correspondent vouches for it.

Stray Bits

STREET SCENES —

The last of the winter's ice in scattered miniature patches along the curb sides. The return of baby carriage to the down town streets. Pushed by window shopping mothers. Spring hats, awning workmen and drifting tunes of radios through the open windows of upper apartments. Giggling knots of bookstrapping collegiate. Spring lamb chops and second hand store proprietors running themselves outside their cluttered shops. The cigaret butt collector back on the job. Eyes in the curb as he slowly shuffles along. Grass seed and gardening tools in hardware store windows. White coated barbers gazing absently through front windows.

O—O—O

Long Bridge Street buds are bursting and robins hop blithely among the yet naked branches. Flower beds standing in brown contrast to the greener, sodden lawns. Black squirrel scampers and leaps for the nearest tree. And peers up-side down fashion with insolent button eyes. The basement-flat entrance at St. Agnes Manor grounds. And the middle tunic-clad shrilled from group to group of book-laden school children, heslantly homeward bound.

O—O—O

Deserted playgrounds in the offing. And the sign emblazoning the familiar letters of Kiwanis, telling the stranger of money and effort spent on its rejuvenation. Painters with long ladders slung on shoulders and paint cans dangling, pause to observe a squirrel and blithe flight in a sap-swelled maple. An amiable, black-coated spaniel dozing on the nearly verandah arouses with a single, questioning bark. The absence of garbage cans from in front of the more expensive homes. Houses airy and bright, with snowy curtains fluttering idly through opened windows; houses, shuttered, bleak, with unmade gloomy verandahs. All on East Bridge Street.

O—O—O

It is at dusk, when the first hazy shades of night steal over the residential streets, and the lingering notes of the evening robin are still in the air, that April is felt at its best in the city. The summery roar of traffic has faded into a vague darkness; the shouts of children at play become less shrill; mists of spring at eventide muffle the blatant echoes of the day. And when early darkness slips in unnoticed and lights gleam from windows of the homes, the incense of the night the park of an umpire.

mounts in pleasing odor. March blasts have gone; gentle, murmuring April breathes of Mayflowers and June skies just in the offing.

O—O—O

Return of prosperity and better times in Belleville is reflected in the windows and interiors of the city's second hand shops, some almost bare of the miscellany of domestic articles that have jammed them to capacity since dark times first made their appearance. It was when jobs were lost and money scarce that silks and homer were rummaged for the articles which might be bundled into ready cash, no matter how small the sum. But a reverse action has been noted during the last year or so. Things don't bring in one half, no, not one-quarter of the things they used to" comments one store owner, lounging in front of the shop and gazing idly at passing traffic. "But, business is good with us even now. We have a better class of trade. We're not getting so much junk. We're now buying articles and selling good articles — things that have been replaced by new stuff in homes."

O—O—O

A contribution, former resident of Belleville, but now an adopted son and booster for Rochester, N. Y., calls attention to the fact that Rochester is known as the "City of Firsts". He includes the following article:

The American Bible Society was founded in Rochester in 1821 .... Here the total abstinence movement originated in Lebanon .... The city was first to advocate the abolishment of slavery .... Here was started the largest building of the Erie Canal .... The first daily newspaper west of the Hudson River and the Pacific was founded in Rochester.

The Western Union Telegraph Company was organized and founded here .... The Mormon religion and modern spiritualism were founded in the area .... Here tomatoes first were introduced to the world as food .... California first fruit trees came from early Rochester nurseries .... Susan B. Anthony of Rochester was ranged first among leaders of the women's suffrage movement.

The first shoe factory in the United States was established here .... In Rochester was invented the baseball curve.... and the uproar that greeted its introduction precipitated the first mobbing and chasing from the park of an umpire.

SEEK SWEEPING INVESTIGATION INTO FATHER DIVINE, CULT

Threat of a sweeping investigation into activities of the Harlem cult owing allegiance to Father Divine was voiced by U. S. Attorney Patrick Hill at Los Angeles as he prepared to prosecute John W. Hunt, wealthy white socialite adherent of the negro "God" on charges of breach of the Mann Act. The charges were sworn to by 17-year-old Delight Jewett (top right) also a former follower of Father Divine. Police across the country were seeking Hunt (top left). Attorney Hall asserted that the "expose will in all probability lead to a nation-wide scandal.' Father Divine Gower left) lays claim to being the Messiah to his hundreds of followers in New York's Harlem and in other centres. Part of a hand-written letter in which Miss Jewett revealed details of her life as a disciple of the cult chief is also shown.

It is the latest addition to the model village at Bekonscot, Eng., complete with country cloths, stores and other buildings, that was opened recently. The toy village is often visited by children of the English royal family.

17TH BIRTHDAY OF ROTARY CLUB IS CELEBRATED

Belleville Rotary Club celebrated its seventeenth birthday Monday, also the "thirty-second anniversary of the birth of Rotary in Chicago, February 23, 1905. Rotary International now consists of 4,026 clubs in eighty countries with 170,000 members.

President Jos. Shortt occupied the chair and five charter members sat at the head table. The speaker of the day was Past President J.O. Herity, who, speaking on the subject "Rotary Bringing Unity" gave a very fine exposition of the aims and objects of Rotary and what has been accomplished by the organization in the thirty-two years of its existence. Citing the tendency of the human animal to be cantankerous and quarrelsome, a tendency which seems to infect nations as well as individuals, the speaker pointed to the endeavor of Rotary to promote fellowship and good will among individuals and nations, its beneficial effects in spreading the doctrine of good fellowship in communities and the effort to promote world peace. Various phases of human relationship were taken up and analysed in an interesting manner by Mr. Herity, who illustrated the value of knowledge gained and acquired with our fellowmen in an understanding of their problems and the great principles of faith, hope and charity, the greatest of which being charity.

Past President Mackenzie Robertson introduced the speaker.

Past President Ed. Bernstein expressed the appreciation of those present for the address.

Rotarian Alf. Baird was appointed delegate from Belleville Rotary Club to the Twenty-eighth Annual Convention of Rotary International at Nice, France, June 6-11, 1937.

"Ticket For One" — by — Marie Blizard

Judy wore the mantle of her success with grace. Invitations for a few weeks of the play, Terry and Dolly never left her side. They knew that if she had to choose she got her chance, she was quite capable of walking out of the whole situation.

As time went on success became commonplace to all of them. Judy's pictures and news about her never ceased coming. Talbot advertisers sought her for radio contracts. Newspaper photographers begged for the privilege of exploiting her face and cosmetic companies offered her huge sums of money for testimonials. To all of these Terry said "No". And, Terry trusted Terry implicitly, and, since he was her manager, she took no part in anything save the theatre. Besides, she had good reasons were continued. She began to study language. She was dressed by the smartest dressmakers in town.

New York's most expensive hairdresser came to the small apartment and had Judy taken. The most perfect of French maids, anticipated her every move. She was chaperoned by "Aunt Katherine", who almost 40 years before had had the same startling success in the theatre as her charge was enjoying now, and she put as much of her artistic soul into playing the part of an aristocratic aunt to Broadway's newest golden girl.

The apartment was spacious but it was not large. It was not on Park Avenue, the dwelling place of New York's wealthier residents; it was on a conservative side street in the East Sixties. It was never the scene of late or noisy parties, but three day teas and Sunday night buffet supper parties came to be a custom enjoyed by the few close friends Judy had made. Always there were the Shannons. (Dolly had not worn white satin, but she did break down and take a refund.) Judy's great friend, was married by New York's famed and dashing Mayor, who kissed Judy before he kissed the bride.) Usually there were four or five others invited; as a rule Terry and not infrequently the social register. Judy never forgot him or the kindness in his eyes when he had met her own in the elevator of the Havana hotel. She would always forget them because she didn't know what had caused his contempt. She did not dare to write him or seek him out. Not once a day, when she did see him, as she surely must, she would tell him that she had never told anyone her identity or that night in his apartment.

That day came almost a year after "Ina's Return" had opened. Judy had taken her company on the road, and had enjoyed the success that crowned New York's premiere.

It was a snowy Sunday afternoon, not unlike that day when she, half fainting with weakness and hunger, had precipitated herself into Talbot's life. She had been at breakfast, and, leaving the theatre, had accepted an invitation to have a cup of tea at the apartment of a debutante member of the cast.

The room was thick—heavy with smoke and loud with laughter and conversation. Her hostess deserted her, Judy made her way through the groups of guests to the tea table. She was reaching for a plate when the nerve-to-be forgotten days came full on her.

"May I get one for you?"

Judy had boldly looked up, and trembled. For an instant she did not turn about to face the voice. Then she brought her head up with a little speech on her lips. A little speech she never uttered.

For John Talbot, recognizing in the radiant girl before him, dressed in rich velvet with a sable cape, the Judy James he had known, stared at her coldly, passed her the plate and turning on his heel walked gaitily from one side, through the drawing-room and out into the hall.

Desperately, Judy put down her things, with unutterable pain in her and gloves, followed him. She made no goodbyes and no apologies, but as she saw the elevator door close behind him ran to the stairs and flew down them height. She was first to the doorman to open the big door.

Talbot was getting into a taxi. Now his hand was reaching for the door. Judy jerked it open and drew breathless on the seat beside him.

JOHN TALBOT

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

There were probably 50,000 men in New York that night who knew much to find the breathless lovelies in their arms. Judy's record, today's golden girl, sitting beside them in a taxicab.

But John Talbot was not one of them.

He couldn't very well order her out of the cab into which he had dragged her. He didn't know what to do, so he withdrew into a corner and waited for her to say something.

"Mr. Talbot," Judy began. Her voice was quiet and pleading. "I know you are very angry with me. I've been waiting for this day ever since. I've always been afraid it would be last."

It was a lucky day—for you, wasn't it?" Talbot said pleasantly enough, but his inscrutable eyes were not kind.

"It was a day that was not pleasant for me since it was unpleasant for you."

Talbot's brows went up ever so slightly, but he said nothing.

"I wouldn't have to be very bright to know that there is something wrong — well . . . you were very kind to me the last time I talked with you, and now you are — contemptuous."

I think you are exceedingly bright, young woman, Miss James, and I am surprised that you seem to be — pursued by my attitude. Isn't it to be expected?"

"I suppose it is. If you think I told the newspapers who I was when you told me not to speak to anyone. Believe me, please, Mr. Talbot, I did not speak to anyone that night. The next day, when I saw the story in the newspapers, I had no idea—and I haven't to this day—how they found out, who I was."

These were not very brilliant words of defense. But the deep look of sincerity in Judy's voice commanded Talbot's attention. She is an actress, he reminded himself, and she told you, the critic thought, did not hurt him, but that his faith should have been placed in this girl and that she had destroyed it, "put something over", rankled deep in this man, who had found only one woman attractive in his life before this girl who had touched his heart with pity and a desire to protect her. He reflected, sardonically, that he'd done much more for her.

"I owe you something in the world to make you believe me," Judy barely whispered the words, and her hands pressed against each other until the nails made ugly marks in their smooth whiteness.

Carefully, Talbot crossed one perfectly clad knee over the other. He lighted a cigarette at the toe of his English boot. A tiny, not very pleasant smile touched his lips beneath the crisp black moustache.

"Of course it is quite possible that you did not give your name to the newspapers that night.". His voice was stern.

"Then what . . . why . . . I don't see what else . . ."

"I fail to understand how a girl who was starving could leave for Palm Beach, dressed in silk furs, travelling in luxury—less than a fortnight later, Palm Beach —like Havana—being another good opportunity for your scheme."

"Oh," Judy laughed with relief. "Why, Mr. Talbot, I can explain that."

"Do," he said smoothly.

"Why, you see—" A cloud darkened Judy's white face. "Mr. Talbot, Terry had done something she did not know about. Perhaps Terry had known Talbot was in the house. But that was impossible. Her voice was not as sure now. "Mr. Talbot, I wanted a girl who was just my type and a friend of mine took me to him. He wanted me to look like a star, and then another friend met me the children and got the money so that we could have a wedding. Terry was very angry to go for a vacation in the winter except to Palm Beach, are there?"

Talbot didn't believe a word of Judy's story, but he couldn't look into her limpid violet eyes and not hear the pause in her voice, the struggle for words before she spoke. She was pleading for a plea when the never-to-be forgotten days came full on her car.

"May I get one for you?"

Judy had boldly looked up, and trembled. For an instant she did not turn about to face the voice. Then she brought her head up with a little speech on her lips. A little speech she never uttered.

Pop got home before me today, and when she came in he said to her, "You're a fine one, you are."

Yes, I'm glad you noticed it, it's the very latest thing, in fact strictly speaking it's not quite out yet, she said, and pop said, How much was it?

It's three pieces of diffrent color cloth stitched together on the front that make all the difference, ma said. They're suppose to represent a little bunch of flowers without a stem, but they haven't grown enough for anybody to say they are only artificial flowers, do you see the distinction? she said, and pop said, In a hazy way. How much did it cost you? he said.

It was quite reasonable, considering the expense, considering what it is, ma said. It cost three women looking at it on the street, and that's the acid test in the last annalysis, she said, and pop said, Something tells me this is an ideal time to tell you about my new improved pipe, I payed 10 dollers for it, but it's a wonderful piece of imported briar cured in the wood a something of that sort, and I couldn't resist it.

10 dollers, O well, it it's really imported and everything I suppose it is quite a bit, pop, it is, said, and pop said, Yee gods that hat must of cost even more than I aspected, but does one of me pipes I payed 10 dollers till after dinner, I'll feel stronger then.

And we have liver and onions, fortunately, said.

Being pop's most favorite thing, and he ate 3 helpings and felt so good he didn't want to feel worse, so he told ma not to tell him the rice of the hat at all.

Wich she didn't.

WORK OF RED CROSS IS GREAT

Recognized as One of Finest of Charitable Agencies

We take real pleasure in commending the work of the Canadian Red Cross society, and particularly the work of the Belleville Branch of that organization, which is just entering upon its annual fund-raising campaign. The Red Cross is universally recognized as one of the finest and most efficient of our charitable organizations. Ever since the war its peace-time activities have performed invaluable services to the people of this province.

Take, for instance, the twenty-nine outpost hospitals and nursing centres which it maintains in the hinterland of Ontario. Scattered over thousands of miles of sparsely settled territory they bring relief to sick and injured pioneers which would otherwise be unavailable. Situated in areas which are entirely or almost entirely without physicians and nurses, they are a veritable God-send to the courageous settlers of the Northland. Thousands of men, women and children are brought every year by sleigh for treatment at these hospitals. When patients cannot be moved the Red Cross nurses make long and arduous journeys on foot or by canoe or dog team in order that the wounds may have proper attention in child-birth, the mothers limbs may be mended and that lives may be saved. These Outposts are veritable life-saving stations where Red Cross nurses, with limited equipment, have brought thousands of hope for the whole community. Most of these Outposts are naturally operated at a financial loss. They look to the wealthier centres of Ontario to make up the deficits. All these hospitals are to be maintained and extended, the increased money must be forthcoming from people of humanitarian tendencies. A proportion of the fund now being raised by the Belleville Branch will be available for this splendid work amongst the hardy settlers who are pushing back Ontario's frontiers in the Northland, and so adding to the material resources of the province.

The money raised will pay local branches of the Red Cross includes services, to ex-service men and needy veterans and depends ,is; visits of trained housekeepers to needy homes in sickness, accident and other pressing need arises; the training and the building up of the Junior Red Cross, which includes over 300,000 Canadian school children in its membership, who are trained in self-discipline, better habits of health, service for others and friendship for the children of other nations. The place which the Red Cross holds in the confidence of the people is demonstrated by the fact that governments have repeatedly called upon its machinery to assist in relief projects in all parts of the world. The Red Cross deserves, as a result, the most liberal support from men and women of goodwill who have ever modest means at their disposal, and it is hoped the annual appeal for funds, beginning Monday, April 5th will meet with Belleville's usual generous response. An objective of $1,000 is set forth by the local committee.

Comfortable Den Easily Devised In Average Home

One comfortable room where a man can read, write or play cards should be the aim of every housewife who wishes to keep her husband happy and contented. This need not be a room where a wife has to contend a pipe or paper, but it should be a distinct part of the house that can be kept for the husband, be because guests are coming for dinner. Many times, however, this is the place where all the furniture not wanted in other rooms is dumped. Rooms once placed, partly to keep it out of the way and partly to fill up space in the house, can be made into tastefully decorated and thoroughly comfortable rooms. Furniture suitable for everything, they are very likely to be kept there by the room's occupant.

One such room was created in a city home by the addition of two windows. The centre shelves were closed in and covered stores space for untidy papers. The ceiling was painted a delicate shade of grey.

Floor furnishings included a desk and card table and chairs of a dark tan painted the bookcases. An oak chair of leather and a divan were added. The floor covering was gray, a shade deeper than the walls.

Rooms may be redecorated with funds obtained under the Home Improvement Plan, sponsored by the Dominion Government.

Sudbury Heads West to Meet North Battleford Beavers in Finals for the Allan Trophy

Win Eastern Title in Two Straight Games From Hull Volants

DEWEY SPEARHEAD

Two Goalies, Four Defencemen And Eight Forwards Make Trip

By WILLIAM H. DUNSDAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, April 6.—(CP)—Thirteen strong, Sudbury's mighty Nickels today are heading for the foothills of Alberta, bent on retrieving amateur hockey's highest award for Eastern Canada. The Allan Cup went west last spring, when Kimberely Dynamiters proved too strong for Sudbury Falcons.

The big miners, from Northern Ontario let a great record behind them in their bid for Sudbury. It was climaxed here last night as they whipped Hull's fighting Volants 14-3 on the eastern amateur title in straight games. Tigers showed more power than at any time previously in their playoffs during which they dropped but one decision.

To Coach Red Stuart the quest was the "big thing" of my days in hockey." The former Toronto St. Pats defence star led Halifax Wolverines to the Dominion senior title in 1925 and has high hopes of bringing to the Sudbury district the nickel bell for the first time by outmarching North Battleford peavers, western champions.

No Predictions

"I'm not making any predictions" said Stuart as his proteges hurried to catch a train, that left shortly after the game last night. "We've got a great club and we've proved it—if those Beavers can beat us Western Canada has a right to feel proud of them."

Tigers rolled up 30 scoring points in their final stand against Volants, they being 14 needed credited on the 14 goals scored. After a scoreless first session, they bagged nine goals in the second period and rounded off the total with a five-goal, third-period splurge.

Outcleased but not outfought, Volants drew a round of applause from a small crowd as they shot their two goals within 17 seconds of the second period. Gendron scored the Quebec champions' first marker on a play with Ash Bergin while the same pair also combined for the second, Bergin being the marksman.

Dewey The Spearhead

Jim Dewey with four goals was the spearhead of Tigers' attack. Jules Cholette and Don Grosso each accounted for a trio, Harold Chamberlain two, and Bill Regan and Mel Hill one each. Hill gathered six assists with Bingo Kampman and George Hainlin also figuring prominently in plays that brought goals.

To Dewey, the trip west was something like a home-coming. The former Moose Jaw junior star will face four of his home-town pals in the series with Beavers. Dave Duchair, who will faceoff with Jim, Cam Burke, Vic Myles and goalie Sam Davis all battled alongside the Tigers' centre in his junior hockey and football days.

Headed by Manager Harry Towns and Stuart, the club consisted of two goalies, four defencemen and eight forwards. There were no injuries in the camp and the boys were not worrying about the effect Calgary's high altitude might have on them. They take the ice about 11 hours after their arrival Thursday morning for the first game of the best-of-five series.

P. MONATANEZ DEFEATS AMBERS

Non-Title Affair And Lightweight Belt Not at Stake

New York, April 6 (AP)—Pedro Montanes of Puerto Rico was the unofficial lightweight champion of the world today. He earned this title, such as it is, by beating champion Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N.Y., in a 10-round non-title fight at Madison Square Garden last night.

Though he won the last four rounds and Referee Johnny Langford on at the final bell, the Herkimer hurricane was just a breeze for Montanes in the first six rounds.

Montanes dropped the champion with a hard right cross in the first round and kept pounding effectively and more rapidly thereafter. He covered he could get somewhere by fighting at close quarters. But by the time the champion discovered it Montanez's lead was too great.

WINNIPEG WINS WESTERN TITLE FROM SASKATOON

Junior Finalists in West Will Meet Copper Cliff For Cup

A SMART TEAM

Wesleys Lose 6-1; Penalties Having Strong Bearing on Contest

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, April 6.—(CP)—Winnipeg Monarch were the western Canada junior hockey crown again today, won with two hard-checking, fast-passing forward lines, and prepared to swing east for the Memorial Cup final with the classy Copper Cliff Redmen.

Saskatoon Wesleys, deposed champions, headed back west after losing the final game of the best-of-three series here last night 6-1. Overwhelmed by a brilliant passing attack and confused by persistent checking, Saskatoon bowed out of the hockey picture.

Winnipeg opened the series auspiciously with a 5-3 win Thursday and then crumbled 6-8 before Wesleys' amazing, fire-man comeback in the second game Saturday. But they came back to form last night, to win and regain the western title they last won in 1926.

So for the third time in five years, Monarch will play in the Canadian junior final with a team from the Sudbury district. In 1932 they lost to Sudbury Wolves, but three years later turned the tables on the Sudbury aggregation and took the championship.

Battle Royal Expected

This time it is Copper Cliff Redmen and, with the Monarchs-Sudbury district title series even, a battle royal is in the offing, when they step on the ice in Toronto Saturday night for the first game. Monarchs will leave here Wednesday.

Smooth combination plays of the first string line of Al Pike, Johnny McCreedy and Joe Kowzinak brought Winnipeg the western title last night. Among them they scored five goals, one being a pretty little lightning bolt, Lucien Martel, substitute left winger, netted the other tally. Pike and Kowzinak each had two and and McCreedy one.

Eddie Mandarino scored on a pass from Sid Abel on the only Saskatoon goal. For 37 minutes Winnipeg held them off the score sheet.

Pete Ettinger, Saskatoon defenceman, had three penalties while handicapped his team. Loose work around the nets was a factor in Saskatoon's defeat.

Coach Jerry Neil of Monarchs said it was unlikely he would make his classy left winger, gashed on the thigh Saturday night, attempt the make the trip east. Without him Monarch's championship hopes will be somewhat weakened but Martel, who took his place last night, might fill the position adequately.

Shades of the Cook-Brothers and Boucher! .... Three youngsters, fresh from the hockey "sticks" of the Canadian northwest, propelled themselves in the white glare of the hockey spotlight on Saturday night with a flash of hockey wizardry, strangely reminiscent of the famous Cook brothers and Boucher line, which not only blasted the Maroon hopes for the Stanley Cup but left thousands of fans speechless with amazement at the very daring and ice craftmanship of this trio of Lester Patricks "brats" as one sportswriter terms them. ....

A local fan, who made the trek to the Quebec City, said today, that the passing plays of the Colville brothers, and Shilkert, were a revelation to the fans.....Once inside the opposing blueline, this trio of clever rookies fairly dazzled the husky Maroon defence with the speed and trickling of their triangular passing plays.... Big Neil, the hero of the game, played with his jaw in a cast, and was easily the best man on the ice.... Their performance has boosted their chances of copping the Stanley Cup in the series with Detroit Red Wings of Detroit, the first game of which is scheduled for tonight.....

And "Lestare" that wily old Silver Fox of Hockey, sat back in his lair and smiled a smile of smug satisfaction ..... as he saw his prize 1927 edition of the former pro line wizards, give promises of emulating the illustrious feats of their predecessors.....

The gent, who said he would roll a peanut up the steps of the Hotel Quinte by pushing it with his chin if the Belleville Redmen lost to Thorold last week was a pitter-counter. Detroit won the best-of-seven series.....Ridner bet Arsh Stephens, fellow townsman that the Chicago Cubs would win the 1935 World Series.....He lost his bet and paid it by wheeling Stephens in a baby buggy from Harlan, Kentucky to Stephens home at Hull's baseball park.....Just a distance of 500 miles.....This trip started August 8th, 1936 and ended November 7th of the same year.....Ridner wore out two baby buggies, one bicycle and a third.....Also three pairs of shoes and tires. Total expenses for the men was $70.00.....

Hull Volants, wear black uniforms on the ice and now the whole population of the twin town are wearing the same color.....And if you think these Copper Cliff boys aren't in a scoring mood just get an eyeful of their playoff record to date.....Sixty seven times in four games they rattled the latticework behind opposing goalies..... Seventy eighteen times against opponents they have seen the red light flash from their own caps.....Cecil Clutchburn's "black-seeded" one of their aces, got eighteen in regular Saturday night session.....Non supports were given as the reason.....In spite of the gaudy record of the fence-busttin' Yankees, the Detroit Tigers are the only ball team, within the American League flag—by Detroit baseball writers.....

RANGERS, WINGS READY FOR TEST IN N. Y. TONIGHT

Stanley Cup Will be Prize Teams Will Battle For

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, April 6—(CP)— New York Rangers, the "youth movement" team of the National Hockey League, and the champion Detroit Red Wings open their "blue chips" series in Madison Square Garden tonight for the Stanley Cup with confidence the keynote of both outfits.

If the rival managers, silvery-haired Lester Patrick and portly Jack Adams, each have the right dope, the Reds will likely go the full five-game route before the resting place of hockey's highest award and world championship is decided. Both see nothing but victory.

Patrick leaving Detroit with his Stanley Cup holders, Adams came up with this: "We ought to take the Rangers, barring bad accidents. We'll be trying to replace no one, and we can do it with the Stanley Cup at stake."

Even Chance Says Patrick

Said Patrick: "We should win 4 to 2 favorites to take the first game or even three. Then Detroit power will have the ice advantage after the opener, I figure if the odds are even. Red Wings have the edge because they should not be more than 8 to 5 against us. I think we have at least an even chance to win the cup."

Tonight's battle will be Manhattan's last this season. When the game is over a circus moves into the garden and the remaining matchless dope of many ice campaigners is quite the reverse—of five series—will be played in Detroit Olympia, with 15,000 seats already sold for Thursday's and Sunday's games.

Just as many fans as can find elbow room are declared to turn out to watch Rangers attempt to make their playoff record for straight wins, fairly yesterday the Garden's 16,000 capacity was booked.

Patrick, pleased at the clean-cut and decisive injection of youth in the Ranger lineup has paid this season, figured his outfit in great shape for the tussle. "Success hasn't gone to their heads," he declared.

Adults, Wings Are Tough

The Ranger generalissimo admitted Red Wings had been a tough assignment all season but said, that did not necessarily mean a change from the tactics, that knocked Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons from the cup fray in straight games.

"We'll play semi-cautiously — waiting for the breaks rather than making them," said Patrick.

Any particular strategy Adams has worked out, he kept to himself, but said, "I'll mike Lary Aurie in the Garden. His greatest efficiency has been there. But Canadiens couldn't beat us with Aurie out and the Rangers can't either."

Aurie, high-scoring Detroit forward "has a leg" during the Red Wings' last Garden appearance. He came along with the team and the crowd watch the cup engagement from the sidelines.

Probable lineups:

Rangers	Position	Detroit
	Goal
Kerr		Smith
	Defence
Heller		Goodfellow
Poulier		McNamara
	Centre
Boucher		Barry
	Wings
Dillon		Lewis
H. Patrick		H. Jackson

Ranger subs—M. Colville, N. Colville, Shibicky, Watson, Keeling, Pratt, Cooper, Johnson.

Detroit subs—Hoyle, Pettinger, W. Jackson, Aurie, Romnes, Kelly, Mackie, Bowman, Gallagher.

O.H.A. Junior "B" Round Robin Series
Barrie 7, Guelph 2.

While attending the annual meeting of the O.H.A.A. on Saturday we struck up a lengthy conversation with Bill Snyder, genial and personal secretary of the parent hockey association. "When are you going to remove that bug-bear, the 50 cent certification fee from the senior and intermediate clubs? You fellers may not realize it, but the four bucks a small rural team has to lay out for these certificate tax is a real burden. "Why not in the sticks, where these rural leagues are operated on a shoestring don't take in four dollars a game" we replied to Mr. Snyder. "True enough my boy. Full well we realize this fact and by 1938 we hope to be able to discontinue the assessment on our certificate tax," explained Bill Snyder.

Of course insofar as the individual baseball clubs are concerned they benefit by the affiliation through their respective leagues. The affiliation fee for an intermediate league being ten dollars. The individual clubs do not have to pay the AFFILIATION FEE to the parent body, as the O.B.A.A. is an associate member of the O.H.A. as is also the O.H.A. for example. If there are eight clubs in the affiliated with the Bay of Quinte League the entrance fee of that intermediate series would be eighty dollars and the certificate fee of 25 cents per player. In the O.H.A. each individual club must pay a ten dollar affiliation fee, which is also a big difference financially to the parent body in the matter of operating revenue received.

Throughout the length and breath of the province the O.B.A.A. is endeavouring to interest the small rural leagues in affiliating in intermediate "C" series, which is being operated purely for such leagues and gives the winners of these little loops an opportunity to test their relative strength with other rural leagues. For the past few seasons the South Hastings league has operated successfully within itself and to such a point, that it would be advisable for this league to affiliate with the O.B.A.A. we'd imagine. There is only one other league, which is not now affiliated with the O.B.A. in this province, a rural league north of Kingston.

During Saturday's meeting, we, while in company with the Hastings County League, smugly suggested the amendment entered by the Niagara Falls A.B.A. namely:— "That a signed coach or manager be allowed to coach on the bench during all minor games." After entering the suggestion the Niagara Falls interests finally put the skids under the recommendation of when "Peck" Payne, member of minor league ball in the Falls, promptly arose to his feet and asked permission to have professional hockey players act as coaches for their four junior clubs and declared he could successfully do this providing drawing purposes. Needless to say Peck's words were wasted and we all had to suffer, as the amendment seemed to meet with favour until Mr. Payne stated his reasons. "Oh well, it was worth trying anyhow," Peck stated to us after when he took him over the river for a few jumps for membership the proposed idea.

Playoff Records of Rangers, Wings

New York, April 6—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers, finalists for hockey's highest honors, have enjoyed differing paths in their years of hunting for the Stanley Cup.

Rangers sprang into prominence from their first year in the National Hockey League and won the cup as far back as 1928, repeating in 1933. In only one year, 1936, were they out of the play-offs.

On the other hand Detroit began slowly and cut no real figure in the post-season battles until 1934. Then, as Jack Adams' building process began to produce results, the Reds clicked. They reached the final that year, winning the N.H.L. title but losing to Chicago Black Hawks in the cup final. In 1935 Detroit did not make the playoffs but in 1936 won the league title and the Stanley Cup. This year they have again clinched the league title.

Record of Teams

The 10-year play-off records of both teams:

1927—Rangers finished first, beaten by Boston; Detroit finished last.

1928—Rangers finished second, defeated Pittsburgh and Boston then won Stanley Cup over Montreal Maroons. Detroit was fourth.

1929—Rangers ended second, defeated Amerricans and Toronto to reach cup final where lost to Boston. Detroit finished third, and lost to Toronto.

1930—Rangers finished third, defeated Ottawa but lost to Canadiens; Detroit was fourth.

1931—Rangers finished third, defeated Maroons but lost to Chicago; Detroit was fourth.

1932—Rangers finished third, lost to Montreal Maroons; Detroit finished fourth.

1933—Rangers finished second, defeated Canadiens but lost to Montreal Maroons in cup final, three straight; Detroit was third, defeated Americans.

1934—Rangers finished third, defeated Montreal Maroons but lost to Chicago; Detroit finished second, defeated Toronto for league title but lost to Chicago for cup.

1935—Rangers finished fourth; Detroit finished first, defeated Montreal Maroons for league title and Toronto for the cup.

1936—Rangers finished fourth; Detroit finished first, defeated Montreal Canadiens but lost to Montreal Maroons in cup final.

1937—Rangers finished first, beat Montreal Canadiens but lost to Montreal Maroons; Detroit finished last, defeated Toronto for league title and Toronto for the cup.

Cobourg Pepper, Canadian senior cycle champion rider who hopes to compete in the Isle of Man races in June, received another tempting offer last week. The Supreme Cycle Company of Toronto on the 250 C.C. machine and are building two machines especially for the trip. Pepper has agreed to ride one of them. This means that Pepper has now been hooked by the lure of the Isle of Man. Pepper is quite anxious to match skills with the crack riders of the Old Country, but needs financial assistance.

Word has it that the Corbin Hardware is seeking a berth in the intermediate "A" ranks of the O.B.A.A. That little bird also tells us that Clarence Tuttle, receiver of the Ferrona mine when they won the "A" title in 1936, is confining his laborious efforts in and around the Corbin area. Which reminds us that days, while Johnnie Bawden, whose home is in Corbin, has been rated a dizzy heights, has been offered a job at the same institution, while Gerald "Shad" Ethier has a job waiting for him there also. At any rate the industrial scribblers are convening in the Asjnaa Club rooms every tonight to see what it's all about and whether it is advisable for Corbin to join the Belleville Softball Association or run their own show independently. Oh yes, Shad is married.

The National Hockey League's benefit game for the family of the late Howie Morenz has been postponed from October, when unsoubtedly a larger build-up can be established, to proposed the Morenz' old team, the Montreal Canadiens, meet an all star team picked from other clubs in the league.

The Kimberly "Dynamiters" world's amateur hockey champions, will not compete in the International Hockey Tournament to be played in Toronto at the Gardens during the month. The Kimberly Dynamiter champs of the U.S.A., the forthcoming Allan Cup champions, the Winnipeg Lions, winners of the National League in England and a fourth team, yet unnamed, will be the contestants. Maybe these Copper Cliff Redmen juniors, if they win the Memorial Cup, will take this trophy for their own with a little bolstering here and there.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A Grief Stricken Crooner

By Richard H. Wilkinson

The moment Fritz Broden came into the room, Locien realized, from something important had happened. Fritz's eyes were wide with excitement and he was chewing his cigar furiously. But Locien displayed not more than a half-hearted interest. Nothing he could think of that might have occurred would help matters now. It was too late. Or only a miracle could save him.

Fritz Broden said: "Well, son, you mugs been born with a silver spoon in your mouth, Mistyn Barclay's dead!"

"Dead? Mistyn Barclay?" Locien felt goose bumps prickling all over him.

"Dead," Fritz repeated. "This morning. Airplane crash." Fritz sat down and crossed his legs. "Now listen, son, it's your last chance. You gotta work fast and start working now. With Barclay dead you're in line for the Brewster Cosmetics program. There ain't another crooner in the country got your voice. It's your last chance."

"But listen," Locien began.

Fritz's bobbing cigar interrupted him. He waved airily. "Yeah, I know. You got yourself in wrong with the public by having Mistyn Barclay that night at the Robinhood club when he was drunk. I'm going to crown you outer the business. It's almost done, too, because you was bigger than Barclay papers played it up and female radio fans began to yell about what a brute you was. That's why you lost the Brewster contract and Barclay got it."

"And the female fans are still yelling," Locien said moodily. "Now that Barclay's gone, Brewster will get back mad at me. They know I'm still unpopular."

"Not if you're smart, they won't. You apologized for hitting Barclay, didn't you?"

Locien flushed at memory of that humiliating moment. "Nobody thought I meant it and I didn't. It didn't help any."

"It will now." Fritz leaned forward and tapped Locien on the knee. "Listen, kid. I'm your manager and I'll get you that contract with Brewster if you do what I tell you. Tonight the nation-wide hookup is giving Barclay a memorial. Well, you're going to sing 'The Ark of the Trail'. Every radio in the country will be tuned in. The announcer will play it up big. I'll be with Brewster with a contract in my pocket, ready to sign him up when you've through."

Locien's eyes grew thoughtful and a ray of light came into his face. "Say," he began. "Supposse, like before, they think I'm not serious? Suppose they put up a yell?"

"You will be serious. Make yourself serious. Give 'em a few lines about how grieved you are and how you sing with that song. Make it touching, heartrending. At a time like that folks won't consider anything except that a brilliant star from one great radio star to another. I tell you, boy, it's your one chance to stage a comeback."

Sitting at a table in the Robinhood club that night, Fritz Broden watched the group of men and women air a large table near by and knew for the first time a faint doubt. Included in that group was Mary Brewster of the Brewster Cosmetics. The great man's head was tilted to one side. There was a sad, bleak look in his face. Fritz knew that he was grieving not the passing of his greatly loved Mistyn Barclay, but the sudden ending of a source of income and unfailing sales promoter for Brewster Cosmetics.

An unnatural hush hung over the great room of the Robinhood club. At the far end a radio loud speaker was saying: "And now, ladies and gentlemen, we bring you an old favorite, one who is deeply affected by the sudden demise of the widely-loved Mistyn Barclay."

Locien suddenly began to sing. The room was still listening. They listened but there was somethng sad and distrust on their faces. On and on went the song, low and vibrant and for all the world sung by a man whose heart was heavy.

Locien was half way through the second stanza when something happened. His voice faltered, caught, broke. He gulped, hesitated, went on, faltered again and abruptly stopped.

Fritz sat very still. He looked about the room. He saw guests exchanging glances, he saw them look at one another and shake their heads—heard the thunderous roar of applause.

Later in Locien's room, Fritz flashed the contract. "Signed," he said, "on the dotted line, for three years. Boy, you did it! It was grand, superb, marvelous showmanship! Now, when your voice broke on that second stanza it was the one thing that swung those listening dames in your favor. They wouldn't have believed you were sincere if you'd dished it. A man, they figured, who was so grief-stricken he couldn't sing a simple song like that—well, he must be all right."

"Why it wasn't that," Locien said. "It wasn't that I couldn't go on in that second stanza. I haven't sung that song for a long time, and —I forgot the words."

Board Room Gossip

Be supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

The very substantial rise in the "papers" on Saturday and Monday is predicted entirely on London demand and speculative buying in stocks from Canadian and New York sources as well. The orders from London can be attributed to the rise in the pulp and pulpwood shares and increased interest in the newsprint which was the subject of a week long discussion in London and which were reviewed in this week's article in the London Financial Times.

The rise in Foundation common last week is attributed to Street reports that the company is in line for several large contracts, and that added to the very large amount of business at present making up the earnings prospects for the company bright. The capitalization of Foundation Company is small and the financial position sound.

Students of the market express the belief that the consolidated issues will be the next group to be taken in hand on the upside. The Indiana try has potential possibilities for the reason that a considerable amount of building has been delayed pending better times.

Results Expected Shortly at Minto Gold Mines, B. C.

The station for the number 7 level was being cut last week and the crosscut was scheduled to start this week, at the property of Minto Gold Mines in the Bridge River district, B.C., according to a report from President William Warner. -

D. N. Malhoom, mine manager, at Minto, estimates that if the dip is consistent the 7th level crosscut should pick up the vein at between 90 and 110 feet from the shaft. This a few weeks work may give important information regarding ore possibilities at the additional depth.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Apr. 6 (CP) — Paper stocks led a lively gamut in the first hour and Abitibi and Great Lakes Paper Common issues advanced to new highs for the current movement but these as well as practically the entire Industrial list reacted sluggish in the early afternoon, influenced by the weak tone of the New York board.

Features of the trade in the gold group were Stadacona, Pickle Crow, Francoeur, Preston, Bidgood-Kirkland and Rocke. In the base metals Jack Waite was down to 1.42 and Waite-Amulet, but about 30 cents, doubled its highest and Nortal lover, Eldorado at 3.60 was up 5 points at early afternoon.

WALL STREET

New York, Apr. 6 (AP)—Steels turned downward in today's stock market and the list, comprising only a handful of specialties, most of the leaders were on the losing side for fractions to a point. The selling pressure was lacking, buyers were more fully liberally timid.

Dominion Stores, Distillers-Corp. Seagrams, McIntyre, Hiram Walker and Simpsons B were steady to fractions higher. Canadian Pacific Rails, Canada Steamships, International Nickel, an active stock, lost a point. Canadian Government 4½ lifted slightly. Dominion funds were unchanged at 100.12½ cents. On the Curb Standard Oil of Mines reacted somewhat.

Prominent on the quiet backlists were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Deere, Anaconda, Kennecott, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, St. Joseph Lead, Southern Pacific, Penn and Santa Fe Railroads.

Tilting forward were Crown Zellerbach, Container Corp., International Paper, Canada Dry, Virginia Carolina Chemical, Industrial Rayon, Celanese, Mead Johnson and Cerro de Pasco.

HARD ROCK

Grade in Number Two Area Running $14 to $15

Drifting on the high grade vein cut in the crosscut just south of the number two shaft on the 1,000-foot level of Hard Rock Gold Mines has been very rich, the usual low and high values. The two faces of the drift were cut a total of seventy-eight and sixty feet at the first of the week. No assays will be given out by the management until an average grade can be ascertained. It is intended to test the vein material from the drift in the ten ton bulk sampling plant which was recently added to the assay plant.

Thomas H. Rea, president, informs The Northern Miner that conditions on the second, level in the number two shaft area are similar to those on the first level where a considerable amount of lateral work was done and 600 feet of drift length opened in the section north of the pumping station an estimated grade of $14 to $15. Underground work completed to date in the three or two shaft area is shown more high grade ore than opened on surface.

The number two shaft having reached a depth of 1,000 on its way to the objective of about 475 feet a station has been cut for the third level at that point in the News-Chronicle Tuesday last.

SERGT. PICKRELL CHAMPION SHOT

Gives Demonstration of His Ability Before Whirling Camera

New York, N.Y., April 6—Sergeant Robt. Geo. Pickrell, of the U. S. Navy, champion revolver shot, gave the U. S. army the lesson in marksmanship at Fort Wadsworth here today. Doug Bob Donahue of the Pathe News reel crew, Sergt. Pickrell outlined him and his camera with fifteen shots after a whirler had spun the camera so that theatre audiences the world will be able to know what it feels like to be shot at. His colleague cameraman Fred Stein, of the Hearst Metrotone News worked a second camera to record the fray, insuring that the action was genuine.

The performance was witnessed by a squad of soldiers from the Eighteenth Battalion U. S. Infantry, under the command of Lieut. McGehee, and when the various shots had been fired, Sergeant Pickrell was besieged for advice and autographs.

In addition to outlining the figure of cameraman Donahue, Sgt. Pickrell placed his bullets in the shots at the regulation revolver target range. Donahue is a Marine Corps army. Although an extremely strong man, Donahue was trembling violently off New York's outer harbor on the shore of which the shooting took place. Pickrell complained, that the bulls eye was really too big and so from a distance of forty yards he made his own bulls eye by placing his shots around his first shot. He was so accurate that the entire group of shots fitted into the area with a fifty cent piece. The U. S. army is saying this target to use an example of the degree of accuracy, which can be attained by a revolver shot.

C. N. Walsh, Sports Editor of Pathe News, who directed the picture, said that he felt the experience he had never seen such accurate shooting especially under the extremely bad weather conditions which prevailed.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiemen
Science Service Director

Weather and the aneroid!

Nearly 100 years ago a Frenchman, Pascal, proposed a theory of variation (science of ballooning) whereby the aneroid barometer, Aneroid means "without fluid"—Denis invented it for use in balloons to ascertain his elevation, because there is a reduction of elevation to air pressure, and the less the air pressure the higher the elevation, because there is a rise of elevation as the air pressure, and the air has less and less pressure as it rises in elevation. But the method of ascertaining height by aneroid is more in exact, as the pressure varies with the weather. In many homes, for instance, very accurately to a fair degree of accuracy the aneroid variations are used and allowances made for weather pressure changes.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, April 7 (CP)—Pressure is high from the Great Lakes northward to the Gulf of Mexico with a fairly deep depression over the Pacific coast and a trough of low pressure southwestward from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the Atlantic coast. South Atlantic coast. Rain has occurred in the Maritimes and Quebec with part snow in northwest Quebec. Light snow at Kamloops. Elsewhere in Northern Ontario and Southern Manitoba it has been fair. Elsewhere the weather has been fair.

Lake Superior—Moderate winds, shifting to northerly and strong tonight and Thursday with much the same temperature; probably some rain or light showers near the Soo on Thursday.

Manitoba—Fair and mild, with not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Generally fair and comparatively mild today and Thursday.

ITALY'S PATIENCE REACHES LIMIT SAY NEWSPAPERS

Mention is Made of French And Russian Charges

ITALIAN PROTESTS

Hint is Given Germany And Italy May Jointly Withdraw

Rome, Apr. 7 (AP)—The government-controlled press warned today the limit of Italy's patience over charged violations of non-intervention in the Spanish War by other powers — particularly France and Russia — had almost been reached.

The possibility of joint Italo-German withdrawal from the non-intervention agreement to isolate the Spanish civil war, in protest against alleged continuing French and Russian aid to the Madrid government, was suggested likely in usually well-informed circles.

Keeping the Agreement.

Official circles contented themselves with reiterating the basic statement of Italian policy that Italy would not intervene directly in behalf of the Spanish insurgents as long as other nations kept the hands off Spain' agreement.

France and the Soviet, the Italian press charged, have broken the accord by shipments of arms and planes to aid the Madrid government in its recent offensives against the insurgent regime, reinforced by Germany and Italy as the true government of Spain.

"Continuance of unilateral support," declared Undersecretary Guglielmo, former president of the Italian journalist federation, in La Tribuna, "is all to the profit of one of two parties in the fight."

Count Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador to London, informed sources said, would lay the charges against France and Russia before a meeting of the non-intervention committee in London this week.

Priest Forced to Leave While Visiting Families In Joannes Settlement

Father Leroux Says Band of Men Asked Him to Leave Last Night to Avoid Causing Disturbance —First Incident of Kind Occurs in Temiskaming

Rouyn, Que., Mar. 7 (CP) — A Rouyn general store, communal gathering place for most of the miners in the settlement.

But at midnight the crowd, who Abbe said appeared to consist of a "certain fanatical element", came to the store. They demanded he leave there, Father Leroux declared they told him.

The priest asserted they asked him to leave "at once", to "avoid causing a disturbance." They walked outside the store until he had left.

It was the first incident of its kind in Temiskaming County, centre of a rich mining area near the Ontario boundary. Abbe Leroux had been in the district several years, taking an active part in the colonization movement for the last four; but it was only recently he was named missionary-at-large by Bishop L. Rheaume of Haileybury, Ont.

CHRYSLER STRIKE NOW AT AN END

No More Sit-Down Strikes in Motor Car Industry Official States

Detroit, Mich., April 7 (AP)—The Chrysler Corporation ranged today for a prompt return to work of 65,000 employees and suppliers dependent upon it prepared to recall nearly 20,000 who have been idle a month.

This was made possible by the signing of an agreement last night between Chrysler and the United Automobile Workers of America, ending a strike which began March 8 and providing for further negotiations on issues not settled in the pact.

Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, who brought the two sides together and announced the strike settlement at Lansing, turned his attention immediately to the two remaining strikes in Michigan industrial factories.

All the principals in the Chrysler peace parley, which opened in the Governor's office Monday, were in satisfaction over the terms of the agreement.

Sit-Down Strikes Ended

A statement by Homer Martin, International President of the United Automobile Workers, and Walter A. W. Radford, naval colonel car at North Island air base after the tragedy Saturday, said the sit-down strikes "ended."

"A terrific explosion" was the description given by some of the eight sailors who told of witnessing the worst navy airplane accident here in 10 years.

"GOLD CLAUSE" TO BE REMOTED

Act Will Not Effect Any Change in Existing Practice

Ottawa, Mar. 7 (CP)—Legislation to remove the "gold clause" from contracts between Canadians desiring to pay in gold was introduced in the House of Commons today by Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance. It is called the "Gold Clauses Act, 1937."

It will not would effect no change in any existing practice, said Mr. Dunning, but would place Canada went off the gold standard had payments to be made in gold.

There were certain situations arising, however, which made it desirable to clarify the situation by positive legislation.

Conservative Leader Bennett regretted that the bill was not available in the session. He cited arrangements made by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, former minister of Finance, with respect to the issues of Canadian Securities as in possible danger of disturbance by the bill. He reserved his comments until later.

Sports Editor Montreal Star Half Century

Montreal, Apr. 7 (CP) — Peter Sparling, dean of Canada's sport column of a continent as "Span", the sports editor of the Montreal Star since March 21, 1887, celebrated his birthday.

Known for his thoroughness and integrity, "Span" generally was credited with the building up of the star's sporting page to their present proportions.

Span was connected with the sports department from the time he joined the Star in 1887, his versatility spread itself to general reporting at times and he became known as one of the city's best police reporters.

Soccer, perhaps, was best at his writing of lacrosse. He knew the game thoroughly, liked it and did much to promote it in Montreal and district. A happy faculty of expression made him able to delight in yacht racing, wrestling, boxing, basketball and hockey.

Span began writing wrestling in the days of Hackenschmidt and Zbyszko, and he never learned to like the modern show of gouging, flying kicks, head butting and the like, preferred one match and never went back.

A Great Lacrosse Player

A great story teller, Span liked to recall the time he and another reporter started a boxing match in the early days when boxing was illegal. Both were jailed the night after the bout before it started and Span lived in nearby bushes while the officers of the law searched for refugees as spectators.

Span came to Canada as a young man from his birthplace, Amsterdam, Holland. He soon mastered English and French and his knowledge of the three languages made him invaluable to the paper.

He also was sports editor of the Montreal Standard when boxing was actively appeared under the by-line "Ringside Critic". There were no portable typewriters when Span broke in on the Star, and he never used one in his later years.

CATTLE SHORTAGE IN WEST CANADA RANCHERS REPORT

Feed Scarce And Expensive Cause of Shortage is Claim

PRICES INCREASE

Heavy Snow Falls in Alberta Also Contribute to Scarcity

Winnipeg, April 7—(CP)— Western Canada livestock markets are faced with a shortage of cattle and rising beef prices, ranchers and market officials said today.

Both feed scarce and expensive during the past winter, farmers have fed less stock for finishing fat, spring and a cattle shortage has resulted. In the east, prices of good beef prices were voiced by market operators in Winnipeg and Calgary, where receipts have dwindled daily.

Heavy snowfalls in many parts of Alberta hit many fine herds and contributed to the shortage.

Cattle, grain-fed since the fall and usually moved on the market about this time, are still in a premium because feed costs forced the bulk of ranchers, cattle feeder and farmer to curtail his herds when the show cause it was learned.

Until the Canadian market becomes more adequate with the marketing of grass-fed cattle probably in August, the determining factor with the price level will be the southern United States cattle markets, said Dr. G. E. Bain, Winnipeg, livestock markets correspondent of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Prices to Increase

"Prices will increase but no one knows how much," he said. "High prices will likely persist until grass-fed cattle are marketed. Good quality beef is being handled now but the quantity is scarce."

In Calgary, D. A. MacKenzie, market representative of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, supply of finished cattle in Alberta was "pretty thin" and the shortage the attempt to diminishing supplies of cattle. Many fed on western farms and ranches this year, along with increased exports and augmented home consumption.

A year ago many cattle were fed as a loss for beef, and this year the farmers were not taking a chance on high prices so they reduced their herds to the bone.

The shortage of supply has become simply acute in Alberta, MacKenzie said. One load of beef was recently shipped from Winnipeg to Calgary.

Jack Byers, manager of the Western Stock Growers Association at Calgary, said winter losses would be more than ever, then normal, taking Alberta as a whole, but they were abnormal in several areas where feed had been heavy snow and severe cold.

R. C. M. P. Will Administer Section with Own Pilots; Base Will Be at Halfax

Some Airmen From R.C.A.F. Joined Air Patrol Some Time Ago

CONSTABLES QUALIFIED

Planes Operating on Pacific And in North Extended Shortly

Ottawa, Apr. 7 (CP)—An aviation section is being created within the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, it was learned here today. It will start with four planes, each manned by a pilot and observer.

For some years the mounted have been operating an air patrol on the Atlantic coast, but its personnel were officers and constables seconded from the Royal Canadian Air Force. The new service will be administered and manned by the Mounted.

The force has sufficient qualified pilots and observers, since quite a number of airmen who were let out of the R.C.A.F. when the economy axe fell in 1933 went to the Mounted. Also many of the constables possess commercial flying certificates.

The R.C.M.P. Air Force will be based in Halifax, but in due course the hope is to have some planes operating also on the Pacific coast and in the North Country.

Woman Grand Jury Foreman Accepts Post as Citizen's Duty

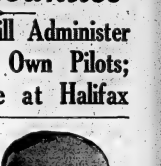
Jury Work Offers Opportunity, Says Miss Sims

WOMEN'S DUTY

Newark, N.J., Apr. 7 (AP)—Miss J. Isabelle Sims, believed the first woman foreman of a federal grand jury in the United States, accepted her new post today as "a citizen's duty".

Emerging from the closed jury room after a four-hour session yesterday Miss Sims, middle-aged welfare worker and Wellesley graduate, declined stepping into the role of "new" and about which she knew little.

"It's an entirely new experience for me, but I'm sure it will be a great educational value," she said. "Today's experience showed me jury work should be a great opportunity for all women interested in furthering justice."



Federal Judge William Clark, who picked Miss Sims as foreman, said it was the first time a woman had been chosen for the position in New Jersey, and he believed the first time in the country.

The destroyer Gallant was proceeding from Valencia to Alicante when she was attacked by insurgent bombers, apparently coming from Mallorca. The gallant at the time was carrying special identification marks of red, white and blue. One bomber, flying at about 10,000 feet, dropped six bombs. The newspaper added 70 Korean priests were under police examination in connection with the deaths. The victims were lured to the mountains after being forced to sell their property and give the money to the organization.

NON-EDIBLE DUCKS ENTWINED IN NETS

The question, that is bothering Point Traverse fishermen these days is not "the duck's the limit" but "How far can a duck dive"?

For the ducks, in their scramble for their nets, they discovered entangled in the mesh, great numbers of non-edible ducks of various kinds known as "Old Wives", "Queens" or "Pintails."

The nets were hauled up from a depth of 125 feet. It is apparent that these ducks, when they feed from the bottom of the lake, become entangled in the nets and drown.

CAPT. BEN BOWEN SAILS 53 YEARS

Will be in Command of Freighter "Glen Allan" This Summer

When the Hepburn Bros. freighter Glen Allen" sails up within the next few days for the Bay of Quinte ports and Montreal, it will mark the fifty-third season and 53rd year of sailing on the Great Lakes for her grand old skipper Captain "Boaring" Ben Bowen of Trenton.

Born in Deseronto, the skipper started his career at the age of 14 and been before the wills wings of the schooner Clara Wylie. He graduated to steam and by 1908 became the master of a tug vessel. Since that day, he has remained away from the vessel from the lowly tug to the grain carriers. He served eleven seasons on the "M. Hepburn" and for the past five years has been at the helm of the Glen Allan.

He is the inventing of the swing boom, a lyke fitting, which hadne men safely on the dock from the vessel.

Throughout his long career, he has only lost one man. This occurred in 1913, when his first mate Thomas Bowen was drowned in Kingston Harbour, while attempting to disloden a schoon.

"It is the only work I know anything about" declared Capt. Bowen, "and I expect to see twenty years more in active service."

Capt. Bowen is a general favorite with Belleville waterfront men.

ENTIRELY ALTER ALL TRAINING FOR BATTALION

Training Program For Local Regiment Outlined by O. C.

MACHINE GUNS USED

The recent reorganization of the Canadian Militia has radically changed the set-up and methods of the local infantry battalion, the Argyll Light Infantry (Trade) it is revealed by Lt. Col. A. R. Gribble, Officer Commanding.

Very little publicity has attended the changes in this connection because of the fact that the unit was not broken up into a number of sub-units as was the case in many other centres. Nevertheless, the changes wrought in this old battalion—formed in 1866—are of the most drastic, entailing considerable change in the personnel and an entire reorganization of the training program. When it is considered, that the changes are fundamental, and that all new work must be carried on from the ground up for all ranks, then some of the difficulties may be appreciated, pointed out the Officer Commanding.

How radical some of these changes will be was pointed out by Lt. Col. Gribble.

"The infantry training in the past has been based chiefly upon the rifle, bayonet and Lewis light automatic rifle. This goes by the board entirely, the new training will be with the Vickers machine gun and the signals. Through the change type of work will be more interesting to many, it will require hard work and close application."

Skilled Mechanics

"Following the present work in Vickers machine gun training, it will be necessary to train Vickers skilled mechanics, and for this purpose it is expected that machinery and equipment will be supplied within the next year. While this calls for a radical change in work on the part of the old and new personnel, it is hoped to carry on with the spirit and interests of the age, and will doubtless contribute to make a knowledge of machine gun training will be of great value in the event of a year of national defence," declared Col. Gribble.

Despite the limited time available for the completion of training for the 1937 season, a number of physical development and sports activities are planned for the period and the season will be topped off with a five day camp at Berriedale, it was announced.

Recruiting and the issue of uniforms will be carried on as usual, as the local armouries, and it is expected that the unit will be built up to strength within a few days, as it has been every year for the past seventy-one years. A nominal force of about 280 all ranks is expected to comprise the battalion this year, according to the Officer Commanding.

Celebration of Coronation Still in Formative Stage

Committees Appointed at Meeting Held Tuesday

SPECIAL MEDALS

Belleville's coronation celebrations on May 12 are still very much in the formative stage it was revealed at the Y.M.C.A. last evening at the initial meeting of the newly-formed special coronation committee composed of representatives of the various civic bodies and service organizations.

The meeting progressed, however, to the point of naming special sub-committees entrusted with the work of carrying out plans tentatively decided upon by the general body.

This much is expected to be certain if these plans are carried out.

The observance proper will be held on Wednesday, May 12th, the hour of 10.00 a.m. and 11.00 a.m. at the Central Arena on the grounds of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute. The Arena is being offered free of charge.

It is expected, that all school children will join in a parade from the schools to either of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute. The Arena is being offered free of charge.

It is expected, that all school children will join in a parade from the schools to either of the locations named.

Massed bands will be in attendance, and a proper military salute will be given by children as the local militia units.

All citizens will be asked and invited to attend and take part in the ceremonies.

It is probable that massed choirs of school children will sing the hymns appropriate to the occasion.

Special medals which are expected to be purchased by the committee will be given all children as mementoes of the occasion.

The various committees will report activity to the general committee at a second meeting to be called soon.

In opening the meeting, Jos. Sheridan, president of the local committee, and chairman, reviewing the initial work of the organization, it had been hoped as one part of the observance to have all children taking part in a short parade from the schools to the Collegiate and Vocational, and Whether this was suitable for the very small children was admittedly not a question. It was decided, following some discussion on the matter, Principals of the various schools will be asked their views on the point, it was decided.

The suggested program, it was stated by president, Sheridi, would include singing of "God Save the King" by massed children's hymns; patriotic addresses; benediction, if the Arena is decided upon, a special public address system will be installed.

The suggestion that the city be one of full and serious observance was voiced by J. O. Herity. To this and it was advised that work in the schools be started early and that arrangements be completed ahead of staying in the city instead of practising elsewhere on May 12.

CEREMONIES OF DEVOTION CLOSED

Father Meehan of Picton Preached at Ceremony at St. Michael's

The concluding ceremonies of the Devotion of the Forty Hours took place in the church of St. Michael the Archangel last evening in the presence of a large congregation. The sermon on the occasion was preached by Rev. Father Meehan, P.P. Picton, who at one time was assistant in this parish. He stressed the beauty and the greatness of devotion to Christ in the Blessed Sacrament and spoke on life's ending and the world to come. Rev. Father will be judged hereafter not according to the worldly wealth or fame he may have garnered but solely by the manner in which he has obeyed the commandments of Our Lord. The Blessed Eucharist he said can only follow Christ here below by strengthening our spiritual life and preparing us for the glorious resurrection and a happy eternity.

The Litany of the Saints, was chanted and a Solemn Procession was held in the church in which the various societies participated and Parish Degree Knights acted as guard of honor.

Trunsch sang a hymn in honor of the Blessed Sacrament. The chanting of the Litany of the Saints was by Ed Brown, Jack Bland and Harold Davidson, responded to by the choir. PRINCIPALS TELL HOW THEY ELOPED SIXTY YEARS AGO

Groom-to-be Chartered Cab, Ship And Indians to Aid Escape With Convent Miss, Wires Cut

New Westminster, B. C., April 7—(CP)—Virtual cutting off this city from communication by wire, vehicle or boat 60 years ago so that nothing would interfere with his elopement was recalled by G. W. de Beck and his wife on their Diamond Anniversary.

Young de Beck was determined there must be no hitch, and his plans were carefully drawn to meet any contingency. He was a broad-shouldered lumberman of 27 and his bride-to-be a 16-year-old girl attending St. Anne's Convent in New Westminster.

He engaged the only cab operating here at the time and chartered the tugboat "Leonora" which plied on Burrard Inlet. Then to make sure there would be no interference when he reached the United States to be married he gave two Indians a bottle of whisky and told them to cut the telegraph wires.

The romantic adventure was carried out as planned, said Mr. de Beck.

On a sunny March Sunday morning convent pupils walked two-by-two on their way to church. The cab drew up to the marchers, the girl jumped in, was driven furiously to the Fraser, boarded the tug and steamed for Port Townsend.

The couple were happily married at Port Townsend, returned home to receive parental forgiveness on both sides of the house, and now back on a happy life together.

"The two Indians must have consumed that liquor before they cut the wires," he said with a chuckle. "At any rate they did their work go thoroughly that about two miles of wire was taken down."

Seated holding hands at the home of their daughter, Mrs. George McCrossan, the pioneer couple related with gusto the story of their elopement.

Connaught Will Grace Crowning if Health Good

Grand Old Man of Royal Family, Former Governor-General of Canada, to do Homage to New King, His Grand-Nephew

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 7—(CP)—Popular governor-general of Canada from 1911 to 1916, the Duke of Connaught, only surviving son of Queen Victoria, will, if his health permits, attend the coronation of his grand-nephew George VI on May 12.

Nearing his 87th birthday, the Duke has already taken part in two crownings of British kings, those of his brother, Edward VII in 1902, and his nephew George V in 1911. At the latter ceremony he made his homage immediately after another grand-nephew, the then Prince of Wales, afterwards Edward VIII and now Duke of Windsor.

The Duke's sister, Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyle, also a former resident of Rideau Hall at Ottawa, was 90 March 16, as the wife of the Marquess of Lorne (later Duke of Argyll) she enjoyed influential association with Canada when her husband was governor-general from 1878 to 1883. Another daughter of Queen Victoria, Princess Beatrice, who married Prince Henry of Battenburg, will be 80 in April. Three widowed grandsons of the King are rarely seen in public nowadays.

Becomes a Legend

The Duke of Connaught, like his mother before him, has in his later years become to the people of England and the Empire at large something more of a legend than a mere personality. From his earliest years he devoted himself to service in the Army, serving in practically every part of the world. He was taught to play the bagpipes by a man who fought at Waterloo, and rose to command his force which captured the Malakahoof in the Orient.

The Duke's only son, Prince Arthur of Connaught, has performed great service in many capacities, notably as governor-general of South Africa. For some time during the war he was attached to the Canadian Headquarters Staff in France.

Princess Beatrice, one of the Duke's surviving sisters, was held in high regard over a long period of years by reason of her gracious manner in fulfilling the smaller functions which fall to the lot of members of the royal family. Her husband, the Duke of Battenberg, died in 1896 on active service with the British forces in Africa. Their only daughter, Victoria Eugenie, was married to Alphonso, now the ex-King of Spain, in 1906.

In Close Touch With People

During his term as representative of his nephew, George V, in Canada, the Duke of Connaught, with his affable and democratic manner, came in close personal touch with the people. His Royal Highness, together with the Duchess and their daughter Princess Patricia, entered enthusiastically into the life of the Dominion and in the warm greetings extended to them wherever they appeared in public, religious difference, party factions and racial divisions were forgotten.

The Duke was in his 67th year when he returned to England in 1916, when the nation was midway in the war. The Duchess died the following year. Princess Patricia, who had given her name to a regiment of Canadian infantry which gained a glorious record, married Commander the Hon. Alexander Ramsay in 1919.

Some years previous to his appointment to Canada, the Duke was High Commissioner of the Mediterranean with headquarters in Malta. It was during the reign of his brother Edward VII. The Duke resigned this post—much to the annoyance of the King—because he considered the duties of the office did not justify either the salary or the status attached to the position.

His eldest daughter, Princess Margaret, was married in June 1905 to Prince Gustavus Adolphus, Crown Prince of Sweden, and died on her father's 70th birthday in 1920.

GUNS POUNDING GATES OF MADRID

Government Forces, Encircling Drive Continues

Madrid, April 7 (CP)—Guns thundered again at the gates of Madrid while the Government's Southern Army reported capture of fresh, strategic positions in its steady encircling drive against the insurgents in Cordoba Province.

The boom of heavy artillery and the rattle of rifles and machine guns echoed at varying intervals all day long and through the night. Military reports indicated fighting was underway on the Corunna Highway scant northwest of the city and on the Carabanchel suburb to the southwest, where Government militia has been inching forward against insurgent siege lines in daily house-to-house firing.

On the Corunna Highway front, principally in the vicinity of Aravaca, Government commanders said their men had made three advances of a little more than a mile each in as many days.

The Cordoba Province Army occupied the towns of La Granjuela, Bosques and Espartaguero, claiming they were directly to an attack on Pozarroyo, centre of a rich mining territory.

Spring Showing of HOSTESS

THERE'S A ROSE FOR YOU!

the refrigerator that keeps food fresher

SPECIAL SHOWING APRIL 8th, 9th,

Come and Hear why Coldness alone can't keep food fresh . . . at our Spring Showing

Dry cold robs foods of their moisture—actually steals their freshness! Hostess preserves the moisture content of the air in the cabinet—so foods stay fresher!

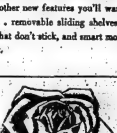
Technically this is called "Controlled Humidity". But what it means is this: in the Hostess, frost normally will not accumulate on the ice chest. This ceasing of frost in ordinary electric refrigerators draws natural moisture from the air—so foods become dry or wilted.

Hostess maintains the proper conditions in the cabinet . . . constant cold, without any time out for defrosting (that's another exclusive Hostess feature!) And at the same time the proper degree of humidity, so that foods stay fresher!

Come in and let us show you the 1937 Hostess. Besides the two exclusive advantages we're told you about, there are many other new features you'll want to see . . . removable sliding shelves, ice trays that don't stick, and smart modern styling.

1937 Hostess offers you a Hermetically Sealed Unit—Outstandingly quiet operation—Self Contained—Controlled Humidity—the convenience of sliding shelves, ice trays that don't stick, Servador, Interior Lighting, and many other practical features. Reasonably priced. Convenient payment terms.

. . . An Invitation



You are cordially invited to attend our Fourth Anniversary and Spring Showing of Household Appliances.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfist and Ma said to pop, I'm still thinking of that 4 letter word that's the deciding key to last nite's cross-word puzzle, it's a 4 letter word meaning sprawling animal, and it simply must start with D.

I suppose it couldn't be liver and onions, pop said.

Being a hint he wished ma would have it for supper, and ma said, Now William, really, I mean really, when a thing gets to be an obsession with you it just simply becomes an obsession. Why dont you try to think of something spiritual and uplifting for a change? she said.

By golies I will pop said. Let me see now, I'll think of that famous painting called Love's Young Dream, It's in the Louvre? or somewhere, you must of seen reproductions of it, he said, and he said, It seems vaguely familiar, what does it represent?

It shows a beautiful young onion in the first flush of adolescence, Alone in the moonlite in a grate meadow, pining for a tender slice of cat's liver to decorate with its pure young succulence, pop said, and ma said, O dear I mite of known it would be some such ridiculous hite of absurdity.

I'm only aiming to please, I'll think of music pop said. I'll think of Shrumbowsky's Melody in Yum. It's suppose to present the innocent deflections of a young slab of liver awaiting with maiden modesty her introduction to a strong yet tender onion he said and ma said, O keep quiet, I mite as well tell Nora to have liver and onions for dinner, at least it will solve the menu problem, she said.

That's all I was trying to solve, my dear, pop said.

And he faded up the paper and left for his office looking like something feeling better instead of worse.

SAXONS KILLED AT CORONATION OF WILLIAM 1ST

Alarmed by Shouts of Homage in Unknown, Tongue Norman Draw Swords

London, April 7 (CP)—Of all the unusual incidents which have marred royal coronations, that which decidedly occurred at crowning of William the Conqueror in 1066. The Norman princeling had invaded England and gained the victory at Hastings.

On Christmas, 1066, a wild snowy day, William was crowned at Westminster. For the time being there was no Archbishop of Canterbury, so the ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of York.

When the Archbishop asked the Saxon nobles, formerly subjects of Harold II. if they would receive William as their King there was such a responsive shout of approval that William's Norman soldiers, not understanding the languages of the conquered people and mistaking this demonstration for signs of revolt, rushed in with drawn swords, and put many a good Saxon to the death.

In a few minutes the then new grey building was amply save for the King, prelates and monks, but the prayers and litanies went on and though robbed of some of its splendor the ceremony was performed with all order while outside William's new Saxon subjects were being trampled under the hoofs of Norman horses.

If William I was the illegitimate son of Robert the Devil, Duke of Normandy, and was trained in a hard school. Three of his guardians were murdered in France, and it appeared the young duke-elect would suffer the same fate, but when he was only 20 years of age he stamped out a serious rising in the districts of Bessin and Cotentin, one of many encounters with Norman rebels.

He is supposed to have received a promise of succession to the English throne while on a visit to his kinsman, Edward the Confessor, in 1051. Twice William repulsed invasions of Normandy and in 1064 the visit of Earl Harold to the Norman Court resulted in a promise by Harold to support the claims of the boat from the English succession. Harold's perjury among the chief excuse for the Norman conquest of England.

The Duke and his Normans were recalled by Tosig's invasion of Northern England, to land unmolested at Pevensey on Sept. 28th. On the 14th October he inflicted a crushing defeat on Harold at the Battle of Hastings.

MOUND BUILDERS

History students of Canadian history have often wondered as their teachers told them of the mysterious mound builders, that lost people which disappeared before the Indian came. Chicago and Illinois Universities have conducted excavations and research on this vanished race of men. A continuity of cultural growth is shown, extending from the wandering and isolated hunters who camped by the Illinois River thousands of years ago, after the glaciers had deposited their black sands, to the settled agricultural communities which were there before the white people arrived.

One of the most interesting discoveries was made just below Liverpool, Illinois, where high waters of the last glacial period had built a small island of dark sand. Here underneath graves of later people, a semi-fixed body was found with characteristics unlike any other discovered in this area. A platform of small stones had been built near the head. The skull was long and narrow, while those in other burials were round. Twenty-six of these so-called "black sand" bodies were found lying beside the remains of their ancient fires, with coarse chipped implements and bits of pottery around. They were the earliest known arrivals in Illinois. Another people had been buried above them and long tombs and mounds erected. Those above had better tombs and dishes. In one of the burial groups the head and horns of a large animal were found near the human skull. This was identified as a fossil musk-ox, extinct in this region since the retreat of the glaciers. This gives the association of man in Illinois with an ice-age animal.

The work of excavation has just been begun and a full picture of cultural developments will soon be blocked out it is confidently expected.

THIS HYSTERICAL AGE

This nervous age has come in for a blow at the hands of Dean Milo Gates of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City, who said of the present hysterical age, an emotional age, an age of highlights that "if some of the so-called saints of today should actually be admitted into heaven, they would spoil everything. They are so noisy, so hysterical, so convulsive, that the peace and calm that one longs for there could not possibly be found. If you gave them a harp, they would break all the strings at the first stroke, and when they sang, they would do so with such violence that your ears would not be edified by the sounds."

"Unless religion can solve every problem that there is artistic, socialistic, philanthropic, aesthetic—people say 'Well then, religion fails.' What religion needs more today is not more flying with God, or jumping up and down with God, or going into squares and spilling out epitomistic fits with God. What religion needs is more walking with God. The only reason that Enoch is remembered, so far as I can see, was because he walked with God.

"The fear of death is invariably a reaction to a fear of life, said Dr. Sutherland Bonnell of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. "Death is a great interpreter. It tests our philosophy of life. In the New Testament faith in the life everlasting is grounded on a present experience of God. It is not something that is reserved till after death. We may know it in the living present.

Rabbi Israel Goldstein at the Temple B'nai Jeshurun, declared that eternal values could be brought into the life of man during his transitory existence, as truth, goodness, beauty, faith, love, charity, loyalty, justice, peace and brotherhood. With these he contrasted the transitory values, as money, fame, power, physical pleasure.

If the world has twenty more years more of peace, education, the armed truce of today can be transformed into real and lasting peace, Dr. Ralph Sockman of Christ Church, M. E., said. There is real hope for genuine progress in the world, if man can dig out the economic causes of war, if they can outlaw the evil thoughts of prejudice. He stated that religion "is the most progressive thing we have at this moment. There may be reactionary eddies, but religion drives on like a river."

Mankind defeats its own purposes by restoring to war, quarrels and bickerings to achieve the ends of peace and is, in turn, blind to the things that actually bring peace to the world. Peace can come only through harmonious functioning of body and soul."

Mr. G. M. James has just received the following kind letter from one of Belleville's best known and most respected business men and it is published here for very definite reasons:

1. It is full of encouragement.
2. It gives Mr. James an idea as to whether he is treating the most interesting topics.
3. It is a guide for future material.
4. More suggestions are solicited.

April 6th, 1937

Dear Mr. James,—

Have read your article, No. 4, in the Daily Ontario, with much interest. Your articles are always interesting, timely, and show and reveal an active mind. Your articles are always constructive and helpful. I really believe that there should be more "home rule" in matters of education. Then, the teachers would be able to help their pupils along the path best suited to capacity and needs. Governed by depart. in Toronto seems to have been a handicap to teachers, pupils and towns. The towns are limited in their finances and as you state the teacher suffers, by a cut in their salaries. In your next article could you not feature a thought or two along the lines of greater grants from the Province which could be supplemented by the Federal Authorities. No doubt you have read the paper prepared by the Secondary Teachers Federation. It is well prepared and should be endorsed by citizens, school boards, commercial bodies, property owners associations.

With best wishes to you for your public interest.

SOME YEARS AGO WHEN THERE WAS A MILLINERY STORE OR TWO IN EVERY BUSINESS BLOCK it was the custom of rural newspapers to give each a writeup of spring opening displays. This was a dreaded assignment which called for conscientious genius of a kind. Peterborough Examiner editor recalls the days of millinery opening free readers and speaks of an old boss of his whose technique carried him safely through this trying time—says he: "But the boss had a way with the ladies—he had a method for which one had to give him credit. He would always explain to the milliner that she knew so much more than he did about hats; that he marvelled at the skill she exhibited in always building and selecting just the right hat for all the variety of faces and figures (we think he mentioned figures) and therefore it would be greatly to the advantage of the store and would add to the prestige of the milliner if she would use her infinitable knowledge and prepare something for the newspaper. The boss would be pleased to return and pick up the copy. When he finally brought back the story he was more pleasant and a great burden seemed to have fallen from him." That, of course, was just one instance which affected the biggest store and the best advertiser in town. Our trouble was in the multiplicity of shops, with each one expecting a different and better notice than the other. It was a tough job at times getting notes about shapes, colors, and everything about something we knew so little about, a woman's hat. But the worst of it was, after the first one or two readers were written it was devilish hard to make the others any different—and the next day we had to run the gauntlet of all those millinery shops, expecting a call down from any of them who spotted us out of the window. We have a pleasant memory of a tramp of a traveller who struck town one day just on the brink of the millinery openings and he was hailed as a hero lifesaver and given the assignment of writing the millinery notices. He turned in a masterly job and left town that night on the blind baggage of the flyer with a full stomach and a pocketful of change and our sincere blessings.

At a meeting of the city council All, Mr. F. Falkner and his committee recommended to the council that iron pipes be purchased for the city to carry the supply of water to the three tanks in Belleville West. Mr. Falkner said iron was much more serviceable than wood and only a trifle more expensive. Ald. Diamond and Ald. Macoun objected to the proposal and Ald. Diamond claimed that when the water works question was being discussed the argument used was that the expense in keeping up the public tank would be saved. Ald. Falkner replied that the wooden tanks would need to be completed for a year and in the meantime they would require water, water. Many persons in the neighborhood of the tanks could have settled to pay water rates and the tanks should not be cut off for a year. Ald. Lott said many people from near the depot were getting water from the tank at Brown's foundry. Ald. Sifer and Ald. Graham also spoke against the idea of having the tanks continued. Ald. Diamond and Ald. Macoun withdrew their objection and the council passed $2000 for the iron pipes.

The ice in the river is breaking up. The stream is now clear from Odessa to the Grand Trunk bridge.

The snow is reported to be three and four feet deep in the back woods.

"Let Them Keep It"

What sheep mean by swing music, incidentally, is a mystery to me. You hear of it on all sides. You see articles about it in all the magazines. Even the conservative Journal review, "The Republic," runs learned discourses on it. The music of a leading writer-composer in the United States is a noted man, more famous than the President of the country. He is hailed as a genuine artist, a real musician.

Yet hardly anybody knows what swing is. You have to be born with it, they say. Others have to be born with it. At least I have never been conscious of swing. They say, though, that a man can go through life without knowing what it is. Swing is in him and then it will suddenly burst forth and he will know he has it. He has swing. He buys a saxophone and annoys the neighbors. It is wonderful, is it not?

A lot of young people in Victoria tell me they have swing. They speak about it as if they had measles or second sight. They speak about it as if it were superior to it. they had a sixth sense not possessed by others. Even at dances over which they won't reveal a higher intellect not shared by the lower animals. They talk in mysterious terms, and sneer you down if you don't understand them. They take weird sounds like a busy barnyard, add a drum with a bass fiddle and utter like a cage of monkeys.

Ah, but it is a glorious mumble to them, with a hidden meaning in it, a rhythm, a great something which only a few can never understand. Yes, they have swing now. They have it in flushes, others it originated, a dank product of African jungles, and they have it here in Victoria, Australia and American civilization which is becoming universal. They have swing. Let them keep it.

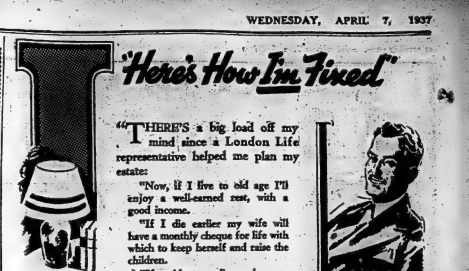
Turning In the Car

Inevitably there comes a time when the old car has to be traded in, and it is usually the dispiriting of a faithful dog.

The old car has served its owner long and well. It has taken him to and from business through innumerable times. It has carried his family on tours, on picnics, on Sunday jaunts. It has gone bravely through rain and snow, over good roads and bad. Many are the joys and memories surround this marvel of metal and rubber—and some not so happy. Probably it has been hauled by its hosts out of a mudhole, and nobody made more enjoyment in changing a tire in a mosquito-infested field, but these are small items in the record.



Its owner agrees that the old car is not stylish and is worn, but his memory goes back to the day when it stood gleaming in the showroom, glistening in nickel and paint, the envy of all. Now it is straight where it should be curved, high where it should be low, sadly lacking in gadgets. The owner admits that it is old, but he has been never will understand another car like it. They had been through many experiences together, he knew what the car would do—knew its capabilities and its limitations—never had such uncomplaining service and devotion.

There comes a time, however, when a man takes his fancy and he succumbs to temptation. The old friend is traded down the river, where it takes its place a section with speed in its lines, power in its deep voice, green and red lights, all the current miracles of automotive engineering. The owner finds it hard to believe that five or six years hence this will be just an older old car.

Let them mingle, let them wander. They'll be critical, but don't be too heedful. It seems to be the inalienable right of every visitor to tell England what's the matter with England. They'll damn you for your inconsistencies, and then return home and exclaim with pride that England has retained her personality. They'll mock your tea hours and long week-ends, but jealously confide to their friends that England knows how to live.

Whatever you do, don't be eternally asking them what their country thought of the Abdication, or will they go to war for Britain, or do they find times are better? The generalities and stock questions discussed between chance acquaintances are the bane of the thoughtful traveller, though offered for conversation with the well-meant. Why not tell them about your flowers, what you read, where you go for your holidays, and why you prefer cheese to steak? Perhaps you find they're serious, and want to talk objectively, meet them halfway.

o—o—o

It would be kinder not to laugh if they go down Pall Mall instead of "Pell mell," or express surprise that the tide reaches London. One might even confuse Glasgow with Dublin: but before you reply in smug condescension, see that you know the capital of Saskatchewan and the location of Tasmania. You would it be wise to introduce your visitor around your club as a Colonial curio, for quite possibly he's not the rube he looks.

On the other hand, they'll exasperate you by everlastingly making comparisons. "At home we do this better . . ." has been worn so ragged as to warrant a poster at all pools advising members of the home lovers club to stay on board. They may be rude about your coffee, sigh at the sight of another spring, and shiver in your damp home. And if you retort that the Englishman likes fresh air and cold baths, the valor may ask you why in the name of English cleanliness and hardiness you don't take a shower bath after a round of golf as do all self-respecting Canadians.

But enough of this "everlastingly making comparisons."

RELIEF BILL IS SENT TO SENATE

Long Step Toward Early Prorogation Taken by Acceptance

Ottawa, April 7 (CP)—Social Credit, modified socialism, municipal relief strikes, charges of "secret" negotiations with the British government and an attack on censorship exercised by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation featured yesterday's discussions in the House of Commons.

A long step toward early prorogation was taken when after a general debate which has covered several days, the 1937 relief bill passed all stages in the House and was sent to the Senate.

In the face of criticism from government supporters and from all parts of the Opposition and suggestions of strikes by municipalities because of the relief burden, Labor Minister Rogers indicated the possibility that some of the relief money granted the Province would be "earmarked" for certain municipal works, and relief needs.

Social Credit leader John Blackmore enunciated the Social Credit creed as the means that should be adopted to deal effectively with an unemployment problem which he declared would exist even if the prosperity of 1929 returned.

Conservative Leader Bennett, when the relief bill was discussed in committee stage, suggested the Provinces be assisted in technical education, particularly in the West.

INSURGENT FOES ROUTED BY GOV'T.

Loyalists Score One of The Most Smashing Victories of War

Madrid, April 7 (AP)—A government force stormed the heights of Mount Chimorra in Cordoba Province, it was reported today, and put their Insurgent foes to rout in one of the most smashing victories of the civil war.

The thrust, near the easterly end of the government's Pozoblanco front, carried the shouting "Millicianos" within 1-2 miles of Villaharta from which a short drive would sever the Insurgents main line of communications, the Cordoba-Pennarroya Road.

(Villaharta was erroneously reported captured last week).

Last night, after the government column reached the summit of Mount Chimorra, a detail was put to work burying the bodies of 400 Insurgent victims of the fierce attack.

When day broke the Madrid-Valencia soldiers set out again, away from the mountain top, to clear out scattered groups of Insurgents caught behind the suddenly formed new line.

Insurgents were reported in flight from Villaharta on the road to Pennarroya. Mount Chimorra is part of the mountain range of that name fronting on the Cordoba-Pennarroya highway from the north.

Government planes quickly followed up the Chimorra assault in a bomb attack on Villaharta, said reports by the Pebus (official Spanish) News Agency.

BRITISHERS FIGHTING FOR LOYALISTS CAPTURED BY REBELS

Some of the twenty-five Englishmen captured recently by Spanish insurgents, shown in a rebel prison camp near Madrid receiving packages of cigarettes. The twenty-five are sole survivors of the "regiment" from London which was almost entirely wiped out during its first baptism of fire with the loyalists. The men lived in England, were unemployed and were enrolled in London by a group which promised work as road workers in Spain. When the men arrived in Spain, their passports were reportedly confiscated and they were given rifles instead of picks and spades.

SLEIGHS BRING SUPPLIES FOR WORKERS "MAROONED" ON ICE-LOCKED ISLAND

Though it might come from the album of a Peary or a Byrd, this is a picture of Polar exploration. It was made at the Isle Royale camp of the U.S. Civilian Conservation Corps, an ice-locked island in Lake Superior where 100 men have been virtually marooned all winter clearing fallen trees and debris left by a forest fire last summer. The work is done in the winter to remove the hazard of another disastrous blaze and the C.C.C. boys are shown hauling supplies to their camp with a sleigh. The Isle Royale base is the furthest north of the C.C.C. camps.

The fliers are, LEFT to RIGHT, Jan Serhast, chief pilot who was slightly injured; Josef English, mechanic; Josef Bacovsky, radio operator, and Zafiay Brtnik, co-pilot, who was also injured. The aeroplane in which the four Czechoslovakian aviators were flying is also shown after it had crashed. The fliers were unable to locate the radio beam which would have led them to safety.

Touch of Magic Makes Hall Room A Charming Nook

The hall bedroom, the scourge of all city houses a decade or so ago, finds new use today, with the magic of modern decoration. No longer need the tiny cubicle be shunned because it is cluttered up with heavy furniture, its walls dark and dreary, and the sun which streams through its one window too bright, or the room too dark and airless with drawn blinds.

Funds may be obtained from any bank under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan at a very low rate of interest for the rejuvenation of these rooms, and they often become one of the most attractive in the house.

A housewife decided to do over such a room in her house. The woodwork was painted ivory and a light figured wallpaper used on the walls. The ceiling was painted a pale blue, the colour of the sky. Floors were repainted and varnished.

Venetian blinds hung at the windows allowing air without too much sunlight on a hot day. Net curtains were used to take away the feeling of barrenness without cluttering up the place with silk or chintz.

TRINITY WOMEN'S GUILD
(Rednersville)

A very delightful evening was spent at the home of Mrs. George Leverton on April 2nd.

Mrs. Leverton who is a member of the Women's Guild of Trinity Church, kindly opened her spacious home for a euchre and dance under the auspices of the guild.

While there were other attractions the guild members were greatly pleased with the crowd that came to enjoy the evening.

There was enough for ten tables of euchre and twelve games were played. The prize winners were as follows: Ladies first, Mrs. Floyd Goodfellow with 132 points, second, Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald with 115 points and the ladies consolation went to Mrs. H. Shelton who had 61 points.

Gents first was won by Mr. Herbert Houston who had 126 points and the second went to Mr. Fred Louis with 119 points, and the consolation went to Mr. George Leverton who had 90 points.

Little Miss Mary Jean May Topping then drew the door prize and Mrs. Edward Kent was the lucky winner of a lovely table cloth.

A delightful lunch was then served by the Guild members.

The music the members had spooked for failed to appear and the women appreciated the offer of Wallace Robertson to play, also Mr. Fred Louis and Mr. Sid Fitzgerald. These gentlemen certainly helped to make the evening the success it was.

The women then sold tickets on a Fuller broom which was kindly donated by the local representative of that firm, their efforts were rewarded by three dollars and five cents.

Then little Daisy Ellen Kent was called to draw the lucky ticket and Mrs. Horace Wright or Belleville was the winner.

Much credit should be given to the Guild members for the social spirit that prevails as used refreshings, as members of all creeds are present, with a sense of complete unity and without this no social could not exist.

The members wish to thank Mrs. M. Shetior for kindly postponing the practice that would have prevented some of the members of the United Church from attending, this act was sincerely appreciated. The receipts taken in at the door amounted to $6.55.

Once again we thank you one and all for your patronage. Also Mr. and Mrs. George Leverton, for the use of their home, and the members of the Guild hope to spend more pleasant time, with each and every one of you.

Those assisting in serving were Mrs. Harry Tamlyn, Mrs. R. Allen cock, Miss Isabel Peck, Mrs. Alex Dickey, Miss Evelyn Perry.

NOTABLE QUINTE MARINER IS DEAD

Captain William Bloomfield Well Known in Belleville

Captain William Bloomfield, born in Kingston in 1862, and who was one of the few remaining local mariners of the old school, passed away at his home, 94 Clergy Street West, Kingston, Monday, after nine weeks' illness, though he had been in ill-health for three years prior to that. The funeral took place privately from his residence, 94 Clergy Street West, on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, interment being made at Riverview cemetery, Napanee.

Being attracted by the water, Captain Bloomfield took service as a boy on the steamer Hastings, owned and operated by the Gildersleeves between Kingston and Bay of Quinte ports. He remained with these owners for over thirty years, during which time he advanced through the various grades until he obtained master's papers. Possibly he is best remembered as captain of the popular steamer Hero, which maintained a daily service on the bay during the "eighties" and "nineties", with trips to the Thousand Islands. Later he was in charge of the steamer Caspian, operating out of Rochester, N.Y., to the Islands in conjunction with the North King. About twenty-five years ago he transferred to the old Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co., and then was with the Canada Steamship Lines, having charge of the steamer Belleville and other vessels owned by that organization. Of more recent years he sailed the Brockville and did pilot service on the lake and river. During his long active career, he was always well regarded by the travelling public, and the owners had every confidence in him, as he was a most capable officer in every respect.

Surviving his late Captain Bloomfield are his wife, formerly Keith Cadman, and two daughters, Fannie Bloomfield of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. George Williamson, Kingston.

NAVIGATION TO OPEN ON APRIL 15

New Freight Records Likely to be Established This Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Prospects of a busy season, probably establishing new freight records were considered bright today as harbors along the Great Lakes as shipping companies made plans for the official opening for navigation Thursday of next week coincident with the opening of canals at Welland, Sault Ste. Marie and other points.

The greatest increases in shipments were expected to be in iron ore, coal and other heavy commodities. The tonnage in iron ore was expected by officials to set a record exceeding even that of 1929. The mild winter lessened the probability of a record being established in coal shipments, they said. Grain shipments were lowest in 1935, increased last year and are expected to be larger this year.

Navigation in some ports was opened in March because of the mild winter and early spring, but general movements of vessels were delayed by the Federal rule that canals would not be opened until April 15, the date selected each year.

Shipping on the Great Lakes will be facilitated by the expected opening July 1 by the Dominion government of seven radio-telephone stations along the shipping route between Port William and Kingston. These would allow direct conversation from vessels to land stations at Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Midland, Point Edward, Port Burwell, Toronto and Kingston.

Flowing Beards Feature Jubilee

Victoria, April 7 (CP)—The entire male population of this city, particularly the provincial legislature, is due for a "hair-raising" experience as the Victoria Jubilee Committee prepares for a whisker-growing contest.

The committee plans to create a pioneer atmosphere by asking every man to put aside his razor and raise the most luxuriant beard he can produce before the start of the fete.

Full beards permitted to live their own life, wild and free, will find favor in the eyes of judges, but consideration will be given to whiskies who lean to personal landscape gardening. These may cultivate a neat "Van Dyke" or "spade" type of hirsute adornment.

The passengers and other members of the crew were reported to have been removed to safety aboard the Tarnaki.

PRESENT BIBLE AS KING CROWNED

Custom of Giving Monarch Sacred Volume is Fairly Modern

London, April 7 (CP)—Comparatively modern is the Coronation rites replete with tradition and antiquity is the ceremony of presenting the King with a copy of the Holy Bible, coming right after the actual crowning.

This presentation of "the most valuable thing that this world affords" has been part of the ritual since the coronation of William of Orange and of Mary in 1689. After the Bible is replaced on the altar, a threefold benediction is pronounced by the Archbishop of Canterbury:

"Then shall the King go to his Throne and be lifted up into it by the Archbishops, Bishops and other peers of the kingdom." Historically the phrase, "lifted up," is full of significance, for it goes back to the days when rulers in this land and in other countries were "lifted up" upon shields, or stones, and were thus enthroned.

Thereafter follows the "homage ceremony" which made audible the King." First come the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, followed by Bishops of the realm, then the Prince of Wales—if any—then princes of the blood royal, and the other peers of the realm.

The "homage" consists in kneeling before the crowned Sovereign, speaking the words of fealty, touching his crown, and kissing his cheek. All the princes and peers remove their coronets for this ceremony.

The Archbishop of Canterbury acts in all particulars for other Bishops and the princes of the blood royal do their homage one by one. The first of the five orders of other peers act on behalf of the rest o their order. After the singing of a psalm, the drums beat, the trumpets sound, "and all the people shout":

God Save King George,
Long live King George,
May the King live for ever!

Following this acclamation comes the anointing and crowning of the Queen.

Rangers Hand Detroit Lacing In First Game for Stanley Cup To Gain Big Edge in Series

Score is 5-1, Rangers Firing Three In First Period

SMITH TANKED

Detroit Goalie Fans on Shot And is Replaced by Robertson

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, April 7.—(CP)— New York Rangers handed Detroit Red Wings a 5-1 lacing in spacious Madison Square Garden and today, with the big "first game" edge in their best-three-of-five Stanley Cup series, the Patrick mob had in effect said "pooh!" to Jack Adams and his National Hockey League champions.

That goes even with the remaining games for the world hockey championship scheduled for Detroit Ice Gray-haired Lester Patrick expressed the Ranger spirit after last night's game, when he said:

"I refuse to worry unless Detroit can win the next two games."

Nobody else in the Ranger den seemed to think the cup defenders could do this. Rs name the Rangers rejoiced that Earl Seibert, stretched their-playoff winning streak to five straight victories and that Goalie Frankie Boucher summed it all up with "we're not now, nothing can stop us."

Only one small bit of bothersome apparent—the loss through goal scored in the dying minutes of the final period to Davie Kerr of his fourth shutout in five playoff games.

On the scoring end, Jack Adams, director of the league champions, conceded defeat, but predicted that for one night at least, had been too hot for the Detroiters to hold.

Team Mates Praise Goalie

Boucher, beaming happily in the dressing room, expounded the theory, that the Rangers had snapped out of their slump with too much vigor, that nothing could obstruct them.

"We're all so hot now that nobody knows what to expect," he said. "Once a hot in the nets and out front everybody else is going great guns. We've just got to get the cup now."

The Rimshiny second three goals in the first period and then added one in each of the next two sessions to make the total of goals that gathered for Rangers' last Garden appearance this season, apeplex.

It was a five-man Detroit thrust, that gave the big one last night moment. The Red Wing snipers carried the puck deep into New York territory and, evading the Ranger defence, Sid Howe connected a pass to Carson Pettinger and Mickie Goodfellow to score with a close-in shot.

JUBILANT KILREA

Hec Kilrea, veteran speedster of the Detroit Red Wings, is shown as he jubilantly kissed the stick with which he shot the winning goal against Montreal Canadiens to win for his team the championship of the National Hockey League. Kilrea scored the winning tally after three periods of overtime play during which the teams were deadlocked 1-1.

Lyn Patrick Starring

Boucher and Lyn Patrick split the Ranger shutout honors while Chinp Johnson, Art Coulter, Ott Heller, Joe Cooper and Babe Pratt shared defensive honors.

Patrick scored two goals, one of them on Boucher's assist and Pratt scored another himself, quitch Keeling and Joe Cooper scored the other Ranger tallies.

Goalie Norm Smith, Vezina trophy winner, was in the nets when Patrick, Keeling and Cooper scored in the opening session but he was withdrawn at the start of the second period in favor of rookie Earl Robertson. Smith hurt his left arm during the N.H.L. title series with Montreal Canadiens.

It was against Earl that Boucher blasted his baffling shot and Patrick scored the counter just as sad as Smith, when he scored in the final period.

A couple of crops added spice to the third period. Ott Heller and Coulter drew major penalties in the first scrap, which involved Boucher and Joe Lee and a policeman, Heller's share of the bout was a lengthy scalp wound. Before the fracas ended, Phil Watson and Sid Howe exchanged some harmless blows.

REAPING REWARD STABLE THREAT

Mrs. Ethel Mars Will Have Five Entries in Kentucky Derby

(By Orio Robertson)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, first lady of the United States turf, is bidding for the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 8 with a five-ply entry that boasts quality as well as numerical strength.

Heading the delegation from the Chicago Sportswoman or Milky Way farm at Pulaski, Tenn., are Reaping Reward and Dos Ace—two of 1936's outstanding Juveniles. The others include Mumpky, a sprinter of no mean ability; Jawbreaker, by which little is known, and Military Plume, a recent addition to the string.

Sir Patsy Rilly in the $500,000 Santa Anita Derby last winter.

Reaping Reward is considered the stable's real threat, however, ranking only a notch below Pompoon and Brooklyn in the future books at 12 to 1. This son of Sickle was only five to his 15 starts as a two-year old but wound up the year with two victories, that, starting him as a route-running horse.

He whipped Pompoon by a nose in the mile and 70 yards of the New Orleans Futurity and then came back a week later to take the mile at the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes at the Downs. These two victories together with a triumph in the United States Hotel stakes at Saratoga figured largely in his total earnings of $56,955.

"Reaping Reward is well advanced after training since Jan. 8," writes trainer Bob McCreery from Arlington Downs where the five stallions are receiving their final preparation before moving on to the Downs. "He did a mile in 1:43 flat the recently and went on to cover 1 1-16 mile in 1:47. His only drawback is that he is a rank and poor muddler.

"As for Case Ace, there's a hoss that will be dangerous if he will go 1 1-4 mile."

Clearwater, Fla.—As the Dodgers broke camp today, five members of the team were still on the hospital list with shortstop Tony Malinosky almost definitely out for the opening day. This means Jack Hudson will be the likely starter at short for the season opens. Joe Stripp, third baseker, and second baseman Charley Lernerhave been in the sick bay.

RAMBLERS DOWN SYRACUSE STARS

Philadelphia, April 7.—(AP) Philadelphia Ramblers, a hand-picked aggregation of budding hockey stars, who hope to hit the big league in a year or two with New York Rangers, are following closely in the steps of their National Hockey League parent.

Winners of the Eastern Division playoffs in the International-American League, the Ramblers started off their final series for the League title last night by whipping the high-powered Syracuse Stars 2-0 while the Rangers were beating Detroit in the first game of the Stanley Cup Series.

To make the parallel even closer, the stars, Western Division Champs, are "farm hands' of Toronto Maple Leafs, beaten by Rangers in the opening round of the National League playoffs.

The first young line of Bob Kirk, Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall did all the scoring, Smith and Shannon, Syracuse defence man, inadvertently passed the puck to Kirk for the first "score" and the former Vancouver player promptly converted it into a goal. Hextall duties later similar acts on the scoring end of a three-man play.

BRADDOCK OPENS TRAINING GRIND

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

Stone Lake, Wis., April 7.—(AP)—Chopping down trees in the woods surrounding his camp and saving them into fire wood lengths to heat his cabin will be the extent of James J. Braddock's training activities for possibly two weeks.

The world's heavyweight champion said today he will indulge in no boxing for at least that time. Road work is out of the question because of the muddy condition of the highways, almost impassable, even to motor cars, due to melting snow.

Any hopes of playing golf that Braddock entertained vanished after a storm left half a foot of snow on the course at Hayward, 24 miles away. Although Braddock brought his clubs along, he probably will not get a chance to use them until May 1.

As a result he will devote his time to chopping and sawing. Bobby Gippman, Braddock's trainer, is a strong believer in a boxer adding an axe to toughen his hands. He says that exercise also sharpens a fighter's timing. Gippman's method for Braddock for 12 years and previously conditioned Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, Gene Tunney and other noted ringmen.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

After emjoying the most successful season in hockey history ever known in this city the ice is being removed from the local rink today. With the aid of pick axes, crow bars, shovels and other utensils, that require considerable strength to wield and manipulate, the employees at the Arena have successfully dug and broken up practically the entire ice surface and today trucks will be driven into the Arena the now grimmy pieces or broken ice will be loaded on the trucks and carted away, thus dropping the curtain on the most successful season of hockey ever enjoyed in Belleville or environs, when not only the O.H.A. championships were won in the local ice igloo, but the first provincial title ever won by a local team was brought into our midst and who seems to care?

Out in Peterborough where their intermediate hockey club did not even get out of the group play-offs and where the Peter' juniors advanced only to be third round loser in the O.H.A. play-downs, the Lifluck City got considerable publicity there with money orders for merchandise to the value of $25.00 per player, but this has been prohibited by the new A.A.U. of C. ruling. The Peterboro intermediates, by the way, are sufficient "in the kick" to warrant a split, this money being left in the treasury for next season. The Peterborough they apparently did not appreciate the publicity given the past season with their hockey. In Belleville, however, where their intermediates O.H.A. champs are "P" championship of the province have brought to the city by the management, except for their being given the Capital Theatre's last Friday night. Some appreciation.

Newt Thompson and Alex Wells represented the C.O.B.L. at the annual meeting of the O.S.A. held in Owen Sound on Saturday, while we voted with Wall Grover on the Hastings County junior tichet, Kingston was the only larger baseball centre represented the district represented and doubtless will have the squawking in the ice at the next meeting of the Central League. It was ever thus. There has been a marked absence of applications, or transfers coming out of Kingston and Peterborough this spring as although it is a recognized fact, that new faces will be seen on the roster of both the Peta, and the Ponies next summer. Already the Motor City scouts' scribe says he spotted a mouse down around Kingston, "where they are undoubtedly a wall-eyed termination of the baseball spring training period. "Member Mr. Chancey boyd", quoth the observa scribe as he belittles the Kingston method of too slowly applying for transfers.

The remaining four clubs in the C.O.B.L. seem to still believe the B. C. A. "Flyers" will be back over the defunct Belleville Central League franchise. At the annual meeting of the Kingston and Peterboro interests however, we can assure them that the "Flyers" will not be represented in the C.O.B.L. this coming season. The B.C.A.F. executive feel they have not baseball players in their midst sufficiently strong enough to cope with the "packed teams" from Oshawa et al this season, but may be induced to try Intermediate O.B.A.A. ball in district league as a first-class venture, however, which means the Central League will have to function as a four-teamed league with Belleville fans will have to journey to Napanee, Brockville, Kingston or Oshawa to enjoy the summer pastime in the senior ranks.

Woodrow Wilson "Babe" Davis, Toronto hurler with Dan Howley's Toronto Leafs who hails from Odessa, Ont., is a gamester as relating tall tales pertaining to the diamond pastime. Babe's latest is about a game he played in his home town of Odessa. It seems that Babe was pitching on a ground rule, that a fair ball meant the runner must circle the bases as many times as he desired, until the last ball was recovered. During the game, relates the tall one "Babe", Odnn was trailing by four-runs in the last inning when the one of Davis' team mates drove the ball into a small hole in a hollow log and started around the bases, before the ball was recovered. 'Babe' says that with that one small error one acked him how they got the ball—Aw, they got an axe and chopped the log.

Knotty Lee, manager of the Odenbury Colts in the Canadian-American Professional Baseball League, is going to play 4 games versus the Perth club of the same league, during their spring training period here in Belleville. Knotty proposes to play these games on May the 14th, if arrangements to have the diamond put into playing condition can be made. Knotty has a game should attract considerable attention, and the local baseball fans an opportunity to compare the professional game with the O.B.A.A. and city leagues. We are passing the correspondence on to Secretary Parks Commission for their approval.

Lionel "Big Train" Conacher, Canada's number one athlete regardless of his age, has at last officially announced his retirement from athletic circles. Mr. H. L. For 30 years Lionel Conacher has dominated the field of sport in Canada. He was officially rated him as a star and an opponent that was with due respect and respect of his adversaries, be it in lacrosse, football, hockey, baseball, basketball, golf or what have you. Lionel Conacher will be remembered by local fans as the player who played here with the old Toronto Millionaires baseball club, a powerful team of hitters, who were subdued by the old Belleville Nationals and the old Belleville Terriers. Toronto Aura Lee junior hockey team along with Bill Cook, Toronto's greatest all-around athlete this country ever produced.

Normie Smith, who was the hero, when the Rangers' playoff finals eliminated the Canadiens, was the hero of the Rangers' 2-1 victory last night and was removed for his accustomed post after allowing three goals in the opening period against The Rangers won 5-1. It is the first time that Smith has been relieved or ever derricked in a Stanley Cup series.

The Industrial softball moguls met last night all prepared to give the newly instituted Belleville Softball Association the "run" known as thumbing. Five teams were represented, but none did much more than show local interest in the project until Barney Smith, representing the Canadian Associated Press, got up and "let the cat out of the bag" by announcing that the Canadian Associated Press was affiliate with the O.A.S.A. whether you fellows like it or not," declared Barney, in the face of the cool reception of the delegates. And when the smoke had settled away there were only two teams left that even so much as suggested Industrial softball with the result the Industrialists of yesterday will meet again at the same organization meeting to be held at the Adanac Hotel Corner tonight at 8 o'clock.

KERR WANTED TO WAL IOF MAROONS; HE DID

Before the Maroons-Ranger playoff series, Goalie Dave Kerr, of New York Rangers is reported as having said, "Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to wallop the Maroons in the play-offs." Mr. Kerr got his wish and in the first game, because the Rangers beat Maroons in two straight games without the Montreal team scoring a single goal off Dave. He is pictured here puffing his beloved pipe and telling of how Maroons got rid of him because Manager Tommy Gorman thought more of Art Connell. Rangers now engage Toronto Leafs in Semi-Final for Cup, emblematic of professional hockey supremacy of the world.

Sketches of Sudbury Tigers

Toronto, April 7 (CP)—Sudbury Tigers, rulers of Eastern Senior Hockey, will present a handpicked lineup, when they face North Battleford Beavers at Calgary tomorrow night in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Allan Cup. In best of spirits, 13 players, coach Red Stuart and Manager Harry Towns will arrive at the foothills city tomorrow morning.

Nucleus of the club is the Frood Mine team which won the Nickel Belt Senior championship and then only one game during the schedule. Three other players have been chosen from other teams in the league to round out a squad which marched through Eastern opposition with little difficulty.

Thumbnail sketches of the players:

Goal: CHARLIE TENO — Rated one of the best goalies in Ontario. A Sudbury product, he played with Hamilton Tigers last season when they won the senior O.H.A. championship. First year with Frood Mine.

Defence: FRANK LAVIGNE — Was with Halifax Wolverines, when Coach Stuart steered that club to the Allan Cup in 1935. Hails from Ste. Anne as his home port and has been with Frood for two seasons.

Defence: RUDOLPH (BINGO) KAMPMAN — Product of Kitchener Intermediate ranks, this hard-bumping defenceman, has been playing in the Nickel Belt for two seasons, joining Frood last fall.

Defence: NEAL BROWN — A reinstated professional, once with New York Rangers, this big fellow has a steadying influence on Voters. He did a bang-up job this winter as player-coach-manager of the Creighton Mine team.

Defence: VERNELL PRICE — Starred with Brockville Magedomas when Sudbury Falcons eliminated them in the eastern playdowns last season. Coached Coniston Mine this year. A steady player, he got in some pre-season training with Chicago Black Hawks and it is reported his name is still on that club's reserve list.

Centre: JIM DEWEY — Spearhead of Tigers' attack, this former Moose Jaw and Saskatchewan University star has won the Sam Nothachild trophy, awarded to the Nickel Belt's highest scorer, the season's in a row. He was a member of the Saskatoon Quakers team, which made a successful tour of Europe.

Centre: STEVE CONICK — Veteran of the club, this smooth playmaker comes from Hamilton. He teamed with Maxie Bennett and Joe Blake on Hamilton Tigers' great scoring line of 1932.

Centre: GEORGE HASTIE — Again last season, George was Tigers' most valuable man, when they are shortlisted as an artist at ragging the puck. Originally from Windsor, he played with Teno for Hamilton Tigers.

Right Wing: MEL HILL — Blond bomber from Saskatoon, who is considered a dependable professional prospect. Played with Sudbury Cub Wolves in 1935. Has been absent from playoffs when the O.H.A. refused to grant his card. He is regarded as the fastest skater in the Nickel Belt.

Right Wing: JULES CHOLETTE — Colorful Frenchman from Penetang who played two years in Paris and one with Toronto St. Michaels before coming to Frood. Has the hardest shot on the team.

Right Wing: CHARLIE MARSHALL — Cleaned from Ottawa senior ranks, Marshall's backcheeking was a great factor in Refinery's play in the Nickel Belt League this winter.

Spare: ART CROSSO—Considered the best utility man on the club, this Sault Ste. Marie youngster has performed valuable in the play-offs. He graduated from Sudbury junior ranks.

Left Wing: MURPIE CHAMBERLAIN—Another player with lots of experience. Veteran of Kirkland Lake, Timmins, Noranda and Sudbury, he broke into organized hockey with Ottawa Primrose and played with New Edinburgh and Ottawa and at Lake Placid. After moving north he played with Noranda, Noranda Que., and South Porcupine, Ont., before going to Sudbury.

EARLIER KINGS CROWNED FAST TO MAKE SURE

In Middle Ages Heirs to English Throne Took Over The Treasury Then Arranged With Archbishop

London, April 7—(CP)— Three royal dynasties have filled the throne of England and passed away, and the dynasty which now holds sway has ruled for nearly two centuries.

While the Coronation solemnities in their essentials for the crowning of George VI and Queen Elizabeth on May 12 will be as they have been since the beginning of the realm, it is hardly surprising that through the centuries their actual celebration has been performed under the most diverse conditions.

The practice of a Coronation taking place a considerable time after the death of the previous sovereign dates back only to Stuart times. In an earlier period the matter of a questionable succession often prompted the performance of the ceremony under conditions of haste and even of some secrecy. In the Middle Ages the first care of successors to the throne was to secure the treasury which lay at Winchester and then to banish the Archbishop and other higher officers to the performance of the Coronation rites.

One of the first instances of long delay between accession and coronation was in the case of Edward the Confessor, so called on account of his great reputation for sanctity, who died in 1066. He appears to have been formally recognized as heir to the throne, if not actually associated in the Kingship, of Hardicanute, who recalled him in 1041 from Normandy where Edward had been taken by his parents, Ethelred II and his wife Emma, for refuge on the recognition of Sweyn as King of England in 1013.

Upon the death of Hardicanute in 1042 old records have it that "all folk received Edward to be king," but his actual coronation was delayed until Easter of 1043. A few months later Edward, in conjunction with the great earls of the kingdom, made a raid on the queen-mother Emma, seized all her possessions and compelled her to live in retirement.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg— Easter Day was very fittingly observed in the two village churches. In the Anglican Church at 9 o'clock the Rector, Rev. F. C. Beggs had Holy Communion service with a large number of communicants present. The rector delivered a very suitable Easter message. The Church looked very nice with potted plants and a rose placed on the altar. Special Easter music and prayers were used for this service.

In the United Church on Sunday evening the service was largely attended and took the form of a pageant. The front of the church was nicely decorated with Easter lilies and the altar and choir loft were draped in purple. The procession hymn "In the cross of Christ I glory" was followed by a reception service conducted by the pastor Rev. H. B. Herrington. Misses Beasle and Anna English and Messrs Morlog and Ward English were received into the church membership. The pageant "The story of Easter" was presented by members of the choir assisted by the children and some of the members of the Sunday School, "I love to tell the story" was sung by the choir. The Easter story was then told in parts by Misses Dorothy Clare, Olive Kennedy, Anna English, Marion Grills and Mrs. J. Chappelle, Mrs. Percy Sprague, Berton Vance and Ross McTaggart. Little Miss Irene Robinson appeared appropriately dressed in white and led by Miss Lucille Herrington as the Easter Fairy. Then came the Angel of Power, Miss Marion Bateman, the Angel of Hope, Miss Irene Walker and the Angel of Love, Miss Irene Robinson. Thirteen small girls and boys then entered bearing the letters "Christ is risen". Each one reciting a verse. Ten older boys and girls appeared, bringing Easter offerings, and each explained the meaning of the symbol they had before placing it at the foot of the cross. The music during the pageant was much enjoyed, selections were given by the following: Duets by Mrs. F. Porter and Mrs. N. Steven, "Silent night, holy night" and Mrs. Herrington and Miss Lucille Herrington "Just as I am" with harp accompaniment. Solos by Mrs. J. C. Morton "I think when I read that sweet story of old". Mrs. Herrington, "Bearing the cross'. Anthems. "There a lonely heartz to cherish", "Low in the grave He lay" "Come ye disconsolate", "Golden harps are sounding", "When I survey the wondrous cross", I spent long years for thee", "Take my hands and let them move", "Take my silver and my gold."

ANOTHER BLOW-OUT TAKES ITS TOLL

Guard your Family and your Car with GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION

WHAT if your name was featured in one of those newspaper blow-out accident headlines? Your car smashed, you or your family crippled? Blow-out accidents kill or injure thousands every year. Why gamble with this horrible chance? Why not make sure of blow-out protection now!

Heat—Blisters—Blow-outs

Consider what happens to your tires when you're travelling at today's usual high speeds. Naturally the heat generated in your tires is terrific. A tiny blister may form inside between the rubber and the fabric. Steadily it gets bigger and BIGGER. Then, no warning—until BANG! A Blow-out! Then it may be too late.

Goodrich engineers have developed a real blow-out protection called the "Golden Ply", found only in Goodrich Silvertown Tires. It is a layer of special rubber and full-cooling cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. Blisters don't get a chance to form, and that means blow-outs due to heat don't get started.

Doesn't YOU take chances

You can't afford to take chances on tires you've not positively sure about. The only safe thing to do is replace your risky tires with Goodrich Golden Ply Silvertowns. They're the only tires made with Golden Ply Blow-out Protection. Best in the long run—yet they cost no more.

NO OFFICIAL DATE TO CFEN HARBOR

No official date for the opening of Belleville harbour this season has yet been announced by the local Harbor Board it was stated today when members were questioned. This however, does not prohibit the entry here of vessels as early as arrivals and is merely an annual formality, it was stated.

Following her work in Lake Ontario last week, the government buoy carrier steamer Grenville, of Prescott, is expected to make her way up the bay within a week or so, laying out shipping channels and placing buoys for the season.

ORGANIZATION HOLDS AN AUCTION SALE

A novel departure from the usual procedure which characterize wo-ker's chanty organizations occurred yesterday when the members of St. Thomas Church Guild held an auction sale. Mrs. J. B. Christie wielded the auctioneer's hammer to a fast-buying audience. Trade was brisk and articles sold well after some spectacular bidding. The special committee of the Guild was realized from this novel method.

POLICE BLOTTER

Milk bottle thieves were again active in Belleville last night, as at least bill reached the attention of police authorities today. The latest complaint of milk bottle thefts again was received from the family residing at No. 120 Dundas street. A quart bottle of milk was stolen from the rear verandah early today. Although the offering of bottled milk was quite prevalent last year, police practice has considered considerably during the winter months but today's report indicates that the authorities do believe that petty thieving is the work of transients.

An average of ten and one-half per night for the first and night this month is the number of transients to be afforded an average night's lodging at the police station, 63 transients having been given a Belleville up until midnight last night. Incidentally last night's total was the highest average sleve's transients being given sleeping quarters for the night.

CUSTOM INVESTS CROWNING RITES IN ONE PRELATE

Cosmo Lang as Archbishop of Canterbury Will Anoint And Crown Both King And Queen May 12

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 1.—(CP)—The whole rite and ceremonies of the Coronation on May 12, except for incidents associated with certain items of the royal regalia, will be performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, 72-year-old Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang.

Naturally his Grace will be assisted by other prelates and the Dean of Westminster has a special place in the service, but it will be the Archbishop who will anoint and crown the King and Queen. He will also administer the oath of office to George VI.

On arriving at Westminster Abbey the King will go at once to the "theatre" at each of the four corners of which he is presented by the Archbishop to those assembled. Four times the Archbishop's question will be heard, "Are you willing to do your homage?" and the answer will be given, "God Save King George."

The central ceremony of the rite, the anointing, is introduced by the ancient hymn, "Come Holy Ghost, Our Souls Inspire," as it is sung at the consecration of a bishop or the ordination of a priest.

The King, divested of his crimson robe, and having removed his Cap of State, will be seated in King Edward's chair, and will then be anointed by the Archbishop with oil, in the form of a Cross on his head, breast and palms of both hands.

After several other ceremonies performed by other participants the Archbishop proceeds to the crowning. Standing at the altar, he will take the Crown into his hands, and laying it again on the altar he will say a Collect. A procession of the Archbishop with other bishops, the Lord of Westminster bearing the Crown, will then move to King Edward's Chair, where the King is seated. The Dean will deliver the Crown to the Archbishop, "who reverently puts it upon the King's head."

All once the cry rings out, loudly and repeatedly, "God Save the King" the peers put on their coronets, the trumpets sound, and the great guns of the Tower of London are fired.

Places Queen's Ring

It is also the Archbishop of Canterbury's sole prerogative to crown the Queen. His Grace receives from the officer of the Jewel House, in attendance, the Queen's Ring which he places on the fourth finger of her right hand. Then he takes St. Edith's Crown from the High Altar and places it on the Queen's head.

All the peeresses present put on their coronets. The sceptres—one with the Cross, and one an ivory rod surmounted by a dove—are placed in the Queen's right and left hands respectively.

The Queen, crowned and invested, now rises and, supported by her attendants, ascends the "theatre" on which stand the thrones. As she passes the King she bows "reverently" and then takes her place on his Majesty's left.

The present Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, is, like his immediate predecessor, a son of the manse. He was translated from York to Canterbury on the resignation of Dr. Randall Davidson in 1928. The Archbishop is in his 73rd year and is unmarried.

LANCASTER GIRDS NEW KING WITH HISTORIC SWORD

Duty of Presenting Golden Spurs at Coronation Falls to 70-Year-Old Peer as Family Heritage

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 1.—(CP)—As Lord Great Chamberlain, the Earl of Ancaster will have special duties in connection with the presentation of the regalia when the King and Queen are crowned at Westminster Abbey on May 12.

The Lord Great Chamberlain is the sixth great officer of state, the office being hereditary since the grant by Henry I to the family of De Vere, Earls of Oxford. To this officer falls the presentation of the Golden Spurs, emblems of knightly chivalry, with which the King's heels are lightly touched.

There is also the presentation of the sword in a scabbard. "Receive this kingly sword, brought now from the altar of God, and delivered to you by the hands of us, the bishops and servants of God though unworthy," the Archbishop of Canterbury will say. The Lord Great Chamberlain will then gird the sword about the King.

The spurs having been restored to the altar, the King will ungird the sword and offer it in the scabbard at the altar. It is then "redeemed" by some selected peer by an offering of 100 shillings, and returned to the altar to be girded naked before his Majesty during the rest of the solemnity."

As Lord Great Chamberlain, Lord Ancaster succeeded the Marquess of Cholmondeley, who relinquished the office following the abdication of Edward VIII. The office is distinct from that of the Lord Chamberlain, and alternates between three families, the head of one of which holds office every third reign.

Has American Wife

The present Earl of Ancaster will be 70 in July. He succeeded his father in 1910. He was in the House of Commons for a number of years before going to the Lords. From 1931 to 1934 he was parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture. His wife was the former Eloise Breese of New York City.

In addition to the foregoing duties, the Lord Great Chamberlain is responsible for the linen and gloves used by the King at the Coronation. He also has an important role in the state openings of parliament and is in charge of the Palace of Westminster.

Viscount Fetsham, now Earl of Dartmouth, was Lord Great Chamberlain at the coronation of George V.

102 Years of Age Teeth Still Good

Winnipeg, April 7—(CP)— Born in Winnipeg 102 years ago, Mrs. Lizzie Minnie, little Indian woman, enjoys a pipe tenaciously between her firm teeth and recalls the days when the city had only three stores and only a scattering of residences.

She lives with her son in a gaily-painted house on the outskirts. It has only one tiny window in front, with frilled curtains and a small stoop.

This winter she took to her bed because, as she explained, her "legs wouldn't go." She told a reporter that as a girl she used to take "kinnikinic"—to the Hudson Bay post and sell it for 10 cents a pound. The Rebellion was clear in her mind. "Sure. My brothers soldiers."

Of her 10 children only two are alive. "God take all the rest," she said.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLA

Joan Crawford, William Powell and Robt. Montgomery in Comedy-Romance

Ultra - smart comedy in which three of Hollywood's top - flight stars participate, is the attractive form at the Bella Theatre where Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" is the feature attraction today, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily.

Joan Crawford, William Powell and Robert Montgomery combine their assorted talents in one of the most entertaining and glamorous films to grace the screen via the stage. The film is based on the famous play by Frederic Lonsdale.

In the supporting cast are Frank Morgan, Jessie Ralph, Nigel Bruce, Colleen Clare, Benita Hume, Ralph Forbes, Aileen Pringle and Melville Cooper, all of whom do excellently by their respective roles.

Miss Crawford appears in the title role as the lovely American widow who creates a flurry in the elusive London society. Her butler, portrayed by Powell, is the height of butler perfection and the gentleman of London fall in love with her, as the ladies glance admiringly at her servant. But when a string of pearls vanishes from the home in which the widow is a guest, suspicion falls on her. A young Lord, much in love with her, traps the real thief in her room and there confronts her with an obvious alternative to disgrace. Consequently, she pulls the bell cord that summons servants. Meanwhile an elder Lord has written his love for her in a letter which she has destroyed, but the old gentleman doesn't know that. Inasmuch as he has roundly scored his fellow socialites in the letter, he is considerably agitated. The whole matter is cleared up quite happily, but to reveal here would be to spoil the enjoyment of one of the season's outstanding comedy-romances. Miss Crawford, looking her most stunning in the gowns designed for her by Adrian, gives a fresh vivacity and sparkle to the role of the glamorous Mrs. Cheyney. Powell has never been better than as the crook with a sense of humor, and Montgomery as Lord Dilling once again proves his flair for sophistication and jauntiness.

With its star-studded cast, its brilliant production and engrossing story, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" is recommended as one of the most entertaining and delightful films seen here in some time.

The Bella, long World News Flashes, and "Hollywood Extra," a refreshing miniature are announced for exhibition on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Doctor's Diary" and "Can This Be Dixie"

Intimate behind - the - scenes glimpses in the realm of medicine is afforded in "A Doctor's Diary," a gripping drama of one doctor's struggle between love and duty now playing the Capitol with the second hit "Can This Be Dixie."

The doctor in this case is handsome John Trent, former ace flier who on the first leading role in this film. He is engaged to the daughter of the superintendent of a fashionable hospital, and it is because of his duty to her and his efforts to find a cure for infantile paralysis that he keeps his peace in the face of corruption and neglect. His nurse, played by Helen Burgess, is dismissed when she exposes the administration for neglect and when he sees a child loses his arm purely because of what appears to him to be outmoded medical ethics, he, too, quits.

An epidemic of infantile paralysis provided.

breaks out and he realizes that he must continue his experiments. He returns to the hospital and begs for his laboratory, promising that he will testify falsely at an oncoming trial in which the father of the child is suing the hospital for criminal neglect. He is forced to take the stand and testify. The heartbroken mother spooks him but he lives to see the reforms he fought for instituted and also to realize that it is his own nurse, and not the society beauty, whom he loves and who is his predestined helpmate.

Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts are featured in the supporting cast.

"Can This Be Dixie,"

filling music and intriguing lyrics, contributed by those ace composers Harry Akst and Sidney Clare, help to enhance and distinguish the latest hit picture which "Ginger" Dixie Withers has made for Twentieth Century-Fox. "Can This Be Dixie," now playing at the Capitol Theatre as hit no. 2.

Four swingy, pulse-quickening, highly entertaining numbers, each of which is sung by "Ginger" Jane in all of the dramas of the fascinating Southland. In no picture that she has ever made has "Ginger" Dixie Withers displayed greater versatility than here. She sings—she dances—she emotes—in fact she is, in every sense of the word, the finished trouper.

Throughout the picture there runs the melody of swingy tunes and lyrics written by that talented pair, Sidney Clare and Harry Akst, with intriguing dance numbers.

MRS. E. KUDNER FLEES FROM HOME

Fears Another Sudden Rage of R. Irwin Wanted For Triple Murder

New York, Apr. 7 (AP)—Object of Robert Irwin's affections fled from her Long Island home fearing the possibility of another sudden rage today on the part of the man accused of the triple murders of Beekman Hill.

As New York policemen searched faces on broad avenues and narrow cross streets in an effort to apprehend the suspect in the killing of Veronica Gedeon, artist's model, and two other persons, Mrs. Ethel Kudner left her Astoria residence for an unnamed destination.

Several detectives were detailed to guard her and others were assigned to her home.

Assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons said that it was the sculptor's infatuation for the then Miss Ethel Gedeon, dating from 1922 when he was a roomer in the Gedeon home, that led Irwin to take the lives of "Bonnie", her mother and a waiter, Frank Byrnes, at Easterlide.

Bonnie and her mother discouraged Irwin's courtship of Ethel, since married to another man.

Meantime, every lead obtained by police as to the whereabouts of the fugitive student and one-time inmate of a hospital for the insane had proved fruitless.

Irwin Well Liked.

Bridgeport, Conn., Apr. 7 (AP)—Anders Lande, former friend of Robert Irwin who is sought for the slaying of three persons, including Irwin's wife, saying in New York, revealed today in an interview that the 29-year-old sculptor once wanted to "establish a religion that would satisfy the world."

Lunde, who is 22, and Irwin were fellow students at St. Lawrence University Drama School when the latter was asked to leave.

Lunde said Irwin's best friend", he said, and added "he was a very fine chap and I liked him very much although I have not known who formed him."

The Bridgeport youth said Irwin's proposed new religion was to have been based on "the indestructible beliefs and Christian precepts.

Close Watch Kept.

Buffalo, N.Y., Apr. 7 (AP)—Police last night set up a special patrol of hotels and rooming houses in search of Robert Irwin, 30-year-old fugitive wanted for questioning in New York City's triple murder case.

Close watch also was established at the Peace Bridge, at the Buffalo-Fort Erie, Ont., ferry and at Niagara Falls on the possibility Irwin might try to cross the border into Canada.

TWICE CROWNED WERE TWO KINGS OF OLD ENGLAND

Richard The Crusader And Henry VI Made Their Title Doubly Sure by Two Coronations in Each Case

London, April 7—(CP)—Coronation of George VI and Queen Elizabeth on May 12 recalls a number of history associated with previous crownings, and among the double-coronations which have occurred twice in England's history.

Richard the Lion Heart, the great Crusader, was crowned at Winchester in 1189—the first occasion. Although long a favorite hero with troubadours and romancers, Richard I by no means embodied the ideal of chivalrous excellence.

His record was stained by at least one act of unclean cruelty, the massacre of more than 2,000 Saracen prisoners at Acre, and his fury, when thwarted or humbled, was ungovernable. As a ruler he was rapacious and few useful measures in his own country can be placed to his credit.

On returning from the Crusades in 1192, after numerous intrigues and battles by other parts of Europe, Richard was captured at Vienna in a mean disguise and was compelled to purchase his release by payment of a heavy ransom.

Richard reappeared in England in March, 1194, and he was recrowned to show that he had not signed away the kingdom. Though his ransom was never paid in full, the resources of England were taxed to the utmost for the first instalments, and from this can be traced the beginning of secular taxation on movable property.

Henry VI also had two crownings. The first took place at Westminster in 1429 as King of England. The second was in old Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris, two years later, when he was crowned King of France.

Missionary Says Northland Lures

Winnipeg, April 7—(CP)— The Northland has an irresistible charm for a woman once it has laid on its spell, says Miss Prudence Hockin, now on her way to take her post as matron of a mission at Moose Factory, on James Bay.

No matter how often one comes out to modern civilization the urge to return to the land of the Eskimo remains. Miss Hockin has just completed a year's leave at home here after five years in charge of the Anglican Mission at Pantin-nung, Baffin Land.

In tribute to her gallant spirit and great service in missionary work among Eskimos and Indians, the Woman's Auxiliary of Nupert's Land diocesan board honored her with a life membership.

SAYS ESKIMOS ARE FRIENDLY

In Fur-Trader's Wife's Opinion Eskimos Are Happy-go-Lucky

Edmonton, April 7—(CP)—Most people have fantastic ideas about Eskimos, according to Mrs. Ray Rose who returned to Edmonton after living for several months at Read Island, in the Arctic Ocean, 1,500 air miles north of Edmonton.

"The Husky (northerners' name for the Eskimo) is fatalistic, a happy-go-lucky individual and intelligent," said Mrs. Rose whose husband is a fur trader at Read Island. "Some of them where we are, are marvelous mechanics. There are only two or three families of them on Read Island.

"They live in igloos. They're nomadic, you know, and they do love to visit. They really appreciate company. At Christmas there were about 40 families of them on the island and we had a big time. A lot of them know Christmas carols, too, taught by the missionaries.

"Our Eskimos are the "Copmartas," which means "strange". They are a purer race than those towards the western Arctic, for instance around Aklavik, where whaling boats ply and inter-marriages has taking place. Our Eskimos are less advanced for the reason they have not come in contact with the whites so much. The Eskimo is inherently honest. You can leave anything around and be sure it won't be touched."

Then Mrs. Rose asked the reporter to be careful about what he wrote.

"The Eskimos will read this," she warned. "They are learning English rapidly."

"When I left all the Eskimos there saw me off," the young woman stated. "And there was Kintanna, wife of Howguk, who saw her first airplane when Matt Berry landed. She didn't show any excitement at all until she saw the reindeer meat brought out of the plane by Matt and then she was thrilled beyond words, because reindeer meat was a thing she knew something about. And she was amazed to see it come out of the inside of the plane."

Education Standards For Police

Edmonton—(CP)—Applicants for positions on Edmonton's police force must have grade XI—junior matriculation—standing or better, Chief of Police A. G. Shute said educational requirements would be enforced strictly in picking new men.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

The Somerset Infantry and Their Mascots

St. John's Ambulance Brigade

We have heard a great deal so far in this series, about the King and his service in the Empire, in war and in peace. His position as an official representative of the royal family called upon him to appear often in public, and particularly, as a former active member on the navy and air forces, at functions involving the fighting services. Today's pictures show the popular prince as Duke of York, at one of these functions. At school of the Somerset Light Infantry, he is shown reviewing that regiment. But today's layout also shows her majesty the Queen playing her part in the job of serving the Empire, and a right royal part it has been. Long before she was Duchess of York and wife of a king's son, Queen Elizabeth was publicly giving of her time and energy to the country and to the Empire.

She was but fourteen when war broke out, but the strife did not leave her untouched. Four brothers went to the struggle, one to die in the front line at Loos, another to suffer capture and imprisonment in Germany. Glamis Castle, her home, was turned into a hospital and her mother, the Countess of Strathmore, and her sisters were swept into the work of nursing. There, too, came Elizabeth, to cheer many a battle-weary soldier with her quick, kindly smile, and a cheery word.

Across the Empire today, as well as in England, are former soldiers who came to know their future Queen in the quiet of the war hospital at Glamis; it is fitting then that in the picture above her majesty wears the uniform of St. John's Ambulance Brigade, an order that has done so much for the sick, the weary and the suffering. Long after the war was over, indeed until this day, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon later the Duchess of York, and now the Queen of England, retained her interest in the nursing services that grace her empire.

BARONET MAY LOSE PROPERTY

Regina—(CP)—Regina City will make final application to the debt adjustment board for title to the property owned here by Sir Charles Hunter Hunter Cooper, British title the baronetcy created in 1660 because of non-payment of taxes. Taxes on the property, near the business section, total $4,311. Assessed value is $7,500.

Would Save Fossil Area

Drumheller, Alta, April 7—(CP) An active campaign for the establishment of a prehistoric park zone between Stevesville and Big Valley, near here, with a view to preserving important fossil beds is being conducted by the Drumheller Board of Trade.

In this district 80 odd species of the dinosaur have been found. Some species were traced to herbiferous varieties and others to carnivorous families. Among types definitely identified were the chasmosaurus, bonotosaurus, tyrannosaurus and corpsosaurus. They ranged from the size of a garden lizard to 100 feet in length, judging from remains found.

Board of trade members said hundreds of tons of these valuable remains had already been unearthed by enterprising strangers and sent to far corners of the world. Red Deer river dinosaurs, are exhibited at the British Museum in London and also in Berlin.

Fossilized remains of centuries-old trees can be seen without much searching in almost any direction from Drumheller.

MAN'S SKELETON 10,000 YEARS OLD

Saskatoon, April 7—(CP)—Neolithic characters are stamped all over the human skeleton found in a gravel pit at Bradwell, Sask., near here, which has been handed over to the University of Saskatchewan. It is thought the man may have lived here 10,000 years ago.

Since its discovery the skeleton has been in possession of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and permission has been granted from the attorney-general to hand it over to the College of Medicine for study. The bones had become highly mineralized, indicating great age, and consequently the weight is much greater that that of a modern skeleton. The upper leg bone is well above the average length. The brow ridges are heavier than those of modern man and the forehead is of low, unintellectual type. This, however, is not an indication the skull is of the most ancient type, Dr. J. L. Jackson, professor of anatomy, says.

"The skull is of the type known as dolicho-cephalic, even ultra dolicho-cephalic," Prof. Jackson said. It is very long from back to front and narrow.

Ma's face was so hot and red as she straightened from her bent pose before the kitchen stove, Margery decided, that her young daughter, Mac,

"Judy come along with you?"

"No, Ma. Judy reckoned she'd stay and have supper, with Mrs' Johnson. I told her we were havin' red cherry short-cake but it seems like, she's rather sit and look at that long legged good-for-nuthin' Larry than come an home."

"I guess the cake'll keep and, Mac I don't want you criticisin' your sister."

"I'm not criticisin', Mom," Mac ran a finger around the whipped cream bowl. "I think she's grand but I can't say as much for that worthless . . ."

"I think Judy's showing good good common sense. Lots of girls with not opportunities to marry millionaires and all the fancy things that your sister's got wouldn't have the horse-sense to settle down with a boy like Larry."

Mac prefaced her next remark with a giggle. "She'll settle down all right—with a bump! I don't see, Mom, where you get such ideas an aviator is a steady feller."

"Lars Johnson may be an aviator but he's not a reckless one like the boys that does it just for the thrill."

Mac strung on some frosting for one remaining string, sniffed haughtily of the fried chicken before she made any further remarks.

"Trud take a Don Juan to keep me away from fried chicken, Ma—I just hasn't got . . ."

"What Judy got?" Judy closed the screen door back of her. Carelessly, she flung down her transparent beach hat and with one arm about her little sister and another about her mother,

"Thought you were stayin' over to the Johnson's for supper," her mother said in surprise.

"Larry's ankle is bothering him and I thought he needed rubbing. Besides weren't we planning to go to the movies tonight?"

"We were," her mother answered, "but we knew you came home to see Larry and we thought you might want to be over to his house."

The note of wistfulness in her mother's voice gave Judy a twinge of conscience. She felt sad. She shouldn't. But there was something . . . well, unsatisfactory about this visit. One sad no more but tied an apron over her lined frock and busied herself laying the table for supper.

"Judy, there's a letter for you. Mom, where did I put it? I found it accidently searching the kitchen.

"It's only a bill of the clock." Mom's voice came from the pantry.

New York and Larry seemed so far away to its brightest star. Judy put the letter in her apron pocket and forgot it until late that night when they had returned from the movies.

It was from Franklin Marshall. John Talbot returned from Europe bringing with him Frank Pollere, the famous French playwright. He had discussed scenic designs with the great Viennese designer Molnbeck. Everything was under way for Judy's next play. When would she return to New York?

That night Judy tossed restlessly on the pillow into her cheek which she had dreamed her dreams of success these past years. Now that she knew that she should return to New York but so long as Larry was crippled with his broken ankle he had received in the crack-up of his plane when Judy left—she felt she couldn't bear to tear herself away. She'd give herself another week to decide. . . . Another week and then Larry would say something! Another week for the two of them alone were to have a picnic. She'd have the most delicious lunch. She'd wear the white dotted Swiss dress that cost $65 and looked like a pastoral poem. She'd sit close down to the brook where they'd picked the chicken.

Larry lay with his blonde head in Judy's lap. Idly his fingers twirled the locket on her frock. His eyes accustomed to the sun peered off into space.

Judy restrained the impulse to stroke his hair. She'd been an hungry for it. A hunger from the heart she had known. Strange that now she was here, she wished she were elsewhere, somewhere where the lump wouldn't come in her throat for some unaccountable reason.

"Happy?" she asked and smiled into his upturned face.

For answer, Larry pulled her face down to his own and kissed her until she protested. The fierceness of his embrace always surprised her. He was so . . . so undemonstrative yet in moments like this he left her breathless.

She smoothed her frock and ran her fingers through her own curls and then:

"Larry, are you in love with me?"

He looked at the vision of loveliness beside him. "Sure," he said.

Judy's heart bounded into her throat—she needed just that last courage, she swallowed hard. In a faltering voice she said:

"Darling, isn't life like the story-books? I mean when two people are in love with each other, don't they usually do something about getting married?"

Larry fumbled in his pocket for a crushed cigarette package before he answered her.

"I guess they do. I always thought we'd get married. We never did before because . . . well, because I didn't have any money and then you went away and all . . ."

His voice trailed into space but she did not notice. He had said it! He had meant to marry her!

"Larry, does my being in the theatre make any difference to you?" Judy hoped that at last he would say he was proud of her.

"No," he answered hastily, "I think it's great. It gives you something to do and besides right now we couldn't get married because I'm . . . well . . . I'm some place. Maybe in a year or so. . . ." he seemed to be considering some future plan—why was there no future to give up your job?

"That," that was all Judy said but as she said it she felt a nostalgia for the dim-lit stage, for the days of summers in the wings, for the breathless moment before the curtain rose, for the applause, call of the Overture. But if Larry didn't want her in the theatre . . .

Then she said half playfully and half seriously, "I'm an actress, Darling that means anything to you?"

When he did not answer:

"It's special work, I know when people call you an actress, sometimes you discover you're one and the word has not much meaning for you. Would you like me to explain Darling?"

"No," he said slowly, "I think I know what you mean. Perhaps you feel the same way about the theatre that I do about flying."

Eagerly, Judy turned to agree that she did and to say something that would make him see she would be willing to give up the theatre if he wanted her to but she wanted him to appreciate it before she did. She had the feeling that he did not understand her work was not "just a job."

At last, he broke his silence:

"Say, I'm coming to New York on business next month. Got to see the doctor about something I'm planning to do. Think you could get me a ticket to your show?"

"Oh, darling," Judy laughed gayly, "I can get you the theatre. We'll have a glorious time. I'll take you all over the town. New York is wonderful, Larry, and my friends will adore you."

"New York is the first stop, did I get, and from there, we go places."

"Where?" she asked lightly.

And then he told her. He told her what he was planning to do what no flier had done before him. He was going to solo it. It was to be such a gigantic undertaking, it was unbelievable. Now, for the first time since Judy's coming, Larry seemed enthusiastic. He showed her maps and charts and then, as she was sprawling with enthusiasm and every word about danger and terrible fear into Judy's heart.

EPIC FLIGHT

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Judy moved through the weeks of her return to the New York and Larry's world as another world. Closed within herself was a terrible fear that Larry would be killed in the air. He had sworn her to silence but she dared not disclose his plans to any of her close friends.

She had little time to see them anyway. There was a new play, "Golden Madonna" written for her, by Frank Pollere, whom Talbot had brought back from Europe. There were rehearsals and back-breaking dancing lessons. Judy must be perfection for the new Molnbeck scenes designed by Molnbeck the Viennese designer. Judy must be perfection in the play for Judy.

And there was Talbot!

Judy seemed to see dropped all his own activities, His devotion to her was like a blessed mantle of silver-like attention. It was his car that took her to and from the theatre, his arm that supported her when she was seen on those rare occasions when she attended night clubs. But it was not with him that her heart rested.

Lars Johnson, Indiana, or the farm she had left, there was the boy merging with the cocky, dreaming impossible dreams of a great flight. No, not impossible for that matter, for Judy willed it so when Larry's face came between her and the footlights or appealing to her in sorrow. Sometimes she wished that she had accidently had made it impossible for him to fly again but loving and understanding him so well, she knew he would never be happy—until he saw this thing through. He should have been born with wings she thought. Perhaps it was this love of flying that made him seem so lackluster in the earthy human characteristics her heart hungered for.

The hours Judy spent in the theatre, the endless fitting periods and lessons seemed nothing to her compared to the hours Larry was spending practicing his flying medium, detailing his plans. Reviewing the methodical, astonishing data never called it (cold) manners and procedure with which he approached any undertaking, she found a strange comfort and faith. He was so methodical, so free from all impetuous things and if the fire of impatience burned in his heart it was not a consuming passion. Not by the farthest stretch of imagination could one call Larry a flying fool.

His letters were brief and informative but at last came the telegram telling Judy he would arrive in New York a few days later. That was the day that Judy ceased being an actress.

She haunted the decorator's shops in her spare moments. Her apartment blossomed like a spring garden. She bought beautiful clothes recklessly. She planned parties. There were to be two or three large ones because she wanted all her friends to meet Larry. And there were to be many small ones. That Larry could not see her in the theatre was a keen disappointment to her; her play would not open for another six weeks.

All the time that Judy was making obvious plans for the arrival, the black fear of what the reason for his presence was, remained in the background of her mind with ghostly persistence.

Larry was coming to New York to make final arrangements with his backers for the flight! He had met an oil man on one of his trips as Talbot's pilot, interested the wealthy promoter in his plan and now it was about to be seen through!

He was going to fly around the world! Over the two poles! His words sounded boastfully fantastic and daring plan of its kind. Judy tried to shrink of it but she awoke in the middle of the night from endless nightmares of seeing his ship crash into the sea in flames. Now he was buffeted by the storm clouds, struggling for breath. There were other terrible pictures in those nightmares. She starving and hurt wandering in waste lands far from human help.

Then the nightmares and fears were during that time of waiting. Judy and Talbot were at the airport to meet Lars Johnson as his train on that October day. Seventy-by music which glowed in her face—this lovely girl who had come to success and fame who scarcely reached to the shoulders of the tall, ungainly man in his awkward clothes who walked beside her.

Broadway soon grew accustomed to them. When Larry's conferences were finished and Judy had called a halt on rehearsals, they went out to play. "Who is he?" everyone asked Judy. "Is he going to stay?" and no more was said. There were many parties.

Yet always in the background of those parties there stalked the ghost of tomorrow and the day when Larry, alone in his monoplane, would be a speck in cosmic space. Judy's pitting his knowledge and his strength against the unconquered elements.

Terry and Dolly shared with Judy in their almost something for her for the boy's success though they dreaded the separation. Dolly knew that Judy was not for Larry. Talbot, seeing with eyes sharpened by love, knew that Judy's life was not for him. Only Terry, ignorant of men's characters, felt pity in his heart for her. His heart was burdened with such renunciation he few men knew.

The fateful happy interlude must come to an end, all of them knew, and they dreaded it and looked forward to it.

The moment Judy dreaded came one Saturday night. They were part of a gay party at the Mayfair Club. Now, for the first time when a page-boy emerged from the crowd to call Talbot, Judy felt a shoulder, a part of her curled up and died.

"Call Mr. Lars Johnson," was all he said.

Judy's fingers came back to the table, his eyes gleamed with a strange light. He rose slowly. Judy watched him bending over to Judy said:

"It was Jim Byron, my manager, darling. He's flying in from the coast, the weather man. All's clear. No storms anywhere on the route. I'm off at dawn. Gotta go now."

Judy's mouth was dry and her lips like ice. She dared not disclose the crude cloth of his absence and walked out into the crowded foyer with him.

"Let me go out with you till you get a taxi," Judy pleaded.

"It's too late and you'd only be cold. Stay here and dance with Terry."

"But I can't . . . I can't let you go! I tried so hard to be brave but, Larry . . ."

"You sure are acting awfully funny. There's nothing at all dangerous about this flight. You know this means more to me than anything else in the world."

Larry's words struck Judy with the force of a blow. She understood but she knew it was not deliberate and that he did not realize what he had said.

"Just let me ride out to the field with you," Judy begged piteously.

"And leave this party? Don't act foolish. I'll be seeing you in a little while. Now, run along and dance it off.

"Larry," —desperately Judy held onto him—"I know it sounds silly, but I've had a premonition. I don't don't" sobs ripped from her throat in a shriek.

"Sure, I'll come back. Don't cry, honey." Awkwardly, Larry smoothed her golden head and then gently disengaged her hand from his arm. "

DAILY SHORT STORY

Gold Star Mother

By Karl Grayson

Angus Newhall awoke in a room in a soldiers' home in Havre, France, on a bright June morning. He had awakened in the same room on many other mornings, but today he remembered.

He mixed weak tea, and a shudder shook his frame. Last night he had lain in a filthy shell hole, the air about him a hell of bursting shells, the odor of gunpowder in his nostrils, fear in his heart. For hours he had lain there—and then suddenly he had all blotted out as if a black curtain had descended before the eyes and the ears. And he had ended.

That was last night. He shuddered again and looked about him at the light sunny room, and sense of comfort and well-being began asserting itself. A door opened and a nurse came in. She paused at the foot of his bed and looked at him with wide, startled eyes. Presently she spoke, and her voice was strangely different from what Angus had expected.

"Why, good morning, Mr. Doe," she said. "You've waked at last!"

Angus got the story from the nurse and from the doctors and from the officer in charge of the home. The war had been over a year. He had been found wounded in a German hospital after the armistice. He had been wearing the shirt of a French uniform, given him by the Germans, and wasn't able to tell who he was or anything at all that happened. He was sick, suffering among other things, from amnesia.

The officer finished telling the story and smiled. "And now, sir, if you remember, perhaps you can tell us who you are and whyyou've come from so that we may send you home. I imagine you have parents, and perhaps a sweetheart who will be glad to hear the news."

Angus opened his mouth to speak and closed it again. All in a flash an idea had come to him, a tremendous idea. He looked at the officer and saw that the man was waiting. But instead of uttering his own name he said: "Chester Darcy," and gave an address in a large city in western United States.

Later, in his room, Angus gathered together his things and smiled. His mind was alive with thoughts of a little country town in New Hampshire. He saw himself as a boy, the son of the town's leading citizen, a spoiled and selfish child, a child hated by all the neighbors because he took advantage of being the son of Robert Newhall and acted the snob; a child who made his parents unhappy, and, by his very selfishness, robbed his mother of the joy and pride that should have been hers.

Angus saw himself growing manhood, becoming more disliked with each passing year, acquiring more mean and selfish traits in character, falling into evil ways, hating himself because of his own hatred of others. Then came the war, and a chance to get away from it all. He enlisted among the first.

Reports had gone back of his exploits, his courage, his bravery. He was a hero, he knew, in his home town, more of a hero now that his was thought of as dead, killed in action.

Angus projected-his mind into the future, saw himself swinging from the train at the tiny depot, saw the expression of amazement come to the features of Les Howard, the station master, saw himself stepping from Les' car at his own door-yard, his mother coming down the walk to meet him . . . It would be a great moment, a moment of triumph in so many ways.

Two days later Angus sailed for America, Oddly, he discovered that his fellow passengers on the liner were not as friendly as he wanted them to be. Vaguely there came to him the knowledge that the traits which had made him despised by the people of his home town must still be manifesting themselves in his manner, his voice, his actions. The thought made him resentful. He became aloof and superior, contemptuous of these folks who, were they to be apprized of his real-identity, would sing his praises to the housetops.

Three days out of Bordeaux the liner on which Angus Newhall was sailing for America caught fire. It was at night and a high sea running. Before nearby ships could respond to the frantic S.O.S., half the passengers and two-thirds of the crew perished. Among those whom the sea claimed as victims was one Chester Darcy whose home was given as a large city in western United States.

In a little New Hampshire town a white-haired old lady read the newspapers and shook her head sadly, thinking of the relatives and friends of the dead. Her eyes, misty-covered, lifted to a photograph of her son, flag-bedecked, and resting in his place of honor above the mantel.

After a while a smile came to the old lady's lips. She nodded her head, thinking of Angus, thinking of him as a hero, the pride of his town, of his nation; herself as honored and respected and envied because of his great deeds. She sighed, a little wistfully, but happily, because her heart was joyful. It was nice—yes, extremely nice being a gold-star mother.

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

When the prisoners had been borne to the tree, Tarzan carried them high into the foliage and laid them across a huge branch. Then he removed the gag from the mouth of one, looped a rope around his ankles and lowered him, head down, toward the ground.

Tarzan voiced the savage warning cry of the bull ape. The drunken warriors halted their dancing. They were surprised and afraid, for though the sound was very close, they could not locate it. Then the head of their fellow tribesman broke through the leaves.

The blacks were transfixed with terror. In all their experience they could find no explanation for a phenomenon so startling and mysterious. Therefore, they judged it was the work of some supernatural power. Now a deep voice sounded high above them.

"I am Tarzan of the Apes. Let those beware who would harm Tarzan or his Waziri. Open the gates and let my people go in peace, or many of you will die by the hand of Tarzan." But no warrior made a move to do his bidding. Had this strategem failed!

3,700 STRIKE AT GENERAL MOTORS, OSHAWA

General Strike Called At G.M. Oshawa Plant; 3,700 Workers Affected

Negotiations Break Down After Conference Since Last Thursday.

PLANT PICKETED

Company Refuses to Recognize C.I.O. Agreement For Detroit

Oshawa, Ont., Apr. 8 (CP)—Employees of the General Motors of Canada plant here went on strike today. Police said strikers were picketing the plant but all was "peaceful and quiet". The walkout came after breakdown of negotiations between union and company officials and involves 3,700 workers. *

After Hugh Thompson, organizer for John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization received consent of Detroit officials of the International Automobile Workers' Union, the walkout decision was reached.

Strike Affects Window.

The strike will affect 400 General Motors employees in Windsor where the motors are manufactured but Thompson said he may ask the automotive plants of MacKinnon Industries, General Motors subsidiary, were affected.

"If General Motors attempt to bring in any cars here the International union will call out the United States employees who have been said in issuing the strike call. "We will have guards at the border to watch all shipments."

"General Motors will not build another car in Canada until they sign an agreement with the International."

CONTINUE MOTOR PROBE

Ottawa, Apr. 8 (CP)—The Tariff Board will continue tonight it had received instructions from Finance Minister Dunning to continue its investigation of the automotive industry on which it rendered a report last month.

The board, acting on the Finance Minister's instructions, made an extensive investigation into the automotive schedules of the tariff before the 1936 Budget, with the result a large number of reductions were recommended which that Budget put into effect.

ELECTRIC EYE USED IN PRISON

Jackson Institution Takes Step to Prevent Breaks

Jackson, Mich., Apr. 8 (CP)—To prevent prison breaks, a convict of Jackson prison has perfected an electric eye, Warden Joel L. Moore announced today. The new system recognizes all faces put out of commission even if wires are severed or apparatus battered.

Installation of the elaborate, yet inexpensive mechanism, will be started in a few days, Warden Moore said, and will be used in place of a proposed system of high-tension wires that had been considered for the top of the prison walls.

"We don't want anyone electrocuted," Deputy Warden J. L. Ryan said.

"The electric eye or beams of light will be placed at points inside the walls where escape would be easiest. Should a prisoner try to gain freedom and break the beam of light, a clamor of alarm will be set up, calling on a special force of guards.

ITALIAN EDITOR CHARGES RUSSIA

States Soviet Violating Non-Intervention Agreement

Rome, Apr. 8 (AP) — Virginio Gayda, regarded as the most authoritative of Italian editors, today accused Soviet Russia of having secretly had accused France, of violating the Spanish civil war non-intervention agreement by sending aid to the Madrid government.

The Spanish steamer Mar Negro, Gayda declared, was en route to Valencia from Odessa, Ukraine, with a cargo of munitions for the Spanish government.

Aboard the vessel, he wrote, were 30 tanks, 30 airplanes, 30 trucks and 600 tons of other war materials.

TORNADO KILLS ONE IN ALABAMA

Many Injured And Houses Levelled By Force of Wind

Troy, Ala., April 8 (AP)—A tornado killed at least one person, injured numerous others and levelled houses in a lumber mill village at Brundidge, Ala., today.

Highway patrolman Will Tatum, who sped to the storm scene, reported four persons had been killed.

Chief Walter K. McAdory on the Alabama highway patrol received the report at Montgomery, Ala.

"Twins told me Mrs. Brown's four were dead," McAdory said, "but didn't know how many more. I've not been able to get through."

Fred Crowley, 12, was known to be dead.

With communication facilities crippled, the highway patrolman's report of four fatalities could not be rechecked.

Jim Ott of the Peace R. R. Ray at Troy said he was informed the storm struck the mill village half an hour before Brundidge first levelled many homes, then hit the village of Burdidge's residential section.

Hospitals at Troy filled rapidly with the injured. One report said most of the injured ranged upwards from 60 years.

Storms have accounted for 12 deaths in the south this week.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

"Trees and climate; it was a stroke of genius when Prof. A. E. Douglass, astronomer, first suggested reasoned that trees should tell the story of climate. He contended that the rings of trees should do this; a thick ring indicating a good year and a thin ring to a dry year. He studied the giant 2,000-year-old pines of Arizona, the old trees of Europe, and the 3,000-year-old sequoias of California. He found that trees do tell the story and that the immediate past recorded by rings would tell the unrecorded climate of the past. Incidentally, he found he could tell by examining a stump when the tree was felled studying wood from prehistoric Indian villages he was able to determine when the place was built.

Gov't May Back 'G. M.' Against U. S. Labor Forces

PLANT MANAGER OUTLINES STAND GENERAL MOTORS

Shows Attitude of Company To Demands of Union

HIGHEST PAYROLL

Average Wages of Men and Women Are Given Out

Oshawa, Ont., Apr. 8 (CP)—Unless General Motors of Canada agrees to recognize the Committee for Industrial Workers Union at a conference this afternoon, negotiations for settlement of today's strike will be halted, organizer Hugh Thompson of the Committee for Industrial Organization announced.

Company officials and a committee representing striking workers will resume discussions at two o'clock.

Question of Recognition.

"Negotiations will be on a different basis than the one-point issue that led to follow in the last few days," said Thompson. "We have tried to discuss everything but recognition of the union. That will be the one demand today and if it is not accepted negotiations will be formally called off."

Thompson said if General Motors tried to import cars from the United States to fill orders here while the Oshawa plant was closed, "we will not hesitate to call out every worker in Detroit plants".

He added: "It is unlikely a sympathy strike will be called in Detroit unless they try to import cars."

Oshawa, Apr. 8 (CP)—Carl Restual of General Motors of Canada today outlined the attitude of the company's United States management and employees brought about on the strike here today. Horace H. Highfield, General Motors plant general manager, said in a statement issued after the walkout.

The present unfortunate turn of events has been precipitated upon the authority of a visiting organizer of the United Automobile workers," the statement said.

Attitude of Company.

Highfield said progress had been made in negotiations with the committees representatives toward meeting demands of workers and he added the company has at all times been willing to negotiate points of the Automotive Union demand if they had an application in the Oshawa plant.

Highfield's statement follows:

"The decision to call a walkout came as a surprise when the union had narrowed down to three of ten demands presented by committee representing the men. These points, which were under discussion by the conference, were progressing to a close, were 'stewards and grievances committees' and 'and 'duration of understanding'.

Meeting At Two O'Clock.

"Prior to adjournment Louis Pine of the Ontario Department of Labor conciliation officer had been invited to the suggestions offered by the committee from the floor which back to the men. The meeting adjourned with both parties agreeing to meet at two o'clock this afternoon.

PROVINCIAL MEN ARE HELD READY

Several Constables of District No. 8 Leave For Toronto No. 5

Provincial constables who could be spared were moved from local District, No. 8, of the Ontario Provincial Police into Toronto District No. 5, early today, according to Inspector Frank Gardner. Their duty is "special duty", he stated.

Sergeant H. Thompson left for Toronto early and Constable W. Jeffery, stationed in Belleville, was already within District No. 5, while nine constables of Inspector were left in District No. 8, with headquarters in Belleville. No 8 extends from Brockville to Oshawa and north to Madoc.

It is presumed that the Provincial men are being assembled in order to be near Oshawa, where a strike at General Motors is in progress. No difficulty is anticipated. However, the officers and men will be ready for police as well as civilian duty.

"Only precautionary methods, these all," commented the inspector,

Second in Remembrance Is Vimy Ridge Capture

Vimy Banquets Will be Held Over Canada on Friday, When 20th Anniversary of Famous Battle is Observed—Achievement Signalized Unity of Canada.

Canadian war veterans tomorrow will recall once more that achievement which 20 years ago rang through the world as one of the most brilliant of the great war—the storming and capture of Vimy Ridge—planted Canada firmly in the calendar of remembrance, the battle which transferred that rampart to Canadian hands was fought on April 9, 1917, and succeeding days. Its importance was further emphasized last July 28, when Canada's national memorial atop the ridge was dedicated.

For these and other reasons, Canada's ex-service men will foregather in the city, town and hamlet to relive the old days and recall old comradeships. Vimy banquets are scheduled to take place everywhere.

In many respects the Battle of Vimy Ridge takes precedence over even Ypres and those bitter engagements fought during the last 100 days of the war. It marked the only occasion when the four divisions of the Canadian Corps fought in lines, at the same time and on the same day. The unity of Canada was signalized in that operation.

Planned By Canadians.

Vimy Ridge, moreover, was an engagement planned by a Canadian staff, headed by a commander who from the beginning of his leadership of the Canadian Corps had noted that not only were Canadian troops superior in aggressiveness and morale among them was a wealth of technical competent to arrange the recording of battles. Sir Julian Byng early encouraged Canadians to qualify for staff appointments. The success which attended his policy justified the confidence he had shown.

For more than two years Vimy Ridge had been a sector which had witnessed bloody fighting. In 1915 the first major attempt to wrest it from the hands of the Germans had been undertaken by the French 23rd corps, commanded by Marshal Foch. This operation was to be accompanied by the British offensive at Loos in September, 1915. The French were temporarily successful; but their efforts so enfeebled them that they were unable to withstand the pressure of vigorous counter-attacks. Not all of the Ridge was lost; but when the line became stabilized, bonors were with the enemy.

Great Strategic Value.

Possession of the Ridge gave its holder the key to the rich mining areas of northern France, consequently it was a place of great strategic value. Sporadic efforts to improve the position of the allies along its length were not particularly successful.

Early in 1916, at the Oblais conference of war commanders, the storming of Vimy Ridge was projected as part of the first-and-third army operations which were to take place in March. Already the Canadians were employed, having spent the winter in that sector. In March had come from the Somme.

They were entrusted with the task of its capture and zero day was set for April 9, which was Easter Monday in 1917.

Their attack was completely successful. The enemy was driven back from Vimy Ridge and not again did it revert to their hands during the remainder of the war.

Economic Conference Not Envisaged, Baldwin

London, April 8—(AP)—Prime Minister Baldwin told the House of Commons today no international economic conference "is at present envisaged." Questioned about economic proposals, Baldwin explained that Premier Mackenzie King had asked for a conference with premier Paul Van Zealand of Belgium to make an "informal investigation" of world economic conditions.

Van Zealand's inquiry, he said, would be made in "various countries as to the possibility of securing a general relaxation of quotas and other obstacles to world trade."

The Prime Minister added that "informal exchanges of views have taken place" regarding a world economic conference.

Beer Parlors Liquor Stores Close in Oshawa

Oshawa, Ont., April 8 (CP)—All beer parlors, brewers' warehouses and Government Liquor Stores were closed here today for the duration of the strike of employees of General Motors of Canada plants on order of E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Commissioner.

Closing came shortly after the strike call this morning of 3,700 employees and was made at the request of Magog Alex Head.

In addition, all hotel taverns were closed soon after the strike got underway. It was not even possible for hotel guests to order a bottle of beer sent to their rooms.

APOLOGY GIVEN TO BRITISH NAVY BY INSURGENTS

Cruiser Shropshire And Destroyer Gallant Collected Apology

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Franco Orders Aircraft to Take Great Care in Future

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, Apr. 8 (CP)—The British cruiser Shropshire, accompanied by the destroyer Garland, today collected an apology from the Spanish insurgent authorities at Palma for the bombing of H.M.S. Gallant. The insurgents explained the bombing was a regretable error.

The Gallant twice was bombed by insurgent airplanes while proceeding from Valencia to Alicante. On each occasion she opened fire on the attacking aircraft.

The Shropshire and the Garland arrived at Palma, Mallorca, last night. The captain of the Shropshire, accompanied by a British vice-consul, called upon the port admiral and chief of staff, the commander of the air force in Mallorca.

The insurgent authorities explained that prior to the bombing of the Gallant they received a report from the Spanish Republican government destroyers were in the waters through which the Gallant was passing. A message also was conveyed from the military governor of Mallorca expressing his great regret if it were found that national aircraft were to blame for the episode."

Meanwhile, Franco's command has undertaken to issue instructions to his aircraft that great care shall be taken in future in examining identity marks on any craft in these waters before proceeding to take hostile action against them.

So far as they go, these assurances are considered satisfactory by the British authorities. But the commander of the Shropshire is to see the military governor of the island later today.

In British circles the bombing of the Gallant is described as a piece of carelessness which might have had extremely unfortunate results. It is taken for granted on both side in the Spanish War would be so much to gain internationally to attack the British navy.

CANADA IS READY FOR FLYING BOATS

Hope to Establish Air Service Across Atlantic This Summer

Ottawa, Apr. 8 (CP)—Canada will be ready to operate a fleet of modern flying boats cross the Atlantic this summer in experimental flights preparatory to establishment of regular air mail and passenger service across the ocean, it was learned today. Work is still under way in Newfoundland on two seaplane bases and the Canadian Pacific Airways has ordered big landings can be made at two points Newfoundland, one in the island interior, or Botwood, north of Harbor Grace on the east coast. The airport is being constructed on Gander's Camp on Gander Lake, leading to belief the northern base will be the principal one.

Canadian terminus of the flights will be at Mr. Hubert Airport, on the southeastern fringe of Montreal's suburban municipality of Dorval. Flying boats will land on the St. Lawrence River close to the airport and ride at the field. Their arrival will bring to fruition a 10-year-old dream of an empire terminal for Montreal.

ADMIT 14 ROBBERIES

Hamilton Ont., April 8 (CP) — The Bernhardt cousins, Leonard aged 23 and Chauncey aged 22, admitted 14 robberies between them when they appeared before Magistrate H. A. Burbidge today. Bought since March 31 when they held up and robbed a merchant at Winchester, in the London district, two Indians from Caledonia were arrested here Sunday.

Premier Hepburn Studies Situation at Oshawa; May Issue Statement

May Act to Prevent Domination of Industry by U.S. Labor Forces

ATTITUDE TO U.A.W.A.

When Men Return to Work, Protection to be Guaranteed

Toronto, Apr. 8 (CP) — Premier Mitchell Hepburn will throw the force of the Ontario government behind General Motors of Canada to prevent domination of the automobile industry in Canada by the John L. Lewis labor forces of the United States, it was learned authoritatively today.

The premier was expected to issue a statement late today, commenting on the strike of 3,700 General Motors workers at Oshawa and setting out the government's position in the crisis.

Croll and Fine Active.

Labor Minister David A. Croll and Louis Fine, Industrial Standards officer, took part in negotiations last week which prevented the strike taking place March 31. In subsequent conference between the men, agreement and employers Fine acted as chairman.

It was learned a force of 300 Royal Canadian Mounted Police was en-route to Toronto and will be stationed here. 35 miles from the strike scene, for call if disturbance marks the strike. Ontario Provincial Police were ordered to stand by while the officers were advised to come to Toronto.

Hepburn Closes Taverns.

Premier Hepburn spent most of the morning dealing with the strike situation. He instructed that liquor stores and beer taverns in Oshawa be closed, the order being given today through Liquor Commissioner K. G. Odette. By telephone he conferred with officials of his Labor Department and General Motors representatives.

The fact that recognition of the United Automobile Workers of America, a United States organization, was the chief strike issue was said to have confounded Mr. Hepburn. The government should support General Motors.

Protection For Workers.

It was understood that when the company is ready to announce operations at the Oshawa plant will resume, the government will guarantee those returning to work will not be interfered with by strikers.

In the absence of Mr. Croll on vacation, Mr. Fine and Stewart Lyon, the minister's secretary, reviewed departmental efforts to prevent the strike during a conference with Premier Hepburn.

AVIATION NEEDS HELPED BY MONEY

$915,000 Voted in House to Assist Airways Construction

Ottawa, April 8—(CP)—Construction of a chain of radio beacon stations throughout Canada as scheduled, was recommended today on a scale this year. In the supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year tabled by Finance Minister Dunning in the House of Commons today, $915,000 is appropriated for that purpose.

The chain of emergency landing fields across the Dominion is almost completed, with fully equipped municipal airports at strategic points on the route. The money now voted is for speeding up construction, operations in view of the projected initiation on the transatlantic air service this year.

In addition to the above sum, $75,000 is asked for civil aviation for another vote of $500,000. This is to be applied in the form of contributions to assist municipalities on the trans-Canada airway to improve existing airports, or provide new ones."

For maintenance and construction of radio direction finding stations, radio beacons' and other features, $75,000 is being appropriated additional to the two other items,

ARMED BANDITS TAKE PAYROLL

Pair Carrying $1,400 Forced Into Taxi at Gun Point

Winnipeg, April 8 (CP)—Forced into a taxi cab by gunmen, two employees of Poulin Chambers Biscuit Company were robbed of the company's $1,400 payroll here today in a daring holdup.

The two men, H. G. Short and J. C. Turner, were driven by the taxi driver, whom the bandits directed at gun point, to another part of the city and then ejected from the cab.

Police said the bandits drove off in a car with Ontario license plates after they abandoned the taxi.

SEEK TO UNIONIZE AT FORD COMPANY

Objective Announced After Ford Declares For Open Shop

Detroit, April 8 (AP)—The United Automobile Workers of America, announced today on a formidable enterprise to unionize the 150,000 employees of the vast Ford motor organization.

John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization, announced this latest objective last night just after Henry Ford had proclaimed his determination he would "never recognize" the U.A.W.A. or any other union.

Lewis was a speaker at a mass meeting of auto workers in the State Fair Grounds Coliseum. The huge throng, overflowing the building, shouted its approval of the agreement between the U.A.W.A. and the Chrysler Corporation ending a strike in its eight Detroit plants.

Ford Advises Workers

Ford expressed his stand toward unions in a letter to employees revealing a "brief cessation of activities" in his company's factory at St. Louis. A union leader at the plant said it was due to misunderstanding."

"I have no intention that my manufacturer—one of the three largest automobile companies—should be dominated or even influenced by labor leaders," Ford declared Lewis. "I have no doubt, however, that Mr. Ford will change his mind."

City and District News

RESIDENTS CONVINCED SUMMER IS HERE

Citizens using the east steps of the post office yesterday felt sure morning was apparently convinced that summer and warm weather have arrived.

Dancing merrily in the bright sunshine before the steps of the building a small cloud of black flies of mosquito-like appearance attracted the attention of pedestrians.

PREPARATIONS MADE TO QUARRY ROCK

In preparation for the actual quarrying of rock within the next week or so, drilling with the aid of steam drills was started at the city quarry north of the city this morning. Six relief men and three regular employees of the department of public works are being given employment. A total of 35 men from the relief lists is employed this week.

FALL WHEAT SHOWS "GOOD AND GREEN"

"A little early yet to state with definite assurance, but present indications reveal that fall wheat has emerged through the winter unharmed in the district. At the present time most of it is showing good and green," stated Alvin Wilson, Stirling, agricultural representative of this district today.

WARNED AGAINST DESTROYING TREES

A stern warning was issued yesterday by the Roads and Bridges Committee of the County of Hastings, to the effect, that action will be taken in the future against persons cutting down trees growing on the side of County Roads and thus destroying road guards.

At the meeting held yesterday in the County Buildings, the committee passed several accounts and disposed of other routine business. A highlight of the meeting was the Committee's decision to pass the Glen Millar Bridge with heavy planking.

In response to the numerous requests of Thurlow Township, that the county take over certain stretches of roads, the Committee passed a motion to the effect that no be taken on these projects this year.

SYRUP AVAILABLE $2 PER GALLON

A fairly good quantity of maple syrup was available at the city market today with prices holding firm at the week end level of two dollars per gallon and fifty cents per quart. One vendor offered his stock at $1.60 per gallon, but this price included a fancy tin container.

Ungraded eggs were offered at two dozen for thirty-five cents, but "A" selects and medimus held firm at eighteen and twenty cents the dozen.

Potatoes showed a little or no difference from the Tuesday prices with peck, quarter bushel and seventy-five pound bags offered at $1.50. There were no ninety pound bags in the market.

A few winter vegetables and apples quoted at all-winter prices were available. Blossoming Pussy-Willows added a real Spring touch.

PRINCE EDWARD MEN HAVE FOR DUCKS

Wesley Thomas and Alfred Pitt of Picton, leave this week for the Main Duck Islands, where they will take up their duties as tenders. Seasonally it is expected will be put in service on April 15th. The Main Duck radio beacon will go into operation a few days later.

ROAD CAMP NEAR MADOC TO CLOSE

Announcement to the effect, that Construction Camp No. 1 some twenty-two miles north of Madoc will be closed within a few days was made today at the Employment Office. A large number of men were laid off from this camp a few days ago preparatory to the final cleaning up and dispositions of various material. The well-high impassability of the roads leading to this camp has made removal operations extremely difficult it is stated.

GENERAL QUALITY OF SYRUP QUITE HIGH

That the general quality of the 1937 crop of maple syrup is well above that of former years is evidenced in the statement made today by a prominent Madoc syrup producer. "The Government standard calls for the weight of a gallon of syrup to be thirteen pounds," he said, "but my syrup and that of others I have weighed in the vicinity of eighteen pounds. Deduct three pounds for the glass jar and see what you have got. Of course generous portions of maple sugar placed in the jars adds to the weight but this practice has died out. The flavor of the syrup made in our community has been much richer than that of former years, while the increase in the gallon weight speaks for itself."

Retail Merchants Elect R. J. Hennessey as Head At Enthusiastic Meeting

Capable Set of Officers to Co-operate With New President

MR. ILLSEY SPEAKER

Advises Merchants to Find Way to Keep Belleville Dollars at Home

With a new president, a capable set of officers, Belleville's Retail Merchants' Association completed organization for the year 1937 at a well attended meeting in the Hotel Quinte Wednesday evening and spurred away for a bigger and better business season, with all kinds of enthusiasm, optimism and aggressiveness.

President Russell Woodley occupied the chair, after turning over the gavel to the incoming President, Richard J. Hennessey, manager of Zeller's department store. Report of the Association's activities was presented by Chas. T. Dolan, and on motion adopted as read. One new slate of officers, as approved by the members present on motion, being as follows:

President—Richard J. Hennessey.

Vice-President—First President Russell Woodley.

Secretary Treasurer—W. J. Doyle.

Directors—Mrs. Aird, Attendance Chairman—Stephen Lioonce.

Sales Promotion Chairman—E. M. Shapiro.

Credit Chairman—Fred Houston.

Executive Committee—Russell Woodley; J. A. McIntosh; R. J. Wray; R. Norton; L. Lewis; F. Sanders; S. Moncur; H. Seldon; F. Wallbridge; J. Livesay; Wm. Lesser; G. T. Dolan; G. Galloway; F. Houston; E. Shapiro.

Sale Co-operation

Following the election or officers an optimistic address was made by the new president, Richard Hennessey, expressing appreciation of the honor conferred upon him to do his part to promote the interests of the association, asking for the hearty co-operation of all members in carrying over a program of progress this year.

Laurie Lewis, President of the Retail Merchants' Association, of Ontario, was present, and congratulated the new president upon being honored for this important office, and the members upon the splendid slate selected to manage the affairs of the association for the year.

J. G. Galloway presented the report on special lighting, which was approved and the committee instructed to complete the survey as quickly as possible.

Various reports were made and disposed of, all indicating enthusiasm and optimism, and promising aggressive action this year.

Community singing enlivened the proceedings, led by Harold Spencer, with Leo Riggs at the piano.

Co-operation Is Urged

The guest speaker was R. V. Illsey, local manager of the Bank of Commerce, who was introduced by R. J. Wray, and spoke on "Co-operation, National and Local."

Lack of co-operation in the national field was first touched upon by the speaker, who instanced the splendid manner in which Great Britain had weathered economic storms and averted crisis, through co-operation, sacrificing party politics to work together in the general good. If there were more of the same spirit in Canada, the nation would profit much from it. Economic questions loom large in Canada, which no party government is capable of handling right through fear of defeat at the polls. The British spirit of co-operation and abiding difference in national government in the face of severe economic crisis is a shining example to follow, and Canada should be buried in the common sin of placing the country above sound economic basis.

Keep Belleville Dollars in City

Turning to the matter of co-operation in local affairs Mr. Illsey laid down the foundation of better business as in attracting more business to Belleville, keeping Belleville dollars in Belleville and the business men working together for the common good to make Belleville the most attractive shopping centre possible. A merchant's best customer is not the competitor to be feared, the competitor was outside the city.

Business jealousy, and saying unkind things about competitors was decried by the speaker, who advocated the utmost friendliness, even with goods on display, recommending another's progressiveness or display of new wares, and each one profiting by the experience of others.

Valuable Hints Given

It is said, that much money is going out of Belleville to other centres, which could be spent here with profit to all—it is up to the merchants to do all in their power to keep these dollars at home. Attractive stores, good values, honest and courteous treatment in all dealings and a friendly spirit of co-operation with competitors will work wonders. Various methods of making Belleville's dollars come to Belleville were outlined by the speaker, who gave many valuable hints out of his banking experience and related instances of business-getting where no one had looked before for business. Mr. Illsey's entire address was interesting and inspiring and will no doubt have a beneficial effect upon local businessmen and be the conclusion of his address he was warmly applauded and the appreciation of the gathering was eloquently expressed by Fred Houston and Russell Woodley.

Animated discussion on many topics of interest and benefit to retailers, including parking and parking lots made the meeting bright, and one of the best of the meetings and most promising of beneficial results ever held by Belleville merchants.

"CIVIC NIGHT" AT MOIRA LODGE

Member of City Council Initiated Into The Craft

With city officials in all prominent offices a member of the 1937 Belleville city council was initiated into Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F. & A.M. G.R.C. at its Masonic Temple last evening during "Civic Night." A fine programme concluded the very impressive ceremony. The heads of all departments of the city were present, while present-day Aldermen, who are not members of the craft, were the guests at the banquet that followed the degree work in the lodge.

The speaker of the evening was W. M. Bro. W. Ross Wright, city auditor, who gave an illuminating address on the "Qualifications of the City of Belleville." A. B. Colling, K.C., city solicitor; Chief Wm. Lynch, of the Fire Department, Mayor R. D. Arnott, M. P., and Frank Walker and the officers of the Moira Lodge No. 11 graciously gave over their respective stations for the evening with the following city officials occupying the chairs: W.M. Bro. W. Ross Wright; S.W. Bro. W. Gee; J.W. Bro. F. C. Chamberlain; Jr. W., Bro. C. Barrager; Chaplain, Bro. E. Jennings; Sec., Bro. H. S. Stock; Treas., Bro. J. D. Ross; S.D., Bro. J. Harris; J.D., Bro. H. Armstrong; I.G., Bro. W. Harvey; D. of C., Bro. K. Overdiest; Tyler, A. Kennedy.

Assisting officers in the ceremony were: Bro. Arch Kidd, Bro. R. D. Arnott and Bro. H. McGinnis.

Mayor R. D. Arnott was presented by Rt. Wor. Bro. W. C. Gilbert, K.C., and responded to by solicitor A. B. Colling, K.C.

Music for the occasion was by the Masonic orchestra under the leadership of Walter Assistine. Mayor R. D. Arnott also contributed to the program with several vocal efforts.

During the evening a delightful dinner was served the guests.

WORLD BEAUTY IS DEPICTED IN STORY TOLD BY PICTURES

Hitch-Hiking Around World a Travelogue of Much Interest

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Rarely if ever have the far-flung corners of the globe been brought home in such pictorial realization to the citizens of Belleville as was the case last night in Bridge Street United Church, when Leroy Tell, younger member of the famous duo of world travellers unfolded a panorama and verbal travelogue "Hitch-hiking around the World" which in its sheer beauty of pictorial effects and clear concise verbal accompaniment held a packed audience-full breathless throughout the evening.

From the time the two brothers Leroy and Lindsay Tell, who travelled around the world by virtue of a few dollars and a lot of thumbs in a little over a year covering thirty thousand miles, left Belleville aboard a cattle boat en-route for England, until the time they made their record-taking race across the United States back home, the audience was held in a thrall of rapt attention, under the spell of beauty and coloring of the pictures and the bustle of each Asiatic and European cities, the stately grandeur of the Alps, the strange beauty of equatorial regions, the cosmopolitanism of the various centres of population along the route of "march," mark this travelogue as one of the most unique and highly interesting from a pictorial and educational point that has ever been seen in this city.

Met in England

Separating at Montreal, the brothers met in England after traversing Canada via a cattle boat. There they purchased a tandem bicycle and toured the beautiful districts and valleys of Scotland. Going to England later they met again, and toured Central and rural England the picturesque home of Shakespeare in Stratford-on-Avon, the modern theatre.

London at night, with the famed Trafalgar Square and Piccadilly, was a distinct contrast to the quietly beautiful districts of rural England. From there to France and Belgium with Paris Aflame with electric lights, the Arc de Triomphe and the Eiffel Tower with its electric fountains were pictures of more than passing interest.

A troop of French cavalry marching past the tomb of the Unknown, a cemetery with its white crosses "row on row" marking the graves of victims of the war. From there to Holland, where a corpulent Dutchman posed for pictures, and thence to Germany where a group of Nazi school children refused to pose unless they were allowed to give the Nazi salute, the speaker and his audience left Belgium, where they were jailed three times, in beautiful Switzerland and along the Germany Rhine the brothers travelled by means of their new well-studded thumbs. They discarded their bike in Paris for the faster mode of travel.

Perhaps among the outstanding slides shown were those of the Holy Land, depicting the Sea of Galilee in the varying colors of a Palestinian sunset, the beautiful Vale of Gethsemane with the ancient Jerusalem in the distance.

Through the deserts of Asia minor-ia East, the audience was taken. High in the grey-pinnacled Alps, in one of which the brothers contrived to take a picture of Pharaoh's tomb before they were lodged by police, among the dirt and filth and squalor of Asiatic cities, the tents of wandering tribes of nomadic Arabs, the intrepid adventurers wended their way.

Startling in Beauty

Almost startling in its beauty was a picture of the famed Taj Mahal in India, shining by moonlight, delicate, nesting in a setting of verdant Indian beauty was brought to the screen in a picture of the steaming masses of a Malay jungle, the Bellevillians' next stop-over, from which took them back to safety.

Finally stranded in Shanghai, China, the brothers were forced to work their way home. Various white derelicts made their headquarters there in a dump and their own stunk sick, and discovered that the suitcase containing nearly fifty pictures, their passports and other valuable effects had been stolen. Then came appeals for the help of the police. From this point they got berths on a tramp steamer bound for Vancouver. Attending their Indian hiking outfits, they separated upon arriving in Canada and using the thumb and freight car method, raced home. Leroy arrived in Toronto one day ahead of his brother, completing the journey via the United States in seven days.

Shown in natural colors, the picture's were of exceptional beauty and interest with the splendid Tell making the travelogue one of word-picture as painted by Leroy highly sustained interest.

Unemployment Insurance Receiving Consideration Says Premier

Ottawa, April 8 (CP)—The Dominion government is "considering how to get on with unemployment insurance and other forms of social legislation and is giving the question careful consideration," Premier Mackenzie King said today.

Between now and the next session of parliament the matter will receive further study in the light of the recent Privy Council decision holding the legislation of 1935 ultra vires.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave this assurance to the House of Commons last night in reply to a question as an item of $40,000 to provide for the employment and social insurance commission was dropped from the estimates. The item was unnecessary as the commission has been disbanded.

More than $2,000,000 of the main estimates were approved last night after members completed a debate on returned soldiers' problems on the estimates for Pensions and National Health Department.

Recommendations of the war veterans assistance commission regarding allowances was unsympathetic ex-servicemen not in receipt of pensions and allowances to imperial ex-servicemen who had come to Canada since 1924 would not be adopted Hon. W. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, told the House.

At the same time the Minister announced the government's intention of establishing in Canada "workshops limited," voluntary committee unit that had been successful in Montreal, to assist the young war veterans in getting re established in gainful employment.

BLINDING HEADACHES MADE HER HELPLESS

Forced to Lie Down For Hours at a Time

Other sufferers from headaches will be interested to read this letter:—

"Until last summer I was subject to very bad headaches. While they lasted I seemed to lose my sight and all power in my hands, and was forced to lie down for hours at a time. My aunt who has taken Kruschen Salts for 12 years with beneficial results suggested my trying them. I did so, and I've not had any return of those headaches for months. In fact I feel quite better. I shall always take Kruschen regularly in future."—(Mrs.) M.W.

Headaches can frequently be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unexpected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in the complete elimination of waste matter, resulting in a purer blood stream, and thus helping to bring relief from headaches.

"Most of us here tonight have known you since childhood, many having been school mates of yours, but to those who have not known you for such a length of time your many disposition and ready smile have made you many friends and all will be sorry to understand you are leaving our midst.

"You have always been a helper in any work in the neighborhood and especially in young people's work even though you are going a considerable distance away we feel sure you will follow with interest the activities of others who are carrying on the work as they will also be interested in hearing from you.

"Although many of us are not personally acquainted with your future husband we know that you will work together for the benefit of all that is good and true and hope that your life together will be one of happiness and prosperity.

"We now ask you to accept this purse as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held by your Moira friends.

"(Signed) Nelson Welsh, Morton English, Don Ketcheson, Frances Crane."

Miss Freda Mulletti then presented Bertha with a purse containing a generous amount of money for which she graciously thanked her friends. A delicious lunch was then served, until midnight when the hostess served lunch of sandwiches, cake and tea.

DOG TAX SALE IS SLIGHTLY LOWER

The issuing of Belleville dog licences is slightly below average this year, local police chief Ponton stated today. Since the dog tags went on sale a few weeks ago only 107 have been sold, as compared to 113 sold one year ago. In 1936 a total of 611 dog licences were sold in Belleville, the majority of which were procured by local canine owners during the months of April and May, however. The dog tags issued at the police station this year are being shaped and stamped with the year, 1937, the initial "Belleville" and the individual serial number.

TRIP TO SOUTH MUCH ENJOYED

Rev. Harold Reid Back in Belleville For Indefinite Period

Completing a 9,000-mile circuit of the United States which included New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and St. Augustine, Florida, the route Rev. Harold Reid, well known former resident of this city, arrived back in Belleville this week.

Describing the trip as one which was in the nature of a holiday, and "an extremely enjoyable one", Mr. Reid took the occasion to inspect many of the schools of the cities he visited. Keenly interested in educational matters, and a former teaching, although not in the matter of schools, buildings provided the greater contrasts. Generally speaking, pointed out, the larger the city the larger the public school in New York City an enrollment of 7,000 pupils is registered.

Belleville's Collegiate is far better than many I visited in cities larger than this one. "We are more modern here," he stated.

Mr. Reid's stay in Belleville upon his return will be of an indefinite period.

Red Cross Continues Work For Soldiers

49,120 visits to disabled soldier patients in hospital; 3,942 sick veterans helped outside of institutions; 18,501 veterans and their families assisted with relief; 8 summer hospital conducted for the convalescent; two soldiers' clubs operated for disabled pensioners; 1,181 veterans and their dependents cared for in Red Cross Outpost Hospitals and Convalescent Homes—these are the figures contained in the annual report of the Canadian Red Cross Society for the fiscal year.

"Apart from the battlefields of the Great War, the Red Cross has continued an unbroken service for sick, disabled and needy veterans and their families through the thirteen years of peace. In the following terse sentences, this world-famous organization has summed up these men: "From time immemorial, it has been the pleasure of nations to honour those who have fought and suffered and died for them to the nations' good. Our sick and disabled veterans have established that which is above all price—their health and the choicest gift of their manhood for the sake of their country. They deserve all honour at the hands of their fellow men. Is there everything that we can do for them that is left undone? Surely the mockery to make up in small way for the inestimable loss of just being well and sound of limb and mind? Surely the least that a grateful country can do for those who have given their country. As our soldiers went into battle with a light hearted confidence so those promises became sacred obligations on all of us who were fortunate enough to come out unscathed. In the hustle and bustle of life with its ever increasing calls upon our time, many of us have not been able to do personally what we would like to do for the disabled soldiers. On behalf of all Canadians the Red Cross is trying to meet these sacred obligations to the best of its ability. For these men, the Red Cross bespeaks your continued sympathy and support." The Red Cross "Poppy Day" campaign for funds opens, Monday, April 26.

SHIPS CONNECTED WITH SHORE

Establishment of radio telephone stations along the Great Lakes by the Dominion Government will be welcomed by the public as well as the sailors as these will add to the safeguards thrown about those who sail the inland seas.

The owners of the vessels which traverse the lakes will be put to the expense of equipping their craft, but it is felt that this will not be very great, as the skipper will be able to handle the devices and talk to shore points, of which Kingston is to be one.

There are times when a vessel is in distress on the inland waters and any device which will make more easy the saving of life and cargo is to be welcomed.

It is said that all that will be necessary in event of a captain needing to get in touch with shore is to lift the telephone receiver and he will connect with the operator at the nearest of the stations, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Midland, Point Edward, Port Burwell, Toronto and Kingston.

Establishment of this safety device is something of the most modern character. It undoubtedly makes sailing on the lakes somewhat different from the old days when a ship might be in distress and yet be unable to give a warning. The new system is not as costly as wireless but it is said to be very effective.

U.S. EDITOR'S VIEW OF SITUATION

Studying the entry of the United States into the Great War twenty years ago this month and getting a view of the United States as it was 20 years ago, against the background of that nation's history, a writer of the New York Times finds a number of facts. He says "such a retrospect brings out the highly important fact that in our lifetime as a nation, there have been two general European wars and we have been drawn into both of them. When this country was very young, it made desperate efforts to avoid being involved in the great duel between Great Britain and Revolutionary and Napoleonic France. We tried embargo and non-intercourse and armed neutrality and failed under James Madison. We failed again under Woodrow Wilson. It may be that in the case of another world conflagration our rulers in Washington will be vouchsafed a larger measure of wisdom, strength and good luck, than was granted on two earlier occasions. But on the face of the record a general European war inevitably confronts the United States with a desperate situation. If we were sucked into the maelstrom of 1917, it was by a mightier explosion than wicked propagandists abroad or wicked money barons at home."

The editor then goes on to offer a hope in helping to stave off European wars. He says: "A realistic study of American experience with general European wars makes it clear that self-imposed quarantines do not render us immune. It may be a spiritual satisfaction to turn our back on Europe's feuds and offer up thanks that we are not as other sinners. But when the wicked people of the continent set the world aflame our own house catches fire. A better way to keep America out of European wars is to do what we can to stave off European wars. American effort invested in discouraging European conflicts is good domestic insurance. American effort directed to dredging out the clogged channels of international trade, to bringing back a decent respect for international law, to rehabilitating the badly damaged ideal of a family of nations, is effort well invested in keeping America at peace."

It is a very easy thing to devise good laws; the difficulty is to make them effective. The great mistake is that of looking upon men as virtuous on thinking that they can be made so by laws; and consequently the greatest art of a politician is to render vices serviceable to the cause of virtue.—Bolingbrooke.

We must not make a scarecrow of the law, setting it up to fear the birds of prey, and letting it keep one shape till custom make it their perch, and not their terror.—Shakespeare.

Law is never wise but when merciful, but mercy gas conditions; and that which is mercy to the myriads, may seem hard to the one; and that which seems hard to the one, may be mercy when viewed by the eye that looks on through eternity.—Bulwer.

EARTH-TIDES

Up from the southland savannahs a green tide is surging,
Gathering quickened momentum with pouting of petal and bush,
Freeing the earth from its shackles of crystal, and urging Song from the thrush!

Down from the waste, arctic tundras a white tide reversing
Billows with frost-feathered surf its stark bosom again,
Halting the runnels in runes of clear silver coercing
Flight of the wren!

MORE THAN FIVE HUNDRED CRIPPLED CHILDREN have received specialist medical treatment during the seventeen years existence of the Belleville Rotary Club. Some of them have been cured, 100 per cent, all have been helped, and the burden of physical handicap largely lifted from them and their families. Physical liabilities have been turned into assets—what a flood of happiness has been released in many homes in Belleville and Bay of Quinte District. This labor of love has also included adults suffering from physical infirmities and unable to procure the requisite medical specialist attention. Belleville Rotarians have made a splendid record in the cause of suffering humanity, using their own time and money unsparingly. There are many more children needing specialist treatment and the Rotarians will welcome assistance outside the club members to speed up the work. An instance of the thoroughness of the work can be cited from the fact that once a case is undertaken it is continued, no matter how long a time is required—one wee boy spent more than one thousand hours in hospital. Cases continuing years and more are not rare. Belleville Rotary Club has a record for crippled children work not surpassed by any other club in accordance with population. The club is now organizing for the biggest and best year in its history to bring health and happiness to as many homes as possible and to the hearts of many crippled children. This work is large enough for all to take part, and the Rotary Crippled Children Drive for 1937, now under way, will welcome any and all assistance and acknowledge it the same in the annual Rotary edition of the Ontario Intelligencer soon to be published.

RADIO APPLAUSE PUZZLES MANY RADIO LISTENERS, and annoys others. Applause which frequently interrupts programs is more than a trifle overdone and is causing much unfavorable comment. Nick Kenny, radio editor of the New York Mirror, scores this practice with a vitriolic pen, saying among other things:

"I would present this argument to sponsors who permit comedians to play exclusively to the studio audiences by dressing in weird costumes and making fierce facial contortions to enhance their gags. The studio audience consists of only a few hundred or more prospective customers. What does it mean to please only 500 lookers on when it antagonizes five million dialers? Uncle Nick has been rapping this practise for years. So has every other radio scribe, but what happens? The STUDIO LAUGHERS HAVE BEEN GIVEN A MACHINE TO MAKE THEIR LAUGHS SOUND LOUDER. Every mail brings complaints from fans who write that they are annoyed by the applause was permitted to come over the air so loud and continuous. Now we know. SPECIAL MACHINES HAVE BEEN PROVIDED TO MAKE THE LAUGHS LOUDER OVER THE AIR. Ye Gods and Big and Little Fishes, what next will come out of Yankeedom?

FROM 'WAY DOWN SOUTH COMES A SAMPLE OF SOUTHERN HUMOR relayed by a Belleville member of the winter colony down there. Here tis:

"Easter Sunday morning our minister in his announcement said: I WISH YOU ALL A MERRY CHRISTMAS. A smile went over the congregation thinking he had mis-spoken himself. There was a pause—then he said: NO I DID NOT MAKE A MISTAKE. MANY OF YOU ONLY COME TO CHURCH ONCE A YEAR (EASTER SUNDAY) SO IT IS THE ONLY OPPORTUNITY I HAVE TO WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

APRIL 8, 1917

On Wednesday afternoon the pupils of Queen Alexandra School gathered in the assembly room at the school for the purpose of saying good bye to Mr. Bullock, the assistant principal who has enlisted with the Cobourg Heavy Battery for service overseas. An address was read by Ralph Smith and a wrist watch was presented to Mr. Bullock by Madeline Dunberry.

Miss Ada Smith of Tweedie is spending the Easter vacation with her sister, Miss Alma Smith in this city.

Miss Kathleen Orley of Napanee is the guest of Miss Myrtle Ayres in this city.

Mrs. S. Roughton and daughter of Kingston are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Burrows, Bridge street east.

30 YEARS AGO

April 8th, 1907.

Local changes in the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. J. R. Donnelly who was for some time locomotive foreman at Belleville for the G.T.R. Company, has accepted a position as superintendent of motive power for the Canada Atlantic Railway, with office at Ottawa. Mr. Donnelly was deservedly popular with the local railroad men, and his departure from Belleville is much regretted. Mr. Edward Fisher takes the place of Mr. Donnelly as local foreman and there is no doubt "Ed" will be in popularity and will fill the position most acceptably. Mr. Robert Ivers of this city has been appointed locomotive foreman at Turcotte, Quebec, near Montreal. Mr. Joseph Hay, son of Ex-Ald. Hay of this city, has been appointed locomotive foreman at London, Ont.

St. Agnes' School for girls will re-open after the Easter vacation tomorrow.

40 YEARS AGO

APRIL 8, 1897

Spring seeding has commenced in Thurlow and Sidney Townships. Angus McFee's jewelry store now has a new awning over the front with his name painted across it. It looks remarkably well.

Octavia street should have some broken stone placed upon it. It is one of the worst streets in the city.

A big stump which was carried down by the spring freshet lodged near the old ferry slip. It should be removed.

Mr. W. Douglas of the D. and D. Institute has purchased the fine residence of Mr. Jacob Wilson on Charlotte street.

The street cleaning department is doing good work and in a few days the principal thoroughfares will be in good condition.

Mr. Albert R. Thompson left this morning for Mexico where he is interested in a railway contract.

Mr. John T. Clark, formerly a school teacher in this county, has received with honors the degree of M.D. from Trinity University, Toronto. Mr. H. C. Wrinch, formerly of Albert College, secured honors in his primary medical examinations at the same University.

50 YEARS AGO

April 8th, 1887.

About five o'clock yesterday morning a dense volume of smoke was discovered pouring from the upper windows of L. W. Yeomans & Company's Drug Store on Front Street. The alarm was given, and the three companies of the fire brigade were promptly at the scene. The flames had much headway that the total destruction of the building seemed certain. A small quantity of goods was taken from the front shop, but the volunteer salvage corps were not soon by. Dense smoke. A few lingered too long. The upper floor gave way with a crash while some boys were in the building. Bert Marshal, son of the dentist, was injured by the falling mass and had to be carried to his home. About 6 o'clock the flames had done their work; building was destroyed. The loss will be about $16,000 on stock and on fixtures about $6,000. The building was insured for $4,000. It can not be replaced for that amount. Insurance was carried on the stock for $11,000 and $2,000 insurance on the fixtures. Mr. Yeomans intends to rebuild immediately. When Don. Bleecker and F. H. Hambly, clerks, closed the store last night at 7 o'clock everything was apparently in good order.

Protecting The Pedestrian

Speaking of risks a pedestrian takes when walking on the highway at night in dark clothing and without a light, or a reflector of some sort one man was heard to remark "It is a good way to commit suicide."

We are quite safe in saying that there is hardly a motorist who has driven a car for five years or more, but has at some time nearly escaped hitting a pedestrian because the pedestrian was dark clothing and was not easily discernable when walking along the highway at night. Deaths of pedestrians in this district have been numerous during the past few years. Sometimes glaring headlights have blinded the driver and in other instances the driver has been unable to see the pedestrian until it has been too late to avoid accident, and again the pedestrian has been partly at fault.

Some people advance the argument that because the driver pays a license to travel on the highway and the pedestrian pays nothing, the car driver has the right of way. Whether that is worth arguing or not does not give the car driver the license to deliberately disregard the pedestrian. We would say that for our own protection we would not walk on the highway at night without a light, a reflector, a piece of white cloth so that a driver would be able to distinguish at some distance what was in front of him.

Appeals have been made to the Highway Department on different occasions to have walks for pedestrians placed along the highways. Nothing has been done. The Automobile Association should strongly recommend to the Highway Department, in placing a red light at the rear, pedestrians should also be required to display white arm bands, white leg bands, reflectors, or whatever is deemed best for the protection of the person who walks on the highway at night.

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon, April 8 — The farmers are quite optimistic now. The recent warm rains have put new life in fall grain and meadows, and by the appearance of things in general, work on the land will soon begin. The price of hogs are steadily advancing and the telephone rate has been reduced considerably. These and many other items are reminding us that although the clouds at times are dark the sun is sure to shine in due season.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Reid on Sunday, March 28th, a son.

School re-opened Monday with an attendance of thirty-eight. This is the largest enrolment by a number of years. No little tots started their educational career at the West Huntingdon school. Mr. Moran the principal deems it better to have them enter at the mid summer season at Hidge Road school, however, four new faces were seen, they were Marion Mills, Douglas McGee, Eugene Brenell and Glen Hammond.

St. Andrew's Young People's Meeting

Koffend gave a brief introduction of the program and Mrs. Ellis of Stirling sang one of Miss Bond's beautiful songs "Just Awearyin'". Mr. Charles Dracup also of Stirling gave a reading. Rev. J. A. Koffend gave us a solo another one of Miss Bond's works "Friendship" and Mrs. Koffend a monologue. The special address on the life and work of Carrie Jacobs Bond was ably given by Mr. Koffend. Mrs. Ellis gave another solo "Perfect Day." Recitation by Mr. Charles Dracup, Duet by Mr. and Mrs. Koffend "I Love You Truly." This concluded an evening's entertainment. It was not only enjoyed by an extra large number present but was made most profitable, Carrie Jacobs Bond will long live in memories of those present as one who rose from many handicaps and hardships to a life of usefulness.

Simple Home Treatment For Varicose Veins

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes painful. Before resorting to operations or injections for relief, get from your druggist a bottle of Emerald Oil or Dopie's Dene Hurs, or any pharmacist and start to reduce the swollen veins at once. A small bottle will last a long time, because all is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or the finger tips as directed until the swelling disappears.

No wonder Emerald Oil that is highly useful in reducing troublesome swollen veins due to strain and hastens their disappearance.

4th ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED WITH MANY ROSES
Thousands of Roses Presented to Ladies on Birthday of Belleville Business Enterprises.
"There's a rose for you at Bowra's" is a phrase which took prominent place in the minds of many ladies in Belleville and district today on the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the opening of the Bowra Electric and Hardware in Belleville. Memories of three previous anniversaries with beautiful roses given out as souvenirs of the occasion were reawakened very pleasantly, and more than four thousand beautiful roses have been provided for the fourth anniversary being celebrated Thursday and Friday of this week.
Since early morning the Bowra store has been crowded with visitors, all very much interested in the special display of modern household articles, electric radios, ranges, washing machines, refrigerators, etc.
Bowra Electric and Hardware store is one of the most modern of its kind in the province and Charles Bowra, head of the firm, and Steve Plaskett, manager, are receiving many congratulations upon the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the Belleville store. While the Belleville store has attained its fourth birthday the firm must not be taken as so youthful, having passed its eighteenth year as the original location under direction of Charles Bowra of Toronto, Oshawa and Belleville.
One department of exceptional interest to the ladies, guests at the anniversary, is the china department where many handsome pieces and sets in modern patterns are shown. Under direction of the courteous and capable staff in charge crowds of visitors today were handled in a pleasing manner and everything Bowra anniversary roses are in evidence. The anniversary celebration will continue tomorrow, Friday.

MASK OF VICTIM

This life mask of Veronica Gedeon, one victim of the triple Easter murders raging in New York, is believed to be the work of Robert Irwin, a young sculptor who once roomed with the Gedeons. Irwin, former inmate of an insane asylum, is now being sought by police for questioning in the killings. A bizarre note was added to the mystery when it was suggested that Irwin might be at large, disguised in another mask or his own making.

THE DRAMA

"The Last Loaf" Admirably Presented by Christ Church A.Y.P.A.

"The Last Loaf" an engrossing drama with just the right dash of comedy delighted a large audience as Christ Church Parish Hall last evening when it was presented by the A.Y.P.A. and the success of the production promises well for outright performances when the play will be repeated.

This interesting play was splendidly cast and the cast, all of whom showed fine dramatic ability. The performance was smooth and finished and merited the warm praises of all who saw it.

Concerning the fortunes of the Ashton family, at one time wealthy and influential, who by severe stricken because of the revenge of Caleb Hanson who sought to break Sir Ashton, and ruined her father's business by encouraging him to drink, in order to further his plans, the play was most interesting, and the actors themselves were relieved by touches of comedy which kept the audience constantly amused.

Enter Spirit of Play

The players entered well into the spirit of the play, doing full justice to its dramatic possibilities and giving very convincing performances. They showed the results of careful training, under the direction of Mr. Everett Smith, and their splendid work made the play an outstanding success.

Those who took part were:

Mark Ashton, wealthy silversmith; Mr. Dan Stewart.

Kate Ashton, his wife—Miss Jean Croft.

Lily Ashton, their daughter — Miss Marjorie Chaplin.

Harry Ashton, son of a wealthy baker—Mr. Dave Bradford.

Dick Ashton, their son—Mr. Willis Jackson.

Molly Jones, maid in the Ashton home—Miss Dorothy Croft.

Caleb Hanson, wealthy baker—Mr. Bill Hann.

Tom Chubbs, butchr — Mr. Frank Moore.

Between acts, Mr. Everett Smith gave a number of readings in his usual interesting style, and Miss Grace Leeman delighted with piano numbers before and after the play and during the intermission between acts our pianist.

The stage setting of the play was very effective, the study of Caleb which took place in the living room of the Ashton home when fortune was changing, showed a charming living room, and the second scene which found them in poorer circumstances was in keeping with the poverty of the play.

The audience was sincere in their appreciation of the efforts of the cast and spoke very highly of their work. The play is being given for the second time tonight.

San Pedro, Calif., April 8 (AP) — Douglas Aircraft officials said today that a 23-passenger airplane, capable of flying 1,200 miles at 180 miles an hour, has passed its tests but declined comment as to when it will be sold to Soviet Russia.

Amateur Firewalkers Get Feet Singed

London, April 8 (AP)—Five amateur firewalkers singed their feet in the interests of science today, while the Indian "professional" strolled through the burning ordeal unscathed.

Ahmed Hussain, 23-year-old Moslem, whose father and grandfather were firewalkers before him, succeeded where the amateurs failed in his experiment conducted at the University of London Council of Physical Investigation.

He walked in a pit 12 feet long, glowing with embers heated to 932 degrees Fahrenheit without a trace of a burn on his bare feet.

Hussain pursues his career, each of his trips which lasted 1¼ seconds. After the experiment, Dr. Pannett, director of research, first showed no trace of burns.

While his Majesty was born Dec. 14, the example of his grandfather, Edward VII., is being followed by Canada's people of Monarch's birthday in the summer season, even where it occurs in winter, so that the public may better enjoy the holiday.

The birthdays of the last two Monarchs, George V. and Edward VIII., were celebrated on their natal days, June 3 and June 23, respectively.

AT THE BELLE
"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney"

The glittering star triumvirate of Joan Crawford William Powell and Robert Montgomery are cause for the Belle screen yesterday in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's urbane and highly polished screen presentation of Frederic Lonsdale's stage success, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney". It is hardly necessary to say that the combination of three of M-G-M's most triumphant personalities in the sparkling Lonsdale comedy is a highly successful one.

Miss Crawford is perfectly cast as the Mrs. Cheyney of the story. Dressed "to the teeth" in some of Adrian's most striking creations, Furniture Manufacturing and decidedly intriguing the character of the American girl who has set her heart on being a "lady," and given the opportunity to do so, makes the most of it, with somewhat unexpected results.

To Powell is given the role of the butler, Charles, and this departure from the popular actor's more recent portrayals gives fresh evidence of his versatility and the wide range of his acting talent. Montgomery's role might have been made to order for the dashing, debonair and slightly cynical Lord Arthur Hallam. It is only the type of role in which this star is at his best.

M.G.M. has given the production its usual lavish hand and treatment and has filled the supporting roles with players each of whom stands out which his or her particular contribution. There is for instance the ever-to-be depended-on Frank Morgan with his indiscreet Lord Kelton whose revelations about his fellow society men, written in a letter to Mrs. Cheyney, plays an important part in the plot development. Morgan plays the role to the hilt and is responsible for a great number of the hilarious spy moments. Others who stand out include the delightful Reginald Ralph, Nigel Bruce, Colleen Clare, Benita Hume, Ralph Forbes, Aileen Pringle and Edmund Cooper.

A clever adaptation of the original London stage production has been devised by Leon Gordon, Samson Raphaelson and Monckton Hoffe giving the story an interesting variety of luxurious backgrounds and an action punctuating and highly amusing dialogue. The direction of Richard Boleslawski is of the best and an especially attractive feature of the production is his charming musical score written by Dr. William Axt.

The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" cannot fail to please film goers of every age and taste. It is bright, amusing and diverting entertainment and the combined talents of Miss Crawford, Powell and Montgomery, plus his excellent supporting players, make it exactly in that standard which one would expect of so rich an assemblage of star power.

"Hollywood Extra" a refreshing screen miniature, and "The Little Maestro" a smart tuneful revue precede the feature presentation.

Th entire program will be repeated again tonight and Friday, matinee and evening. Performances start at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.10. The feature presentation begins daily at 2.50, 7.30, 9.35.

AT THE CAPITOL
"A Doctor's Diary" and "Can This Be Dixie"

A gripping drama of medical ethics and life behind the scenes in a large metropolitan hospital is available at the Capitol. Theatre spellbound last night as "A Doctor's Diary", a revealing and powerful motion picture, unfolded itself, as an added attraction with this picture—a grand musical "Can This Be Dixie".

The film presents handsome John Trent, former ace flyer, in his first leading role, and Helen Burgess, the newcomer who capitivated America with her work in "The Plainman." George Bancroft, Ruth Coleman, Sidney Blackmer, and a new youngster, Ila Hould, are included in the brilliant cast.

"A Doctor's Diary" is the story of a young physician, played by Trent, who seeks a cure for infantile paralysis. Despite the opposition and neglect he sees all around him he sticks to his experiments. Miss Burgess, a nurse who is in love with him, is dismissed from the hospital when she is unable to keep silent about the conditions she is forced to witness. When the son of a young musical comedy star, played by Hould, is removed because of criminal negligence on the part of a society doctor, Trent resigns. Paralysis becomes epidemic and the young physician, together with an older doctor, played by Bancroft, is swamped with work. Realizing that he must find a paralysis serum, he returns to the hospital and begs for his laboratory. It is given him on condition that he tell about what happened to the child's operation, and he accepts.

The trial is held and Trent pays a terrific price for the lie he told so that he might continue his experiments. But he wins Miss Burgess who stood by him during the crisis, and he gets the reforms for which he fought instituted at the hospital.

"Can This Be Dixie"

An interesting contrast between vibrant, irrepressible youth and placid, contented age was disclosed during the filming of the picture.

"Can This Be Dixie?", now playing the Capitol as Hit No. 2.

On the one hand was the diminutive Jane Withers, ten-year-old screen sensation. On the other 75-year-old "Kentucky John" Millson, an aged darkey with a banjo. Fantastically enough, instead of teaching "Ginger" Jane some of the old negro ballads that Millson knows by the dozen, moments. After just a few rehearsals Jane proceeded to entertain the members of the company with the songs she had memorized, accompanied on the banjo by the beaming old colored man.

Mixed with a Southland background, "Can This Be Dixie?" is an entertaining blending of hilarious comedy, romance made in the modern fashion and unusual dances. A notable cast supports Jane Withers, including Slim Summerville, Helen Wood, Thomas Beck, Sara Haden, Claude Gillingwater and Donald Cook.

WOMAN SEIZED, PURSE SNATCHED

$12.00 Taken From Purse in Broad Daylight on High-land Ave.

Jumping from an automobile on Highland Ave. two men are reported to have seized a lady resident of the city, snatched her purse and upon regaining their position, in the vehicle, sped hastily away, removing $12.00 from the purse and tossing it out upon the street in broad daylight yesterday afternoon.

According to a story related to police officials about 4.00 p.m. yesterday a woman residing on Parker St. told the police of having been attacked and the contents of her purse stolen as she walked westerly on Highland Ave. about 3.45 p.m. No other eye witnesses, of the incident were available.

"I was walking along Highland Ave. when a car, that was also proceeding westerly, drove up to the curb alongside of me on the right door and seized me, while a second got out of the machine by the door and ran around the car to grab my purse. The first man, the assailant ran back to the car, removed the $12.00 in cash and tossing the empty purse out of the righthand window onto the curb," the lady told sergeant Booth fully 30 minutes after the alleged purse snatching was reported to have taken place.

No Rear Plate

The woman stated there was no rear license plate on the vehicle, which she thought in turned of the right at Parker St., the reported robbery having taken place between Parker and Parker on Highland Ave. "There were yellow fog lights on the front of the car. I think," stated the woman as she described her assailants.

"They were three men in the car but the driver did not get out. The first man to attack me was about 30 years of age, wore a grey coat and a fedora hat. The second man was about 40 years old, wore a dark suit, no overcoat or hat, while the driver seemed to be wearing a plaid coat. The second man was of fair complexion, but I think they were all strangers," added the frightened woman.

Local police investigated and relayed the descriptions of the men to outside points, but no replies were received.

SIX TEAMS ENTER SOFTBALL LOOP

Four Will Play Int., "A" One Int. "B" And One Jr. in Playdowns

Six teams affiliated with the Belleville Amateur Softball Association last night, four of which will compete in the Intermediate "A" series of the O.A.S.A., the remaining two, Point Anne and the Aajmaa Club juniors will compete in the provincial play-downs, with the former being granted a "B" category rating in the O.A.S.A. and the latter being a junior club.

President W. Todd called a meeting of the association in the Aajmaa Club rooms last evening, when the clubs composing the 1936 Belleville Industrial League applied for affiliation with the newly instituted and governing body of local softball. The Corbin Hardware, Cisco and Belleville-Sargent Hardware being the new entries, the intermediate "A" champions of the O.A.S.A., the Percival Stores, being the only team to retain its provincial status from last season. The Point Anne "B" team and the Aajmaa Club juniors were granted entry into the league for the season's schedule, but will revert back to their O.A.S.A. classification for the provincial play-downs.

Considerable discussion resulted as to the advisability of a new playing field for the softballers in Belleville, some favouring the Victoria Park, while the majority stood in favour of retaining the old diamond at Victoria Flats. A committee composed of President Todd, Harry Hollins and Chas. Tylsworth were appointed to interview the city council relative to the rolling and levelling of the diamond at the old Coleman Flats in order to provide better playing facilities for next year in the city.

The entrance fee into the association was set at $2.00 per club and the meeting adjourned until Tuesday next, when the league will meet to draft the season's schedule and appoint umpires. Efforts to open the season on Coronation Day will be considered.

SENIOR SQUADS READY FOR GAME

Calgary, April 9.— (CP)—Prospects of one of the greatest Allan Cup finals of hockey history were seen today with two powerful teams ready to represent the East and West in the best-of-five series starting here tonight.

Western Canada's best, North Battleford Beavers, tapered off their training grind with a 10-minute skate yesterday and were pronounced in fine condition to meet Quebec Tigers, Eastern Champions.

Red Stuart's Nickel Belt Champions arrive today to complete the stage for the first Dominion final to be staged in this foothills City.

Although all tickets for the initial contest have not been sold, Arena officials announced capacity houses are assured for the first three games, tonight, Saturday and Monday. Beavers haven't played a game since March 29.

Three National Hockey League managers will assist the series. Mervin (Red) Dutton of New York Americans, who has been watching Beavers at Manager Abbott's request in hopes of catching any errors, Clem Loughlin of Chicago Black Hawks and Art Ross of Boston Bruins are here.

85 NOMINATED FOR THE DERBY

Baltimore, April 8.—(AP)—The pick of the United States three-year-old crop from Heelfly, the Texas Hub, to Pompoon, the big Canadian bay apparel looks among the 85 nominations the Maryland Jockey Club announced for the 63rd renewal of the Preakness.

Of the host two-year-olds, only two—Case Ace and privileged—were missing from the list released by Lloyd Jones, Pimlico Club secretary.

At the top was Pompoon, which took down $82,260 in prize money last year for J. H. Louchheim of Philadelphia, his owner. The prospering offspring of Pompey-Consign failed to win any of his eight starts and was second in both of them.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 8.—(AP)—Chet Laabs, Detroit's prize Rookie, has writes at large as the average man's arms.

They say he can hit a ball farther than any other man in baseball . . . which may be one reason Mickey Cochrane didn't mind taking a $40,000 loss on Simmons.

Al Weil, manager of Lou Ambers, put the blast on Fight Commissioner Bill Brown for the decision the Ambers-Ambers scrap Monday night. . . . "It was pure mockery", Weil told the Commissioner. . . . New York was hockey mad Tuesday night . . . addicts cheerfully forked out 11 potatoes to scalpers for $3.50 tickets for the Ranger-Detroit playoff game, and no questions asked.

Best line of the week in our book was penned by Jimmy Doyle in the Cleveland Plain Dealer: Indians are reserving a niche in the baseball hall of fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., for the first Giant to get a hit off Bob Feller . . . Kitz Cooper, who fractured a cheek bone last week, will be back in the Red lineup in ten days.

John Henry Lewis is getting so big he may grow eggs out of the light heavyweight title . . . Now weighs 167 lbs. . . . May be good for one more title defence at 175 (if they make it snappy) before he'll have to hang out his shingle as a full fledged heavy-weight. . . . But Manager Jim Greenlee can't find a challenger with enough box office appeal. . . . Al McCoy of Montreal and Boston would do—but they way overweight, too, and might not be able to make 175 and still be strong.

GALSUN FAVORED IN WINTER BOOK

Son of Gallant Fox is Praised by Trainer Frank Kearns

By ORLO ROBERTSON

New York, Apr. 8 (AP)—Three of America's outstanding thoroughbred sires,—Sir Gallahad III., Gallant Fox and Man o' War—will not lack for capable representatives in the 53rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Nine of the trio's offspring, six of them by Sir Gallahad, are among the 103 nominees but only three stand out prominently in the pre-race speculation for the May 8 renewal of the $50,000 turf classic. They are: Bubbling over, by Sir Gallahad, and Galsun, sired by Gallant Fox, both from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, and Samuel Riddle's War Admiral, lone representative of the famous Man o' War strain now years old.

Privileged and War Admiral are quoted at 15 to 1 each in the future books, Galsun, 30 to 1. Reports from their trailing camps, the Calumet Farm at Lexington, and Hayre de Grace, where Riddle's string is quartered, fairly flow with optimism.

Privileged was the favorite of the Wright pair as a two-year-old, but Galsun is favored now by trainer Frank Kearns. Barring accidents, perhaps, he plans to start both in the derby.

"Galsun is not only the best looking derby prospect I ever conditioned, but best I have ever had the pleasure of laying eyes on," said Kearns.

NORM SMITH IS QUESTION MARK

May Not Play Goal For Redwings Against Rangers

Detroit, April 8.—(CP)—The large question mark in the Detroit Red Wings' camp today — besides the best method of winning the second game of their Stanley Cup series against New York Rangers— was just who is going to play goal.

Normie Smith says he'll be between the pipes. Coach Jack Adams says he won't and then enlarges on the statement.

"I say Earl Robertson will play," roly-poly John said, "but that depends on Normie. He has to change his mental attitude.

"He wants to play and he'll do his best but if Smith is not in the injured arm, it can't be on the game. I'm can convince me he isn't thinking about the arm and that he ok. I'll let him play.

"But I doubt it." he added, with a sorrowful look and a shake of his head.

Smith injured the arm in a National League title game against Canadiens in Montreal.

Joe Shortt, statistician and director of the local 11-team O.H.A. league, made his annual report to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly meeting on Tuesday. Nineteen teams competed in the Xi-Y hockey league this winter, nine in the midget class, and five in both the bantam and juvenile series. The National was the bantam group, the O.S.D. "Pee Wees" the midget while the Hawks were winners of the juvenile section.

The financial report showed the league received a total of $46.55 from certificate fees, 25c being assessed bantams and midgets for certificate tax and 50c for juvenile players. This tax entitled the players to participate in all games, regardless as to whether they were played at the Arena or in Timbertoe and without further cost. So if a team played eight or nine games it merely followed he had that much hockey for the fabulous sum of two bits. Of course the $46.55 did not commence to cover the season's expenses as the Kiwanis Club was called upon to foot the remainder of the year's expenses, which amounted to a total of $67.31.

Besides this the members of the Kiwanis Club coached some of the teams in the Juvenile section supplied the players with jerseys and in their own words "did a few odd jobs of referees. If any, were also borne by the Kiwanians. The various groups were completed with great satisfaction and now the Kiwanis and Y.M.C.A. are launching their annual campaign towards the organization of a new city baseball league. The Kiwanis Club has already come out strongly for the support of Xi-Y softball and twenty teams are expected to compete.

The schedule, we were creditable and both the Kiwanis Club and Y.M.C.A. should be congratulated for supplying... good clean wholesome recreation for our growing youth. Now that the Xi-Y hockey and softball we wonder if there couldn't be a little more attention shown towards the educating of Belleville's teen aged boys in "baseball". Surely something is done to stimulate the interest in this game we are afraid it will become a lost art in this city within a very short space of time.

Down in Napanee where they appreciate the efforts of their athletes a unique testimonial banquet was tendered the Napanee Juniors, winners of the Kingston City League, and at the same time the Napanee Collegiate hockey team, winners of the Bay of Quinte junior interscholastic hockey group. Also Napanee did a splendid honoring the intermediate O. H. A. champion senior team.

We understand the subscription list to avail George Pepper of finances to make his journey to the Isle of Man and compete in the world's championship motorcycle races, is beginning to function more successfully. If the local "Prospectors" would only put their biased opinions and get behind the movement, perhaps Belleville would have a motorcycle rider to be proud of and one that would bring recognition to our city.

Do you remember when Lester Patrick, manager of New Rangers, then 44 years old, went in goal for them one night against Boston, and came with Maroons at Montreal, nine years ago tonight. Lorne Chabot was injured early in the second period and Lester donned the pads. He allowed only one goal and Rangers won the game 3-1 in overtime?

"There is a crying need for economy and cuts in the needless of recreation for the youth of this city," stated Mr. Jamieson Howe, while representing the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club before the city council on Monday night. There is much truth to Mr. Howe's statement, insofar as the tennis activities are concerned and also we recommend the efforts of the Quinte Skating Club, which, however, operated at a financial loss last winter, we understand. In regard to the fancy skaters we cannot quite understand why they do not pool their resources with the proposed and recently suggested curling club and take advantage of any artificial ice that may be installed at the Arena and be assured of adequate ice conditions, regardless as to the weather. Another mild winter, similar to the one just past, would surely prove disastrous to the fancy skaters out-of-doors.

We are reliably informed, that, providing an artificial ice plant was installed in the Arena, thereby giving a new curling rink would be erected nearby and the freezing facilities piped into the proposed curling rink. By amalgamating with the curlers, the latter body would be assured of plenty of skating hours. It's only a suggestion.

There will be six teams in the local city league softball loop this season, just enough to assure good competition and not too lengthy a playing schedule. Last year the fans were sickened of too much softball. It was softball for six and six nights per week, which is beyond the expectation of making it interesting for spots, or packing three occasionally. are sure to work to keep up the interest. As the local softball loop now stands there are four intermediate "A" teams, Point Anne, Corbin's and the Aajmaa Juniors all grouped together in a real shoot-out, make a real interesting league, if handled with fore-sight.

Down in Canada, more particularly in the eastern portion, the baseball season is just beginning to realize the necessity of having baseball thoroughly throughout the various phases of the sports realm. Elmer Ferguson, Montreal Herald baseball writer, Lionel Conacher be made some kind of a sports ambassador, to lead and advise our youth of today in the matter of advancing sports in their proper places. Today's youth isn't inclined to listen to the theorists and the law-makers who were in this province day and age, they are minus that human touch and personal appeal, that such men as Conacher enjoy in the minds of our youth. What holds good in the larger centres, is perhaps doubly so in the smaller communities, such as Belleville etc.

The team that beat the Canadiens is good enough to beat the Rangers" predicted Jack Adams on the eve of the second game of the world's, hockey championship. That may Jawn's opinion, but the Rangers have won five straight in the Stanley Cup play-downs and are hot.

Mrs. Joe Cronin, wife of the manager of the Washington Senators, is reported to be in serious condition after giving birth to twins at Sarasota, Fla. The twins, a boy and a girl, died yesterday.

FIGHTERS SQUARE OFF BEFORE NON-TITLE FIGHT IN NEW YORK

In a non-title bout between Lou Ambers, lightweight champion and Pedro Montanez, tiger man of Puerto Rico, Montanez won a decisive victory. In the first round of their ten-round affair, Montanez all but kayoed the champ and continued to lead in the next eight rounds. Ambers came back in the final rounds with a sensational burst of speed, but was unable to overcome the large lead the Puerto Rican had established. The two pugilists are pictured here as they squared off for the photographer just previous to the bout. Ambers is on the left.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Apr. 8.—At their regular monthly meeting held on Friday afternoon in the Stirling Community Service Building, the ladies of the Stirling branch of the Ontario Women's Institute were hostesses to members of the same organization in Springbrook and Ivanhoe. The visitors were cordially welcomed by Mrs. W. C. Wash, president of the local branch, who presided over the opening exercises. Mrs. R. M. Williams presented the secretary's report and the roll call revealed a large attendance. Mrs. Rick presided at the piano for the musical numbers which included the singing of "the Old Rugged Cross" by the entire group. Following the close of the business part of the meeting six visiting ladies were in charge of an interesting program which was presided by the visitors. Mrs. Ashley of the Ivanhoe Branch acted as mistress of ceremonies and the following numbers were included on the program. An address given by Mrs. Chester Hills entitled "Good Manners" was very instructive and helpful. Mrs. Hagerman offered an instrumental solo representing the Springbrook branch during their part of the program. Mrs. Oren Bailey occupied the chair. After expressing the appreciation of the Springbrook ladies for the privilege of being present Miss Bailey presented a clever sketch on "The Coronation" which was given in a very clever manner.

Mrs. Fitzgerald of Springbrook directed an interesting contest to complete a file program which closed with the singing of the National Anthem. During the luncheon which followed expressions of thanks to the visiting ladies for the fine program presented, was expressed briefly by Mrs. Joseph Wilson and Mrs. Ford Wescott and a social half hour was enjoyed.

In the absence of the president of the organization, Rev. W. J. Scott presided over the meeting. Following the usual song service the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Eva Hall and Rev. W. J. Scott led in prayer. During the business part of the meeting which included the reading of the secretary's report by Mrs. Nora Wescott, communications from Mrs. Symonson of Orkney, Sask., and addressed to Mrs. William Fox, expressing gratitude for articles received from the local Union in "while gifts" sent to the stricken area in the western province last December, were also read by the secretary. Miss Gertrude Kinsey at this time offered an excellent reading entitled "What is Miss Means to a Christian". The speaker of the evening, Rev. W. J. Scott, delivered an interesting address on the "Life of Robert Louis Stevenson". Mr. Scott described the early life, environment set up in St. Giles Cathedral in honor of this great man who was one of England's most eminent writers. Delicate as a child he was forced into a life of invalidism which during which he developed a most unusual imagination. Despite his handicap his writings were always cheerful and merry. A great gloom was cast over the world at large with the passing of this great man in 1894 and floral tributes from all parts of the world bespoke the esteem in which he was held. This was a most interesting address for which the speaker displayed an enviable knowledge of the subject upon which he spoke. Miss Mary Hulin offered as a reading "I Have to Live By Myself" by Edgar Guest.

The final number on the program was a female quartette rendered by Mrs. Gerald Mercier, Mrs. George Duffin and Mrs. Wilson and Miss Gladys Benedictine.

Carmel Young People's Union.

The regular weekly meeting of Carmel United Church Young People's Union was held in the church on Friday evening with Mr. Donald Scott, president of the organization, in charge. The Scripture lesson for the evening was read by Mr. William Reynolds and the speaker was Mrs. Lewis Bird who spoke on the subject "One Hundred Per Cent. Man". Other numbers presented on the program included reading by Elinor Bird and Russell Pyear and the final number was an original contest directed by Mrs. Ashley Brook. The meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

Women's Association Entertained.

The remaining portion of the evening was spent in games and contests in which also several of the members assisted in serving luncheon. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the hostess who had made the pleasant evening possible.

* * *

After the very appreciable rise in the newspaper stocks that has taken place in recent weeks a section of moderate proportions should create a surprise. It should be borne in mind that the manner in which these issues moved ahead attracted a wide speculative following which tended to weaken the technical position of the list. A shake-out should prove beneficial for the market.

* * *

The large number of sold-out bulls currently around should undoubtedly begin to repurchase their favorites, as the reaction in some securities has been quite appreciable. Recent statements emanating from London and Washington have brought about a loss of confidence in the near future. It should be remembered that the price of these commodities is still sufficiently high to warrant the base metal producers excellent profits.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—Prices bolged moderately at the opening of Toronto Stock Exchange but they only invited further selling and the gains were soon lost. By the second hour the market was definitely sagging and losses were general over the Board at early afternoon. The tape was a little more active than usual and close to a million shares were run through in the first three hours.

Base metals were the firmest group and they were showing some gains along with the losses this afternoon. Sherritt, Aldermac, Sudbury Basin, Falconbridge and Ventures were heavy. The proposal to revamp Ventures' stock set up and issue one new share for each five held was evidently the selling stimulant. Eldorado turned heavy, sagging to 3.15.

Papers, liquors, utilities and oils declined. Pond A dropped a point and Brazilian and C.P.R. were slightly weak.

WALL STREET

New York, April 8 (AAP)—Stocks jumped from pillar to post in today's market but generally managed to maintain most of their yesterday's sharp declines.

Gold price moves continued to flit about the board rooms, despite denials any change was contemplated by the United States Treasury, and many traders seized on rallies to shake commitments.

In the Canadian category Dome Mines yielded more than a point and Canadian Pacific receded fractionally. McIntyre, Hiram Walker and Distillers-Corp. Seagrams improved slightly. Dominion Government issues were firm. Canadian funds held unchanged at 100.06% cents. On curb Lake Shore Mines picked up a trifle.

Thither higher were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, American Rolling Mill, Yellow Truck, U.S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelting, Standard Oil of N.J., Texas Corp., Du Pont, Deere, Woolworth, N.Y. Central, Southern Pacific and Loew's.

FRED E. HOUSTON NEW PRESIDENT

To Head Lake Ontario And Trent Valley Lumber Dealers

Fred E. Houston of the Houston Co., Ltd., Belleville, Ont., was elected president of the Lake Ontario and Trent Valley District retail lumber dealers at the annual meeting held at the Gilbert House, Trenton, on April 6th. There was a representative attendance, and many problems were discussed, including the building and repair outlook for the coming season. The situation is regarded as promising.

J. R. Gilmore, of Cobourg, was elected vice-president of the Association, and Randolph Bell, merchant of Trenton, the retiring president, was made secretary-treasurer.

E. F. White, of Toronto, a former presiding officer of the organization, made a message from the executive. He is also on the Board of Director of the Ontario Association. It was decided to hold meetings every two months during the year, and the next gathering will take place in Peterborough during the month of June. The assembly is to be largely attended by retail lumber and building supply men from Lindsay, Campbellford, Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton, and other points.

It is expected that under the direction of Mr. Houston and his executive, the Lake Ontario and Trent Valley Association will enjoy a successful year, marked by closer co-operation, more membership and more efficient service on the part of the association.

9 Members Compose Board in New York

Apropos of the efforts of the local Board of Education to reduce its number from 15 to the present total of 21 to 12, an interesting sidelight on the question was afforded today by the Rev. Harold Reid, former member of the Board, who has returned to the city from a visit to trip spent touring the United States.

"While in New York I was given the privilege of sitting at one of the regular meetings of the Board of Education of New York City," said Rev. Reid, "and was interested in matters I went and was privileged to sit in on their deliberations.

"I found, that for the whole City of New York the Board is composed of only nine members. It used to contain 42 members, but recently this number was reduced.

"The work was accomplished smoothly and speedily and along almost the identical lines proposed for this city of Belleville. There was a certain amount of discussion on some of the matters that came up for decision, but on the whole the business was carried off very smoothly.

"The meetings are open to the public there the same as they are here, and the public who wish to bring the attention of the Board to any matter are entirely welcome," added Mr. Reid.

POLICE BLOTTER

Four automobiles were reported stolen to local police last night and assistance given in the search for recovery. Three of the vehicles were stolen at Kingston. A Dodge sedan car bearing license plates number 23-J-81; a Reo bearing license plates number 23-J-82 and a third car license 31-J-61, all of Kingston. A 1935 coach automobile bearing license plate number D-1659, was reported stolen from Napanee last night.

A local inebriate, who had imbibed too freely and too well, found himself in the clutches of the law after he was alleged to have molested a woman. He proceeded to go into her apartment stairway on Front street. Meeting acquaintances and descriptions the man was apprehended and placed in custody. Walter Gill of Highland Grove reported the theft of a bicycle from a barn at his farm last night. Stated "it was only an old "bike" but was a serviceable", explained Mr. Ardett.

INDICATIONS POINT TO EARLY CLOSING

While all indications point to the early ending of the current maple syrup season, the invasion of some of the sap-bucketed by "millers"—a large flying moth—has yet to be seen, an appearance stated an elderly farmer from the 9th concession of Huntingdon Township today.

"We had a good run on Sunday" he said, "and the sap flowed freely which had never been tapped before and boiled into the syrup. But we have not had a drip since. Every year the millers at the close of the season fly out in the buckets for their Spring swimming parties. This year so far they have failed to put in an appearance, they're late, but I've added" a couple of small blue kfly, which bite us quite hard, but they do not affect the sap runs.

"However, if we do not get any more up this week we may as well put away our gear and wait for another year."

KINGSTON CONSTABLE IS MOVED TO CITY

PLANT MANAGER

o'clock this afternoon.

"Conferences between union workers' representatives and executive officers of General Motors of Canada, Limited, in Oshawa, Ont., yesterday have been held on several occasions since March 18, 1937. The company has expressed willingness to meet and negotiate with any group of employees whether belonging to an outside labor organization or not, any issue relative to the Oshawa plant.

"Such negotiations were indeed carried on fair and friendly spirit on both sides up to and including yesterday's conference.

"On Wednesday, March 31, the Union Workers' representatives asked for a conference to take negotiations on organizer or the International United Automobile Workers. The company rejected the request. The Ontario Minister of Labour, having called the parties into conference at Toronto and Premier Hepburn, to withdraw. Negotiations were then carried on at Toronto and later resumed at the Oshawa plant, Monday April 5.

Attitude on Demands

"The following was the position with respect to demands at the time negotiations were adjourned on Wednesday at 8:40 p.m.:

"Demand 1. Recognition and grievances. Action taken: Shop steward and plan been on file since middle of March. Management was willing to extend trial period until April 20.

"Demand 2. Eight-hour day, 40-hour week, time and a half after eight hours. Action taken: Forty-four hour week comprising four days of eight hours and a half each day, time and a half over regular day, or 44 hours offered.

"Demand 3. Seniority. Action taken: Accepted with adjustment.

"Demand 4. Adjustment of seniority system. Action taken: Definite acceptance of promise in that direction.

"Demand 5. Minimum wage. Action taken: No change in current model year promised by company.

Duration of Understanding

"Demand 6. Duration of understanding. Action taken: Offer to make an agreement with company. Sept. 1, 1937.

"Demand 7. Pay day every other Friday. Action taken: Accepted.

"Demand 8. Victory Bulletin board to be available for union notices. Action taken: Rejected.

"Demand 9. Five-minute rest period after first two hours, morning and afternoon. Action taken: Accepted.

"Demand 10. Slot vending machines for chocolate bars, etc. Action taken: "Withdrawn in favor of alternative proposal advanced by company.

"The company expressed its willingness to sign an agreement with whose committee.

"While the Union representatives' repeated proposal, namely that the company accept the terms in the understanding reached between General Motors in the United States and the U.A.W. workers, an agreement was not possible.

Canadian Finance

"Representative of the Oshawa Union had already been advised at that the Corporation's financial nature in the United States did not serve the Canadian plants, and the following letter to H. J. Carmichael Vice-President and General Manager, Oshawa, E. Wilson, Vice-President or the Corporation, Toronto, gave the status of the Canadian plant in the U.S. agreement.

"In order that there be no misunderstanding on your part, you are advised that the negotiations carried on with representatives of the United Automobile Workers, affecting the U.A.W. here which occurred, exclude the Canadian plants. Union representatives were advised that any agreement resulting from the negotiations would not be effective in Canada.

"Notwithstanding this advice, the Canadian company was at all times willing to negotiate points of the Union's demands if they had an application in to the Oshawa plant.

Says Step Drastic

"The Union workers have taken the step of calling out the plant in-spite even in the stage of discussion or adjustment. It seems clear that recognition of International jurisdiction is their chief objective. It is a question if such jurisdiction is desirable from the standpoint of Canadian labor and Canadian industry.

"So far as the company is concerned it stands ready, as it did when Wednesday's session concluded, to continue negotiations with their employees.

"Discontinuance of local plant operations at a time when activity in the payroll is at an unprecedented level. During the month of March, the payroll at the plant was $700 employees on the factory payroll was $165.32, the nearest approach to which was $163.96 in the month of May, 1929.

Average Wages

"The factory pay for March 16 to 31, which was paid out yesterday, amounted to $322,152, which is the largest amount of money to be handed out on any single pay day in the history of the Oshawa plant.

"It is interesting to note that if the total pay were divided equally among all employees, male and female, whether day workers or piece-work workers, they would each receive $87.34.

"The plant worked approximately 118 hours in the month principally for which employees in the main groups received the following:

"Male group workers $90 to $122; female group workers, $35 to $61."

On Saturday evening, Mar. 27th, about fifty nieces and nephews of Mr. Warren Reid, one of Rawdon Township's oldest residents, gathered at his home to spend with him a few happy hours celebrating his eighty-second birthday. At about 9:30 the gathering was called to order by Mr. Thos. Cranston who expressed the feelings of those present in saying that he always respected the words of cheer, advice and encouragement that Mr. Reid gave in times of need. Mr. Gilmore Reid then read the following address:

"Sine, Col., Mar. 27, 1837

"Dear Uncle Warren!

"We, a few of your nieces and nephews have met here tonight to spend a social evening with you that we may offer our sincere congratulations to you on reaching another milestone on life's journey and we hope you may be spared in good health to see many more birthdays. (It has often been said "the good die young" but as we go through life we find that this is not always true. Many good followers of our Master are given long life. You have always been found among the true and the faithful in the House of God and we know when your call comes to go Home a welcome awaits you at the Pearly Gates but we hope that day is yet far in the distance.

"As a slight token of our respect and regard we ask you to accept this Bible and as you read it will you often think of your friends and send up a prayer that we too may be worthy of the same welcome when we are called home."

Then Mr. Warren Reid spoke very touchingly on Christian welfare and related many instances of rural life of 65 and 70 years ago in this county.

The remainder of the evening was spent in readings and community singing very ably accompanied by Miss Ruby Reid with her guitar. THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Queen Elizabeth Inspects Nurses at the Middlesex Hospital

THE ROYAL ROAD TO THE CORONATION

Yesterday we saw Queen Elizabeth as an ambulance woman and noted her deep interest in all the work of the years of the great war. That her interest does not flag after 19½ is amply indicated by the picture reproduced above.

Now the world gradually right-ed itself after the fouryear catastrophe, and Elizabeth became Duchess of York—now the Queen—and her royal Glamis lost the hospital aspect it assumed when the stately pile became a haven for war-broken men, its youngest daughter swept into the whirl of society, passed through a brilliant wedding to take her place in the royal circle, and her deep sympathy still prompts to haunt men and women.

The deep sympathy of the Queen and her ardent interest in every detail that goes to alleviate that suffering is too well-known to need retelling. All England came to know and to love her while she was the humble lady of the realm and many of her public appearances were made in aid of hospitals, charitable and service clubs and similar relief organizations.

To-day's scene is an example. Her majesty—still the Duchess of York—is greeting the nurses drawn up outside the edifice when she opened the new Middlesex hospital only a few years ago. That she enjoys the task is plain to be seen, he called, is certain and that the nurses who are honored by such an important and kindly guest appreciate the visit is also clear.

The queen shares her interest in hospital work with the king, for surgeons trained to be by arduous duties, his majesty has often been present when his queen were called upon to bear, have left something of a mark upon this royal couple which reveals itself in this kindly interest.

"ALL-BRAN KEEPS ME IN SHAPE EVERY DAY"

"When I had eaten a hearty breakfast, I would feel logy. After a couple of years of this, I would have to take a laxative.

"One morning I had a dish of ALL-BRAN. Realizing it was a laxative, as it keeps me in shape every day," I said to myself. Here's direct on request).

Why not try with half-dick days, when a delicious cereal will make you feel so good? Because ALL-BRAN has vitamin B1 and bulk, moisture within the body. Then gently supplies "bulk" that softly wipes away the listlessness, the fatigue, the headaches.

Scientific tests prove this natural food is both safe and effective—works better than taking mineral medicines. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Take it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A Goal Achieved

By Stanley Cordell

Adam smiled to the girl whimsically almost pityingly. "Did you never hear the story of the dog chasing the train?" he asked.

An annoyed look came to the girl's face. But it vanished instantly, as if some indirect warning had come to her. "A dog chasing a train?" she said, "It sounds rather quaint, Adam. Is it a funny story?"

"Well," said Adam, "it all depends on which side of the fence you are." Which brought the annoyed expression into the girl's eyes once more. Suddenly he laughed. "This dog chased the train for almost five years. I guess that is funny." He looked at her intently as if trying to look beyond form's teeth, out because I heard the blueness of her eyes to what lay beneath.

"Remember," he went on, "back there in Cedarville when you were Sally Blane, the most popular girl in town, and how dissatisfied you were?"

She smiled, remembering. "Cedarville was always small" she said, "and being the most popular girl wasn't such a great honor."

"Every young man in town, worshipped you, Sally, including myself."

"I wasn't very gracious, was I? I mean, that night when you proposed and I laughed at you."

"Your refusal wasn't more than I expected, I didn't amount to much then. I didn't even have poise or self-assurance or any of the things that girls admire in young men."

Sally laughed, as if the memory of all this pleased her. "And then two years later you dropped again. You had a job and were doing well with bright prospects for the future. You also had a new suit; I remember how proud you were of it."

"And then when you finally ran away with Rus Gardener, I was miserable. It was as if the most worthwhile thing in my life had been taken away. You see, I never had any folks, and very few friends. I was lonely and unhappy. But I kept on working, trying to get ahead. Somehow I felt that some day you might be proud of me and that would make it all so worth while."

He paused but Sally made no sound of movement and a smile came to his lips. "I'd never forget how I knocked two of Andy Saf-

And then I looked you up and sally I guess you'll never know how thrilled I was when you seemed actually glad to see me. And when you told me how Rus had lost all his money and you had separated, I hated him. You were unhappy, and I determined to do everything I could to change that.

"We saw a lot of each other Sally. And for a time it was glorious, for me like the realization of a dream. I didn't mind how you took advantage of my regard for you. I was glad enough to be licked around and bullied, and laughed at because I'd never entirely got over my extraordinary, like a willing, good-natured dog I was, faithful and patient."

Sally looked at him and there was a mist in her eyes. "It's true, Sal all thats changed now. It's all behind us. I've come to realize how much of a man you are, how much you mean to me, O Adam, I do love you—more than anything."

Adam nodded. "I suppose you do. I'm convinced you do, or I wouldn't have gone to the bother of telling you the story of the dog that ran after the train. You see, when the dog caught the train, after chasing it for three or four days, he was terribly disappointed. And went home, promising himself never to do anything so foolish again."

The girl stood as one transfixed, staring wide-eyed and frightened feeling her dreams and hopes tumbling about her head. Adam had reached the door before she found her voice. She cried out once, plaintively, painfully, reaching forth her hands. But the door opened and Adam went out.

"Ticket For One"

— by —

Marie Blizard

"Dearg!" Dolly dismissed the idea. "If you call Dearg entertained at balls and cocktail parties and beating the leading debutantes around town, keep, you're right! Fortunately Judy doesn't read the society columns or she'd know better. Now, if you ask me . . . ."

"All I'll asking you for, my impetuous darling, is a story to give Judy because, if we don't get one, we're going to have her in a sanitarium instead of the opening of "Golden Mackerel" in another week."

"I'll tell you what's the matter with him. His scenes has gone to his head! He thinks he's too good for the little girl of Broadway. Haven't you noticed all the dignity he's acquired, Dignity, bosh!"

"You're not being fair, Dolly. I'm right back where I started from," Terry, we've lied to Judy for her own good and done her a lot of good but I think now the time has come to tell her the truth. Go to her and tell her to forget Johnson. Tell her if she had any brains she'd see what a stuffed shirt he's become . . . without even the instincts of a gentleman. Tell her, she's the most beautiful and promising girl on Broadway today. Tell her, if she can't see, what Talbot—the most attractive man I've ever seen—has to offer her, that there are lots of other men in the world. Tell her . . . ."

"Please mein frau," Terry made a gesture imploring of pretending to ward off blows. "Suppose you tell her? I have a feeling that she can't take it but maybe she will from you."

"Oh, no, I think you should tell her," Dolly said firmly.

"We've, both a lot of courage, hasn't we?" Terry looked at his wife.

"I have an idea, Terry . . . somehow I think if we could get Johnson to see Judy or write her a note (he probably doesn't know how to write a social letter but we could help him and explain to her that he finds that paste are too divergent and that he doesn't want to take her away from the theatre. Why then perhaps she will continue to like him, he was trying to let her down gracefully instead of . . . ."

"Sure," Terry was sceptical, "and I suppose she'd read it and laugh it off and say, 'That's that' and turn around and marry some other guy. You women make me sick, you think you know all about each other. Why I could tell you . . . ."

"You could, if I gave you a chance," Dolly said calmly, "But right now, you do as you're told. Find out what's eating him if it isn't that, he's got a swelled head and . . . ."

"Dolly, you're not going to turn dumb on me at this late date are you?"

"All right, Sherlock, what's on your mind?"

"You know what I think? I think he's just found out about the old Talbot scandal. The Tab spilled it a couple of days after he got back and I'll bet you he's washed his hands of her. You'll please note that he makes no comments in the press when the boys ask him questions about her."

"Listen, boy, untangle your arms from around your waist, in search of an ofay action, ..."

"Where might you be off to Mrs. Shannon? And you might take that apron off before you don your mink coat."

"I am going to Judy and I'm going to get Mr. Johnson to make a comment and how!"

BIRTH OF LOVE

CHAPTER THIRTY

Dolly Shannon didn't go to Judy with her advice. She wanted Judy to telephone directly to Larry and find out why he was ignoring her. Certainly she had a right to know! Was she not his affianced bride? Dolly's husband was content to pull the structure down about their ears.

"I agree with your sentiments, honey," he said to his wife, "but there are a good many more people to consider at this time.

"In the first place there's Talbot. He happens to be a fine gentleman . . . ."

"But, darling he's only . . . ."

"He's taken it once on the nose from us. And he's been quiet about the whole thing. Anyone with half an eye knows that he's heart and soul Judy's. He's spent a fortune in time and money on this new show, He's in it with Frank Mandel all. He went to Europe to get the greatest playwright in the world today to write a show for him, not as an investment but because he loves her. At a figure that would leave you dizzy, he bought this Viennese designer. He's put her in theatre for her, if she'd let him and what does he get?"

"He holds her hand when she cries for somebody else," Dolly said bitterly.

"Exactly. He's put his heart into this play and Judy's going to see it through. It's been fully-booked for months. The Theatre's sold out for weeks. There are some people (Mandel) people to be affected by her success. The cut in the show carries on' applies here if it hasn't did. Do you want to bring the whole thing tumbling down?"

"But how could it?" Dolly demanded.

"I'm not so sure that if she actually realized Larry won't see her that she'd be able to take it like a soldier. I'm afraid she'll really collapse."

"Do something!" Dolly pleaded.

Terry tried to do something. He tried to see Johnson but his counsellors others, he had no luck. Americ's boy hero was barricaded firmly behind a phalanx of reporters, lawyers and attendants.

Larry was in Washington for a few days and Terry and Dolly thanked their stars that his absence from the city gave them time to use that as an excuse for his silence to Judy.

It was the last week before Judy's long-heralded show was to open. Rehearsals did not go smoothly. Judy walked through her part like an automaton.

Marshall was frantic. He implored Shannon, as her dear friend and advisor to make her snap out of whatever ailed her. They'd all be ruined.

"Nuts!" said Terry indignantly. "How will you be ruined? You've made a fortune out of this girl's efforts to date. Talbot's putting up the dough and he only has about forty million. Trust the girl, Marshall, she's an actress. She'll come through magnificently as she always has. Leave it to me."

When he was alone, Terry wasn't so confident. If only he could fake something to make Judy get through her first night.

The show was to open on Wednesday. Rehearsals lasted late into the night on Tuesday but when it was over, for the first time in five weeks, Judy seemed to be vibrant. Her face wore an expression of new purpose, her eyes sparkled brilliantly and her voice was nervous and tense. She refused an invitation from Talbot to take her home. She was anxious to get away and go home alone.

Terry and Dolly watched her nervously. When they were at home Dolly said:

"Terry, do you mind staying up a while. I have a premonition something is going to go wrong and Judy might be called upon."

Dolly was right. It was nearly four o'clock in the morning when Judy's maid telephoned the Shannon apartment and with tears and chattering begged them to come at once. Hastily she threw on a coat and frantic haste, Terry and his wife sped to Judy's apartment.

What they expected to find, they did not dare to put in words but as the distance between their room and Judy's grew shorter, they clasped hands and muttered incoherent prayers.

Terry found Judy lying on a lounge, shaking like an aspen leaf, her eyes dark with an emotion they could not fathom.

When she saw them, she threw herself on Dolly sobbing:

"I knew it, Dolly, . . . I knew it . . . . they're keeping him from me. . . . Larry does want to see me . . . . but they won't let him."

"Come on, Judy, cut the hysterics and tell us what you're talking about." Terry said roughly.

Telephoned to him. I called him at his hotel, I knew he's here in New York because the chauffeur told me he saw him going in tonight . . . . I waited until I was sure that he would be in and then they rang . . . . instantly a man answered, it was that man Jim Byron . . . I never did like him, . . . and he said, . . . he said Larry was still in Washington and I asked him where and he said he was not at liberty to . . . . Liberty to tell me . . . I told him I was engaged to Larry and he said he didn't know anything but that he'd give any message to him for me. . . .

"What'd you tell him?" Terry and Dolly asked in one breath.

"I told him . . . . I told him where he could go!"

"Atta baby! Now, listen once more Judy. You've got a show opening tomorrow night. You're going to walk out on the stage and outplay Sarah Bernhardt, do you forget Larry tonight and tomorrow I'll come and talk to you about him. I think he got some dope."

Terry never should have gone to see Judy the next afternoon. On thinking it over, perhaps, it occurred it was the right thing to do.

Terry knew he couldn't stall any more so he tried, gently, to tell Judy that Larry was jealous of the theatre. He said one of Larry's closest advisers had told him that. It was a lie but it was gallantly told. Terry had hoped to convince Judy that she should stick with her her play for one season, give Larry the chance at the centre of attention and in time the two would find their way happily out of their problems.

"All right," said Judy wearily, "You'll have to go now. I've scarcely time to get to the theatre."

"Judith!"

The girl still dressed in a street frock and tweed coat did not look up from the newspaper before her. Then Marshall's startled voice broke the silence of her dressing-room.

"Do you realize that it's twenty-minutes to eight! My child, where have you been? Oh, it's good to be a sensation, my dear, a play such as . . . ."

"I'm not going on, Frank."

The quiet conciseness with which Judy spoke, chilled the room and brought panic to Marshall.

"What made you say that, Judy? Do you realize what you're saying?" he demanded.

"I'm not going on," she repeated. "Celeste, get my hat." Judy was deaf to Marshall, to the theatre. Her voice had an eerie quality.

"What does this mean, Judy? I demand an answer."

"I'm sorry, Frank. Please believe I am sorry but I'm not going on. Where Patrick has been understanding me. She can carry it. I'm through." Judy was searching in a drawer for something. . . . "Tonight Larry Johnson is taking off from Croydon Field for the West coast. I'm going to see him before he goes. That's more important to me than this. I am determined to see him."

"Celeste, leave us for a moment, please," Marshall thought fast and with desperation. He knew that the trip to the flying field would avail her nothing. He knew the moment had come from which Judy would emerge richer by far in character . . . or ruined.

Marshall pleaded with her. He reminded her of how he had given her her first part. He told her of all the people of the theatre who were dependent on her. Judy was deaf to all he had to say.

She was going now! Marshall cast all discretion aside. He must save his show!

"One minute, Judy," his voice commanded her attention, "You are without gratitude to your public, without responsibility towards others dependent on you . . . for that I will not forgive you and because of that I will not spare you . . . ."

"Not spare me?" Judy brought her eyes to his in bewilderment.

"NO. Selfishly you would have out of this theatre tonight leaving behind . . . whatever may happen. What of John Talbot? What of the man who sacrificed his reputation and now his remaining fortune for you? Are you going to let him down?"

"What are you saying, Franklin!" Judy's cry was not for herself.

"Why did I make a star of you? Because you were John Talbot's girl!"

"I wasn't," Judy murmured through white lips.

"I know now but the world thought you were. That's your first debt to him but now there is a greater one . . . Talbot is nearly ruined, Marshall told her, he's got thousands of dollars into this show. And you're quitting him. Think it over!"

Then he left her. Alone. Slowly Judy sank down and slipped off her coat. She stared at the girl in the mirror as her fingers dipped into the cold cream. And as she spread it over her face, she continued—with eyes opened now and Truth tearing the veils from her heart—to stare into the glass. She saw not her own reflection but the face of Lars Johnson and John Talbot and Dolly and Terry and all of them eyes.

Something died within her and something beautiful was born.

The swelling notes of the overture faded to silence and stillness fell on the theatre. Judith James opened her dressing-room door and moved toward the stage.

John Talbot stood in the wings. For an instant she stood before him.

"You stayed with the show." He said it.

"NO," she answered, "I stayed with you . . . . my very dearest."

PLANE VICTIMS CARRIED OUT ON ASPEN BRANCHES

Tortuous Seven Mile Journey to Plane Caused Searchers' Exhaustion

A TWISTED MESS

Fragments of Steel Are Scattered Over 50 Yard Area

McNary, Ariz., Apr. 8 (AP)—Litters of aspen branches were fashioned today for eight charred bodies by shivering men who stood guard all night on the mountainside where a luxurious 21-passenger sky liner crashed into the snow and burned.

Undertakers began the task of placing the victims, two women and six men, on sleds and bringing them down—a tortuous seven-mile journey over steep hills, down snow-clogged ravines and across rushing streams which caused many of a searching party of forty to drop exhausted.

G. A. Cole, an official of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation which built the plane, said the removal could not be completed before nightfall and may require two days.

The sight of twisted metal and death which greeted the searchers and the ordeals they underwent on the way were described by Jack Lefler, a member of the party.

Sparkling remnants of that luxurious airliner were us up the mountainside to the summit of the White mountains," he said.

"There we stumbled upon fragments of steel scattered over a 50-yard area. The battered nose and burned cabin of the plane were buried six feet deep in the snow—a grave eaten into the frozen mass by fire.

"In the cabin, unburned portions of the pilot's and co-pilot's bodies remained strapped in their seats. The six others, charred beyond recognition, were buried beneath the hull.

"A heap of almost unharmed baggage sprawled across the drifts of snow. It was the only thing there that was not debris."

Bronze Crackle is First Sign of Spring In Ottawa Capital

By MARGARET BRUCE

Ottawa, Apr. 8 (CP)—Spring came to this capital today with a little bronze grackle, the first of Dr. Ralph E. DeLury's banded birds to revisit his garden this year on the annual trip north.

Dr. DeLury, a noted astronomer started his bird-banding in 1921 at his home near the experimental farm here. Since then 120 different species of birds have visited his garden. Almost half the China list which numbers 250, including all water birds which are not on Dr. DeLury's list.

"Your ticket of admission to the bird world is food," says Dr. DeLury. "Sunflower, hemp and millet seeds, crushed grains, bread, fruits, suet and suet and a pond will attract the residents and migrating birds to the banding station. Make the garden attractive to them with marsh plants and floating water, bathing places a corner with dead leaves and sticks and wild woods flowers and patches of green lawn."

Wire Cages Used.

Wire cages with openings in the top for capturing the bird for banding, and drop doors that can be lowered by a string when the bird has entered are used by Dr. DeLury in his banding operations.

"April and May are the best times for bird banding. Then you get the migrating birds on their way north. The male birds arrive first in most species, and the females follow a few days later.

"The red breasted robins and the tawny song sparrows are usually the first guest," said Dr. DeLury. "The fox sparrow and the slate colored juncos with their pretty whistling whistle may come next, and later, but not until May, the white-throated sparrows, the chipping sparrows and the white-crowned sparrows.

"About the middle of May, after a night flight, the rose-breasted grosbeak will arrive, and that same month will bring an avalanche of warblers, chickbirds, orioles, nighthawks, flycatchers and thrushes."

BRITISH STATESMAN VACATIONS FOLLOWING ILLNESS

Following his recent severe ill- nes, Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer and rumored next prime minister, took a few weeks out from official duties for a quiet vacation at his home, Castle Forbes, Strathdon, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. He, is pictured "on a money bank" tying a fly to cast, prior to a bit or trout fishing.

FLOODS HARASS ONTARIO TOWNS AS ICE JAMS BLOCK RIVERS

Blocked by thick floes of ice, Ontario rivers overflowed their banks as melting snow and ice turned normally small streams into swiftly moving rivers. The Rideau River at Ottawa was one of the first to go rampant and witness in nearby Eastview were forced to move to the second stories of their homes; North Bay, Ontario, also witnessed flood scenes when the Chippewa Creek overflowed its banks. No loss of life was reported though two men were seriously injured while dynamiting the river ice at Eastview, Fire Chief Adelard Lemue of Eastview, though blinded by the blast, reached out and saved the injured workman from possible drowning. Shown in TOP photograph is a portion of the ice jam at Eastview while a home at North Bay, isolated by rising water with its residents forced to seek higher and dryer ground, is pictured BELOW.

national union," he added. "We are going to peacefully picket the factor. Not a workman will pass the gates after 7:01. Our union stewards will police the picket line and no drunks will be allowed on it. It will be as efficient, however, as General Motors assembly line."

The walkout came on the day following the biggest pay day in the firm's history here. A total of $232,-53 was paid to the 3,700 workers yesterday for a weeks' work.

Negotiations Attempted.

The C.I.O. organizer in his strike statement maintained peaceful negotiations were attempted by the workers "but we never knew where we were at".

"We are just simply through fooling around," he said.

Negotiations broke up on two points—the union demand the company recognize the international union and approve the agreement reached in General Motors plants in Detroit.

Employees ask a 40-hour week, time-and-a-half for overtime work; seniority rights and establishment of a grievance committee.

Company representatives stood firmly against recognizing the international body and implementing the Detroit agreement. They agreed to sign with a local employees' union but opposed the international idea because of affiliation with the C.I.O.

After yesterday's four-hour conference with the company, union stewards met to consider the situation. It was decided the bargaining committee talks with General Motors officials were unsatisfactory and demanded an immediate strike.

Conferences For Week.

Since last Thursday conferences between company officials, union men and government representatives have been underway. Thompson's presence on the negotiating committee was objected to by James B. Highfield, plant general manager, who refused to confer with outsiders. Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Labor, arranged a meeting at Toronto through the efforts of Louis B. Pine, inspector under the Industrial Standards Act.

At the Queen's Park conferences agreement was reached that Thompson withdraw to an advisory capacity and the zone shifted to Oshawa where negotiations resumed on Monday. Each afternoon the conferees met but union recognition and Detroit agreements wrecked the parleys.

With Mr. Highfield, Col. Frank Chappell, head of General Motors Industrial and Public Relations Department, represented the firm during discussions.

Seven For Employees.

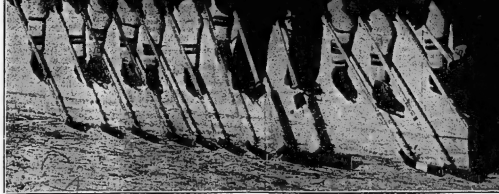
On the employees' bargaining committee were C. H. Millard, local union head; Miss Gertrude Gilliard, C. E. Bathe, George Day, William Walker, Patrick Murphy and Frank Palmer. Millard took Thompson's place when the C.I.O. man's presence disrupted negotiations.

On the night of March 30 labor troubles first reared its head earnestly. Thompson delivered a strike ultimatum to the firm. Conversations around the table followed but the men returned to work the next day while Mr. Pine met with workers and company officials, the Toronto meetings following.

Throughout negotiations, Millard claimed last night, General Motors officials one day frowned upon an international agreement and the next day favored it.

Agreement tonight was only a general one, it was maintained. It would hamper the company in no manner. Thompson declared the union did not intend to dictate wages.

Little Benny's Note Book



My sister Gladdis and Harvey came around last nite and me and Gladdis started to talk about who was the best acter in the movies, may saying, People can say what they please till they're black in the face, but I'll stick to my opinion, I think Ronnel Ronnell has everything.

Give me Pierre Sondrew and you can have all the rest with Ronnel Ronnell thrown in for a bonus, Gladdis said. His little French accent just by itself would be enough, but how about those eyes, and how about that cerrain manner? she said and me said, He's effected, that's the long and short of Pierre Sandrew, but Ronnel Ronnell is a man's man from the toes down, and that's what makes him so attractive to women, strangely and naturely enough.

That reminds me, Harvey pop said. Who would you say was the best child actress, Bubbles Berd or Bluebell Kelly? he said, and Harvey said, Why Bubbles Bird is so superior there's no room for comparison. Bubbles Bird has 13 dimples by actual count, and she can give each one a different meaning at the same time, he said.

You must be counting the 4 dimples on her knees, he said. Bluebell Kelly has 16 dimples in her face alone, and that's what counts in serious art. Child actress on the screen can cry real tears like Bubbles When they cry roll down her little face at full speed, they melt beards of artichoke, he said, and Harvey said, Maybe so, but Buebell Kelly has a much broader face that holds twice as many tears and sometimes when she smiles etc in the middle of a cloudburst she's been said to create an authentic rainbow.

Is this going to be an evening at full throttle, Sudbury Tigers, of bridge or a minatrel show? Gladdis said. Pleased with your choice, said, and ma said to pop, Will-ready to engage North Battleford for the senior hockey honors of Canada. The men from Northern Ontario have swept aside all competitors in their drive to the Eastern Canadian championship and intend becoming Dominion champions—if Beavers don't object too strenuously. The team is an "all-star" aggregation, collected from different parts of the Dominion.

Piles Go Quick

With Dr. Leonhardt's Prescription

Many sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have found out that quick relief can be had with an internal remedy.

The circulation of blood in the lower bowel is the cause of piles. The veins are congested and flabby, the bowel is weak, and that is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used. HEM-ROID stimulates the circulation, relieves the pressure and in this way the veins get back to normal and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. O. Leonhardt, who spent several years of his professional life in finding the cause of piles and the medicine that would relieve them. It is sold under a money back guarantee. It holds to correct the cause.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, if you want to try HEM-ROID, you have our promise to give you back your money if you do not find quick relief. You have nothing to lose but pain.

J. S. McKee and any druggist can supply you.

'G M' ADAMANT IN REFUSING TO DEAL WITH C.I.O.

Company is Challenged To Open Gates at Plant, By C. I. O. Organizer

Also Defies Premier to Send Extra Police Into Oshawa

MAYOR HALL ACTIVE

Declares He Will Not Take Sides But Will Maintain Order

Oshawa, Ont., April 8—(CP)—First attempt to resume operations at the strike-paralyzed General Motors plant here was planned for tomorrow when company officials said the parts department would be opened for business.

The parts building was picketed today by a small group of strikers but Hugh Thompson, committee for industrial organization leader in charge of union activities, said decision would be made later on whether strikers would permit reopening of business in the parts department.

"We have made an agreement with General Motors that parts necessary for ambulances, trucks, milk trucks and other utilities' transport machinery be loaded from the plant without interference," Thompson said. This does not cover parts for chasseis."

Is Crisis Near?

Whether a crisis in the walkout, which went into effect yesterday when 2,700 workers left the plant, would be reached tomorrow appeared likely depend upon the decision of the strike committee.

Oshawa, Ont., Apr. 9 (CP)—Strike leaders at the plant of General Motors of Canada plant entered its second 24 hours today, an impasse over the C.I.O. issue more pronounced.

As fresh pickets moved into the lines before the company's workshops there was no indication negotiations would be resumed. In nearby Toronto 300 police were ready to hurry to Oshawa should trouble arise.

Along with Premier Mitchell Hepburn's stand the government concurs in the attitude of the company, General Motors remained adamant in its position that the committee for industrial organization would not be dealt with.

Series of Developments.

Hugh Thompson, organizer for the organization that John L. Lewis built up in the United States, proclaimed the strikers stood by their demand for recognition of their union as the United Automobile Workers of America, affiliated with the C.I.O.

From the time the men walked from the plant yesterday there was a rapid series of developments.

15,000 TROOPS NEARLY CUT OFF

Franco's Army in Cordoba Province in a Bag Way

Madrid, April 9.—(AP)—A semicircular trap of men and war machines was all but closed on General Franco's Cordoba Province army of 15,000, it was reported today.

The position of the Insurgent force, behind the Government has termed largely Italian, and considered as growing rapidly precarious in the face of continued government advances.

The Madrid-Valencia front, located only two or three miles at each end of a 30-mile stretch of the Cordoba-Valencia highway is said to complete the bottling up of Franco's army, estimated less than a fortnight ago at Pozoblanco, gateway to a rich Mercury-mining region.

The town of Hinojosa del Duque, at the southeastern end of the highway front; Pozoblanco, at the northwestern tip, and Fuente-Ovejuna, about midway in the southwest of Pozoblanco, were the immediate Government objective.

Capture of these towns would leave the Insurgents no way of escape except by retreating into the Mountains south of the highway.

Villaharta's capitulation would sever the Insurgent supply line from Cordoba City, 40 miles northeast.

Reports from Bilbao, capital of the Basque Government in Northern Spain, asserted Air Bombing had started counter-attacks on General Emilio Mola's advancing Insurgent army. There were no further details.

WORK AS USUAL

St. Catharines, Ont., April 9 — (CP)—Work went on as usual at the McKinnon Steel Plant of General Motors here this morning. A union meeting is being held tonight when a vote will be taken on whether to join the strike at the Oshawa plant.

HEPBURN CHARGES PAID AGITATORS IN OSHAWA STRIKE

H. J. Carmichael Claims Pickets Have Committed Illegal Acts

Toronto, Apr. 9 (CP)—Showdown in the Oshawa strike of General Motors workers will come tomorrow or Sunday when the company attempts to ship parts from the plant, Premier Mitchell Hepburn predicted today.

"I think they will want to be moved tomorrow or the next day," the premier, whose determination to throw his government's support behind the company is unconcealed, declared. "That is when the showdown will come."

Lead by Harry Carmichael, Industrial Standards Officer, was told yesterday by Hugh Thompson, Canadian Director of Industrial Organization Reisicant and organizer of the Oshawa strike, that strikers would prevent moving of parts from the factory, Premier Hepburn said.

"That, of course, would be illegal and if the company wants to ship parts they will get all the protection from this government that they require," he said.

Toronto, Apr. 9 (CP)—Invasion of Ontario industry by paid agitators will be protested by every resource at the Ontario government's command, Premier Hepburn following start of the General Motors strike at Oshawa, declared today. Hepburn stressed his administration's determination to fight "these agitators".

"We know what these agitators are up to," he said last night. "We were advised only a few hours ago that they are working their way into the lumber camps, the pulp mills and the mines. Well, that shall have to stop—and we are going to stop it. If necessary we'll rise an army to do so."

His pronouncement was opposed to domination by "professional labor profiteers from the United States." Mr. Hepburn foresaw an immediate showdown.

"Five strike resources of this province will be utilized, if the occasion warrants, to prevent anything in this province resembling what is now taking place at the present time across the line. Labor to Hell are no part of constituted authority to take adequate action!"

Boat Works at Brockville Burns

Brockville, Ont., Apr. 9 (CP)—A two-storey frame building on the west-end property of Hall, Russell & Lachapelle's Boat Works and at one time headquarters of the Bohemian Canoe Club was destroyed by fire of unknown origin early today, together with two speed launches, formerly owned by Nathan Lennox and Mrs. W. Tunieck. Damage was done to the extent of $1,000, said by Dr. J. W. Sheridan.

Three motorboats and some rowboats and canoes were also lost along with camping equipment and other supplies.

Novel Cold Air Treatment Saves Hundreds of Children

Faces of Those Suffering From Primary Pneumonia Exposed

NO CHILLING

By EDWIN JOHNSON

London, Apr. 9 (CP) — Lives of hundreds of children suffering from primary pneumonia in Britain are reported to have been saved by a novel cold air treatment introduced by Dr. H. S. Wallace, of the Northern Hospital for Sick Children.

Writing in the current issue of the British Medical Journal, Dr. Wallace says:

"During recent years it has been the practice in one of the wards of the hospital to submit every case of pneumonia on admission to an intensive open-air regime.

In All Seasons.

"This is carried out irrespective of the season of the year or of weather conditions, with one exception of fog, each child being placed on the windward side of the ward beside a widely opened window so that the cold air may flow directly on the child's face."

An essential precaution, it is pointed out, is that the patient should be warmly clad to prevent chilling, the head being the only part of the body exposed to the air. All cases are treated in this manner, night and day and night, until the temperature falls and remains at a normal level.

Tested In Summer.

Dr. Wallace says this rigorous method of treatment has been successfully tested in more than 300 cases.

The impression of physicians and nurses attached to the ward, he writes, is that exposure to a moving current of cold air is the means of saving lives in children of all ages suffering with acute primary forms of the disease. It brings comfort to the patient, aids appetite and helps to render unnecessary other forms of treatment which might prove exhausting to a young child.

4 BURLESQUERS FOUND GUILTY

Deny Participation in Nude Act on New York Stage

New York, Apr. 9 (AP)—John S. Sumner, chief of city vice squad, labors toward making this community of 7,000,000 souls more conscious of the better things in life, achieved another objective today and as a result the burlesque queen at 125th street are going about their work in a less robust fashion.

Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, spoke of charges of indecency against a theatre on the feathering edge of Harlem and successfully convinced management from presentation of what is known in certain commercial circles as art.

He visited the theatre, he testified, and from a stage box watched a young woman divests herself of all her clothing save a few strategic items which, withal, "fluttered" as she performed.

Moreover, he went on, this performer and three who followed her were as certain dancers during their appearances entirely bereft of garments.

The prosecution rested. From a counsel table was produced a cardboard box. As Presiding Justice Jacobs looked on, the defence produced a large assortment of the articles described delicately as the "basic" wear worn by the girls in question.

One by one, performer-waitresses told the court they never, never had been or participated in a nude act on the theatre's stage.

The court reserved for the prosecution, and fixed April 16 as the date for sentence.

Made Two Fortunes Dies at 100 Years

St. Edouard de Napierville, Que., Apr. 9 (CP)—Century-old Leopold Dorais, who made and lost a western mining fortune and then recouped a fond hope, a retired farmer, died just 100 years old, he died yesterday at the home of a daughter.

It was almost by chance that he went west from his Sorel, Que., birthplace as a prospector. After acquiring a sizable fortune in the North-west Territories, he came back and sank it all in tin mines in Bolivia. It was gone, he went back west and built up another fortune, which kept him for the rest of his life on a farm.

RADIOCASTERS ESCAPE

Windsor, Ont., April 9—(CP)—Crackamen who attempted to open the safe in the office of the Riverside Gas and Coke Company early today escaped after a chase in which a car driven by a companion sped of 85 miles an hour.

The chase ended on Windsor's main street, when the quarry was lost in traffic. The number of the car was taken and an arrest was expected.

Although the company safe was battered the steel door did not yield. Both the dial knob and the door handle had been knocked off by hammer blows and the hinges were warped out of alignment.

SIX INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSION

125 Women Imperilled But Removed Safely From Building

Detroit, Apr. 9 (AP)—An explosion, reported the first floor of the building housing C. E. Jamieson and Co., manufacturing chemists, this morning, injured at least six persons and imperilling 125 women employees.

C. E. Jamieson, president, estimated the damage at $250,000. He said the cause of the explosion was a mystery.

The injured included: Ray Newton, 32, chemical engineer, so severely burned that attendants said he might die; Jess Singleton, 46; Thomas Gonella, 27; John Sandusky, 24; Lawrence Hall, and Cecil Flynn, suffering from burns and shock.

TENTS ERECTED FOR PICKETERS

Quiet is Maintained by Men And Women Strikers at Oshawa

Oshawa, Ont., Apr. 9 (CP)—Tents were erected at a dozen points during the night by the C.I.O. committee for picketing strikers at the plant here of General Motors of Canada, Ltd.

The tents were rented from an Oshawa dealer and placed on municipal property. In some cases they were attached to the fence surrounding the plant.

Quiet was maintained today by men and women strikers who walked in circles and stood in front of more than a dozen gates. In some cases their four hours of duty was but one stand, in others there were as many as half a dozen.

Sandwiches and Coffee.

Sandwiches and coffee were supplied to each shift of picketers who are on duty for stretches of four hours. Police car patrols of the provincial police patrolled all picket points. Suggestions from those on duty, from other union members and from union executives were given the right of way to talk and passed on for execution.

Beverage rooms, liquor store and beer warehouse remained closed today on order of the Ontario Liquor Control Board. The union had suggested to the government early yesterday that the rooms be closed. Hotel proprietors were prohibited from selling strong beer in rooms to registered guests.

C.C.F. Leader Assails Hepburn's Attitude In Strike Situation

Liberals Object to Words of Woodsworth on Hepburn

LAPOINTE SPEAKS

Disorder And Illegality Foreign as Weapon in Canada

Ottawa, Apr. 9 (CP)—Services of the Dominion Labor Department will be available immediately to assist in a settlement of the Oshawa motor strike, Labor Minister Norman Rogers told the House of Commons today.

At the same time Justice Minister Lapointe revealed he had sent Mounted Police to Toronto after two telephone calls and a telegram from Premier Hepburn.

C.C.F. Leader Woodsworth spoke on the situation in Oshawa.

Mr. Hepburn had said violence was expected at any minute and at that time he had been told officials of the company had been forcibly prevented from entering their own offices, said Mr. Lapointe.

After reading a telegram received from Premier Hepburn requesting Mounted Police assistance, Mr. Lapointe said the action would have been taken had the request come from any other province.

Duty to Lend Assistance.

It was the duty of the Dominion to lend assistance when requested and unless the necessity arose for enforcing the law the Dominion Police would not intervene.

Mr. Lapointe said he was pleased to hear Mr. Woodsworth's assurance the violence of the laws of Canada was contemplated at Oshawa.

"I hope both labor and employers will adhere to the word that disorder and illegality will never be used as an industrial weapon in Canada," said Mr. Lapointe.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said the Premier had not definitely lined the Ontario government's attitude in the matter.

In the railway wage dispute a peaceful settlement had been negotiated with American unions, he said, was no reason the C.I.O.'s efforts to organize the hitherto unorganized automobile workers should cause objection.

C.C.F. Leader Speaks.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, took exception to the action of the House of Commons to "the grave situation that has developed in Oshawa" and to adjourn the House in order to discuss the Oshawa motor strike and the Canadian attitude to the Spanish crisis.

Mr. Woodsworth said the Oshawa strike situation was sufficiently dangerous to warrant discussion now.

18 Furniture Men Strike at Hanover

Hanover, Ont., April 9.—(CP)—Approximately 180 employees from two furniture companies here were out on strike today in this Grey County town about 40 miles south of Owen Sound, Ont.

Nearly 100 workers at the Peppler Brothers Furniture Company walked out yesterday, joining about 80 employees of the Spetar Furniture Company who struck Wednesday.

Workers quit at the Spetar plant because of failure of the company to recognize their shop committee.

Peppler's walkout followed a demand made at the Peppler plant, although it is understood the strike was over a "wage matter".

There has been no disorders".

For the country as a whole the greatest number is in July. As they occur more often in relation to hot weather, they are most frequent in the afternoon from one to seven o'clock, partial consumption of hot, humid air is most intense.

Mountain Music Does Not Win Prize in Orchestra Program

'Children' Says Goossens 'Display Fine Intelligence'

SUGGESTION PROGRAM

Cincinnati, Apr. 9 (AP)—Sorry, Conductor Eugene Goossens of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra said today, but the orchestra will be unable to play "mountain music" or swing tunes on a request program next Tuesday.

Seeking to satisfy as many concert-goers as possible, the youthful British-born maestro announced the final program in a young people's series would be arranged entirely from suggestions. Some 1,500 programs were suspended.

Among the musical requests included one for "mountain music", another for "The Evening Star by Tannhauser", and one for "Boogie Woogie Jack Benny".

"But on the whole," smiled Goossens, "the children have displayed a fine intelligence and understanding of the symphonic type of music."

The winning numbers, he said, are: "The Swan," by Saint Saens; "Peer Gynt Suite," by Grieg; Percy Grainger's "Country Gardens", and Sir Edward Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

CITY DRUGGISTS HOLD MEETING

With several important matters docketed for discussion, the Belleville Retail Druggists Association met in the Y.M.C.A. this morning. A large attendance attended the meeting, it is stated.

JUNK BUSINESS IS ON INCREASE

The junk business is beginning to assume the proportions of an epidemic. The city dump, are being gone over very carefully by the potential junk "business men", and anything of a valuable nature is being rescued from the scrap heap or trash. An enterprising duo of youngsters hauled their wagon down to the rear of a city hardware store yesterday, and proceeded to take on a cargo of it was thought, broken grate bars and other pieces of junk, which were lying near the back door. While the owners of the store do not know how many loads were taken away, they issued a stern warning to the depression busters to leave their property alone. This morning upon going to the store, owners discovered their yard as clean as a whistle.

TOWN LINE ROAD IN BAD CONDITION

Farmers residing along the old "Belleville Road" now known as the town line, are finding it very difficult to get their produce to Belleville are up in arms regarding the condition of the road. Recent rains have reduced this highway into a mass of waterlogged and deep ruts. Petitions are being formed, which will be sent to the Prince Edward County Council, in an effort to have the condition remedied.

JUVENILE BUILDS A SMART TRAILER

The trailer influenza has spread to the ranks of the juveniles of this city, and following the latest fad, have been busily engaged with hammer and saw creating creditable replicas of the larger trailers, on wheels now touring the highway.

One of the better constructed efforts in this direction was observed on East Bridge Street early last week. Complete to the last detail of curtained windows, tiny bunks and cabinets within and neatly painted in brown colors, the miniature trailer, mounted on rubber baby buggy wheels, was drawn by a large and apathetic dog who plodded slowly along.

The proud owner of the tiny trailer was just large enough to provide room for one small occupant at a time. He peered from the rear open door as his chum guided the vehicle along.

Taking his life in his hands, Ray Calver, of Bath, Ont., made the hazardous trip across the dangerous ice of the North Channel to transport a casket to Amherst Island.

The casket was urgently needed for a funeral, and Calver dragged it over treacherous ice fields on a handsleigh, making the journey without mishap.

DEMAND FOR SEED HEAVIEST IN YEARS

The coming year will be a "potato year" in this district, with a consequent drop in prices of this commodity owing to an expected surplus, it is indicated by the large amount of seed potatoes already being purchased by farmers of the district from local supply houses.

Seed potatoes, imported in large quantities from the Maritimes at the present are in keen demand, selling readily for prices ranging from $2.25 to $2.50 per bag for the registered variety. Forage crops will also abound for heavy acreage this year due to the scarcity of feed in the district during the past winter, it is reported by dealers who declare the demand for seed a heavy one, particularly clover and alfalfa.

WOOD SALVAGERS ARE BUSY AT BAY FRONT

Wood salvagers, working in the lower harbor during the past week with the aid of fast-moving motor boats and long-pike poles have been reaping a rich harvest this spring of firewood, washed down the river by heavy currents of winter. Washed on the shores of the bay and held in heaps in the reeds of the marshes, trees, logs, small logs, tree stumps and planks, and even broken furniture provide a bonanza for the unemployed. One instance a solid truck load of firewood was rescued by the man to show for a morning's work.

LICENCE GIVEN 62-YR-OLD MAN

Only Holds Beginner's Permit But Is Driving Alone

Joseph Sero, 62-year-old Tyendinaga township, appeared in the local police court, held before Magistrate M. J. Butler, K.C., today, in possession of a beginner's driver's license, but was charged with operating an automobile unless first having obtained an operator's license.

Before Sero was asked to plead, however, R. C. Donnan, K.C., Consulting Counsel, objected to the proceedings. "Under the circumstances," he said, "the charge should be changed to failing to produce." Sero's counsel, Constable Jack A. Bennett of Point Anne who apprehended the accused in driving alone with only a beginner's license agreed and Sero was given two weeks in which to take the five dollar fine and costs amounting to $10.65 in all.

Constable Bennett intimated all the accused man's licenses should be cancelled, however but that can't be done under this particular charge" replied Mr. Donnan.

In camera and behind closed doors Vernon Watt, Thurlow, appeared charged with assaulting his wife. The accused pleaded not guilty. Mrs. Watt stated that her husband slapped her face and kicked her on the leg." Watt, in defence, stated his wife has thrown a salt shaker at him while he held their eight-months old baby in his arms and he had only pushed her aside.

"It looks as though there has been a slight case of common assault, but these people have been in trouble before and we cannot seem to straighten out their difficulties. I suggest they separate and live apart. Can you make arrangements for a separation?" His worship asked. S. L. Howell, solicitor for the accused. "I believe Mr. Donnan and Mr. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society and I can get together on the matter and iron this trouble out," replied Mr. Howell.

"I'll postpone my judgment in the matter for a few weeks, see what you can do in the matter."

Watt pleaded guilty and pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. The conventional fine was paid.

SMALL PAN FISH START TO BITE

Fishing Season Near Government Dock Already Started

Sun-fish, perch and other small pan fish are biting again off the wharves and piles of the waterfront and some anglers, both amateur and fisherman, bamboo poles on shoulder has commenced. Catches have been fair, according to reports as far, as yet, the particular choice of those, who brave the chill morning and evening winds to sit and angle patiently—the succulent muskeis, have been few and far between. Only the hoop net owners report success in this direction.

In the nearby marshes, for some reason, that has not been clearly explained by the local - fish-wise, husky pits of all sizes have been tenanting the finny tribe since the past week, and waterfront residents, braving the cold water and slippery mud bottoms have been lucking the fish with nothing more omplex in the way of angling equipment than sous cloth.

At night, like glow worms, along the government wharf, the fire of the lanterns glow as blanket wrapped fishermen sit patiently waiting with monotonous regularity into the ice cold water. Bass, perch, cod, pike, sun-fish and assorted finny varieties reward them for their evening's work.

RELIEF WORKERS GIVE FULL TIME

No Thought of Shirking, Receiving Only Shelter For Labor

Relief workers of this city accept their allotted daily stint of city labor without question. In return for vouchers received and distinguish themselves by prompt application to the job throughout the day. No longer is there any thought of shirking the task or loafing on the watchful eye of the boss or foreman. It's not the style any more to try and avoid work or "soldier" while on the job.

These are days, a few impressions of officials of the public works department who are daily confronted with the task of finding work for the relief men, and who are familiar with the job, our experience has been that they put in a full day's work. But there have been a few and one or two who are proverbially notorious in their effort to get out of work. But these men have been singled out and are well known to relief department, who haven't even the sympathy of the rest of the fellows with whom they work."

SHORT COURSE HELD ON RESERVE

Interest in Agriculture Intensified by Course at Council House

Under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, an agricultural short course has been in progress for two weeks at the Council House on the Mohawk Reserve and today it was brought to a close. Mr. H. Bersmith of London was in charge and he was certainly the right man in the right place. Children living on the Reserve attended in large numbers and evidenced much interest in the course. With pencil and note books they made notes of the lectures and demonstrations given and no doubt beneficial results will follow. Not only the girls and boys attended but many parents were interested spectators. Every day was a red letter day in the course. Mr. J. Wilson of Stirling, agricultural representative of Hastings County was the principal speaker and at both the morning and afternoon sessions gave addresses which were both pleasing and instructive in their nature. In the afternoon his talk was chiefly about seeds, their germination and care for the same. Upon a blackboard, he gave instructions which were noted by the boys present. In an adjacent building the girls were assembled and they were given instructions as to their duties by competent speakers. Also in the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Pringle, the Anglican rector spoke to the Reserve women and girls on the boys a practical and well studied address his subject being "Home" which he emphasized in its various phases. Wisdom should be said he chosen for the home, happiness and friendship. The audience which had been imported during the course would no doubt remark in good to all who had attended. At the close of the gathering a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Wilson for instructions imparted and was appropriately acknowledged.

AQUA VITAE

Why let that stomach, gallbladder or intestinal condition destroy your vital force and steadily your health! If you have indigestion, acid, sour, gassy stomach and intestines, these are very definite symptoms that there is something radically wrong with the proper functioning of these organs and if not corrected usually leads to serious trouble sooner or later.

Do not go on calling your trouble indigestion, dyspepsia, etc., until it is too late. Many many people do, until the real cause of their trouble has progressed to such a stage, that a serious operation is indicated and even then the damage has been done that cannot be repaired. Take something that will remove the cause and thereby relieve the symptoms. Give AQUA VITAE a fair trial in each conditional case and you will altogether likely be pleased with the results as very many users already have. AQUA VITAE not only relieves your stomach and contains many of the essential minerals in the COLLOIDAL STATE, which is Nature's material for restoring and maintaining health. Once the cause has been removed your indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, low vitality and numerous other conditions will aright themselves.

Do not let anyone tell you that all mineral waters are alike and that one is just as good as another. If such be the case, then you might as well say that all medicines are alike for a medicine or a mineral water is what it is, because of the ingredients which they contain. We know of no other mineral water equal to AQUA VITAE that contains its minerals in the COLLOIDAL STATE, the only form in which they can be assimilated by our bodies to any degree.

Make sure you get AQUA VITAE and avoid disappointment. Get one of our pamphlets and therein you will learn why AQUA VITAE is of so much significance and of rare value in the prevention of health and the conservation of life generally.

Hen Owners Disgusted With Price of Eggs

Hen houses are being rapidly emptied on farms through this section at the present time as owners of flocks are disgusted with the low prices of eggs which have dropped to a point where they no longer pay for the feed bend to the task of killing off all excess poultry. High prices for eggs will be the inevitable result next year it was pointed out by cale farmer breeder and poultry man today.

"Only the specialists who can devote their full time to caring for chicken flocks are still in the business, and they are existing on a very close margin at the present time. However, they're holding on as long as they can with the expectation of a rise in price of eggs very soon. However, the old barn yard type of biddy is disappearing rapidly. Few farmers can afford to feed her and sell eggs at 15 and 17 cents a dozen. They're being killed off wholesale, and sold as 'cold storage buyers,' explained the informant.

LADIES MUST LIVE

CHAPTER ONE

"I went down to Lotsland yesterday" said Anne Lee suddenly.

She and Irene Ives, her roommate, were busy in their own hot, tiny kitchen. It was Sunday morning, and leisurely preparations for breakfast were going forward. Both girls were pajamas and both smoked as they worked. Anne was capping mushrooms for a Spanish omelet while Irene gently seasoned cool, green balls from the halves of a honeydew melon. The older girl turned as Anne spoke, a frown crushing her forehead.

"Personally, I decline to turn Dancehall Lady because you got a job being hostess in a ten-cent dance hall," Irene replied coldly, in the tone of one who has argued the same subject many times.

"Do you think I should sit back forever and practice scales - while my bank balance dwindles to nothing just because of a silly prejudice?"

"I get fifty a week," Irene remarked in the tone she'd used before. "That should be plenty for two girls."

"It's your fifty, not mine," Anne pointed out, with a proud lift of her sub-blond head.

"Look here." Irene tucked the melon into the ice box to chill and then perched herself on the shelf that Anne was using for a kitchen cabinet. "Look here," she said again. "What is David going to say about your dancing with every cheap John who comes along with a dime in his pocket?"

Anne blushed.

"David hasn't anything to say about it," she responded stiffly. "It's nobody of my own affair. I could get anything else to do I'd jump at it, but you know how hard I've tried. Lotsland is simply my last chance, and I'm taking it," she ended, her cheeks bright red, her eyes sober. "I've got to take it, Irene. I've nothing left in the bank —nothing at all. I don't know where the money's gone, but it's has gone."

"You're 28, aren't you, Anne?" Irene observed with her usual irritating bluntness. At the other's nod, she said, "and do the next few years you expect to get married, don't you?"

"Why—yes, I suppose so." The blue eyes were puzzled and wickedful.

"Tell me, Anne, are you going to marry David?"

The question was put without impertinence, and without rancour. Anne answered it.

"I don't honestly know," she said slowly.

"That means you do know," said Irene. "Then she went on calmly: "Where do you expect to meet the man you're going to marry? In a dump like Lotsland?"

"People don't talk about such things," Anne cut in quickly and mechanically, though the faint scorn her breast rose and fell on a sharp sigh. "You don't talk about such things," she said. "You never know when or where you'll meet someone you'll like — you never know what might happen."

Irene shook her slick, black head. She was Anne's senior by only five years, but the moment she looked infinitely older.

"That's where you're wrong, honey," she said. "You yourself said it. That's where you're wrong. Unless you let your self go and get to New York, nothing's ever going to happen except a little farther from the things you want."

"Let's don't discuss it any more," said Anne in an edged voice. She finished mixing a batter of eggs and added it to the sauce and put the mixture over a gas burner, turned low to keep the heat at a minimum.

Irene sighed, slid to the floor and began setting the table. Once she started to speak and then changed her mind. She knocked the plain cloth—they always had a clean cloth for Sundays—and stood back to admire the silver spoons that had belonged to Anne's mother. Originally of sets, they — silver worn now at the handles to paper-thinness, the spoons had journeyed somewhat priginally. She laughed a little shamefacedly at her tone, and said, "Drop it, Irene, drop it, for mercy's sake, or we'll be quarrelling, and it's entirely too hot for quarrelling."

Listlessly she brushed a lock of hair from her brow and dropped her head to her locked elbows. She tumbled, pale gold hair shone in the sun, her eyes were thoughtful and solemn, and her roommate thought her particularly lovely in the thin, square-necked pajamas, lovely and almost childishly young. "The thing's settled now," Anne roused to say. "Settled for all time. I start work tomorrow night. What luck I should make from twenty-five to thirty a week. My lessons are paid up, and even supposing I'm idle should carry me till something better comes along."

"Whom did you talk to at Lotsland?" Irene inquired.

"A funny little fat man named Conrad Smith," Anne replied, with a quick, nervous laugh. "He was not in the other's voice "Why?"

"Just wondered," said Irene carelessly.

The phone rang in the studio, a startled that, with a bash and a minute dressing room, completed the establishment of Irene Ives and Anne Lee, music student and clothes model. Irene rose hurriedly. Through the open door Anne heard her at the telephone. heard her say . . . "That's grand . . . I'll be thousand thanks. . . . We'll be ready." And then she was back in the kitchen, her black eyes dancing suppressing excitement in her manner.

"That was Chick calling," she announced. "He's bringing along another man and a car and wants us for a drive. Could you pick it before the day I've got to go to Anne hesitated.

"Oh, David's busy and Chick talking about?"

"Ask David! Just something I asked him to do for me," Irene answered, squarely meeting her roommate's eye.

Still Anne hesitated.

"David said he might come by later," she offered doubtfully.

"You can have David any time," Irene said, persuasively. "Anything he might not show up at all, and if you're not home when Chick, he needn't. I'll take him off your hands; he'll be in the back seat. You might like the other fellow—his name's Richard Greene. Chick said he was a good guy. I've only seen Anne. I told them you would. I'm crazy to get out in the country."

Green fields, country air, a chance to see the sun rise and set! Anne, for a few hours—Anne capitulated. The men would arrive in 30 minutes. The girls rushed around, stacking the dishes—there was not time to wash them. Irene definitely put on her Sunday pajamas, dashing through the shower with the order that Anne frocks they owned, fresh dotted Swiss in dark blue for Anne, rose-colored organdy for Irene. The organdy needed pressing, but, as Irene cheerfully observed, "Just 15 minutes in an open car one could wear it for days."

They had barely finished when the bronze sounded. The men did not come up. The girls waited down the five flights. It was an elevator operator who told them she was so erratic that waiting saved time.

They reached the lobby. Chick Ames was standing near the outer door with two men. Anne had looked quickly at the latter.

Even in the first glance she saw that Richard was not Chick's type like Chick's other friends, Richard Greene was a tall, haloes man in flannels, an ugly man, whose long, lean head was set with distinction on rather broad shoulders. There was nothing of Broadway about him except his clothes and maybe his clothes or manner. He was a lower-browed, candle-lighted table, into adoring eyes at the opposite end. That was one thing. He was quite sober. He was quiet. Irene discussed, the practical aspects of loafing and capturing such a man. There was a streak of calculating hardness in the older girl that left Anne youngster inferior and discouraged.

But the girl spoke again, Anne stiffened automatically.

"Richard, this is Miss Chick Ames, did you?" said Irene.

Chick Ames was not a man with whom to be stiff. He was pretty nice of sorts, a friend of Irene's. Anne knew that Chick was a well-heeled person, too eager to make capital from his acquaintance with the girls to be a bore. He was going to be forgotten tour of Broadway he had been made a companion by the royal action of a tiny Eurobean principality.

Anne hated Chick Ames. He did not understand that he was there feeling. Often he would approach her and suggest in a confidential whisper that if he ever wanted a job in the night-club hell, "where a good-looking jane like you, sweet heart, can strike pay dirt," he would help. Then she particularly hated him; she did not want his aid or patronage.

She bowed at Irene and scowled. "I don't like Chick Ames," she said sulkily.

"Neither do I, particularly," Irene conceded indifferently. "But he knows everyone who is anyone on Broadway, and if you could get into the Tropics Club or one of the other smart clubs."

"If you tell me again that the only chance for girls like us to meet rich men is in night-club hell," Anne said warningly, "if you tell me that again, Irene, I'll get up and leave the table."

Irene grinned.

"I'm not going to," she promised. "But I still can't see your objection to making a little something out of your natural assets instead of poured enough money into it."

Anne's head went back, her voice with the idea of singing in a night-club. Anne responded

PILOTED WRECKED PLANE

Glen C. Moser (ABOVE), piloted the giant Douglas 21-passenger transport aeroplane which crashed near McNary, Arizona carrying, it is feared, eight persons to their death. Though wreckage of the aeroplane was sighted by searching aeroplanes rescue parties found the wild country and snow-filled canyons a hindrance to reaching the scene. Airline officials blame ice forming on the ailerons for the crash.

Dick?" he asked.

"No," said Richard briefly.

"I had a devil of a time getting him here," Chick turned to remark to Irene. "Say, you're lovely tonight!"

"Shut up!" Irene snapped. "Aren't we going to get going?"

Anne tried and failed to meet her roommate's eye, as it seemed that the four were streaming into the car, while Chick, cursing and cussing squashing asphalt, getting themselves settled in a smart open car at the opposite curb. It was a long, beautiful car fitted in aluminum and nickel, and Anne, noting Irene Greene's discreet monogram on one door, Richard was last into the car.

They shot north into traffic and followed the Hudson north along Riverside Drive, threading along with hundreds of other cars, filled with hundreds of other people who were seeking relief from the city's heat.

Irene and Chick talked and giggled and fell to whispering, but the two in the back seat were silent for a long time. Finally Richard broke:

"Let's get the preliminaries over in a hurry, because I've a feeling that I'm going to want to know a lot more about you."

Again the self-consciousness, his way of rushing things, put Anne off. She wondered if his charm were not a little practiced, somewhat studied. It was about him that made her believe that he was going after Anne there was something.

"I'm waiting for that life story," he said.

"There's not much to tell, and what there is is not interesting or revealing," she answered.

Chick looked around from the back seat and shouted, "Irene wants to go to Twin Peaks."

Richard glanced at the dash-board clock.

"It's only eleven now," he slowed down to say. "Don't you think it would be more fun to pick up some things and have dinner at the lodge—that is, if the girls aren't in a hurry?"

"You mean Seven Oaks?" said Chick incredulously.

"That's what I mean."

"I say Seven Oaks," Irene crowed enthusiastically. "I've always wanted to see that place."

Anne said nothing. Chick thumped her on one shoulder.

"Cheer up, kid, small change," he told her. "This is the first time I ever knew Dick to take a party up to Seven Oaks. Now if it was just you——"

Richard turned sidewise, opened his free right hand under Chick's chin and pushed his head back into his seat. His left hand did not leave the wheel. He was only three fingers in Anne's direction, but their feeling as her eyes and Richard's met. She was almost frightened.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—After thoughtful discussion the members of the Quarterly Official Board of Plainfield Methodist charge, all of whom are farmers, at a meeting held in the church on Tuesday evening, unanimously passed a motion opposing the practice of making cheese on Sunday. It was considered unnecessary and it was stated that there is no more work in getting the milk a little extra care than in having mothers and wives getting milk cans when they would like to be attending divine worship.

Master Gerth McMurray celebrated his birthday on Tuesday by having a number of his little school chums in for lunch and a social time.

Mr. Frank Garrison returned home on Tuesday after spending a week with a sick construction gang in Brockville.

FACTOR ASSAILS GERMAN PACT

Jewish M.P. of Toronto Says Nazis Insult His Con- stituents

Ottawa, April 8.—(CP)—Declaring thousands of his constituents had been "insulted and humiliated beyond words" by actions of the Nazi Government, Sam Factor (Lib. Toronto-Spadina) announced in the House of Commons today he would oppose second reading of the Bill ratifying a trade agreement with Germany.

"The German Government," Mr. Factor, who is a Jew, declared, "has seen fit to heap calumny and abuse upon members of a historic race the world over."

Expects Opposition Futile

He regretted he would have to oppose the Government's agreement with Germany although he realized the opposition would be futile since the pact had been in effect since November last.

It was quite possible he was wrong introducing sentiment into an international trade agreement, but when the Dominion hoped to reap benefits, Mr. Factor said, that he thought some consideration might be given to the character of the sources whence these profits would come.

Since establishment of the German dictatorship actions offensive to civilization carried on in that land brought untold misery and hardship to thousands of non-Aryans.

Foundation of Law

"Laws of humanity and of God" were the foundation of all laws, declared Mr. Factor, and when a nation set at defiance those or ignore such laws it earned the censure and protest of all democratic nations.

"I have no desire to stir up and kindle any ill-feeling and confusion here," said Mr. Factor, "but the actions and persecution of the present administration in Germany compel me to speak. If I did not I would be unworthy of my race. I would be unworthy to call myself a Canadian citizen."

'Ghoulish Ordinances'

"The German Government had enacted ordinances ghoulish against Jewish people. Municipalities had been compelled to forbid the sale of milk to children of non-Aryans. Thousands of Germans had been thrown out of their employment, punishments simply because they were the result of document current in Canada.

"Jews, Roman but Protestants and Catholics had endured persecution. All non-Aryans were hounded, driven from the learned professions, the public services and from business, and compelled to live in social relationships with Germans of Nordic stock.

Mr. Factor said he drew his facts from the report submitted to the International Labor Bureau of Nations by James MacDonald, the Commissioner for the assistance of Refugees. He quoted extracts from the report.

Out of Germany 1,000 Years

It was not foreigners who were being persecuted in Germany, it was men whose names had been in the country for 1,000 years and whose blood had helped to build up German industry and commerce, declared Mr. Factor.

"They had shed their blood and given their lives for Germany in the Great War. Millions of persons throughout the world "recoil from contact with the Government which forces books and maintains concentration camps, which imprisons people who think differently," said Mr. Factor.

SOUND RECORD OF CORONATION

The Coronation ceremony inside Westminster Abbey May 12 is to be photographed and talked about. On behalf of all the news reel companies in Great Britain, Sir Gordon Craig and W. J. Gell have announced the Duke of Norfolk (the Earl Marshal) and the Coronation committee have granted full facilities for the filming of the ceremony.

All aspects of the task have been discussed with the Earl Marshal, the Archbishop of Canterbury and members of the Coronation committee in the Abbey itself.

"Every reasonable facility is to be granted for a most comprehensive record of the ceremony to be made in keeping in every respect with the dignity and solemnity of the occasion" they added. "With the utmost resources of the industry at command, there is but little doubt that the film will go down as the greatest historical record of all times."

This is another of the events which the modern invention will bring very close to the people of the Empire and the rest of the world. The radio and the motion picture are such great democratic factors in modern life.

SIT-DOWN STRIKE IN CEMETERY

The sit-down strike has been staged in many places, one of the latest being of grave-diggers, while bodies, unburied, are placed in receiving vault. At Arlington, N.J., 45 gravediggers and assistants passed the time the other afternoon with spades and picks lying beside them on the greening lawn, while they spent a pleasant afternoon playing cards, pitching horseshoes or sleeping in the April sun.

Four funerals entered the cemetery, but the strikers were unaffected. The earth was unturned, and the corteges turned away after religious services while the coffins rested in a receiving vault to await the digging of graves.

At sunset the diggers resolved to spend the night in the cemetery on makeshift straw beds in the tool house, while the hours went through the winding mid-night and their demand for more pay went unheeded.

Thirty gravediggers make $5.50 a day, six days a week and they are generally satisfied but the trouble is with the helpers who are making $4.00 or $4.50 a day for five day week. The strikers, occupying the cemetery, will leave, they say, only when the demand for $5.00 a day for all and a six-day week is granted.

There is a danger that the strike will become acute as the receiving vault will hold only twenty-one bodies.

A NAME THAT LIVES

Sunday will be the one hundred and eighth anniversary of the birth of William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army. He died twenty five years ago.

A quarter of a century after his death his name remains one of the best known. It is remembered with the names of the great of the earth; names of many of the great have been forgotten but his name lingers on, a powerful influence for the betterment of men.

Sunday will witness observation of the anniversary when Salvationists in all parts of the earth will keep in honor and reverence this leader, "who being dead, yet speaketh."

The War Cry of this week refers to the great founder of the religious organization which has covered most countries of the world in these words:

"Born in 1829 in Nottingham, England, and active as a youthful preached in the countryside around, William Booth became a minister of the Methodist New Connexion. As an evangelist within the circles of that body he met with amazing success in campaigns which are remembered to this day. When Conference directed that he should cease his evangelistic engagements and return to circuit work he was unwilling to abide by that decision and broke away from the Connexion.

"This led after a time, and after many more soul-saving successes of a marked character, to the beginning of a mission in the East End of London which grew into The Salvation Army. Methods of work, the wearing of uniforms, the adoption of military forms, and other features were considered by many people to be unsuited to religious enterprise, and the movement thus begun met with widespread opposition, much persecution, and shamefully rough handling. Notwithstanding the cause grew apace, covering the United Kingdom with its organized activities and spreading to lands overseas.

"At the time of William Booth's demise twenty-five years ago at the age of eighty-three the work had extended to fifty-eight countries. It is now established in ninety countries and colonies. From being despised and misrepresented the Founder came to be honored by princes and peoples all over the world, and after his death memorials to his work were erected in many lands. The spirit of the Founder persists throughout the ranks of The Army, and his example is being universally followed by its Officers and Soldiers."

"WHISPERS OF SPRING"

Fall down, soft gentle rain, and wake to birth
The lovely mysteries beneath the earth,
Whisper to them that the young Goddess, "Spring,"
Already has been cited on the wing.

Coax the shy snowdrop up towards the light,
Clad in her cool fresh gown of green and white;
Your winsome story to the crocus tell,
Then to the daffodil and wild blue bell.

Fall down, sweet cleansing rain upon earth's face,
Make this old, tearstained world a fresher place,
Then open with thy balm our care-dimmed eyes
To all the wonder which around us lies.

"WHY WAS LINCOLN MURDERED?" is the title of a book just published which, according to newspaper reviewers, is quite interesting. Hints have been whispered from time to time that President Lincoln's attitude of tolerance and sympathy to the defeated South was not appreciated in some quarters where it was the policy to punish the late enfederacy with every possible ignominy. It was feared that President Lincoln would thwart the schemes of politicians and carpet-baggers to exploit the south for their own monetary advantage. Whether this attitude had anything to do with the murder of the President is problematical. Then there has been a suggestion that Secretary of War Stanton, never Lincoln's friend, had been remiss in not providing a bodyguard for the Presidential party when it went to the Ford Opera House to view the production of "Our American Cousin". How such a precaution was omitted considering the state of public opinion and the hatred of President Lincoln above everyone else as the chief cause of their undoing by most of the late Confederate leaders is very hard to understand. Feeling against the South was also at fever heat in the North and the assassination of Lincoln fanned it into fiercer blaze, as witness the extremes voiced even in the public of the time. Sunday by Sunday when dire punishment was demanded upon the entire South to partially atone for the act of a madman. Jefferson Davis, President of the short-lived Confederacy, was a fugitive with a reward of $100,000 offered for the arrest—surely not the course that the gentle-hearted Lincoln would have taken, who lived up to his creed of bless them that persecute you, pray for them that despitefully use you, etc. To him the end of the war was the prelude to a period when the chief duty of the hour was "to bind up the nation's wounds," the nation meaning the Southland as well as the North. However, Abraham Lincoln's work was o'er—his iron will and unfaltering faith had prevented the disruption of the nation into a polyglot something, half slave and half free, and a new nation had to be built on the ashes of hatred and frustration, and the nation's wounds bound up despite the ravages caused by an army of corrupt politicians running riot on the heels of the victorious northern armies and feeding on the festering corpse of the Confederacy like a lot of vultures. No clearer pictures of the Southland of plantations and slaves and high "society" and high living before the war, sacrifices during the war and the bitterness of after the war than in Margaret Mitchell's splendid book "Gone With the Wind," soon to be screened at Hollywood.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

The Royal Engagement Was Enthusiastically Welcomed

Romance came to Prince Albert at the close of his years of war service, a romance that was to receive a tremendously enthusiastic reception from the people of Great Britain.

Not considered at that time as the eldest heir to the throne, the Duke of York perhaps was less governed by the strict rules and politics than had he been the king's eldest son; he had, and used, the privilege of freely seeking the hand of the woman he loved.

Though they had met as children, the possibility that some day their paths would cross again, and that a deep and enduring love would spring from the crossing, could hardly have occurred to the lads—writing and conscientious prince and the cheerful and vigorous daughter of the Earl of Strathmore. It was not until the post-war years, when England and the world was seeking to forget the horror, in a new upswing of social enjoyment that their fellowship began to draw comment from society.

Born at the family estate in Hertfordshire and educated almost entirely at home until she passed the Oxford examination, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon was making her first full-season bow in Britain's elite circles then. Prince Albert too was coming more and more into public interest approval.

In 1930 he paid a visit to Glamis Castle and the merry tongues of rumor had a new titbit of pleasurable gossip. When Lady Elizabeth became a bridesmaid for Princess Mary and then the duke paid a second visit to the Scottish estate it was accompanied by his mother rumor took on the guise of fact in the tale of royal love.

On Jan. 16, 1932, any doubt was finally dispelled, for a court circular of that date announced that the king and queen had consented to the engagement of their beloved son to the Scottish noblewoman. (Today's picture shows the couple just after that announcement).

To the revelation of the betrothal their Majesties, King George V. and Queen Mary added their blessing "in which the king has gladly given his consent" read the announcement. Then followed the news that the king's necessary under the Royal Marriage Act of 1772, such that the romance between their second son and the daughter of one of Scotland's oldest lines received their unqualified approval, has been well substantiated. Like any other lover, the duke wrote of his own proposal and was accepted and to his choice of the Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon as the lady of his heart, all Britain gave its hearty approval.

The Beacon-Herald was honored on Monday when it was awarded first place in a newspaper competition sponsored by the Ontario Weekly Dailies Association, said organization that includes practically all of the daily newspapers published in Ontario cities with less than 50,000 population. A board of three judges, members in good standing of the association's membership, was asked to select the publication having the best front-page make-up. Nineteen papers entered the contries. The front page of last Thursday's issue of The Beacon-Herald was given first rank, second being won by The Kingston Whig-Standard.

Every page in a newspaper requires some planning, some for obvious reasons the front page gets special attention. And planning a front page is not an easy matter. In this office the actual planning is done by the news editor and the telegraph editor. Then the superintendent of the mechanical department transforms the plan of paper into a page of type; he must make the many switches to put the page in a way to give maximum eye comfort to the reader—careful spacing is one of his problems. He then hands over the page to the foreman in charge of stereotyping and the press; the actual printing is his job.

All of those wouldn't be so difficult were it not for the fact that it must be done in a comparatively short time. Two front pages are made up in this office each day, one for the 10.15 a.m. edition and another for the 3 p.m. issue.

The editors must modify their plan as they work. News is pouring in on them from 7 a.m. all through the day, news written by staff reporters, news, by wire, telephone and mail. They never know when a new "story" is going to "break," maybe an important news event that will necessitate an entirely new lay-out of the front page. A story that seems to be "worth" an eight-column line at 8 a.m. may become relatively unimportant in the next minute; a "bigger" story takes its place and there is a re-shuffling of the news items of lesser importance. Not infrequently such a major change must be made a few minutes before the "deadline."

The art of writing headlines that are newsy, terse and pleasing to the eye—and writing them quickly —is a skill that is not easy to master. A column is only two inches wide, it will accommodate only so many letters. Some letters are "fat" some "thin." There are many sizes and styles of type. Sometimes capital letters are used, sometimes small or "lower case," to use printer's parlance. There are Roman letters and Italic letters. All these factors enter into the writing of headlines."

The editors are always working under pressure. They must evaluate the news, edit it, write the headings, plan and re-plan the front page (and other pages), give staff instructions and do the whole job in an orderly way so that material is fed in a more or less continuous flow to the mechanical department. The mechanical superintendent in turn must see to it that production is so organized that he can receive this copy, set it up at top speed and rush the finished "matter" to the press room.

Kenya's Home-Made School

An African school, built by African labor, is the latest addition to one of Kenya's capital, in the latest scheme to help the darkie youngsters of our Colony.

A Hottam and jetsam of derelict walls and doors is inevitable in the rapid evolution of a modern city. In a country where civilization has touched merely the fringes of vast districts. The possibility of employment has lured hordes of hungry natives to travel hundreds of miles to the cities. The pitiful plight of the poor creatures, separated from their half-starved and bitterly disappointed in their simple vision of an Eldorado, has led to their being solicited by the unscrupulous and increased the difficulties of the ever-worried white police force. Years of drought, locusts and unemployment have made conditions bad for the children, living on very short "commons," and their education has often also arrived in Nairobi.

Little Kenya, the eight-acre and upwards hoped for work as kitchen or garden helps and small "factotums." Instead of the king was necessary under the Royal Marriage Act of 1772, such that the romance between their second son and the daughter of one of Scotland's oldest lines received their unqualified approval, has been well substantiated. Like any other lover, the duke wrote of his own proposal and was accepted and to his choice of the Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon as the lady of his heart, all Britain gave its hearty approval.

At the Foundation Stone ceremony the boys were congratulated on their skill and industry, for in their under - the - sun - shade work they were good progress with the building. It is fine work and a lasting credit to the patience and enthusiasm of the European teachers. Critics in Kenya are perhaps more concerned in finding out the weak points in our Native Administration than in realizing the splendid efforts that are made for the welfare of the native, but even the official, but also by the un-official element in Kenya.

Furnwal village has its little "pub," where the native worker can have his glass of beer in a clean and decent surroundings, under well organized supervision. Brewed on the premises, the beer is made from the native products, maize, millet, sugar and honey. Distillation from a native bark which produces a violently poisonous and the cheap "arrack" (from rice), are both carefully prohibited, for those liquors have a terrific effect on the constitution. Safeguarded in this way, the mild beer which is drunk at Furnwal has no delecterious effect and is much appreciated at the men's "pow-wows." It's notable that at the village monthly meetings no intoxicants are allowed and fox-trots go gally forward to the accompaniment of "soft" music only. The profits of the beer shop are exclusively devoted to native welfare and the betterment of social conditions. The funds to erect the new building were raised from the profits of the municipal beer. The Government, thus relieved of the building expenses, has consented to provide a European headmaster and schools staff for the rest of the school's future maintenance.

I asked some diminutive boys who, standing on the fringe of the crowd, were watching the proceedings, if they would, by and by, go to the big school. Their faces lit up with enthusiasm and they eagerly replied "Ndio, ndio" (Yes, yes).

One chilly morning I visited the classes in the Memorial Hall, and was struck with the pathetic cleanliness of many of the poorer children. Under the cheap, thin shirts, their half-starved little bodies shivered in the cold wind of the Kenyan winter. A clean shirt was evidently "de rigeur" in these schools, but one longed to give the little lads a big plate of their native porridge, to put some stuffing on those thin ribs. I remembered the time, in England, when our own half-starved little citizens were supplied with free breakfasts and wished that I could establish a big cauldron of free porridge. School hours finished, no doubt the youngsters would hug themselves in their old rags for warmth, and reserve the precious shirts for the acquisitive leering.

The school stands opposite the wide expanse of the race-course, with a fine view of the aerodrome at Mt. Kenya. Just before the mayor's arrival, the troop carriers and bombers of the Air Force, destined to protect our frontier, swooped across the race-course, to the joy of the spectators, who doubtless felt that the sight added much distinction to the coming ceremony.

MOTOR STRIKES IN STATES END

Hudson Motor Car Company Last Factory to End Hostilities

Detroit, Apr. 9 (AP)—The United States was without a major automotive strike today for the first time since last Nov. 18.

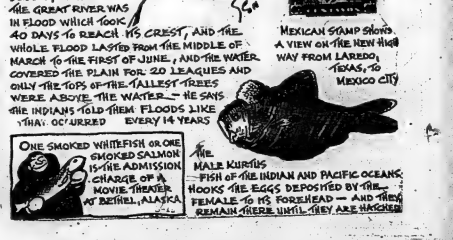
Settlement of the Hudson Motor Company strike last night brought an end to a series of tie-ups in the automobile industry in nine months that halted operations of four automobile producers, as well as many parts suppliers, affected approximately 225,000 workers at various times.

"Our serious trouble in the motor industry is ended," United States Conciliator Frank Murphy in announcing at Lansing the signing of the Hudson agreement.

The terms, except for a few minor alterations, were the same as those which started 65,000 employees of the Chrysler Corporation back to work.

Idle Since March 8.

The 11,000 workers at Hudson's Detroit plants have been idle since March 8, the sit-down strikers in the Detroit Chrysler factories and the Reo Motor Car plant at Lansing, where the Chrysler agreement was signed Tuesday; the Reo compact also patterned after the Chrysler accord on Wednesday. Reo workers paraded out of their plant last night.



A truce in the 44-day General Motors strike, set for Feb. 11 and back to work 135,000 of that corporation's employees and additional thousands of workers in its subsidiary concerns. The G. M. final agreement was signed March 4.

This week's three strike settlements opened the way for 2,300 Reo workers, the Chrysler and Hudson employees and those of several parts manufacturers to return to work.

BENNETT TO GIVE AMPLE NOTICE

Conservative Leader May Consider Remaining in Post

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)—Conservative members of parliament were informed in caucus yesterday by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett that he would give them ample notice should he decide to relinquish the leadership of the party. This was the last caucus before prorogation.

The Conservative leader's statement is presumed to have been prompted by reports through the country, that he was giving consideration to retiring. It is understood he told the members it would not do in the interests of the party to have uncertainty as to his leadership continue indefinitely.

He expected to return from a trip to European countries following the coronation at a reasonably early date and would then be ready to make known his decision.

Members of the party said they had not given up hope Mr. Bennett would see his way clear to continue as leader following the heart to heart talk he had with them as to his own and the party's future.

NORM. SMITH'S CANNINE DECIDES FOR GOALIE HE IS NOT FIT TO PLAY

Detroit, April 9 (CP)—Because of a bulldog pup and a lettuce sandwich, Normie Smith, the pudgy Toronto boy who captivated the hockey title season as the National Hockey League's outstanding goalkeeper, did not take his position in the nets for Detroit Red Wings against New York Rangers last night. His place was taken by pinch hitter Earl Robertson, who put on a great display.

The story came out in the dressing room after the Wings trounced Rangers 4-3 to even the best-of-five Stanley series at one game each.

Surrounded by smiling well-wishers and perspiring teammates, Normie, who suffered an attack of his left arm in a series game with Montreal Canadiens for the N.H.L. title chuckled over a yarn.

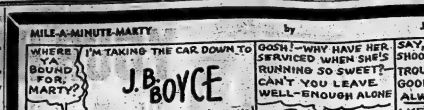
"I was trying to decide whether the sore arm would allow me to play," he began "as I didn't want to get pulled out of the game as I did in the first game at New York Tuesday.

Dog Clashes Decision

"A few hours before the game time I got a bulldog pup I'd given on a table at the house. Buddy — that's the dog—made a grab at the plate. I tried to rescue the sandwich with my left hand and Buddy beat me to a nibble.

"Right there and then I knew I couldn't play. I knew if I couldn't save that sandwich from the dog with my left hand I couldn't stop Rangers' pucks."

Normie opined he'd have been a "sucker" to go in their with one hand "when they had a man out there with two hands and looks like Bart." He thinks his arm will be "O.K." for the next game Sunday.



Adams Elated

Soft-spoken "Smitty" almost had to shout to be heard above the victory bedlam the Detroit Wings rouse. One of the most garrulous was Coach Jack Adams who appeared more than usually elated at the win.

Adams said the Wings had been playing "way over their heads all through the playoffs" and that they were "down to their own level now."

The battle featured by terrible bodychecks throughout by both sides, brought two casualties to the ice. Rookie Lorne Shibicky and Richobourg's Ott Heller were to be taken to hospital today for X-ray examinations for possible concussions. Heller was struck accidentally by a stick in the hand of Wally Kilrea.

FORD FACES NEXT CIO DRIVE WITH DEFIANCE OF LEWIS-LED U NION

Flat declaration that his company will not recognize the United Automobile Workers of America as bargaining agent for his employees, was made by Henry Ford, multi-millionaire motor magnate in an interview from his winter home at Wats, Georgia. Ford is the last of the "Big three" of automobile manufacturing to face the John L. Lewis organization, General Motors and Chrysler Corporation having agreed to demands for C.I.O. recognition. Mr. Ford said that any of his men who struck would be led out of the plants for we know the men are simply being duped." U. A. W. leaders, however, were certain that the Ford company would agree to demands if and when the union decided to organize the Ford plants. Those playing leading parts in the fight between the automobile unions and the huge motor car companies are shown above. In the upper row, LEFT to RIGHT are: Walter P. Chrysler, who most recently signed with the union; Henry Ford; and John L. Lewis, militant C.I.O. chief who is leading the fight against the motor corporations. The lower row shows Alfred P. Sloan of General Motors company who also signed U.A.W. agreements after a lengthy sit-down strike, and Homer Martin, chief organizer for the C.I.O. among auto workers.

POLICE DRAGNET FOR GUNMAN PAL

Bullet Intended For Police Kills an Ex-Convict

Montreal, April 9—(CP)—A police dragnet was spread today for the gunman pal of Sam Wolman, killed by bullets intended for the policeman, who caught the pair burglarizing a warehouse.

Bullets intended for Constable Clare Ball of the Canadian Pacific Railway force shot down Wolman, 26-year-old ex-convict, last night, when Ball jumped into a ditch as the first of three shots rang out.

Ball surprised the pair as they were entering a grocery store warehouse on railway company property. He grappled with Wolman and before he had a chance to unholster his own gun, the officer said, Wolman's companion began shooting from the darkness.

CULLED FROM THE EXCHANGES

Generally speaking, from a newspaper man's point of view, the Monday morning newspaper is the dullest of the week, although probably not so dull as it was once in past years. It is recorded of the late Theodore Roosevelt, that, recognizing that fact, he made it a point whenever possible of sending important statements to the press for Monday publication, when he could win public attention with less competition of interest from "live" happenings. His example has often been followed by other public men.—Kingston Whig Standard.

Debunking The Crow

A considerable volume of misinformation is published every few months about the delicacy and edibility of crow meat. The ancient expression "to eat crow," meaning to humiliate one's self, is held to be erroneous because crow meat, properly prepared, is equivalent to squab or chicken.

None other than the United States Biological Survey, says the New York Herald-Tribune, now advises the public in an official bulletin that crow meat is not half bad. Recipes are furnished telling how to stew, fry and roast young crows.

The common crow—Corvus brachyrhynchus— is a destructive agent without peer in the bird world. He treats off young song and game birds and pulls up the farmer's corn in season. Such a diet, if consistently practised, should make crow meat a toothsome dish, but one might just as well study the black marauder's diet when bird's eggs and young are not on the crow dinner table.

Next to our native bonnards the crow is a notorious carrion bird. A succulent horse or cow long and well dead will attract crows from miles around. In the duck farm region of Suffolk County, N. Y., crow hunters use dead ducks to attract crows so that the wily fowl will venture close enough to be shot.

The county has become over-populated with crows during recent years, contributing to the scarcity of songsters and game birds. But the time has come for the debunking of crow meat. That it should now evolve as palatable food by official fiat, heaven forbid!

Ontario's Floral Emblem

At the recent session of the Ontario Legislature, an Act was passed making the flower which is commonly known as the "white Trillium" the floral emblem of our Province.

This flower grows quite abundantly in open woods, and flowers early and for this reason it is gathered abundantly. The nature of the plant is that there is a whorl of three foliage leaves a short distance from the flower. The result is that in gathering the flowers, we of necessity strip the plant of its foliage leaves, for there are no other foliage leaves on the plant. Since the foliage leaves are necessary for the proper digestion of plant food, when these leaves are removed as stated above, the bulb which is buried in the earth, is not properly nourished, and does not properly mature for next year's growth. It would be well if those who gather these lovely flowers, would bear this in mind, and not strip the woods too closely, or the inevitable result will be the disappearance of our floral emblem from our forests, except in more remote areas.

Picton and District

Picton, Apr. 9. — A very sudden and heavy death occurred in Prince Edward County Hospital on Monday night, April 5 when William Pearsall passed away after a very short illness with pneumonia. Lovey, Mr. and Mrs. Belden Lovey and son Francis, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Staples and son also motored to Picton. In the funeral, Rev. David Wren spoke words of comfort and hope to those bereaved. Plan a Kitchen That's Different

Every once in a while the average home-maker wants a kitchen that is entirely individual and doesn't resemble in the slightest the yellow and blue or the red and white, or the pink and brown workshops of her friends. In remodelling an old home, one housewife found her opportunity.

The room had papered walls originally, and wide board floors. It had been an addition to the house and one wall, originally the back of the house, was of brick. When the family bought the house, it was time for the repair and modernization of the home was obtained.

While oak was used for building in a series of closets and cupboards, giving the effect of panelled walls. A small amount of wall space showed between the dish closets and lower drawers. This was covered with a paper having a street scene design, and added a bright note of colour.

The original floors were left intact, as was the one brick wall. A corner cupboard was built for glassware, and next to it was a closet for broom and mops. A new sink was completely enclosed with the oak shelves and cabinets. Casement windows were placed over the sink, where one small window had been before. Central lighting was used.

MADOC

Madoc—(The regular fortnightly meeting of the Madoc Discussion Club was held in the High School Library with a good attendance on Tuesday evening. The speakers were Miss Jean Hutchinson and Miss Kay Rose. The subject under discussion was Spain. Miss Rose, speaking first presented a very interesting outline of the geographical and racial characteristics of the country. The climate includes all types of the temperate zone, ranging from the cold of the Pyrenees to the sub-tropical heat in the southern and eastern parts. The raw products are diversified and range from cork to sub-tropical fruits. Spain is in the throes of a mighty quickalver mines. The population is very heterogeneous, in fact there being about 20 different dialects and customs. There has been very little unification and the present out-break is the struggle of a people, long oppressed, for the principles of freedom—social, political and economic.

Miss Hutchinson supplemented these remarks with a more detailed resume of the current developments in the political structure of the country. The abdication of Alphonso XIII precipitated a series of governments each more or less irresponsible. The struggle lies between the former aristocracy, including monarchists, carlists, army officers and clergy on the one hand the government on the other, this being a leftist government and including anarchists socialists, Marxian labour unionists. When the war there may arise a new and better Spain. Duly naturalized members were asked to take its place among nations.

AT THE CAPITOL

Harold Bell Wright's "Secret Valley"

With the combined appeal of a world famous author, the rising popularity of Richard Arlen, "Secret Valley," a new outdoor adventure picture by Harold Bell Wright, and a new standard for outdoor screen adventures at the Capitol Saturday only, matinee evening.

Vigorously enacted by a capable cast, the Twentieth Century-Fox release is particularly notable for a novel plot which brings hard-riding ranchers into conflict with hard-boiled racketeers, thereby providing a double source of excitement and thrills.

Arlen, as a rugged young rancher, manages to combine blazing action with capable acting in a robust dramatic portrayal.

Virginia Grey, a talented newcomer, characterizes the rackteer's run-away bride who has been tricked into marriage and who hides out from him at her former husband Arlen's ranch, where she innocently causes many complications, including a spectacular stampede. Miss Grey brings to the screen a refreshing individuality that is indicative of certain popularity.

Entertainment in the film mounts to thrilling climax when the girl is discovered by her pursuing husband and his confederates, and Arlen's rescue of her from threatened kidnapping is aided by Federal men seeking the racketeer.

Praise-worthy performances are given by Jack Marshall, who plays the hero's pal; Norman Willis, as the racketeer husband; Sid Saylor, a comical cowboy who meets an untimely end; Russell Hicks, the racketeer's crooked lawyer who plots to steal Arlen's ranch and joins forces with the racketeer; Willie Fung, a Chinese cook with a penchant for American swing; and Monte Allen as a broom-wielding house-keeper.

Back-grounds of breath-taking beauty provide contrast for the stirring action of the Wright story.

Added Featurette

SCHOOL REPUDIATES PROFESSOR'S WORDS

New York, April 9 (CP)—Dean Carl W. Ackerman of Columbia University's School of Journalism in Journalism last night issued a statement disassociating the school from Prof. Walter Pitkin's personal opinion of certain types of French-Canadians—an opinion for which he was censured by a resolution of the Quebec Legislature.

Dean Ackerman, said the statement was prepared at his own initiative and with the approval of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the University. In it he said:

"As far as the people and press of Canada are concerned I trust that they will understand they have our highest admiration and respect. I am confident they will distinguish between a mere difference between the free expression of opinion by personal opinion and the policies and practices of the Graduate School of Journalism.

Reawakened Red Wings Blast Rangers' One-Game lead by Winning Smart Contest 4-2

Stanley Cup Series Now Tied at Odge Game Each

RANGER PENALTY HURT

Detroit Scores Goal With Lynn Patrick Sitting in "Hoosegow"

Detroit, April 9.—(CP)—Anything may happen now in the Stanley Cup race that seemed all New York Rangers' for 48 hours. Detroit's reawakened Red Wings blasted Rangers' one-game lead with a 4-2 triumph, defending the world title they won last year, last night and put the series right back where it started.

Red Wings are on as even terms with Rangers as they ever can be with their star netminder injured and others, of their best players out of action. They have the great advantage of playing the remaining game in the best-of-five series on their own ice with the next battle Sunday.

Wings were again the speedy, smooth team, that won the National League title more than the Canadians, when they scored three goals in the first period last night. They played without Norm Smith, their regular netminder, but substitute Earl Robertson was great.

The defeat broke the New Yorkers' string of five playoff victories during which they eliminated Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons in the semi-finals and in the first time in the post-season play, that Lester Patrick's crew failed to produce goals, when they were needed.

Babe Pratt and Butch Keeling scored for the New Yorkers in the second period, but Detroit, by then was great enough for them to permit the brace of counters and still win handily. They threw up a great defence to keep Rangers' off the score sheet in the final period.

Penalty Produces Goal

A penalty to Lynn Patrick, son of Coach Lester, started Detroit on the way to victory that was cheered by a crowd of 13,647. Lynn was waved off for highsticking in the first and while he was off Johnny Sorrell got a freak goal with a long shot from left wing that bounced in off Murray Ray Slades' Rangers.

Manager Jack Adams refused to risk protecting the lead and sent his Wings out to improve it. Modere, Brunetteau and Egan threw caution after Sorrell scored, driving home Syd Howe's rebound. Johnny Gallagher, Wing defenceman, rushed in from left wing to drive a 35-footer past Davey Kerr from the defence counter.

Midway through the second Herb Lewis climaxed a beautiful passing play with Howe and Ebbie Goodfellow to register a goal that made shot to the far corner of the net.

Detroit fell back on their defensive strength after that and time after time Earl Robertson saved them with spectacular stops. Great backchecking and heavy body work at the blue added to the keeping the Rangers' snipers within bounds.

Pratt finally put Rangers somewhere near in the running on a play with Art Mac Donald and three minutes later Keeling poked a puck past Robertson from close in to end the scoring.

After the game Patrick expressed fear: Odi Heller, Wing trainer-rubman, and Alex Shibicky had suffered slight concussions when they left the ice in a dash at the start of the second period after being dropped by a terrific body check from Bucko McDonald. He didn't return. Heller fell heavily on the ice in the third after being struck accidentally with a stick.

ODDS SHORTEN ON SYRACUSE STARS

Leaflets Defeat Philadelphia For Loop Title 5-2 Evening Series

Syracuse, N.Y., April 9—(AP)—International-American hockey fans in general and Philadelphia Ramblers in particular were assured today that the Quaker City outfit's playoffs with the Syracuse Stars for the loop championship isn't going to be the pushover many expected.

After taking a 2-0 drubbing from the Ramblers in Philadelphia Tuesday night in the opening game of the best-out-of-five series, the Stars came back on home ice last night to even it up with a free-scoring 5-2 victory.

As a result, the odds against the Syracuse shortened today as the two teams moved back to Philadelphia for the third game of the series Saturday. The fourth contest is slated for Syracuse Sunday.

Gaetan Paronea, speedy left winger, and Murray Armstrong paced the Stars' attacking attack. Paronea scored the first goal, early in the opening session, and added another in the final five minutes of the game. Armstrong assisted in two of the Stars' goals and was the only one to produce goals, when they were needed.

Babe Pratt and Butch Keeling scored for the New Yorkers in the second period, but Detroit, by then was great enough for them to permit the brace of counters and still win handily. They threw up a great defence to keep Rangers' off the score sheet in the final period.

REDMEN FIGURE TO BEAT PEGGERS THREE STRAIGHT

Coach Silverman Claims Copper Cliff Squad in Great Shape

DAILY WORKOUTS

Neither of Regular Defencemen Will See Action in Series

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—Stated at the Maple Leaf Gardens today that their first game in quest of the Allan Cup, Copper Cliff Redmen's hope soared today as they virtually set both amateur hockey's highest awards going to Northern Ontario's nickel belt for the first time.

Coach Conn Silverman's confidence inquiries last night on the score of the Sudbury-North Bellefair feud, Redmen's opponents in the Calgary. When they learned Tigers had won the opener of the best-of-five series 4-1 there was a mild celebration before the team left the hotel for the Gardens.

Sure Tigers would continue their stride and take Beavers three straight. Calgarians felt the same fate would befall Winnipeg Monarchs in the best-of-five series opening tonight. Indications were not underestimating the Western junior champions, but they both nothing could stop them in their drive to the Memorial Cup.

Winnipeg Confident

There was equally as much confidence in the ranks of the young Manitobans, who arrived here early this morning. Monarchs, who have defeated Western opposition as easily as Redmen defeated eastern teams, was no bash to judge the merits of the two teams by Coach Harry Neil said.

After a week layoff, Silverman organized the club for the first class shape. Daily one-hour ice workouts, with the exception of yesterday, has kept the Redmen "right on their toes" said Percy LaFleur, centre ice man and Redmen smartest junior mentors.

Silverman changed plans to have his club appear in an exhibition game this week—he figured there was too much danger of injury to the players. Redmen will likely start their game tonight with the husky regular defencemen, still troubled with their injuries but in an eye injury received during the playoffs.

Godfrey Not To Show

Johnny Godfrey, defencemap, injured in practice three weeks ago, remained in bed in the sanatorium series. The cast will not be removed from his leg before the end of two days yet—but Johnny will be on the bench to cheer his mates.

Up to the time of press day this week, the players have taken one-hour workouts daily, directed mostly by Fergie Dovedall. Silverman's organized, drilling staff will be held at selected breakfasts and staged workouts in the afternoons. After that this year's Redmen will be fit-ting and made the rounds of Toronto's theatres, before the first game and made the rounds of Toronto's theatres, before the first game and made the rounds of Toronto's theatres, before the first game

"SALADA" GREEN TEA

Tweed and District

Tweed—The barbers of Tweed have announced a forty per cent increase in the cost of hair cuts. The price change from 25 cents to 35 cents will go into effect on May 1st. Long hair on men will probably be the vogue this summer.

Rev. A. W. Cooper B.A. of Hamover United Church was the preacher at Tweed United Church at both morning and evening services on Sunday. Rev. R. R. Nicolson preached in Hanover. In the afternoon Mr. Cooper delivered a special address to the Men's Brotherhood class.

The Literary Club met in the Public Library school room on Monday evening. Mrs. T. A. Moffat, B.A., presided over the meeting which was devoted to the consideration of several Canadian poets and authors.

Mrs. Carman Kleinsteuber gave an account of the life and work of Bliss Carman who was born in Fredericton, N.B. of U.E. Loyalist descendants in 1861. His father, was a relative of Ralph Waldo Emerson and the life of the home did much to shape the character of the poet his future. Carman tried his hand at several professions during the early years but finally at Harvard University gave them all over for literature.

Bliss Carman's poems are not generally read. They possess a mysticism which does appeal to the average reader. He uses symbolism and allegory rather than regular description. The poet Carman died in 1929 in New Canaan. His ashes are buried in New Brunswick where a monument is erected to his memory. He chief works include 'Low lide on Grand Pre', "Songs from Vagabondia".

Miss Blaney read "Vesilgia" and Anna Kleinsteuber read "Tweed two of Carman's poems.' Frank Tummon sang "A Perfect day."

Miss Margaret Moffat gave an account of Marjorie L. C. Pickthall, who is recognized as Canada's greatest poetess. Miss Pickthall came from England at the age of 7. When she was 13 years of age she sold her first story "Two Ears" to the Toronto Globe for three dollars. Her mother's death in 1910 was a severe blow and resulted in her going home. "Ta Doomsa" Death came at the age of 38 in April 1922. Marjorie Pickthall's voice was never an echo. She believed that in a poet's imagining lies a road of one's own, free from existing limitations of life. Lois Richardson read "A Mother in Egypt" and Cora Moffat sang "Dusa", both poems composed by the poetess.

Miss Dorothy Moffat discussed L. M. Montgomery who was born in Prince Edward Island, where she spent most of her life. Her books "Anne of Green Gables" and "Anne of Avonlea" enjoyed a phenomenal sale. Of her former, Mark Twain said that it was the sweetest creation of child life ever written. Miss Barnett read some portions of Anne of Green Gables.

Alice Nicholson played a piano solo.

Miss Pilla Paillier, B.A. gave an excellent paper on Charles G. D. Roberts, also a native of New Brunswick and a relative of Miss Carman. To say Charles grew up in a literary atmosphere. He became a professor of English in King's College when much of his best work was produced. He is noted particularly for animal stories which brought him great fame and have been translated into several languages. Mr. Roberts is still living at 71 years of age, and occasionally gives lectures on literature. He has written a number of nature poems, one of the best is "On the road."

The annual meeting of the Tweed Liberal-Conservative Association was held in the club rooms on Tuesday evening. It was well attended. Edgar W. Jones, president, was in charge. He explained the purpose of the meeting and gave a brief account of the year's activities. A vote of appreciation was passed on motion of Mr. S. B. Rollins and Mr. J. Thompson, thanking Secretary-Treasurer C. R. Brown for his services to the Association for several years.

President Jones thanked the officers for their co-operation during his two years of office, during which a federal general election and a by-election were held.

Major Merritt Price was asked to occupy the chair during the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Pres.—John F. Stokes.

1st Vice Pres.—Miss Mona Secretary—Dr. A. J. Tompson.

Treas.—John McCormick.

Executive—H. Graham, seconded by R. W. Jones that the executive be given power to appoint the poll chairman and a lady for each poll to act as a deputy returning officer in addition with the ladies' organization.

In taking over the duties of president, Mr. Stokes asked for the loyal support of the officers as had been accorded his predecessors. A motion was passed settling the membership fee for the year at $1.00.

Dr. Harold E. Welsh, M.P.P., was present and was asked to address the meeting. Dr. Welsh thanked the officers of the organization for the excellent work which they had done in the recent East Hastings by-election, as far as the village of Tweed was concerned. He commended the association for its effective organization and the early as no one can tell when it will be called on to act. There seems to be a general feeling, said Dr. Welsh, that if no by-election is held in the Wellington in June, a general election will be held in October. In the event of the latter contingency there will be no redistribution at the present time.

Dr. Welsh spoke of provincial activities, in the Conservative ranks and suggested activities for the local organization to arouse interest. It would be possible for the ladies to assume the services of Mrs. Plumpre or other prominent lady speakers from Toronto.

The by-election of East Hastings was referred to almost daily in the session of the legislature, said Dr. Welsh, who referred to the rap which he received from Premier Hepburn who told him "that he had gotten off to a bad start" when he delivered his maiden speech in the legislature. Right-thinking Liberals as well as Conservatives give the East Hastings by-election the credit for the recent repeal of the Assessment Act, a piece of legislation which a short year ago was placed on the statute books as just and workable but was recognized by the unanimous vote of its sponsors.

The Speaker of the House was strongly criticized for his unfairness in the Macauley incident a few days before the session ended. Dr. Welsh gave an explanation of Mr. Leopold Macaulay's position which, made it clear that he was not guilty of unparliamentary conduct but was guilty in order of failing to parliamentary procedure. In spite of this, the Speaker ordered him removed by the Sergeant-at-arms. The unfairness of the Speaker was shown by comparison with his judgment in connection with Hon. Peter Heenan's flare up some months ago. He refused to sit down when ordered to do so but was not escorted from the chamber. Other highlights of the session were referred to by Dr. Welsh, who concluded by urging that every effort be made to effect a perfect organization.

Tweed village council held its regular meeting on Monday evening, April 5th in the Municipal Chambers. Reeve Moon presided. Mr. W. H. Sayers, Councillors J. W. Kingston, C. E. Way, E. Myles and W. King. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

OFFICE WORKERS RETURN TO WORK

Agreement Reached is Between Union Heads And Company Officials

Oshawa, Ont., April 8—(CP)—An agreement was made today between R. H. Brown, of General Motors, of Canada, limited, and C. H. Millard, President of the Automobile Workers Union whereby 30 mail office employees of the parts department, struck to work through the picket lines maintained by 3,700 strikers.

The picket line at the parts department was increased from 20 to 150 and resulted in closely-knit obstruction to office workers who had showed they intended to enter the building.

Millard later told the picketers the office staff will be allowed back to work. Office workers in the general administrative building have not been affected while the strike was called.

"Fighting on the lines, don't let them in," shouted picketers when office workers first appeared at the parts building and stood across the street from the entrance.

Premier Challenges Ellis to Stake Seat

Toronto, April 8—(CP)—Premier Hepburn today renewed his challenge to Arthur Ellis, Conservative member of the Legislature for South Oshawa, to stake his seat on charges that some members of the party had influenced the granting of beer and wine authorities.

Before the session ended Mr. Ellis said in the House that he had "startling information" which he was prepared to lay before the Premier and Mr. Hepburn promised if the information warranted he would appoint a Commissioner to investigate.

The Premier today wrote Mr. Ellis, asking him to amplify his charges and offering, if Mr. Ellis would make his seat on the issue, to order the investigation.

Snow Fence Charge Dismissed

Stratford, Ont., April 8—(CP)—Charles Wick and Henry Pelz, Logan Township, were acquitted today of a charge of stealing a quantity of snow fence owned by Perth County. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate J. A. Makins expressed belief they had not intended to keep the fence. It was brought out that many farmers were accustomed to take snow fence in the spring and use it on their farms.

FIRE DAMAGE HEAVY

Stratford, Ont., April 9.—(CP)— Extensive damage was caused early today when fire of unknown origin broke out in the basement of the United Cigar Stores in Stratford store, Downie and Ontario streets.

It was estimated the loss would be $2,000 at least. Considerable damage was done in the stock room in the basement.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, April 9.—(CP)—A sharp slump in prices for the Gold issues and moderate declines in the Base Metals, Paper and Industries on the Toronto Exchange this afternoon was rectified when London started buying on the news that President Roosevelt had declared there was no move on foot to reduce the price of gold. The early dip had intensified by weakness in the Stock, African and other foreign markets.

While afternoon a smart rally in the Western Canadian Oils set in and prices were jacked up as much as 10 to 20 cents for Dalhousie, Foothills, Calmont, Calgary-Edmonton, Okalta, Model and Home.

Issues that erased the greater part of fifty cent declines were Consolidated Patricia, Sisco, O'Brien, Pickle Crow, and Read-Authier. Hollinger, Kirkland Lake and Preston French franc, after the sharpest break in recent years, steadied in afternoon last, Sept-ember, found support.

Behind plus signs the greater part of the advance for as much as a point or more.—Were Goodyear, Canada Malting, Dominion Woolen, Rebuck, Deere, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of N.J., Texas Corp., Seaboard, Loew's, Homestake Mining, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Great Northern and Warner Bros.

Fractional declines predominated in Canada Bread, Dome Mines, International Nickel and Hirram Walker, McIntyre and Distillers-Corp-Seagrams were steady to a trifle higher. Dominion government 4½ years inactive. Canadian funds down seven at 1100.00 3-8 cents. On the curb, Lake Shore Mines fell back somewhat.

Healthy Products of Inbreeding Submitted to Anthropologists

Cambridge, Mass., Apr. 9 (AP)—A declaration that inbreeding can and does produce healthy and vigorous descendants today offered anthropologists a fertile field of discussion.

Dr. Harry L. Shapiro of New York pointed yesterday to descendants of the famous mutineers of H.M.S. Bounty, living on Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific since 1790, and said they are "healthy, vigorous and free from stigmata of degeneracy" after generations of intermarriage.

Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, curator of the United States Museum, here for the meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists, told of a Seminole Indian in old Yankee stock represented by Boston's oldest families was "the tallest and largest of any group in America, and they're still growing."

"It's a theory that can't be kept in an Eden and stay there forever," Dr. Hrdlicka added.

London, Apr. 9 (AP)—The suit of Ernest Simpson, charging slander by Mrs. Jean Sutherland, in a sequel to the divorce decree, was today indefinitely postponed until October 1 until after the next court term opening May 16.

THREE CHARGED WITH DELINQUENCY

Found Guilty And Sentence Postponed; Children Made Wards

Charged with contributing to the moral delinquency of children, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brick, 174 Albert Street, and Mrs. Grace Johns, who gave Prince Edward County as her address, all were found guilty as charged in the County Court House before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in a special session of police court held in the County Court House this afternoon. Judgment in all three cases was postponed until Monday by His Worship.

The cases arose out of a raid made by Inspector T. D. Ruzsoh, of the Children's Aid Society, accompanied by Sergeant Booth and P.C. Arnold to the Brick home early last Sunday morning.

Following the court proceedings Inspector Ruzsoh announced that the six Pack children, ranging in ages from infant to 13 years of age be made wards of the Children's Aid Society. The application of the Inspector was granted by Mr. Johns' children two in number will be taken care of by the Prince Edward County Children's Aid Society. Inspector Ruzsoh assured Magistrate Butler.

JARVIS LOSES LEGAL BATTLE

Appeal Court Refuses to Quash Conviction or Give New Trial

Toronto, April 9.—(CP)—A 12-year battle by Sydney Arthur Jarvis, Toronto financier, to clear his name of a criminal charge of which he was convicted in connection with the redemption in Great Britain of $5,000,000 of Province of Ontario sinking fund five-per bonds, ended in failure today.

The Ontario Appeal Court refused either to quash the conviction or grant a new trial.

Jarvis was charged jointly with Peter Smith and others in the conspiracy. Both he and Smith were sent to prison.

The basis of the grant found Jarvis' complaint against the charge of Mr. Justice R. M. Meredith that jury was not sufficient to warrant either action; he now sought or-do warrant a review of the whole case.

Original charge was based on an accusation that Jarvis and others profited wrongfully at the expense of the Province in the redemption of the bonds.

WHEAT ACREAGE INCREASE SEEN

Prospect Increased Demand Will Result in Wider Sowing

Ottawa, April 8.—(CP)—Agricultural experts today scanned optimistically indications prairie farmers this year will increase their wheat acreage and that western grain fields so far have enjoyed more moisture precipitation than a year ago.

Rising prices, shrinking world supplies and growing needs of war-threatened countries have been given rise to relief barring unforeseen adverse factors the nation's wheat growers can enjoy a more profitable season than last year.

Optimistic reports of the increased demand would result in sowing 32 per cent of cultivated land here than the 25,380,000 acres that last summer produced 220,218,000 bushels, smallest crop since 1919.

SOCIAL CREDIT BILL GIVEN INTRODUCTION

(By George Finlay)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, April 9—(CP)—Major debt and Social Credit legislation introduced in Alberta legislature is expected to adjourn early next week.

Premier Aberhart, will visit Calgary during the week-end to deliver the fortnightly address at the Calgary Prospector Bible Institute and on Monday the Legislative Order Paper is expected to be cleared.

A new Social Credit Measure, providing for formation of a Board of House members to select a committee to investigate Social Credit Acts was introduced yesterday in the Legislature and given first reading.

NO PLAN TO CUT PRICE OF GOLD

President Roosevelt Gives Quietus to Rumors on Markets

Washington, April 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today that neither he nor the United States Treasury knew of any plan to lower the world price of gold.

Asked about contentions in financial and other circles that gold prices were too high, the President said that was very interesting but he knew of no plan to lower the price.

He suggested such reports evidently originated in the foreign press.

French Franc

Paris, April 9 (AP)—The French Treasury has decided on a cheap franc to attract capital to France this summer, financial circles disclosed today, as the currency rate plunged toward the low of 22.86 francs against the pound in the tripartite monetary agreement.

A rate of 22.96 to the United States dollar is the equivalent of 4.27 francs to the pound.

"The biggest tourist season since the golden twenties" is expected, the spokesmen declared confidently.

The announcement that the six Pack children, ranging in ages from infant to 13 years of age be made wards of the Children's Aid Society, the application of the Inspector was granted by Mr. Johns' children two in number will be taken care of by the Prince Edward County Children's Aid Society. Inspector Ruzsoh assured Magistrate Butler.

Stocks Tumble in S. A.

Johannesburg, South Africa, April 9 (AP)—Heavy selling overwhelmed the Johannesburg Stock Exchange today as gold shares tumbled 10 points (A break in the French franc in Paris was partially attributed to the same rumors, which have been denied).

The slump in some shares was due chiefly to an overbought position in the market, which left brokers to sell out weak clients.

his reply to each of the individual three charges as they were read.

Fall Office of Trust

"I can't help feeling sorry for this man, but I do the same time he held an office of trust and betrayed it," the only comment made by Mr. Dounan in his address to the Bench.

"Some are very serious charges. Do you realize the extreme penalty the law provides is 14 years in the penitentiary?" Magistrate Butler stated to the accused before meting out sentence. "You have a responsibility to uphold and perform, you betrayed that trust and the sanctence of this court is that you shall serve one year determinate and a further indeterminate, provided one year additional on each charge, but each sentence is to run concurrently with the former," said Magistrate Butler.

The charges were laid by the Ontario Provincial Police, Inspector Fryers Gardner and Constable William McBrien being in the court to testify if needed. It is alleged by the Provincial Police that Mr. Hearn, while Chief Constable of Deseronto, did knowingly accept unsolicited motorists passing through that village, and collected the speeding, all of which he failed to make returns to the village treasury or the Highway Traffic Department. The fine assessed the alleged delinquent motorists was $6.75 in each case.

The informants in the three cases were Provincial Police Constables Walter Campion, Kingston and W. A. Crawford, Brockville. All were commercial travellers, Inspector Gardner revealed.

lament. He said the issue seemed to be the refusal of General Motors to bargain collectively with public funds keeping on relief those who today are enjoying an average wage of $1,000 per year," said Mr. Heyburn said.

He was satisfied after reviewing the situation that the policy of the Oshawa agitators would lead to impossible demands following the great loss to the automobile industry.

Harry J. Carmichael, vice-president of General Motors of Canada limited, maintained the firm was not opposing organization by labor but was opposing intimidation and coercion and under such any body excepting the employees themselves, or the "insidious influence" caused intimidation and coercion among workers, be charged.

Considered Illegal Acts.

Plant officials had been prevented from entering the Oshawa plant, Carmichael told the inquiry and the company general manager. The premier declared this to be "an illegal act."

"Rather than see any violence," Mr. Hepburn said, "in his statement, "no attempt is being made to operate the plants."

He also declared until Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, appeared on the scene there was not the slightest industrial plants in the Dominion "with more contented working conditions in every respect."

He added:

Rights of Workers Referred To.

It was true the C.I.O. in the United States had called out men on strike but the two were by no means connected.

The sit-down strikes involved treaties and might be illegal in Canada. It might be necessary to enact similar regarding it where large corporations were employing thousands of men. It might be necessary to prevent men rented rights on the part of the employer.

The C.I.O. was no more a United States labor organization than the cognized labor unions. Capital was also illegitimate in Canada when United States companies were operating in Canada.

In a northern Manitoba town, said Mr. Woodsworth, the manager of an International corporation resumed relief rations after the Mayor had called a public meeting.

"This governments," Mr. Woodsworth said, "has a decided obligation to the unemployed and in the present situation in Oshawa and apparently that still has been reluctant here to place police in large numbers. "Why make rash statements like that," Mr. Lapointe asked.

Thompson, rather than repressive methods was necessary, Mr. Woodsworth said. The federal government should attempt mediation when the workers were crushed by force. In addition, the workers should be guaranteed the right to organize.

DAILY SHORT STORY—TWO RIGHTS

By Richard H. Wilkinson

The caravan of military trucks was entering Dounreay when the first bombing planes were sighted. The trucks for the most part were loaded German prisoners, some of whom—those suspected of being dangerous enemy intelligence workers — were manacled to heavily-armed guards.

Suddenly the earth was rocked by a mighty reverberation. One of the military trucks flew into pieces and the air was thick with particles of debris. A wooden building near the centre of the town exploded into kindling wood.

Anti-aircraft guns began to speak their pieces and little puffs of white smoke appeared in front and behind the bombers. But the ground gunners were too late, and fired. The first bomber let go another shower of "eggs" followed by a similar discharge from the second. Reverberations from one explosion were drowned by the following. "The little village became a scene of horror. Five of the caravan trucks were completely demolished. Ten of the village's dozen buildings were in splinters.

At last the final bomb had exploded. At last the death-dealing planes circled and swung away northward. Below, in the village quiet resigned, comparative quiet to them which had. Just taken place. Absolutely there was noise, the noise of men crying in agony, of burning wood and falling pieces of debris. A great pall of smoke hung over it all.

Orim-faced, his features blackened by smoke and powder, one German officer alone kept his arm hanging limply by his side. Capt. Rene Pirault directed the work of reconstruction and thought of the German spies who had occupied the first of the military trucks. One of them had been responsible for providing the enemy with information, that enabled the bombers to get through the lines.

A French officer suddenly emerged out of the smoke. He was a spectacle of horror. The clothes that he wore were mere rags. His skin was scorched and burned. And, most dreadful of all, a pair of handcuffs, dangled from his right wrist. The bone end of the manacles contained the shattered forearm, hand and wrist of another man.

The officer came up and saluted. He explained briefly . . . what had happened. The prisoner he had been guarding and to whom he was shackled had been blown to bits. All that was left of him—the man captured quietly toward his wrist.

Capt. Pirault stared at the fragments of human anatomy, and with his like. The officer was mumbling something about a rank and regiment, and broke off sharply as Pirault looked suddenly into his face.

"You're quite sure about your rank and regiment?" he asked sharply.

"Yes, sir." The officer seemed dazed, but he spoke rationally enough. He gazed back at the captain unflinchingly.

Pirault suddenly laughed, bitterly, contemptuously. "What nerve!" he said, and his tone lacked not in grudging admiration. "Wht a brilliant lot of fellows are Germans are. Small wonder your intelligence department is so efficient. Well, my fine fellow, you nearly got away with it. You took a long chance, but you missed . . .

"I don't believe I understand, sir."

Pirault turned to a nearby group of curious French soldiers. "Arrest this man at once! And see to it he is given no more opportunities to escape."

After the fellow had been led away, Pirault turned to a young Lieutenant who had witnessed the episode. "There's cunning for you, and courage too. Such men would be a credit to France."

"But how in the world did you know who he was sir?" asked the astonished lieutenant.

Pirault smiled thinly. "Young man, you should take a lesson in observation. Our friend was one of the prisoners, not the guard he pretended to be. Undoubtedly it was the guard who was blown to bits. Under cover of the confusion and noise, the prisoner located shreds of a French uniform and draped them around himself. And then, in order to positively establish his disguise he searched and found a dismembered arm, which he coolly inserted in the empty bracelet of the handcuffs which were still fastened to his wrist."

"But how—"

"Because the hand which he picked up was a right hand. And the other end of the handcuffs was attached to his own right wrist. Two men are never shackled together by their right hands. Fortunately our friend didn't think of this or notice in his excitement what he had done."

EXPECT PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF G. M. STRIKE

Entry of Parts Dept. Allowed by the Union With Some Restrictions

Delegation Had No Authority to Enter Into Agreement

PREMIER HOPEFUL

Organizer Does Not Wish To Have Statement Regarded as Threat

By IVERS KELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oshawa, Ont., April 10 (CP)—Picket lines about General Motors plants were open today to any who wished to walk through, while the fate of the 2,700 strike-idle employes appeared to hinge on two factors:

Whether plant executives would attempt to ship out passenger automobile parts or "emergency" parts—such as those for ambulances—which the strikers take no objection.

Whether a two-way conference to Premier Mitchell Hepburn's office at Toronto would realize his hopes of a peaceful settlement.

Hugh Thompson, conciliator for John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization, came announcement last night after a meeting with shop stewards that those wishing to enter the parts department would not be stopped but would be considered strike breakers.

Coupled with this announcement Thompson added: "But we, the Union, will not be responsible for any accident that happens after he (a strikebreaker) has left the plant property."

Immediately Mayor Alex Hall criticized Thompson's statement, terming it a "remark that sounds very much of a threat." He said if any man is hurt "the Union marks itself a gangster organization."

Two hours later Thompson retracted his "suggestion regarding the possibility of accident to strikers," and said he feared his statement "might be interpreted as a threat."

Hope For Settlement

Meanwhile, in Toronto, Premier Hepburn held hopes a settlement would be reached "by tonight."

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Aviation weather: Airplanes fly through it, but it is because the air is a substance. It has mass, weight and density. It is a material thing in quantities that the propeller can pull or push the airplane through the air. The "friction" can "take off" heat in the air; that is, the air that is cold, near sea level, with the barometer showing high atmospheric pressure. He can also learn many useful weather conditions. But when at high elevations or in hot, calm weather he is content to hang rom to get into the air. So airports at high level need to be larger than those at sea level for "take off" and "run to the plot. He is aided greatly as birds are, by taking off or landing into the wind.

3000 INSURGENTS FACE DECIMATION IF MIAJA WINS

Government Artillery Lay Shells on Strategic Point

SIEGE LINES BROKEN

Insurgent Report Says Miaja Lost Many Rus. sians

Madrid, Apr. 10 (AP)—The second day of the government's major counter-offensive to break the insurgent grip on Madrid Province brought combat today at the very doors of the city.

While 2,000 of General Francisco Franco's insurgent regulars battled in University City, the northwestern suburb, the government opened an artillery and aerial strafing of the whole array of siege lines.

Jay Allen, United Press correspondent saw General Jose Miaja's government artillery plant fire out of old Fort Moncloa squarely on the roof of one strategically located building on a hilltop recently held by the Moorish de Campo sector to the west.

Miaja's militiamen held the gains made in a counter-offensive to drive insurgents from Madrid's outlying suburbs, but still face determined resistance.

Struggle over the Manzanres River, the communicating link between insurgents in University City and those to the south of the Madrid-Corunna sector, was captured by the government in yesterday's drive to break the semi-circle of siege lines now five months old.

Official reports gave no estimate of government casualties but told of widespread insurgent losses.

Political Amnesty Urged As Gesture for Coronation

National Council For Civil Liberties Offers Suggestion

FEELING "WIDESPREAD'

London, Apr. 10 (CP)—An amnesty for political offenders in various parts of the British Empire as a coronation gesture is suggested by the National Council for Civil Liberties.

A letter sent by the council to Prime Minister Baldwin, the Colonial Secretary and the Secretary for India, says there is a widespread feeling that on the occasion of the coronation an amnesty should be granted political prisoners in Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, British Crown Colonies, protectorates and mandated territories.

The letter bears the signatures of Oliver Baldwin, Rev. James Barr, J. R. Clynes, Sir Stafford Cripps, Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, D. N. Straun and Ernest Thistle.

The council suggests such an amnesty would help to bring about "a general appeasement which is indispensable to the establishment of more cordial relations between the British people and the people subject to British rule."

'Financiers Behind Unions To Kill Competition, Wages And Bring on War'—Ford

Labor Unions Called Worst Things That Ever Struck Earth—Takes Away Man's Independence'—Manufacturer Hints at New Methods, Higher Wages, More Employees.

WAYS, Ga., April 10 (AP)—Henry Ford said today the Ford Motor Company will abandon wages, production and competition such as never seen before," when current strike disturbances subside.

The 73-year-old Detroit manufacturer in an interview at his winter home here reiterated sharpe war-seeking financiers are behind labor unions. He asserted also his company has been "holding down production so as not to take advantage" of strike beset competitors.

New Methods Heralded

Ford said Wednesday he never would recognize the United Automobile Workers Association or any other union. Collective bargaining. He declined comment today on announced plans of the U.A.W.A. to unionize his plants despite this statement.

"When this strike mess is over" Ford said, "we'll demonstrate some real competition in quantity production with new methods that will call for more skill, higher wages, and a larger number of employees."

Question of Wages

Ford would not say whether he has a definite plan at this time in boost his minimum wage, now at $6 per day. He recalled that his minimum wage was $7 per day at one time, prior to the depression.

"Labor union organizations are the worst thing that ever struck the earth because they take away a man's independence," Ford said. "Financiers are behind the unions and their object is to kill competition so as to reduce the income of workers, and eventually bring on war."

PRESUMED DEAD, VETERAN ALIVE

Ralph Pearce Reads Own Obituary And Makes Self Known

Vancouver, Apr. 10 (CP)—A 58-year-old war veteran, presumed dead by court order after being unheard of for 15 years, is alive.

Ralph Pearce, who disappeared from here in 1922, turned up yesterday to tell the story of his wanderings through British Columbia in search of work. He stopped wherever he found odd jobs, he related, but failed to correspond with his wife and two grown children.

After fifteen years, his wife applied for an order presuming his death. It was granted two weeks ago by Chief Justice Aulay Morrison.

Reads Account of Death

Yesterday Pearce, in a west end building where he was employed as a furnace, read a newspaper account of his death. Then he called on acquaintances with Mrs. Pearce's lawyer, F. C. Aubrey, who had entered the death-presumption application.

Through Aubrey, Mrs. Pearce met the husband she had not seen for a decade and a half. She told today how he had changed, so much that her first fear for some of his voice and his knowledge of family affairs she would not have recognized him.

Pearce beamed happily at the reunion with the woman he married in 1907. Together they signed an application to have set aside the order presuming death. It was granted.

GERMAN LIBERTY PARTY APPEALS FOR FREEDOM

Re-establishment of Free Thought, Religion, Trade Sought

'UNITED FRONT'

Reichstag is Called Body of "Hired Val. lets"

Berlin, April 10 (CP.-Havas) — A "Germany Liberty Party" broke through Nazi censorship today with a widely distributed appeal for the re-establishment of free thought, free religion and free trade.

Sent to thousands of Berlin citizens, the manifesto of the "Liberty Party" said it represented a united front of Nazis, Catholics, Protestants, Socialists, and former German Nationalists. It did not mention Communists.

In the document General Werner Von Fritsch, chief of staff, Vice-Admiral Richard Foerster, ex-commander of the fleet, and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, governor of the Reichbank, were named as allegedly holding views in sympathy with those of "Liberty Party 1."

Dissolution Asked

The manifesto demanded immediate dissolution of the Reichstag, declaring it to be composed of "hired vassals" and a new election of "free representatives of a free people."

It called "illegal" the "mass propaganda incidents!" "The underground movement" it said, "will spread without cessation and will not withdraw its line of grievances against the government. "Today there are few with us in this city. Soon there will be hundreds—later millions.

"We do not want a war. We do not belong to the collapse of the Bolshevist. We want to live in freedom."

Domestic Aims

The declaration listed the domestic aims of the "German Liberty Party":

"1. A struggle against exaggerated autarchic policies which is ruining German economy, depriving the people of butter and raising the price of bread.

"2. Struggle against the great industrial concentrations, to end Prussian German industry and economy to their profit.

"3. Struggle upon the vital role of small employers, artisans and merchants."

Strikers reached this decision after hearing Mayor Alex Hall urge them not to interfere with company trucks moving from the plant.

Oshawa, Ont., Apr. 10 (CP)—About sixty workers, including a dozen girl employees, waited through a picket line of 100 strikers to resume work today in the parts department of General Motors of Canada, Limited. A situation officials of the union, company and municipality had considered "ticklish" because of fear of an outbreak, passed quietly when the workers entered the plant without incident. Many were greeted with long jeers.

Men Orderly.

"I am highly pleased there has been trouble," said Mayor Alex Hall. "I am glad the strike has continued orderly. After all there's no reason why it shouldn't. These men are a very superior type of workmen. At least I think they are, although maybe I'm biased. I knew them all, have known them for years, went to school with most of them here."

$1,000,000 PLAN TO AID YOUTH

Dominion House Likely to Prorogue Late This Afternoon

Ottawa, April 10 (CP)—It looked like the last business day of the session when members trooped into the House of Commons today. Only a few budget resolutions remained on the order paper and the Senate was right behind the House.

It was considered possible to prorogue late this afternoon or this evening, making it a comparatively short session. It opened January 14 with all parties co-operating to make it possible for the Canadian delegation to sail for the coronation in London late in May.

The House and Senate put in long days yesterday with one of the last stumbling blocks to prorogation disappearing when it adopted a compromise agreement on amendments to the new Combines Bill, restoring administration to the Labor department and widening the field of investigation. The last stage was passed through the House at 12.25 o'clock this morning.

Youth Movement

Labor Minister Rogers announced yesterday two unemployment relief $12m- extension for another month into April of the farm placement scheme and spending of $1,000,000 to train young men and women for various trades.

The House approved the appropriation the minister said he could not outline in detail how the money would be used but an effort would be made to train men for various trades in which there was a shortage of their chosen employment.

So far as possible in its training program the government would seek to use existing agencies, technical schools and other facilities instead of setting up new machinery.

It was not proposed to establish camps such as the C.C.C. Camps in the United States except in so far as they might be necessary in connection with forestry or mining work.

Answering a question, he said the government proposed to consult with provincial governments in the apprenticeship of young men to skilled trades.

New York Herald-Tribune Believes Canada Stands to Gain

'ADDED INDUCEMENT'

New York, Apr. 10 (CP) — The Herald Tribune said in its financial section today that Premier Hepburn of Ontario's "firmness" in dealing with some New York circles that Canada stood to gain new United States industries because of the firm stand taken by Premier Hepburn of Ontario, "may be an added inducement" at Oshawa.

Among its Wall Street notes, the Republican newspaper carried the following:

"Comment in New York was that Mr. Hepburn, by declaring for orderly conduct of industry and, in effect, guaranteeing fair treatment for capital, has given added inducement for new industries to move about."

Mr. James Cook, cheese buyer of Belleville was present with a sample will of the Cheese Buyers, who were 100 per cent. behind the Exhibition.

Dr. Gibson of the Eastern Dairy School at Kemptville told of conditions at the school and the necessity of maintaining it as an institution. Dr. Gibson left following the address and spoke before the factory opened for the season.

3 SLOT MACHINES ARE DEMOLISHED

Kept by Police For 50 Days Required by Law Before Action Taken

Crashing down with mighty force a few weeks ago four axes and a sledge hammer in the hands of local police officers left only three slot machines at the police station today. The machines had been confiscated during conduct of the gambling found against the operators in local police courts some time ago. The machines, were held in custody for the 50 days required by law and were then destroyed by the cash found in the machines being turned over to the city.

The first machine to come into direct line of the sledge hammer wielding officers was the one which set a total of $119.75 in five cent pieces rolling on the floor. Inside the inside of the machine, the second machine broken, however, yielded only 30 cents to the crowd of police fers. Sergeant Booth took over the wielding of the sledge hammer on the remaining machine and following six well-directed blows the sturdy machine fell before his axe. 27 7-20ths and $18.45 in nickels rolled out upon the floor.

These slot machines are made of a metal alloy with a wooden base and are well constructed and the officers can testify, it took anywhere from five to seven well directed blows from a 40 pound sledge hammer for the officers of police before the machine, even commenced to show signs of weakening. Then a slap, and bang would be disposed of by the police while the cash found inside of the machines is the property of the Crown.

Other activities in and around local police circles during the past 24 hours were purely routine, however. The largest number of arrests of the current month was present and signed the register at the police station last night when 27 weary knights of the road jammed their way into the cell block and seemed to enjoy the sleeping facilities without incident.

A front door has been put into a local building, house was found insecure, the manager being notified and subsequently arriving to examine the premises and assure the police nothing was amiss.

Many were killed, according to the statement, and numerous prisoners, mostly Italians, Czechoslovakians and Spanish Asturians, were captured. The communique added that two enemy planes were shot down and a third damaged in action on the outskirts of Madrid, scene of heaviest fighting.

CLAIMS

Having reduced expenditures on unemployment relief such as bush, highways and education, Mr. Hepburn has been able to declare a surplus of $7,000,000, Mr. Drew said. "But he collected $42,000,000 more in taxes than ever been collected by any Conservative administration in one year," he said.

Fredicks New Contract.

"I predict a new contract will be entered into with the Hydro-Electric Power Company by the Liberal Government within six months, despite the fact government spokesmen have referred to this company as "power pigs" he said. He warned the Ministers to watch how beer and wine licenses will be granted in 100 hotels from which they had been taken in "a noisy and burlesque manner". "Your members here tonight in Orangeville that beer will be granted to those best by restoring decent government," he said.

Says Retreat Rapid.

Mr. Drew charged Premier Hepburn was more concerned about his political future than he is about either government or public welfare.

"My obligations as leader of the party is quite a little removed from the responsibility that is yours. I have pledged myself as your motto is, serve the people well," he said. "I owe to that best by restoring decent government."

TRAILER STRIKES TRAFFIC SIGNAL

[Traffic Light Apparatus Points South West by South Early Today

Motorists, truck drivers, and even pedestrians scratched collective heads this morning at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets as they pondered the phenomenon of a traffic signal in the centre of the intersection pointing not due east and west as it is in stationary position, but due to some unexplained shift, flashing red, amber and green lights in a south-west by south direction.

It is believed that during the night the signal had been scraped and turned around by the force of some extra large transport trailer.

Negotiating the intersection became a guessing game on the part of drivers; while even pedestrians stepped warily when crossing the street until the defect was remedied by the department or public works.

White Fish in Shallow Depths

White fish, have moved from the extra deep waters of Lake Ontario to the shallower depths inshore and fishermen have been setting their nets accordingly, it is reported by members of the local fraternity. In the vicinity of Brighton the largest catches are reported lately and considerable netting is being carried on near Presqu'ile Point. Two thousand catches are reported paying fishermen for their previous weeks of arduous unprofitable toil.

Seek Junk Metal On Farm Lots

The scarcity of scrap iron and consequent high prices for junk metal of any kind has resulted in a thorough searching of farm lots, city dumps and even back yards of residences of the city lately.

Hay rakes, discarded discing machines and other farm machinery is going through the maw of the cutting machines in local junk yards. Rusted automobile bodies are being dragged from the depths of city dumps.

But the latest source of scrap metal was unveiled by an ancient but still serviceable tractor which was run on ramps into a steel coal car at the south station yards yesterday afternoon. Two men with heavy sledges then reduced it to well broken scrap.

With Queen Mary at Holmeard in 1934

In our last article, the visit of Queen Mary to Glamis Castle, Forfarshire, with the then second son, was mentioned. It was this visit (and more than anything else that confirmed, in the eyes of British, the coming engagement and wedding of the prince and his Scottish sweetheart.

To-day we present the royal lovers in Scotland again, and again with them Her Majesty Queen Mary, Not Glamis with its grim and historic surroundings is the scene for this visit (Birkhall on Balmoral, seat of the royal family in Scotland and often a retreat for the late monarch when cares of office state made rest and relaxation a necessity.

Both the then King and Queen gave their whole-hearted approval to the marriage which Prince Albert sought, and when Lady Elizabeth became the royal family as Duchess of York she was welcomed warmly and unaffectedly by their brothers and by the brothers and sisters of the duke. One of the touching pictures ever taken of the late King was secured by press photographers who "covered" the wedding and who published the monarch bidding farewell to his new daughter-in-law as she left Holmeard on her honeymoon.

Thus to-day's picture provides a very human scene in a most beautiful setting. As was the custom, the royal family while in Scotland, the duke wears the kilts of the country. Strolling together through Balmoral's beautiful grounds, perhaps Queen Mary visualized, to some extent, the burdens that would fall upon this young couple, though even she, whom all the Empire has come to respect with a heartfelt admiration for her strength and courage in the months of trial that led up to this coronation, could hardly see all the dramatic climaxes that were to come in her beloved son's life.

Speaks Highly of Benefits Of Home Improvement Plan

"Constructive Effort to Revive The Building Industry and Create Employment," Says President of Canadian Manufacturers Association — Patriotism And Self-Interest Helping to Create Employment

Ottawa, April 10—National and patriotic motives, as well as self-interest, should prompt Canadians from coast to coast to participate in the Home Improvement Plan, in the opinion of H. W. Coghlin, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Because it is a constructive effort to revive the building industry, improve conditions for those numerous activities dependent upon construction, and thus give wide-spread employment, Mr. Coghlin issued the following statement in support of the Plan:

"I have no hesitation in endorsing the Home Improvement Plan. Any national co-operative effort to revive the building and kindred industries and thus give wide-spread employment to those who may have been out of work for years, merits our generous and energetic support. A plan which not only harnesses self-interest in the provision of employment but also calls for response from the people on the ground of patriotism, should meet with success.

"The Home Improvement Plan is, above all, simple. Under its terms the credit-worthy home-owner finds his path, formerly strewn with financial difficulties, clear and direct. He decides what improvements his home requires, he finds out their cost and he applies for a loan from the bank. He can make his application with no feeling of hesitancy. The people have agreed to co-operate, and if he can show that he will be able to meet the instalment poyments, the loan should be made.

"Revival of activity in the building trades would go far toward bringing Canada back to that condition of general prosperity which we all desire. The effect of such a revival on unemployment is obvious. We have only to reflect on the quantity of labor which must go into the production of each commodity necessary to home construction to realize this.

"Practically all Canadians should benefit from the Home Improvement Plan. Because this is the case, because its benefits must be wide-spread and inclusive, I give it my support."

OVERCONFIDENCE AND CUSTOM

Over-confidence, developed because drivers' reactions and abilities under ordinary circumstances have proven safe and satisfactory, has carried many drivers into situations when proper allowance has not been made for unusual circumstances. This is the suggestion of the Accident Recording Division of the Highway Department of Ontario in regard to a large percentage of motor vehicle accidents.

An incident is noted of a driver whose record showed a large number of convictions for speeding. But he was involved in no major accident. He did recall that once at the speed of 55 miles an hour he nearly had an accident as a truck entered the highway suddenly from a farm driveway. He admitted another narrow escape when his car swerved to the wrong side of the road as he was pulling off the shoulder at high speed. He was content to repeat the old saying "A miss is as good as a mile."

Why are we—as drivers and pedestrians—in our behaviour on the streets and highways make allowance for the 'factor of ignorance'—the unpredicted emergencies which cause the so-called unavoidable accidents?" is the question of the Accident Recording Division, and should be the question those who cross or use the roads and streets about which we write.

TRUTH IN DEBATE

A young people's society asked the Montreal Witness for facts on the affirmative side of the debate "Resolved that the re-armament policy is unnecessary for Canada." The 'Witness' suggests that the youth defer this debate until they have debated something they can know more about at home, and which they better understand. The Witness suggests "Resolved that courts, police and jails are no longer needed in our province," as the other subject.

The Witness goes on: "Many people do not realize that it is actually immoral to advocate a sentimental creed that denies a truth. Sentiment is good. Sentimentality is a disease. It is a dope under the influence of which judgment is warped. The world needs to get its feet on reality. It needs a knowledge of the truth without which there is no freedom.

"Personally, we would not like to accept what we deem to be the wrong side of a debate—except to suffer defeat that the truth might triumph. Generally there is truth on both sides, but partisanship distorts both good and bad, making the little good on "our side" to be the whole, while its bad factors are overlooked, turning the tables when discussing the other side. Debating, moral cause, Christians should take the side they believe most right, or else have it understood that for one side at least, it is a tussle in dialectics rather than a question of ethics; that the award will be given strictly on the merits of debate, and that after the verdict those who argued against their own conviction will have an opportunity to set themselves right with the audience by a statement of conviction.

"As our readers know, we regard national armies capable of expeditionary adventures as anachronistic and wrong—except as, in the present distressed state of the world, they may be used to hinder other powers from pouncing on weaker ones anywhere. What we believe in an international constabulary created by contributions of volunteers from the choicest of the present forces of each nation. This International Constabulary acting under world law and warrant,—being definitely a force for peace, and to prevent or apprehend lawbreakers—would be a truly noble factor in promoting a well-ordered world. This side of the Millennium we see no other way to eliminate national armies and war. Insane egotists, many greedy of quick gains, who want anarchy, such men as national leaders force other nations to do something for self-protection. Again as our readers very well know, we believe in practical evidences of a sense of brotherhood rather than in force. What ruler would threaten war on another nation if he knew that his people could get a fair deal without war, and that if they went to war illegally, the international constabulary would deal with them? Water seeks its level, but under great pressure, it will be geysered high into the air. Is it surprising that the increasing economic and social pressure on strata of humanity results in great uncontrollable uprushes of labor, races and nations? Let the pacifists quit their "Tommy won't" attitude,do something constructive toward evening up material and social advantages and so remove the cause of war."

TRANSITION OF THE SEASONS

When Winter with its silence and cool detachment goes,
The smile of Spring, with bird-songs, is behind it;
'Tis only when unfrozen and melted are the snows,
That like a radiant jewel, new-release'd, we find it.

The skies seem melting 'neath a hidden fire,
The earth grows fragrant, gradually green,
As though the atmosphere with warm desire,
Made undulating, beautiful the scene.

Winter we admire, and strengthen 'neath its cold,
But when, a mighty snowbird, it silently takes wing,
We gladly shake its shackles off, and watch new charm unfold,
For how we love the Spring.

CITY MANAGER FORM OF GOOD MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT is not approved by politicians. That has been abundantly evidenced in several ways, in Canada and elsewhere. However, the proof of the pudding is in the eating and communities which have tried the City Manager form of government have no wish to return to the old system. Chatham, a progressive young city in Western Ontario, has tried the City Manager system thoroughly and may be expected to know something about it. Here's what the Chatham Daily News editor says about its operation in Chatham:

"Mr. Croll intimates that the Department of Municipal Affairs "does not approve of city managers." And yet under this system of management, Chatham has the lowest per capita debenture debt of any city in Canada; the lowest expenditure on bank interest; and a tax rate which will compare favorably with any in the country. At the first of each year the city manager prepares, and presents to the council for consideration, the civic budget, containing all details of the municipal financial undertaking; and his advice is sought constantly by mayor and aldermen in their efforts to promote economy commensurate with efficient management.

IN THE SPRING A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY lightly turns to thoughts of love —and just now that springlike urge is turning the thoughts of many a home-loving housewife to thoughts of how the home can be improved and made more homelike and comfortable and liveable—especially since the Government's Home Improvement Plan has made home improvements so easy to finance.

GIRLS CAN NOT WEAR SHORTS IN HULL on the streets, in parks, and public places, or beaches, according to a municipal decree recently promulgated. This decree refers to summer only, but the Mayor of Hull says there is not much danger of short wearing there in the winter. Hull also places billboards under municipal censorship, indicating that the municipal fathers are going decorous in a big way. Can this be the Hull, just across the river from Ottawa, where the boys used to go at night for beer and high jinks?

KEEP BELLEVILLE DOLLARS' IN BELLEVILLE, was the good advice given Belleville merchants recently by a local bank manager, in speaking of how best to better Belleville business. The first thing needful in making a better and perhaps bigger Belleville is to mend our existing fences. Every dollar spent in Belleville by Bellevillians helps build up local prosperity and returns in some way to help the spender. Every dollar spent outside the city which could be spent at home helps the other place but hurts Belleville. This principle of keeping Belleville dollars in Belleville is sound policy and is applicable to merchants as well as citizens generally.

POLITENESS APPRECIATED

An Irishman had been thrown over a fence by an enraged bull. He had just recovered when he noticed the bull pawing the ground and furiously tossing his head.

"If it wasn't for your bowing and scraping," said Mike, "I'd think yer threw me over on purpose."

Parliament Hill Hears

By Wilfrid Eggleston

The House of Commons has seen strange things done in its day. Senator W. A. Gresbach of Edmonton recalls the following:

One night in, I think, 1920, he observed a man sitting in one of the back benches on the Opposition side, and the only thing remarkable about it was that I could not recollect ever having seen him before.

"An hour later I came down to the House and he was still there. I spoke to some others about him and they did not know him. So some one pointed him out to the Sergeant-at-Arms, who was at that time Colonel Bowie.

"Presently the long arm of the Law reached out through the curtains and he disappeared from view. He turned out to be a gentleman from the country who had apparently 'lit' and had kept on going until he landed in a seat in the House of Commons, which he occupied for an hour or so without objection."

A suitable title for Senator Griesbach's yarn would be: "A Member for 90 Minutes". Exactly the opposite kind of incident comes back to me from the reminiscences of some Sergeant-at-Arms, and I relate it here.

He, while seated on the "Speaker's Right" in the House noticed a strange face there. He stared at the man intently, but could not place him. Getting up his nerve and admitting his sword, he was about to march the intruder down the passageway when that it was an old friend of his, a gentleman who had every right to be there. This man had given way to the foibles of the flesh, and had had his barber remove from his face a rather extensive growth of whiskers.

Stray Bits

LIFE BEGINS AGAIN —

Along invisible sky trails the wild ducks, plump and heavy after their sojourn in southern marshes, have winged their way in steady beat to the northland again, compelling is the cry of Spring these nights resting in solid, hudsonian soil before continuing their journey to the land-locked lakes of North Hastings where even now scattered ice cakes float in the water under the restless winds. Down Nature's prescription the world there has gone out that the north is free again from the frosts and ice that have held it in their cold embrace for past long months, and other solid battalions of feathered folk have returned to add their voice to the stirring, lilting tones of bursting spring. In the maples the red buds call as the first gray streak of dawn runs in the East. Even now in the meadow the warbler lifts his voice in welcome to the coming day. On the dead elm the woodpecker sends out his machine gun staccato call and in the orchard awake the sleeping world with distordant chatter.

O—O—O

In the marshes of the waterfront the tiny tracks of mice are filled in with the melting snow. The muskrat has weasel. The deserted but winter tunnels through the reeds, leaving his tiny bones and fur of the weasel's dinner. Even the fat cotton tails who frolicked 'neath the moon in the autumn have disappeared and in their place the rabbits break from the thickets in search of greener food than their winter bark. Brown and sere as yet the marsh lands rise in the wind but too fragile yet to bear the weight of tiny chickadees who hang on their tips. The while gulls, silent, winged patrolmen, garbage dump searchers through the scattered flats of winter's blasts, too, rejoice in strengthening sun and warming winds since April's here. From above, as evening sleep closes in, comes the slow, melodious honk of the wild geese, and outlined against the fiery sunset sky appear the flying squadron vees in steady flight across the sky. In their wake will come the killdeer, their plaintive cry a midnight call to let the earth beneath know that summer's really here.

O—O—O

Along the wood trails the furry folk have awakened from their winter's nap, and once again the day is filled with bursting sound. Deserted yet, the summer camps lie silent, but the night is filled with sounds to break the peaceful stillness of the night or mock the revelry of the day. Even the tree toad that faint stirring of restless spirit in the breasts of city folk now winter-bound. If April's here, then May is soon to follow, and fishing poles but wait the coming of June.

RAFFLES—

With the interest that has been created in this province over raffles of various sorts during the past few weeks, country editors have been searching for some new publicity efforts along this line. It appears that the editor of the Athens Reporter is "on to his job" and has struck on the newest angles on this matter—

"The ingenious scheme of a London dealer to increase his money by raffling is the order of the day, instead of in some time. His employers were astounded when he ran an advertisement—he was earning $25 a week and his boss $1,000 a week—in the private income tax return, to advertise car, had a luxurious flat. The boss immediately sent for the clerk to his office, when a few tactful questions were asked.

"'Look here', said the boss, 'you are earning $25 a week and spending at this rate. How on earth do you do it?'

"'Simple,' replied the clerk without the slightest embarrassment. 'There are 300 employees in the building. I raffle my salary among them every week. Each pays 25 cents for the week and the winner gets my salary, sometimes I sell 200 sometimes 300 tickets.

"The boss said they fired that clerk or raised his salary".

The ministerial organization in connection with the Y.M.C.A. Institution will put on a performance of "Everyman" this evening.

At the annual meeting of the vestry of Christ Church the financial report showed that its income during the year of $5,000.00 with all current liabilities met and a balance in the bank. The Rector, the Rev. C. C. Rogers, was appointed Mr. O. H. Scott as his warden and the vestry elected the following officers: Messrs. Reuben, Mr. F. O. Diamond; Sidesmen, Messrs. George Turner, George Thompson, William Chrysler, Ritchie Thompson, T. L. Simpson, Bruce Simpson, William Harden and Bert Boyce; Select Vestry:—Messrs. Walter Alford, John Newton, J. L. Tickell, M. A large number of new books will be placed upon the shelves of the Public Library tomorrow. A treat is in store for readers.

The lack of small houses is beginning to be severely felt in this city. Citizens with money might find it worth while to invest their money than in building a class of house that would rent at $5.00 to $7.00 per month. Such dwellings are badly needed now and will be needed more so in the future.

On Tuesday last in the County Judge's Legislature the sum of $400.00 was given to the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Ann O'Carroll of this city and thereby hangs an interesting tale. Their father who was a store keeper at Belleville, supplied the Imperial troops in the Rebellion of 1837, thereby incurring the enmity of "rebel" sympathizers. He suffered loss to the extent of $1,000.00 and it is to make compensation to his daughters after 70 years.

The matter of this morning was largely attended and well supplied with buyers. Butter sold at 15 cents to 18 cents per pound; eggs 7 cents to 9 cents per dozen; chickens 40 cents to 60 cents per pair; potatoes 45 cents to fifty cents per bag.

Mr. James H. Mills is spending today in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams are spending the week end at Stirling.

Capt. R. Lambton Sewell returned home from Rochester City last evening.

Mr. Hugh Weller of this city has received the degree of M. D., C. M. from Queen's University, Kingston. We extend our congratulations.

The ice on the bay is considered to be under the crossing of the vehicles. The Ameliasburg stage came no further than the Point today and had to be brought the mail to the city on foot.

Messrs. Geo. Pringle and Henry Pringle shot four wild geese today in the Front of Sidney township.

As the roads are drying through the surrounding country it is probable the Rambleres Wheel Club will have a club run next week. There are many new wheels in town this season.

The Revds. Crossley and Hunter will hold revival services at Belleville in the early fall. They are now at Port Hope.

Mr. A. E. Fish is advertising for twenty girls to work in his shirt factory.

The police court room is not used these days and during court is most uncomfortable.

"No wonder you didn't get very far with that fellow." Do you know whom you were arguing with, and trying to persuade to vote Liberal? Why that was the Conservative candidate himself!"

Horn-Blowing in the House:

Mr. Woodsworth: There is an old saying, 'Blessed is he that bloweth his own horn, for verily it shall be blown.'

Hon. C. H. Cahan: That is a mistake.

Mr. Woodsworth: Is it? Some of us apparently have to sit under the continual blowing of the horns of those who belong to the legal profession.

Hon. C. H. Cahan: The quotation is, 'He that bloweth not his own horn, for him shall no horn be blown.'

On Attorneys:

Mr. Hon. R. B. Bennett: An attorney is a person. Perhaps you will recall, Mr. Chairman, the story that Curran told about a man who was not so good. The judge directed that the court should be cleared, and the man said: 'Present all the scoundrels that are not attorneys leave the court.'

The Weekly Newspaper

Turning from the city newspapers to the small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into an old fashioned garden sweet with lavendar and thyme, and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of the big dailies are full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by glaring headlines of the scandalous. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and wonders that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only the kindly, useful, unselfish things, the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births, and deaths, farmer's items and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad Dominion of ours.

Scandals are rarely published in the country newspapers, but if it so happens that decency demands it, the ugley details are omitted, or given a kindly touch that is widely different from the unfeeling publicity of the city press. The offenders may be our neighbors or people we have rubbed shoulders with all our lives. They are real human beings to their town people, while to the great city dailies they are merely grains of a sort that are ground up hourly in their news mills.

Some times people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most influential and uplifting factors in our national existence.

The Fragrant Weed

A pipe smoker contrary to the belief of some non-smoking philosophers, is not a man free from vice, avarice or wife-beating propensities, but he is rather represent a certain cross-section of the nation that has dedicated itself to the enjoyment of the fragrant draughts of the aromatic weed.

Pipe-smoking has won favor. There are more pipe-smokers today than ever before, and, it might be added, more discriminating pipe-smokers. Many a friendship on the train, the boat or at the bar has started over an exchange of a pipeload of tobacco. Your pipe and smoker does not smoke for effect or because the pipe suits his profile. He smokes from the solid comfort that he can extract from fine tobaccos and enjoys them. And if he is a fussy interested in his smoking, he will experiment with tobaccos, he will compare one tobacco with another and he will see to it that he has plenty of pipes and that they are kept in good condition.

A non-pipe smoker cannot see the use of all this concern about pipes. He will complain that the pouch, the pipe, the constant lighting of matches, the inevitable pipe-cleaners are a nuisance. So be it, but that pipe smoker will continue all these remarks and go on puffing away at a load of Burley, mixed with a little Virginia, a pinch of Perrique or possibly a sniff of Latakia. He knows that in that small though sun and tide may evoke great changes in man's life and that fortunes may dwindle, there is always that satisfaction that comes from the fragrant draught of fine fruity interested in his smoking, he tobacco.—Exchange.

Labor Boss Wears Spats

A Canadian Press despatch a day or two ago described Hugh Thompson, son, "34-year-old British engineer for the C.I.O. in Canada," as "looking more like a prosperous young business man than a typical labor organizer." It is Mr. Thompson who "plans" to organize the 100 workers in Canada under C.I.O. auspices that must include pretty nearly all there are.

The C. P. writer seemed mildly fazed by the fact that a big, distinguished gentleman wore spats and looked like a successful bank manager. But this is a new era in labor politics and that is the new type of labor official who is coming along and making history. The old "walking delegate" who was rough, tough and ready and had not read Emily Post is on the wane, and in his place is arising the polished young gentleman who wears spats.

IRENE TAKES A HAND

CHAPTER TWO

It was four o'clock and they were in Connecticut, climbing along a little unrailed back road, lined with green shady trees so close that the smell of leaves mixed with the cool smell of ferns and the delicate odour of brilliant wildflowers, bloom-dotted green stretches of land that rose and rose to leaf-shaped hills marvel against the distant clear blue sky. For miles, few houses had been visible—though there had been gates and fences and private roads winding among the trees. Anne thought that New York was centuries away.

"Getting hungry?" Richard inquired, as she shifted her position to relieve cramped muscles.

"A little," she confessed. She was more than a little hungry; she was ravenous.

"We'll soon be there," he promised, keeping his eyes on the bumpy uncertain road, and then with considerable and leaf shadow, "I hope you like my place." He said under his breath. He shifted his eyes from the road to her. There was an odd light in his eyes.

"I hope you like me too," he said. Anne managed a perfect Richard-like smile and drew slightly away so that her shoulder was free and her shoulder were no longer touching. Her color was a trifle heightened.

"We'd better get something to eat," Irene announced grimly from the back seat. "If we don't, we'll have to hunt out another grocery store and God knows where we'll find one in this wilderness! Chick and I have been going through the sacks."

She said haughtily, "eating everything that doesn't need cooking."

All of them laughed. They made a sudden stop and Chick, with an airy gesture to the right, said, "This is the beginning of Richard's swell country estate. Pretty snooty, eh girls?"

Involuntarily Anne's eyes widened. Trees, hills, a noisy gurgling brook within from the road. Did the man beside her own all these?

As if in answer to her unspoken question he said almost irritably, "Shut up, Chick," and to Anne "Chick's an idiot. The property doesn't belong to me really, it belongs to the corporation."

"The corporation?" she echoed. He smiled.

"You might never guess it," he said lightly, "but I'm in business."

A little farther—the property was all fenced—and the car stopped. Chick sprang out and opened an iron gates marked with several signs.

"Private Road. No admittance. No Trespassing. No Hunting. No Picnicking. Trees Protected." And a last one, added like a postscript: "Seven Oaks".

"Ah, you're exclusive," said Anne mildly.

"I guess Dick has to be," Chick commented with a significant laugh as he started the engine back into the car. What did he mean by that?

"Don't get in till you close the gates," Richard ordered in a tone faintly unpleasant. At the girl's look of surprise he added pleasantly:

"Better still, Chick, why don't you and Irene go to the Tyconic to gather some more milk, two quarts and a pint of cream, while Miss Lee and I get things started at the house."

Anne began to protest. It was too late. Irene had tumbled from the car, slammed the door hard, the hand went stumbling off through the undergrowth, singing loudly and disharmoniously her "Hard times on up the steep hill, dropped down again, twisted the car around the foot of another hill, and stopped. The house could be seen now, not a rambling structure built entirely of logs, clinging to the hillside above the brook, but a modern one, with windows flashing in the sunshine.

He said simply, "Afraid we'll have to get out here. The road's never been finished. Get your breath first. It's quite a hill."

Steps, roughly cobbled in stone, led from the road into the long sloping ascent. Richard filled his arms with the provisions purchased in mile Irene had insisted, Anne refuse to help, and they started the climb. Sounds of their laughter, Chick's growing air, the buzz of bees darting bullet-like among the flowers, the waving of birds, the busy, active noises that always disturb a country silence.

Anne was possessed of a heady, tumultuous sense of the beauty of the heavenly cool, the wine-sweet air, made her want to dance, to shout. Richard stood by her elbow as she stumbled. Their eyes met. She laughed unsteadily and pulled free. Both were flushed from exertion breathing in short, hard gasps when they reached the top.

While Richard struggled with a heavy oak door the girl glanced on the open porch and looked out at the dreaming country-side. She saw the blue of a lake that was trimmed in trees, the delicate silver white of birch trees, the green fringe of maples, the white stars of elderberry bushes, saw beauty everywhere.

"Come on," said Richard suddenly.

Not until then did she hesitate. Not until then did she remember that she was alone with a man she had met for the first time, she felt a stir of nerves. Something about the man had warned her from the first.

"This door always sticks," he explained.

His words were so reassuringly commonplace that automatically she stepped across the threshold and into an enormous oak-beamed room that ran the entire length of the house and commanded from three sides a view of the surrounding country. The place was absolutely quiet.

For a moment self-conscious Anne stood quite still. It was a beautiful room, a cool room, built and decorated to fit the country. Heavy, massive furniture was skilfully covered in gay hand-blocked linen that matched the draperies and picked up the colors in coarsely woven rugs; the few pictures on the wood-panelled walls were native, brightly colored prints; the sashtrays and flower bowls were all in pleasing copper.

Richard dumped his packages and started opening windows in a business-like way. Presently he came back to her and said, "Well".

"It's perfect," declared Anne, shining-eyed.

"I like it myself."

They both smiled comicsedly.

"Would you like to wash up? Bedrooms are all upstairs."

Her eyes followed his gesture. The house was two stories; the bedrooms and baths opened off a balcony that circumscribed the upper half of the living room. She moved toward the stairs.

"Wait a minute," he said. He added quickly, "Better let me have a look first."

He vaulted up the curving stairway, taking two steps at a time, disappeared, ghostlessly Anne was drawn toward the piano, an open baby grand, and softly she lifted the yellow keys, glanced toward the balcony rail where she heard a door bang, caught sight of Richard stepping from one room to another. He was whistling and carrying something, a lacy coverlet, perhaps there was a flash of rose pink, a glimpse of tweed coat.

Anne sank to the bench, began to play, stopped, looked at a photograph on the piano, a picture of an impish, dark-haired girl standing a short black bob, a girl so young that she might have been in high-school setting. She looked hurriedly away from the flowing inscription, but she felt a wry, unreasonable sense of disappointment. The picture meant nothing—nothing and everything.

She started to rise. Suddenly Richard was there and she was pulled backward. Richard's burning mouth pressed down upon her own, forcing her head backward. She was conscious of a sharp pain on one knee jammed against the hard bench, conscious of an overwhelming fear. She struggled.

"I've been waiting hours to do just that," said Richard on a brief, exultant laugh.

Wordless from the impact of conflicting emotions, feeling weak and amazed and cold and ill, the girl scrambled to her feet. The man's face clouded, lighted again to a vivid secret smile. He leaned across her —she was crouched on the bench—took the photograph from the piano, tore it deliberately across and then across once more. He glanced at the torn pieces, was done and ended by tossing the mutilated fragments into an empty fireplace.

"Does that please you?" he inquired.

Anne was no longer frightened; it was just that everything had gone suddenly horribly stupid and humiliating. Everything was gone —the fun, the glamour, the excitement. She despised the smiling, expectant man. If he had struck the unknown, darkeyed girl in her very presence, Anne thought, she could have despised him no more.

"Who was that?" she asked" he asked in a mere peremptory way.

"I don't know. What you mean," she answered dully.

"You bet you know what I mean," he said lightly. "Are you denying at that picture."

His voice, still light, fascinated her against her will.

"Denial. "That's all over—was over months ago," he said. "I was going to know that. Now are you satisfied, you jealous little devil? Now you know I like you?"

"I don't like you at all."

That laugh was not pleasant. Richard was startled from his attitude of amused casualness to a realization that for the first time he was out of genuine anger and disgust. He thought he understood women. It was apparent that he did not understand this girl. Always before he had had been so easy that he felt a little at a loss. He studied Anne's averted face.

"I didn't set out to offend you," he explained at last. "That wasn't my object."

Anne said, "Then what was your object?"

Standing with his feet wide apart, he said deliberately: "Still I can't see that I am entirely to blame. You more or less asked for it."

The insolent heel went up like a flash.

"Asked for it!"

"Now, now," he said chidingly and self-complacently. "There's no point in you playing Miss Innocent. I'm not a child. I know that you planned to get something out of me this afternoon. Surely under the circumstances I'm entitled to one kiss at least. Won't you grant that?"

Anne was in a whirl of confusion, bewilderment, and anger.

"What in the world are you talking about?"

"I suppose you know," he jeered, his mouth twisted into satirical lines, his eyes disbelieving. He was really ugly.

"No, I don't."

"Well now," the man said rough. ly. "You know that I own the Topaz Club. I know that you plan to work for a job here, So you needn't be so prim and proper sweetheart."

A second time he reached out

Richard Arlen in Harold Bell Wright's story "Secret Valley" at the Capitol today (Saturday only).

for her. Anne evaded his grasp. Her face was colorless. She understood now. This was Irene's doing. Innocent or not, whatever he motive, Irene was responsible for this.

"Come now, be sensible," Richard said, moving toward her, a possessive, mocking light in his eyes.

"Let me alone," Anne said sharply. She added: "I don't want anything from you. I never wanted anything from you. I didn't know that you owned the Topaz Club."

DISILLUSION

CHAPTER THREE

For a moment there was a silence. Richard regarded the girl sternly. She had dropped to the piano bench, where she sat very still, her head turned together, her face pale, her shamed eyes fixed on his knee.

"I see now," she said draggingly. "You thought I came out with Irene just for the fun many you like giving me a job at the Topaz Club. You believed that under the circumstances I would be willing to be 'nice' to you." Her voice trembled. "You thought I was just another ambitious girl with round heels."

"Look here," the man said angrily, "I've never been kissed before by someone who thought I would trade my affections for a job."

"I don't think so now. Do forgive me, Anne". He dropped his hand over the girl's hand.

She jerked away and then asked in sudden fear, "Are the others coming back?"

"Certainly they are coming back," the man replied sharply. He added just as sharply—evidently to your mind. This isn't a cheap place to lure you to your ruin. I would never force myself on any girl, or anyone else. I don't need to."

"I had no such idea," the girl protested, her face flaming.

"I'm sure you have," the man said coldly, withdrawing. "You've got your head stuffed full of the nonsense of 1920, full of locked doors and old-fashioned seducers and back-boarded villains. I don't do things that way," he concluded shortly.

He had put her at a disadvantage. Anne was not experienced enough or sophisticated enough to understand how cleverly he had shifted the tables to force her into the defensive. She only knew that she hated him.

"Let's forget all this—this misunderstanding," Richard suggested unexpectedly. "Let's forget what you thought and what I thought. I, for one, am sick of the whole situation."

So was Anne. Still she was silent, unyielding.

"Look here," the man said, after a brief pause, "I'm in need of a real security. "I like you, Anne Lee, know you feel about me, I want to help you, really, honestly, and with no strings attached, I want to do anything possible to straighten out this mess and to make you feel differently about me. Would you like to work at the Topaz Club? Be honest."

"Stop, please stop," Anne commanded. She stood up. "I'm sick of the thing. I'm tired," she said, bright in her eyes. "So sick of it that I don't care what you say or do again, and, as for accepting a favor from you—I'd die first."

"You're a little strong!"

He smiled. She was not to be fooled. She looked at her hat and the man said in surprise:

"Where are you going?"

"Home."

Richard rose.

"When I must go, too," he announced in commonplace tones. "I'll have to drive you. This is no person-nally to catch a street-car."

He crossed to the window, glanced own the hillside, turned and said: "The others are coming back. I can see them starting up the hill."

"I don't care," Anne muttered. "I'm going home."

She started for the door.

"Unless to save a mistake," Richard began, so reasonably and matter of fact-ally, perforce she turned to give him her attention. He looked at her speculatively over the tip of his lighted cigarette and said: "Why don't you try to get a sensible grasp of the matter instead of behaving like a girl in a cheap movie? Your room-mate got you this job on some mistaken notion granted, but why make it more embarrassing?"

"What do you suggest?" she asked bitterly.

"Nothing for the sake of appearances, that you and I behave like grownups instead of a couple of kids," he replied easily. "For instance, I suggest that we spare Irene knowledge of our private quarrel. After all, why draw them into the mess? Why spoil their evening by rushing back to town?"

"I can't help it."

"Nonsense, of course you can. Just decide that the last 30 minutes simply never occurred, that nothing has happened between us, nothing. Then I suggest we wonder—and leave—they can't know."

Half cajoling, half peremptory, he urged her decision. Through the open windows Anne could hear Irene's laughter mingled with Chick's. Anne' deep bass rumble, could hear the crunch of stones beneath their approaching feet. All at once she snatched off her hat, tossed it on the piano, and sat down.

"Nothing has happened", she said. "Good girl," Richard approved with an intimate, smiling side glance, which she ignored. He added, as step toward the door, lufted and said, "There is something else I feel obliged to your self."

"What?"

It was his turn to hesitate.

"Did you say that you refuse to work for me?"

"I do say just that," she assured him primly. "I would a thousand times rather work for myself at Lotusland than for you at the Topaz Club."

He grinned irrepressibly.

"Lotusland belongs to me," he told her. "I own both places."

Anne froze.

"That means," she said, "that I don't go to work at Lotusland. I suppose I can contrive to find another dance hall that you don't own."

"So you're afraid of me," mused Richard. The old satirical light popped into his eyes.

"Hardly," replied the girl.

Then why break your word?" he paused to demand in his mocking fashion. "Surely you haven't forgotten your promise to behave as if nothing had happened. Won't your promise make matter at your airy change in plans?"

Anne could not resist the challenge. She could not bear that the man should imagine that she feared him.

"Very well" she said her own eyes hard, "I shall go to work at Lotusland as I planned as I promised to do and I had never met. There is one condition—that you never come to see me."

Momentarily he was dumbfounded. by an arrogance that matched his own. Steps sounded on the front porch.

"All right Anne Lee" Richard conceded in a rapid whisper. "I'll just as you say."

Irene and Chick red-faced and laden carrying bags of groceries staggered through the door. Both looked hot. Chick had taken off his coat and Irene's rustic life was never for her.

Chick took a long look at Anne and Richard. His eyes twinkled maliciously as he said, "I don't exactly smell dinner cooking."

"We've been talking," Anne's mourned Irene.

"What have you two been doing?" Chick inquired, grinning in secret enjoyment.

Anne was conscious of Irene's interested scrutiny and Chick's sharp, bright glance. She felt a tide of slow, painful color sweeping up her cheeks. Richard himself remained imperturbable.

"I've been showing Miss Lee around the place," he told Chick politely. "We saw no reason for taking all the work ourselves. Come on now, Chick, let's get this stuff out in the kitchen."

Promising to join the men in the kitchen, the two girls went upstairs to the bedroom. Irene's kitchen, with a glance for Anne, said was to easier, took off her hat with a long graceful stairway and closed the bedroom door, Irene's lethargy magically vanished. She turned swiftly to Anne.

"What in heaven happen while we were gone?" she demanded in an air of suppressed excitement.

"What could have happened?" Anne returned, sinking to the bench before the dressing table and leaning forward to powder her nose, thereby giving attention seemed to be upon the task.

Irene was sitting on the lace-covered bed. Anne's back told her nothing. After a long pause the girl said petulantly, "Did Mr. Graeme say anything to you about the Topaz Club?"

Anne refused to make it easier for her room-mate.

"What had he to do with the Topaz Club?"

Another painful pause. Then Irene rose and came over to the dressing table.

"I have a confession to make, Anne", she said, reddening under the sister-already eyes. "Chick and I framed up on you this afternoon. Richard Graeme owns the Topaz Club and Lotusland, too, for that matter. He's an awfully important person. Chick told him about you, he thought. I thought, that if Richard Graeme liked you he might give you a chance there."

"Well, he didn't happen to like me and it didn't happen to like him," said Anne coldly. She added: "Richard Graeme is not to be interfered with in my affairs, no matter how well meant you are. I don't like it at all."

"I'm sorry, awfully sorry. It was none of my business. Please forgive me, Anne."

Irene was close to tears.

"There's nothing to forgive," said Anne suddenly. Irene heartedly, and caught the other's hand.

Irene smiled. The little difference was patched up temporarily. The two were friends again. Presently Anne said in a matter-of-fact breathless tone:

"I not only don't - like Richard Graeme, I despise him. He's nothing but a born philanderer, a male flirt who believes that every woman is a possible conquest."

"You don't believe that about you," hasarded Irene shrewdly.

"You're right. He doesn't."

Anne smiled a queer little, grim little smile. Irene, relieved, forgives links' came and strolled downstairs toward the kitchen.

THE SENSIBLE WAY OUT

CHAPTER FOUR

On Monday morning, after Irene had left for work, Anne decided that it was impossible for her to [illegible] a job at Lotusland. As soon as [illegible] that many of the dance hall girls lived upon the twelve, fifteen or eighteen dollars a week and spent the bulk of their earnings at Lotusland upon their backs, never realizing that they were moving in a circle.

Anne shut the bag, wandered into the kitchen, made herself a glass of ice water and returned to the back porch. She began, beamed room that had once seemed so splendid was blazing hot even with the shades drawn and the skylight covered against the sun. During the morning Anne had made the beds into couches, found places for the scattered clothes, emptied and polished the pewter ash-trays, run the carpet sweeper, and flourished the mop.

Originally there had been a full-time maid, and then a part-time maid, and more latterly, with the shrinking of her bank account, Anne herself had become maid, deducting a maid's salary from the common fund at Irene's insistence. The furniture, luxurious but beginning to show signs of hard wear, belonged to Irene. Anne never knew how Irene happened to own such furniture any more than she knew Gwanted to know how, during the early part of their acquaintanceship, the other girl had contrived to eat well, dress well, and live well, all without working or without other visible means of support.

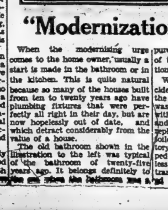
"Modernization Starts in the Bathroom"

When the modernizing urge comes to the home owner, usually a start is made in the bathroom or in the kitchen. This is quite natural because so many of the houses built more than ten to twenty years ago have plumbing fixtures that were perfectly all right in their day, but are now hopelessly out of date, and which detract considerably from the value of a house.



The old bathroom shown in the illustration to the left was typical of the bathroom of twenty-five years ago. It belongs definitely to the period when the bathroom was a [illegible] in most stages of [illegible] and [illegible] plan.

purely utilitarian room without any of the charm and colorful distinction which it has today.

When the owner of this home decided to modernize, he started with the bathroom. The old tub on legs was replaced with a built in tub with overhead shower. The unsatisfactory old closet was replaced with a quiet siphon jet toilet, and the old wall-lining lavatory was replaced with a modern pedestal lavatory. The drab colour-less decorations in the bathroom was transformed by walls and floors tiled green, with window and shower curtains to harmonize.

Unless one has had some personal experience with bathroom modernizing, one is likely to have mistaken ideas as to the cost. Consult one of the many master plumbers, engaged in the Institute of Plumbing and Heating, and you will be given expert suggestions whereby your bathroom can be improved to give increased satisfaction, convenience, and enhancement to the value of your property. And all this can be done at very moderate cost and with easy payments under the Home Improvement Plan.

The rooms were entertained during the first part of the evening with brides and euchre. Dancing to the fitting rhythm of the Alan Sandy family's versatile orchestra of Wooler, kept the merry throng in gay mood until the wee sma' hours of the morning. Old and young enjoyed tripping the light fantastic as times of the present day intermingled with those of years ago.

Members of the orchestra entertained during dance intermissions with a varied program of tap-dancing and vocal solos. A delicious luncheon was served at midnight by the host, assisted by many of the young people present. Culminating one of the happiest gatherings of the season, were speeches of appreciation and thanks made by various guests. Many beautiful prizes, all of a coronation motif were presented to the fortunate winners by the host. Delegates Report Convention of H & S Federation

The regular meeting of the King George Home and School Club was held in the Teachers' Room on Friday April 9th, with Mrs. Bankey presiding.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "O Canada" followed by reports of the secretary and treasurer. An invitation was received from the Home and School Club at Queen Alexandra School to attend their next meeting and our delegates to give the report of the annual convention. This gracious invitation was accepted. Mrs. Grant, convener of the Study Group, reported two meetings, the topics of which were respectively "Hitler" and "Leaders of France."

The League of Nations report was given by Mrs. Scott. The report of the delegates to the Convention of the Provincial Federation, was given by Mrs. Bankey, Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Harrison. They brought back the unanimous opinion of educators and practical workers that parents and home conditions are much to blame for the mistakes of today's children. Public education is to be blamed in the future and the parents are asked to co-operate. The curriculum of the high schools is to be made more elastic and fit the young people to take their place in industry and in the community as well as prepare them to enter University.

The attendance award was won by Miss Marjorie roses.

Mrs. I. B. Naylor was then introduced. She gave an interesting and original talk on a phase of Canadian citizenship with a puppet made by herself. She illustrated an immigrant from a European country arriving with her very meagre belongings contained in a cardboard box. She outlined the activities of those people who gradually become Canadian citizens, and acquired by their industry, home and a wardrobe that any Canadian might be proud of. This were received into our city to welcome these people and strive to give them their best, and to show friendship instead of indifference.

In this way the cause of peace would be strengthened and good citizens gained instead of potential agitators for foreign forms of government.

Mr. Kells moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Naylor and this was heartily endorsed by the club. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned after the singing of the National Anthem.

JR. RED CROSS IS GROWING ORGANIZATION

This year 10,574 Canadian teachers have organized branches of the Junior Red Cross in their classrooms, officials of the Red Cross announced to-day. And linked to the fact that the phenomenal growth of Junior Red Cross in Canada, with its present-day membership of 323,419 was due to a marked extent to the increasing interest taken in the movement by educational and health authorities.

As evidence of this fact, the following excerpts from a recent statement by Roy Brazier, director of Biology, Mount Allison University, were cited: "The great movements which give strength and safety and beauty and happiness to human life," stated the Professor, "have generally marched forward on the slow feet of time and centuries. But once, at least, in the story of man's progress there came a great movement that in a few short years girdled the whole world and banded the children of earth into a gigantic organization the full power of which can hardly be estimated. Its coming meant better health for millions of children; better than that, it put in millions of children an incentive toward unselfishness, some realization of social responsibility, and a very genuine sense of international friendship. What world statesman first mentioned Professor Fraser, "in so short a space of time has grown so rapidly, achieved so much for good, and given such promise for the future as has the Junior Red Cross?

"Educational process" Professor Fraser continued, "teaches its highest objectives in just such measure as it makes the child a participant instead of a passive receiver, and where is this truer than in the case of health education? Nowhere else has the Junior Red Cross brought with it exactly the kind of 'participation' rather-than-passive-reception' that was needed in health education in our schools. Here was a definite, genuine, no unimagined recital of physiological and hygienic information. Here was no 'I don't care so long as I get a pass in the darned thing'. Witness instead the genuine, practical, conscious interest of the children at work in one of their Junior Red Cross meetings. There you will find no dragging, half-hearted, compliance with a compulsory procedure, but plodding boredom, no evidences of weariness or distaste. Instead you will find keen interest, responsiveness, an unforced realization of the importance of short programme of work and service and joyful pride that they have a real sense of possession and the proud feeling that they are members of a world-wide organization. As one pupil put it, 'It's the kids' own show here. It's the kids' Therein, in a few words, is one of the great secrets of part of the Junior Red Cross; 'It's the kids' own show.'

Red Cross officials stated that today there are over 16,000,000 Junior Red Cross members throughout the world.

Radio Keeps Death Watch

Broadcasting stations fret a good deal about death. After all, there is nothing to do but keep going from one in the middle of a Jack Benny program, and this puts a dangerous strain on the studio. When King George V died, many listeners heard an announcement over the air, and the next words were "Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! Single Sam folks." The Columbia people were not satisfied with this as a pattern of finesse.

When the Pope was very ill, they vowed they would forestall any such possibility occurrence. By December 18 they had worked out a complete program to be used when word came on the Pontiff's demise. It was arranged that any other program, no matter what it was, was to be taken off the air immediately. The first chimes were to be struck, followed by 15 seconds of organ music. Then a brief news dispatch was to be read. After this, organ was to continue softly while a thousand words of obituary was read, the voice of drowning slowly dissolved into the background of religious music.

Everything was prepared in advance: the obituary was composed, the hymns were selected ("O Paradise! O Paradise!" and "My God, My Father") the organists were lined up. All that remained was the news dispatch ,which happily never came.

It was also arranged that if the reading of the obituary terminated before the end of the radio period, the period was to be filled out with other appropriate music—"Adagio Pathetique" by Bloch and "Andante Religioso," by Thome. The plan, of course meant that an organist must be on duty, From December 18 to January 25 (with the exception of a day or two when the Pope rallied appreciably), four organists, one announcer, and one engineer kept on duty watching for news. Thirty in the morning till past midnight.

The organists were regular staff musicians at NBC—William Meeder, John Winter, George Crook and Arthur Gutow—and they divided the time up generally in two-hour shifts Accustomed to filling out programs by the seconds of the allotted time, they simply regarded the vigil as a special assignment, and occupied themselves in a routine manner in the musicians room, talking, reading, playing ping-pong.

Their union wage scale is complicated, but the pay comes to something like five dollars for every fifteen minutes' overtime. Much of death-watch was overtime.

With the Pope's returning health, the studio laid aside its gloomy schedule and is resolving brighter matters.

Long - Range Air Liners

When the air mail service is started across the Atlantic Ocean, the first British flying boat to come to Canada will probably be of the Empire Class: they are 4-engined monplanes weighing 40,000 pounds. A fleet of 28 Empire boats for Imperial Airways is at present being commissioned as fast as they can be launched. It is understood, however, that British designers are at work on a new type of long-range air liner is to have a greater cruising range. They would be double the weight of the Empire boat, or in round figures 80 tons loaded. The long-range air liner is to have a cruising speed of about 180 miles per hour as compared with 165 miles per hour of the Empire plane. In addition to improved speed, range and pay load, the bigger craft are to be even less affected by heavy seas, when riding to moorings.

For this year's service the two Empire boats which are designed for long range experiments, the air liners Caledonia and Cambria, are to be fitted with extra tanks, heighten hopes of the designers. They are being hailed as the first marine air liners yet produced. During the present summer's experimental flying, including one non-stop flight of 2,300 miles between Southampton and Alexandria, Egypt, they will be keenly interest ! in seeing the regular service with Empire flying boats extended beyond Singapore to the southern continent. Beginning in 1938, all first class mail from the United Kingdom on Empire air routes will be carried for the flat rate of 3 cents per half-ounce. South Africa is to enjoy this air mail service as well as India, Egypt and other countries. A start will be made on the Durban route in the early summer of this year, according to a recent statement by Sir Philip Sassoon, British under-secretary of for air.

When comparatively little publicity, the first trip has been made toward opening another Pacific airway of vast range. The "Pan-American Clipper" with a crew of seven arrived last week at Iles Gort of Auckland in New Zealand, after exploring a new air life 7915 across the South Seas from California. The marine air liners across the Pacific Ocean, from the United States to Austrail and New Zealand, would make it possible to travel by air around the globe on a regular commercial service, It may be another year or more before this complete route is established.

IN MEMORIAM

HARRISON—In loving memory of our dear wife, W. J. Harrison, who passed away April 11, 1936.

What would we give his hand to hold,
His patient face to see,
To hear his voice, to see him smile,
As in the days that used to be.

His life was one long sacrifice,
His heart was true and tender,
He toiled so hard for those he loved,
Then left us to remember.

But some sweet day we'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hands once more,
To Heaven, that happy life.

Ever remembered by Wife, Family and Grandchildren. a10-1t

ed comedy is shown as grand revival hit No. 1.

Half that time was taken for a complete preparation of the script. Shooting from a prepared script is an innovation with Chaplin, and is responsible for the fact that only ten months were required for the actual camera work instead of the usual eighteen months to two years.

The story which was written by Chaplin, is that of a factory worker in a huge steel plant, going mad after many mechanical troubles of tightening bolts on a moving track. This nightmare of cold shining steel, mammoth dynamos, pulleys, levers and switches is said to provide a veritable orgiastic for Chaplin's inimitable brand of comedy.

Out of Jail, Into Jail

Charlie doesn't last long on this job, however, and the blue centime of the working man soon give way to the more familiar stripes becomes huge shoes, hat and stick or the universally beloved little tramp. From then on, Charlie's life is a series of difficulties which keep him busting in and out of jail and in and out of jail. But a happy ending is provided in the gift of a beautiful gamin of the waterfront, played by Paulette Goddard, Charlie's lovely new leading lady.

Novel Sound Effects

The first comedy in a Chaplin film to be shot directly in sound will be seen as heard in "Modern Times." In it his pals and Charlie performs a pandemime of the old French song "Titine," and comes closest to letting his voice be heard from the screen. The remainder of the film is accompanied with the comedian's tradition, was choreographed and timed, with synchronized sound and musical effects added later.

"Modern Times", which has been pronounced Chaplin's greatest and funniest film to date, was also produced and directed by the comedian, who wrote the music as well. AT THE BELLE

"When's Your Birthday?"

The infinite talent of Joe E. Brown was never better exemplified than in "When's Your Birthday?" David O. Selznick's new production on the Belle screen today and tomorrow. In this riotous picture we think there is no one who approaches Joe Brown's versatility, nor any whose fleeing expressions are quite so funny to behold.

This hilarious picture has the completely novel background of astrology. The subject is ideally suited to comedy treatment.

After a misunderstanding intended to fit him for a career as an astrologer, Brown is seen as a particularly clumsy bus boy in a cafe where he has the good fortune, by counting the platesm, to predict for a gambler the outcome of a Preakness Stakes race, to escape from sight to work in a fortune-telling concession.

Finally located by the gambler, the three members of the partnership—Brown, the barker and the girl—are all engaged by the scoring game as his private prognosticators of athletic events. A switch in horoscopes brings about a tragic situation, and the climactic moment of the picture find the agitated astrologer in the act of trying to save himself from exterminating in the arms of the hands of the middleweight champion of the world.

Marian Marsh is the girl in the case, and has never appeared to better advantage, either photographically or heatrionically. The barker is the same Fred Kersday who makes an engaging figure of the racketeer who can do no right. Other members of the cast who do especially good work are Edgar Kennedy, Lucien Littlefield and Bud Wolson, Maude Eburne and Bull Montana.

49 NOMINATED FOR KING'S PLATE TO BE RUN MAY 22

78th Running is The Most Open Race in History of Classic

THREE STANDOUT

Pagan King, Red Pirate and Goldlure Most Favored

Toronto, Apr. 10 (CP) — Chalk players—the boys who play the favorites on the line—today analyzed the performances of 49 thoroughbreds nominated for the 78th running of the King's Plate and finally tossed the task aside. They couldn't agree on any horse.

They decided, however, the choice was among five and there they left the matter, content to wait until serious training starts and the weak starters are weeded out. The quintet favored are Pagan King, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa; Goldlure, owned by H. C. Hatch of Agincourt; Congress Stable's Lingster and Erindale Stable's Golden Silence.

Nominations for the classic, to be run at Woodbine Park, overlooking Lake Ontario, May 22, were released yesterday by the Ontario Jockey Club. Two colts, 30 geldings and 19 fillies formed the list. The race, open to Ontario-foaled three-year-olds and up, started 59 entries, donated by the king and $7,000 added.

The 1¼-mile race was won last year by Monaweep, an ebony-coated gelding owned by Hahn Stone-Brown, owned by C. M. Hendrie of Hamilton, was second and McLaughlin's Epicurus third. Hendrie did not name a horse for this year's running.

Keeling In For First Time.

Melville Keeling, star with New York Rangers in the National Hockey League and successful horse owner, goes after Plate glories for the first time. He named Sweepstar, a three-year-old chestnut filly bred by Haich. The filly by Sweepster-Penitent started twice times last year. She ran a mile, was second three times and third twice, earning $1,835.

The silks of the Seagram family of Waterloo, Ont., started to victory nineteen times since the race was first run in 1860, again will be seen in the race if any of the four nominated by J. E. Provde Seagram come through the training grind. Provde Seagram entered the owners' ranks when his father, E. P. Seagram, died last year.

Last Plate victory for the stable was in 1933 when Army Chief, a maiden, romped to victory. Seagram's nominations this year include Altchiefer, Poverty Struck and Flying Leaves — did not show much last year and are considered unlikely by experts.

Besides Haich, Haich named Eudron and Gosier. They are not rated highly, but either would fill in should Goldlure or Pagan King fail to race. McLaughlin named three — Wheeler, Silence and Golden Silence—from which to choose if Red Pirate or Pagan King fail to reach Plate condition.

No Juvenile Crown.

Pagan King, Golden Silence and Goldlure battled for the 1936 juvenile crown. Red Pirate, a late starter, is also in the championship. Golden Silence runs for Erindale Stable as will the Clarendon Plate over a muddy track. Goldlure was second and Pagan King third in the Plate and Coronation Stakes, final two-year-old test. Pagan King proved best form and won handily. Goldlure and Golden Silence trailed in the rear.

Lingster and Red Pirate displayed impressive efforts as three-year-olds later, bred by Haich, went to the post twice this season. The chestnut filly won five races, was second twice and third three times, earning $2,960. Haich also bred Sweepstar, Red Marine-Royalite, started twice and won both.

DUTTON OF AMERICANS TO RUN HOCKEY SCHOOL

Calgary, Apr. 10 (CP)—Manager (Red) Dutton of the Americans has taken a leaf from the book of Lester Patrick, mentor of New York's other National Hockey League team. Red is going to run a hockey school, too.

Dutton announced here last night that if suitable arrangements can be made, the Americans will operate a training school for amateur players in Calgary next fall. It would be run in conjunction with the Americans' training camp.

For three years Patrick has run a school in Winnipeg.

At the Training Camps . . . .

Memphis, Tenn., Apr. 10 (AP)—Hal Schumacher has relieved Bill Terry's managerial mind of one big worry regarding New York Giants' pitching department. Schumacher, a large question mark in the Giants' scheme of things early in the spring training, has rounded into form so impressively Terry has tentatively named him for the Giants opening day assignment.

Little Rock, Ark.—Aside from outstanding pitching in the Southern League, New York Yankees exhibition winning streak of thirteen straight should have a noticeable affect on ending the holdout of Pitcher Red Ruffing. Their string indicates Manager Joe McCarthy has the American League apart again and the chances are Red won't let a $1,000 salary difference stand in the way of getting a fat series out.

Jacksonville, Fla.—If third-sacker Joe Stripp's tooth keys him out of the Brooklyn Dodger line-up on opening day, Manager Burleigh Grimes is going to be hard put to swing thirds. Ordinarily, reserve infielder Woody English would take over third, but he's busy now filling in at second for the injured Cookie Lavagetto.

Charlie Marshall, an Ottawa product, was named to fill the hole in the Sudbury lineup. Beavers will send out the same squad as in the first game.

Dave Duchak of North Battleford and Jim Dewey of Sudbury, who faced one another as centre ice at the start of the first game, were the gamest players in the Eddy Paper days at Moose Jaw, Sask. Duchak held the regular pivot position with Moose Jaw Maroons and Dewey made plays for the second line.

HANK GOLDUP IS STAR OF CONTEST

Northern Vocational Wins Over Barrie in Junior "B" Finals

Toronto, Apr. 10 (CP)—Northern Vocational School of Toronto took the opener of its best-of-three series with Barrie Colts in the final stage of Ontario Hockey Association Junior "B" play last night, defeating Colts 5-4. Hank Goldup got the winning goal with 28 seconds remaining.

Goldup was the individual star of a game that was thrill-packed from the start. He scored in the tallying after three minutes of play and got another counter in the second period. Jack Hogan, who assisted in the winning goal, scored twice for one by himself and Jack Taylor got the other.

Each side missed fire on a penalty shot, Goldup trying for Nor-Voes and Budd Jones for Barrie. Jones and Jack Dyte, the losers' defenceman, stood out for Barrie with Goalie Gordon.

The finals follow on a round-robin in which Dufferin Heights and Northern Vocational finished first and second, respectively, over Niagara Falls and Guelph. The Toronto club won the runner-up to St. Michael's College in the Sportsman's Patriotic Association series last fall.

Goldup, former Kingston player, went in alone to start the scoring and Taylor, son of the famous Cyclone Taylor, made it 2-0 on a pretty mark, combining with Cowan and Goldup. Long, assisted by Scott, narrowed the margin by one before the end of the first period.

Taylor handed Goldup the puck for his second-period goal and Jones was assisted by Walker in cutting the advantage to 3-2 halfway through the chapter.

Twice the visitors tied the count in the third, long making it 3-all after five minutes and Jones repeating it at four each after Hogan had passed the Norsemen.

Toronto can win the title in the second game at Midland Tuesday.

BINGO KAMPMAN OUT OF LINEUP

Sudbury Defenceman Cut Badly Near Ankle in First Game

Calgary, Apr. 10 (CP)—Rudolph (Gino) Kampman, defence regular of Sudbury Tigers will not be in uniform tonight when the Eastern Canada hockey champions meet North Battleford Beavers here in the second game of their best-of-five Allan Cup series.

Coach Red Stuart said last night Kampman had received a bad cut below the ankle bone in the first game Thursday as Sudbury won 6-1. Kampman was unable to flex his foot yesterday but walking loosened it considerably, the coach said. He forecast Bingo's return for the third game Monday.

Charlie Marshall, an Ottawa product, was named to fill the hole in the Sudbury lineup. Beavers will send out the same squad as in the first game.

Dave Duchak of North Battleford and Jim Dewey of Sudbury, who faced one another as centre ice at the start of the first game, were the gamest players in the Eddy Paper days at Moose Jaw, Sask. Duchak held the regular pivot position with Moose Jaw Maroons and Dewey made plays for the second line.

BUFFALO BISONS MAY FIND REPEATING PROCESS DIFFICULT

BY FRANK WAKEFIELD

Plant City, Fla., Apr. 10 (AP)—Buffalo Bisons, 1936 pennant and play-off victor of the International Baseball League, may find the repeating process difficult since several of last year's stars have been traded away. Taylor Douthit, the half dozen players went from Manager Ossie Vitt's herd to the Cincinnati Reds for the season.

While a squad of 33 athletes is working out here, Skipper Schalk is counting on first base, his old field and centre field problems, held over from last year by Douthit. Another, now with Boston Bees; Johnny Dickshot from Waukegan, Ill., did not make a job with Pittsburgh Pirates; and Beauty McGowan, clever centre fielder, picked last season as the International League's most valuable player.

Mound Situation O.K.

The Bison boss isn't worried over the mound situation, however, with the return of southpaw Charley Perkins and Woody Rowell, who has been in other fields for the past two years.

Perkins, a red-headed lefty who greatly aided the Bisons' pennant triumph of four years ago, returned following the 1934 season.

Rowell, a sinker-ball right hander who won 18 games for the Bisons in 1934, has since been with Chicago Cubs, Phillies and Reds.

The only other major acquisition during the winter was Pepper Martin, big blond outfielder bought from the Browns. Pepper always has been a good hitter and fielder in this league and his .282 batting average in the American League last season is expected to be bettered by some 20 points.

Right now Schalk is trying Pepper, nominally a left fielder, in centre, Johnny Tyler, from the Knoxville club, is seeing service in left field while Myron McCormick, Wyoming 19-year-old first sacker from New Orleans Pelicans, is trying to fill the specious shoes of Fletcher.

TEAMS PREPARED FOR TOUGH GRIND

Junior Series For Memorial Cup Opens in Toronto Tonight

Toronto, Apr. 10 (CP)—Both teams battling for Dominion Junior Hockey supremacy have briefly scouted each other and are prepared to start a stiff series tonight for the Memorial Cup. Copper Cliff Redmen and Winnipeg Monarchs worked out at Maple Leaf Gardens yesterday as their opponents looked on.

Although odds may be reduced by game time, early today Toronto fans favored the eastern champions 4 to 1 to take the first contest of the best-of-five round. The Redmen are ranked the east's best junior club since Toronto St. Michael's College coasted to the Canadian championship in 1934.

After watching the young Monarchs limber up after their train ride from the Manitoba capital, Redmen had nothing but words of praise for the big purple duo. Even Red Horan, all, ace scorer of the Nickel Belters, admitted he didn't think Redmen would win by more than a goal.

"We expect a hard series because Monarchs certainly have the name of a good club," said Maxie Silverman as he watched the westerners shake out their kinks. "We're not taking them with his own boys in their last drill and said he would send them out "to get the jump" tonight.

Sunday night the checks will be down in Detroit, when the squads meet in the third chukker of the series.....It should be a red-hot affair for the team that emerges victorious from the third game will hold a decided edge over the fifth game for the fourth tussle.

JOS. T. LEGAULT TO HEAD GOLFERS BELLEVILLE CLUB

Finances in Sound Condition And Successful Year Enjoyed

TO IMPROVE COURSE

Initiation Fee to be Paid Only Once by Members

Joseph T. Legault, veteran Belleville golfer, was elected President of the Belleville Golf Club at the annual meeting of that flourishing organization held last night in the Chamber of Commerce last evening. The Belleville Golf Club enjoyed a successful season during 1936 both financially and on the greens. The membership at the annual meeting last evening voted to disband the club's sinking fund of considerable amount and expend the same upon improvements of the course and club house.

One of the paramount questions discussed was the abolishment of the $5.00 initiation fee to players who have been members of the club and wish to rejoin after a period of some years' absence. A motion to abandon the $5.00 initiation fee was defeated, however, and hereafter this fee will remain as in former years as will course fees for non-members who wish to play a game on the Belleville Golf course.

Considerable discussion was heard regarding the renewal of the lease of the property on which the club operates its greens. The directors reported that the owners of the property, the Trenton Estate and the said owners had agreed to accept the upwards proposed at the same rental and under the same conditions as existed during the past but only for a period of five years. The rental fee was stated to be $1,200 per year. After the motion of Mr. O. H. Scott, the meeting left the matter of the renewal of the lease for the said period of five years was carried in the hands of the incoming directors of the club, with power to act.

Sinking Fund Abolished

The sinking fund of the club, which amounts to $1,200.00 will be available to the directors to assist in the payment of the rent, the remodelling of the club house, chase a mower, sprinkler and for the improvement of the links and course. Retiring Secretary O. H. Scott presented a comprehensive report regarding the collection of dues now long overdue and owing by members of the club, amounting to $1,200.00 on the club. This matter will be subsequently dealt with by the new executive of which President R. E. Orr, Vice-President J. T. Legault occupied the chair during the opening of the meeting. The minutes were read and adopted while the financial statement was also adopted as read, the club having a balance on hand. Secretary-Treasurer as the Treasurer's report left the club with a substantial balance for the 1936 season of 1936.

The officers elected for the Belleville Golf Club for the ensuing year of 1937 were:

President—J. T. Legault.

Vice-President—Sam Hibbard.

Sec.-Treas.—R. L. Brown.

Executive Committee—J. E. Calder.

Green's Committee—W. Tyers, chairman, Archie Graham, H. R. Bryce and Harold Wright.

Competition Committee—J. E. Calder, captain, Harry Drew and Walter Waldorf.

The officers and committees of the ladies' branch of the club will be named as a special meeting of the ladies' club at a subsequent meeting, as is the custom of the Belleville Golf Club. The directors met after the annual meeting and discussed future plans for the welfare of the club in general.

Rumors are floating about and that last relatives to the construction of an artificial ice rink on the eastern extremity of the town of Trenton this summer. Whether our operator No. 13 knows his onions or not remains to be seen, but he listed bit of rumor informs us that Mayor Harry Cory, of Trenton, and Billie Ponder, M.P., Trenton's champion politician, held a lengthy convention in Ottawa recently. The matter of the rink originated with the secret leakage of the news that there is to be built along the edge of Trenton, bordering the boundary of the R.C.A.F. up-to-date rink. We are also understand the arena is to be known as a Dominion government relief project, although we strongly suspect that Trenton interests will have to supply the building site and also furnish any artificial ice plant that might be needed.

If the Trenton interests are serious, and we cannot believe such rumors, especially when so many artificial ice rinks around the country are being operated at a loss, we think it is a very frightening thing financially interesting to the Belleville Arena Gang. There has been talk of the re-establishment of an artificial ice plant—and we hope it comes—but we have reasons to believe the talk is premature. BUT, if the ice plant is returned to the Belleville Arena it will be primarily for those who have been disappointed the Arena during the past three years. William Bimm is interested in the Arena we all know and thanks him, 'Sandy' Burrows and Fay Wills are the shrewd minds. While watching over 400 Belleville Kiddies at the Arena one mild evening last December Mr. Bimm remarked—"These kiddies should be asked to make each such soil ice, maintenance and kiddie skating facilities. Maybe there will be better times in the other year." The citizens can draw their own conclusions from that statement. We, The Toronto Gorman, won the Stanley Cup three years ago tonight by defeating Montreal Maroons in the final game of the series at Chicago. We think the first world hockey title for the American city and its teams have never come close since, though Montreal Maroons of the world crown next season.

Directly on the heels of a letter received from Trenton regarding the possibilities of lacrosse in Belleville and the R.C.A.F., we hear that Bill Fry, Eddie Goodier and Gord Delaney were previously considering the formation of a box lacrosse team in Belleville this season. All three local members lived in a neighbourhood or so tried and proven players, however. Out at the Airport there are sufficient manipulations of the cat-gut stick to assure fairly good lacrosse team, so may be a district group in the O.A.L.A. may yet see the light of day. If the local lacrosse players are in the field for a coach, they would be well advised to contact Harry Moore, publisher of the Trenton Advocate, whose aide and last love in the sporting realm is lacrosse.

The local softballers are already for a banner season. The breach between the Intermediate, sponsoring the summer pastime and those desirous of playing O.A.S.A. softball has been healed with the result one well-balanced six teamed league has been organized. What the softballers would like, however, is an adequate field upon which to play. Any takers?

Congratulations to Joe Legault, Belleville's perennial golfer, upon his election to the office of president of the Belleville Golf Club. Joe is a go-getter and the motto of the east end golfer is—"watch your dust". Owing to the uncertainty of the matter of a lease upon their property, the Belleville Golf Club took the rubber band off their sinking fund and will expend some $1,200 on improvements to their course during the next couple of years. One thing is most regrettable, however, that being the non-payment of dues by members after entering the privilege of the club throughout the season. No action will be taken in these cases, but merely those persons about to sports enough to pay up after playing all season. Prompted recently Secretary O. H. Scottie over this Scottie old boy, but you're right at him.

Efforts to reorganize the old pay of Quinte intermediate baseball league fell down miserably by the wayside last night. The Peterboro sport scribe seemed certain peradventure by the shores of the Bay of Quinte,, of having turned the trick, but the K.C.I. from possibly playing in the C.O.B.I. to the playing of Intermediate ball for the remainder of the season. Belleville and vicinity, We have repeatedly tried to lead that Little City's thick skull, that the game's not baseball-minded. Last night proved our certainties. Although the Secretary of the R. C. A. F. sports club intimated to us when at the meeting, while Picton was conspicuously absent, that the present, the Belleville Kiwanis, and Belleville Crew will be there, the Gibbards will now get their heads together and form a league, perhaps next week, who knows? At any rate, as is usually the case, the Peterboro scribe is now "all wet" in regards to the R.C.A.F.

The Detroit-Ranger fued in the possibilities of lacrosse in Belleville and the R.C.A.F., we hear that Bill Fry, Eddie Goodier and Gord Delaney were previously considering the formation of a box lacrosse team in Belleville this season. All three local members lived in a neighbourhood or so tried and proven players, however. Out at the Airport there are sufficient manipulations of the cat-gut stick to assure fairly good lacrosse team, so may be a district group in the O.A.L.A. may yet see the light of day. If the local lacrosse players are in the field for a coach, they would be well advised to contact Harry Moore,

Without thinking of the outcome, blamed the C.O.B.I. for the position Vern "Lefty" Bishop today finds himself in. Mr. Bowman should study the history of the Central League before he makes such ridiculous statements. The C.O.B.I. banner has flittered unblemished in the league for 9 years as the best senior baseball league in the province and there wasn't a chick or child in the loop who was so much as even interested in the wandering of Bishops. We know the eccentric "southpaw" too well to make any comeback over him or his unreliable chatter.

SHIBICKY READY TO PLAY TUESDAY

Red Wings and Rangers Appreciate Long Rest

Detroit, Apr. 10 (CP)—Lester Patrick emerged his corporal today on the condition of defenceman Ott Heller and shortstopped Lorne Shibicky while the rest of his New York Rangers and Detroit Red Ings rested for two days and nights in reward of their feud for the Stanley Cup and the world hockey championship.

Strategists of both teams welcomed the layoff between Thursday night's 4-3 victory for Detroit that evened the series at one game each and Saturday's meeting. The third in the best three-of-five series.

Shibicky and Heller suffered brain concussions in the first Detroit engagement it was shown yesterday in X-ray examinations. Patrick said he believed Heller would be in shape to play tomorrow night and Shibicky at least by Tuesday.

Patrick said if Shibicky is unable to play Saturday night he will call up all probability divide the right wing duties between Babe Pratt, Winnipegger and Bill Cook. He also said he was also considering bringing up another Winnipeg product, Bryan Hextall, from Philadelphia Ramblers, Canadian-American league club with his "brat brigade" of youthful Western Canadians.

Smith May Not Play.

Detroit's worries centred around their goalie, Norm Smith, injured in their series with Canadiens and Rangers in the New York last Tuesday in favor of Rookie Earl Robertson.

Smith may not be back for tomorrow night's game and irregardless of the goalie they play, Detroit is favored with the wagerers at 7 to 5 to win the third series game.

"We've a better team now than we were," said lanky-jawed Cling Johnson, Ranger defenceman. "The gang got to oiling its victories fer the last week and 4-3 ain't no way just an expected letdown. Now watch us go."

Jack Adams, well-padded manager of the champion Red Wings, radiated confidence and jubilation, but as he has done since the series started,

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and ma was starting to eat lunch today, having scramble eggs and sausages, me saying, Hay ma, can I go to the Little Grand this afternoon, mum's admits some of the fellows are proberly going. Can I, ma? I said.

Possibly, I'll think it over, and meanwhile I want you to think over the fact that this is a bran new home and good clean linnen cloth, so any stanes you get on it will be on your own peril, ma said. And I said, O, I'll be very careful you wont reckonize me.

The result being I got so carful my hand shook and spilt splash of scramble egg alongside of my plate and I quick shoved my plate over the stane before ma noticed it, making me feel lucky, but pervius and pritty soon ma said, There's a tiny little bit of egg and sausage left, you mite as well have it, pass your plate.

I guess I dont think I want all of it, why dont you just pass it my platter and I'll just take as much as I want, I said, and ma said, The idea such an idea, there's hardly enough here to eat it all, much less look and choose from it!

I guess that proves I dont want any, I said, and ma said, I guess it does for land sakes.

Scramble eggs and sausage being one of my favorite things, and after a while I said, How about the movies, ma, can I go? and she said, No, there's such a thing as too many movies and I think you've arrived at that state for a while.

Aw O, ma, heck, well I guess maybe I think I'll take the rest of those eggs, I said, and ma said, I dont guess so out of them you'll get a favor, give me your plate.

Wich I did, hoping she wouldnt notice anything but hoping wrong.

turned men of this district. Colonel Rawson had his audience at times rocking with merriment, and the auditorium ringing with the hearty laughter of welcome as he unfolded the funny story of "How I won the V.C." From the time he presented himself at a recruiting office in Ottawa in 1914, until that day he was clasped in his mother's arms after the cessation of hostilities, the narrator related fully incidences in the army. And the redwhite, blue and green ribbons of the decorations he wore nodded and shook as at times their wearers went into paroxysms of laughter at the witticisms of the speaker while he related that dark side of the war known only to those who took part in it. Back over the chasm of twenty-two years he took the veterans. Once again they lived the dark days of 1916-18 but seen through the rose-colored glasses of the Rawson's wit and personality.

Exploits Now Recruited.

The story of how he joined the army, dressed in conventional morning clothes, while he was relieving a minister in an Ottawa pulpit, the speaker, who is a City Commissioner in Ottawa caused a gale of laughter.

"I may be a minister," he laughed "but I am an awful mixture. I was born a Roman Catholic, became a Methodist minister, never preached in a Methodist Church, married an Anglican, and it took me ten years to make a Christian out of her."

"I'll get something on other Canadian soldier ever did," he said amid roars of laughter, "I went to Art Currie, to Dougie Haig, and to Freddy Foch, and they agreed with me that it had never been done before. And that thing was the fact that I drove a pair of army mules for nine months without swearing once."

"I called these mules "Hydro" and "Nitro" he continued. "Once when they started kicking I merely tapped off and stood while they kicked. And do you know, that is a good way to handle congregations. When they start kicking I just hop off the seat and let them go to it."

While I was attending Albert College, in early 1914, I entered an essay writing contest. The theme was whether Canada should con-tribute to the British navy. I was locked in my room the night before the contest closed and told to write the essay. And I was diffident. I wrote that essay and proved conclusively that war was a spiritual and physical impossibility. They gave me a gold medal for it—the great Great August I was in the biggest war the world has ever seen."

"You fellows," said Col. Rawson, "think we preachers are a bad lot. We are not as bad as you think we are—and another thing we are not as bad by one-tenth as you fellows would be if you had our opportunities."

Life Aboard Transports

Roars of laughter greeted the speaker's humorous descriptions of life aboard the transports and arrival in England. He eulogized the British women. "I'll tell you, they really won war," he said turning to a serious vein "it was the women of England, Scotland and Wales. They did more to win it than any other nation in the world. We ever here do not know the meaning of the word sacrifice. The civilian populations of the European countries learned more about the sacrifices of war in one day than we did our-selves in a year. I remember in one city a couple getting stretcher bearer nine city blocks swatting their turn to get a quarter pound of margarine."

The audience rocked as the speaker quoted tall stories told by some Canadians to the English people. "The best one I heard," he said, "was the fellow who told my sister-in-law that he owned a prize-winning ranch in the Algonquin district."

Again his listeners shook with laughter as he described his first lessons in riding school. "The troops did not sit down for a month," he said, "another few days I was on a horse trough eating some fruit cake, that his mother had sent me. It was midnight, and as I sat nibbling the cake I heard a rather approaching. It was the Colonel. He asked me where I stole the cake and I finally confessed to him, that I had got it through the mail." "Huh", he grumbled, "see a piece. Not big enough here to eat it all, much less look and choose from it!

I guess that proves I dont want any, I said, and ma said, I guess it does for land sakes.

Scramble eggs and sausage being one of my favorite things, and after a while I said, How about the movies, ma, can I go? and she said, No, there's such a thing as too many movies and I think you've arrived at that state for a while.

Aw O, ma, heck, well I guess maybe I think I'll take the rest of those eggs, I said, and ma said, I dont guess so out of them you'll get a favor, give me your plate.

Wich I did, hoping she wouldnt notice anything but hoping wrong.

Tense silence fell over the gathering as Colonel Rawson unfolded a true story of his own experience. "The speed of suffering finally overtook me," he said. "Wounded in the foot, and groaning, I saw my own mother plainly. With every step I took her plainly in the doorway at home waving to me. Later when I arrived as the hospital, knowing the condition of mother's heart I arranged that no telegram be sent her. When I came home I heard a most strange story. The night I was wounded, mother fell down the cellar steps at home. She was not injured but she refused to be comforted for 36 hours. Then suddenly she smiled, 'It's alright now,' she said, "Norman is safe."

"Two thoughts came to me when I heard that story," continued the speaker, "When I was wounded how my mother had suffered; discovered her hair which was black when I left home, to be a mass of white through worry and suffering, I came to the conclusion that it is the world to be saved from another blood bath then let that love like mother's be turned loose upon the world. The second conclusion I arrived at, at this moment was the value of charity. For the only place I could find the love to save the world was in the religion of the Man of Nazareth. And my place was out among the men of the world to carry that love to them."

Colonel Rawson described vividly his recent journey through Europe. Hitler is loved and worshipped by 90 per cent. of the German people. He gave them back their self-respect. Italy is advancing by leaps and bounds Mussolini. While in Spain I saw corpses rotting by the wayside. I saw churches burned without a finger being lifted. And in all respect I cannot see how the present cause will win. One lesson I learned is that the church which forgets "the common man will surely die."

Soap Box Orators.

"In England things were different. I saw eighteen soap-box orators talking about the coloniezes of the British Empire to a half million people. And each one was guarded by a tall Bobby. If we had them in Canada, and heard them say the things they said there, we would send them to Kingston 'pen', and prepare them to be politicians," he said amid laughter.

"The best guarantees of peace that the world has," concluded, Col. Rawson is an England armed and ready. Not for aggressive purposes, but if she is this way then the rest of the world will know that she will keep the peace. As a Canadian, if the necessity arises and things cannot be done without blood and destruction, then I will pay my debt to the Empire again, in the same way that I did before."

Vociferous applause rang through the auditorium as the speaker resumed his seat. Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn moved a vote of thanks to the speaker which was seconded by Capt. S. Gilmour, and conveyed to Col. Rawson by Dr. G. E. Stobbs, president of the United Veterans who presided at the banquet in his usual capable manner.

Singularly impressive was the ceremony observed prior to the address. Following the strains of "O Canada", the toast to "Our Fallen Comrades" was given by the Rev. W. J. Walker. Lights were lowered. Veterans stood stiffly at attention. In a corner of the auditorium, suffused by a soft light, a replica of the Ypres Poppy Memorial draped with flags stood out in startling clearness. On the memorial were inscribed the words "In Memoriam". One could hear a pin drop. Then a piano started to play softly the old hymn "Nearer My God to Thee". Reverently the voices which a minute previous had roared out the words of famous old army songs, sang softly the well-known words. Then silence. In the distance the haunting notes of "Last Post" echoed in the building. They died away. Lights flashed on. Reveille sounded clearly in the auditorium as Bugler Sgt. Finden blew the stirring call.

Community Singing

Contributing in no small way to the success of the evening was the Belleville Municipal Band which revived old memories with their splendid rendition of the old army songs. Lieut. Fred Jobson led the community singing with the band adding with an excellent tap dancing performance. She was vociferously applauded and graciously responded with an encore. The fine voice of Harold Barrett in solo and the comedy of Sam Harris rounded out a most entertaining program.

Official welcome to the guests of the evening was given by Mayor Richard Arnold. "We welcome you to Belleville," said His Worship, "and hope you will enjoy your stay here. I was particularly impressed with that part of the ritual which you dedicated to your fallen comrades. You can never forget them, nor can we. They are names we have a part in your programs. I would like to mention the splendid performance of little Barbara Dinent. The out-of-town visitors must think that Belleville is some city to be able to produce talent like that." Mayor Arnold extended a cordial welcome to Col. Rawson.

Place of Honor

Early in the evening war veterans attended by the Band of the Salvation Army, under the baton of Bandmaster David Wardle, paraded to the Cenotaph where a wreath was deposited by President Dr. George Stobbs. Adjutant Maynard of the Salvation Army offered prayer.

During the evening raffle tickets were sold. Holders of the lucky tickets which were drawn by little Barbara Dinent were: Ticket No. 1, Mrs. J. Adams; No. 2, Comrade No. 600, F. Simpson; No 209, Miller Scott; No. 157, F. Mitchell; No. 28, Rolt; Orr; No. 21, Vic. Weaver; No. 433, no name.

The following letter was received by officials of the United Veterans from Colonel R. Rawson.

"I regret very much that I will not be able to be present at the dinner tonight in the annual celebration of the historic Vimy Ridge. Nothing will be full of remembrance, of trials and triumphs, of deaths, fears and of heroism never to be forgotten. Kindly express to the President and Executive my sincere regret and disappointment at not being able to join in such commendable and my sincere appreciation for your kindness in sending me the invitation to be present."

20 WORKMEN KILLED IN RIOT

Rival Labor Groups Battle For Hours in Factory

Mexico City, April 10—(AP)—Twenty or more workmen were reported to have been killed and many wounded, when rival labor groups barricaded themselves in a factory at San Martin Texmelucan, Puebla, and battled for half an hour.

Dispatches from San Martin, long the site of bitter strife between the confederation of workers of Mexico and its older rival, the Regional Confederation of Mexican workers said fighting broke out in the El Pilar Textile factory yesterday.

Federal troops quickly surrounded the building, and the workers, at odds over whether to affiliate with the CROM or the CTM, locked and barred the doors. A farmer passing in front of the plan was killed by a stray bullet.

VETERAN AT 81 HELD AS VAGRANT

Does Not Want to Spend Rest of Days in Old People's Home

Stratford, Ont., April 10—(CP)—"Why should I spend the rest of my days in an old peoples home. I've served my king and country and I guess I can look after myself all right," so said 81-year-old Frank Walk, native of Stratford and veteran globe trotter, to a reporter today from behind the bars of a cell in the city police station. He had previously appeared before Magistrate J. A. Makins on a vagrancy charge and was remanded for a week until some disposition could be made of his case.

Walk, happy-go-lucky veteran of the Boar war didn't ask for any special comforts, just a pig of chewing tobacco and was grateful to a reporter who brought him two.

He was picked up by police in a Richmond Township bush last night after district farmers had reported the aged man wandering about that section of the country. Police like, he was not asking any one to take care of him and with a resourcefulness developed when a scout carrying messages across the lonely African veldt, he had built a fire on wet brush wood and was just settling down for a comfortable evening.

2-YEAR TERM IMPOSED

Windsor, Ont., April 9—(CP)—Edmund Hebert, 20, Windsor, was sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary today on a charge of armed robbery. The youth pleaded guilty last week to holding up Annie Dickens, 34, clerk in the T. Eaton order office here, a week ago Saturday and robbing her of $113 in cash and several cheques. He said it was a toy revolver.
